Call by Number

A HELPFUL HINT—Start today to build up a list of out-of-town telephone numbers. Write down those you already know. If there's a new number you don't have—or an old one you've forgotten—be sure to add it to the list when the operator gives it to you.

"You'll save time if you give me the out-of-town number you're calling.

"That way I can put your call through without first calling 'Information' in the distant city.

"Your own call goes through faster. And you help speed the service for everyone. That's especially important now, when so many urgent defense calls are on the Long Distance lines."

To and From the Editor

A NEW editor is expected to make a statement about how he will handle things. Or perhaps more accurately, a new editor expects to make such a statement. So here goes.

The goal of OLD OREGON will be, as it has been, to give you an interesting report on what is happening on the campus, and what is happening to you—the alumni. Above all, we hope to make OLD OREGON truly an alumni magazine.

If the spirit moves you, write us a letter, make a complaint, send a suggestion, write an article—or at least a note for News of the Classes about yourself or a classmate.

A FORMER editor of OLD OREGON, Stan Turnbull '51, dropped in the other day to wish us well. We talked him into writing a report on life in the cold war army. Private Turnbull, who hopes soon to be PFC, agreed. Look for it in the next issue.

Another ex-editor, not of OLD OREGON, but of a trade magazine, Alyce Rogers Sheetz '40, helped us get this summer issue to press. She's now working as a free lance writer and as a secretary, and we will hear from her in the next issue, about a couple of campus cutups named Leo Deffenbacher and Charlie Elliott.

WE ARE HAPPY to announce that OLD OREGON won a special "surprise award" in the American Alumni Council's 1952 competition for alumni magazines. The award, "for notable editorial achievement" in various categories not included in the regular competition, recognized OLD OREGON's distinctive cover sketches.

Arrangements for the sketches were made by Editor Jackie Pritzen '52. They were drawn by Don Stevenson, graduate of the University's art and architecture school. Don also is the artist who did the large mural in the lobby of the student union.

AN interesting report comes from King Y. Chau '34, about conditions in Hong Kong, where he is an accountant for the South China Sea Trading Company, Ltd. "We are very free living in Hong Kong, but the people who live in Red China are without freedom at all," he says. "The Reds want to take Hong Kong, but they don't dare to do so. People living in Hong Kong know what the Red is doing in China very well because the Reds can just make a 'glass-curtain' between China and Hong Kong. They are not strong enough to make an iron curtain yet."

Our correspondent from Hong Kong, incidentally, is married to an Oregon girl, Pearl S. Tse '35. Don't know for sure how many children they have, but if their first son is an indication, they recall the days at Oregon. His name? Eugene Millrace Chau. —P.J.D.

Casanova's Kids Are Rarin' To Go

By Art Litchman

Here Come the DUCKS!

Eugene Public Library
Eugene, Oregon

Coach Len Casanova's '52 University of Oregon football squad will be dominated by youngsters and with that youth the Ducks will again be faced with the problem of inexperience as they move into a tough 10-game schedule.

At the end of spring practice 29 of the top 40 prospects were either sophomores or juniors and the 11 remaining squad men were seniors. In addition to inexperience and the rugged schedule, the Webfoot coaches are faced with lack of depth which could prove serious in the event injuries sideline any of the key members of the 1952 squad.

The picture for the coming season also has its bright spots, particularly in the passing of Hal Dunham, George Shaw and Barney Holland, in the rapid improvement made by a number of the younger players who were moved to new positions, and in the performance of some of the newcomers.

There also will be one change in the coaching staff for the fall as Vern Sterling, a former Santa Clara All-American under Coach Casanova, joins his old boss as line coach replacing Gene Harlow, who resigned to accept a position at Tulane. The other assistants remain the same with Jack Roche as assistant coach, Johnny McKay handling the backfield and Bill Bowerman the freshmen.

The Webfoots start the season in Los Angeles against one of the favorites for the 1952 PCC championship, Coach Red

Sander's UCLA Bruins. The next week the Ducks return to Portland to play Nebraska in a night game and then move on to Idaho. On October 11 the Ducks are back in Portland to meet the powerful California Bears and then travel to Seattle for the annual game with the Washington Huskies.

Then comes a three week stand at Hayward Field against Montana, College of the Pacific and Washington State (Homecoming). The final two games will be played at Stanford on November 15 and at Portland against Oregon State on November 22.

The big offensive weapons for the Ducks this fall will be the passing of Dunham, Shaw and Holland coupled with the improved running of Tom Novikoff and a fine group of young backs headed by Ted Anderson, Tom Elliot, Farrell Albright, Dean Van Leuven, Cece Hodges and the Barber twins.

The weaknesses, as pointed out earlier, will center around a lack of experience and depth which will be felt most often on defense and in the event injuries cut into the personnel.

Position by position, the outlook at this time appears to be pretty much as outlined below with the possibility of changes and additions as the practice gets underway on September 1.

ENDS: Monte Brethauer, one of the more talented pass receivers in the league, is on hand for his final season. Ron Lyman, a converted fullback, teamed with Brethauer during the spring. Both, by the way, will also see duty as defensive halfbacks. Emery Barnes, the talented ex-Jefferson wingman, and Wayne Johnson, a letterman from Eugene will be on defense. Neil Muller and Jim Jones, two promising sophomores, round out the top six.

TACKLES: An entirely new top four take over at this vital position. Don Hedgepeth, a junior from Grants Pass, and Hal Reeve, a sophomore from North Bend, have switched from end to strengthen things here and both did very well during the spring drills. Len Berrie, a former Portland star, and Chuck Laird, a converted center, have also moved in here along with a fine sophomore, Pat O'Brien. Len Diederichs, the lone holdover, fills out the list of top candidates.

GUARDS: Emmett Williams, probably one of the most improved players on the squad last season, will be playing his senior year. Ken Sweitzer, a converted end, and Jack Patera, a hustling sophomore from Hal Dunham, top, is one of Oregon's threats this season. Below, Quarterback Shaw hands the ball to Fullback Novikoff. At right is grim-faced Stoutt, who will fill center spot.

Portland, will be in the battle for starting positions. Three juniors, Bob Wilcox, John Adams and Russ Sara, along with sophomore Chuck Greenley, will make up the reserve strength.

CENTER: Dick Stoutt, a converted defensive end, did well as the pivot man in spring practice and may beat off the challenge of three sophomores, Russ Slover, Ron Pheister and Paul Jackson, for the starting spot here.

QUARTERBACKS: Hal Dunham, the second ranking passer in the PCC last season and now the holder of the majority of the Oregon passing records, seems ready for his finest season. On the basis of his work in the spring he could easily be the best "T" quarterback in the league. George Shaw, who played behind Dunham last season, is again set for that spot and may also do some work as a halfback. Barney Holland, the ex-Marshfield ace, provides excellent reserve strength.

LEFT HALFBACK: Ted Anderson, who was Tommy Edward's sub in 1951, has come along nicely and his speed will be of considerable help. Lloyd Powell, the Triangle Lake sophomore, and Merrit Barber, the Eugene speedster, will back Anderson and Bob Leter and Jerry Mock will be valuable on defense.

RIGHT HALFBACK: The youngsters have taken over here, too, with Tom Elliott back from the Marine Corps for his sophomore season and Farrell Albright, another sophomore, up from the junior varsity. The other Barber twin, Manning, will join with Tom Lyon and Bill Fell to form the reserve corps.

FULLBACK: Tom Novikoff, who started the 1951 season with a great display of running, hopes to reach that form again if injuries do not hamper him as they did during the latter stages of last season. He will be pushed hard by Dean Van Leuven, the sophomore powerhouse from Bandon. Coach Casanova will also have Cece Hodges available for work either at fullback or one of the halfback spots and Don Holt, a sophomore from Portland, can fill in as a reserve.

All in all, there will be 22 lettermen on hand along with a dozen or so graduates of the junior varsity and a handful of new men to round out the Webfoot football picture as it looks prior to the opening of practice.

Pass-receiver Monte Brethauer will be in at end. Below at left is Patera, a guard, and at right another prospect for end, Ron Lyman, who will also be defensive halfback.

A New Deal On Tickets

Anybody need a ticket? Ancy Vincent, undergraduate from Eugene, has enough for everybody. First game is with UCLA at Los Angeles, September 20.

Coach Len Casanova's squad won't begin practice until September 1 and won't play a game until September 20, but the Athletic Ticket Office has already spent the last 90 days preparing ticket applications and orders for the coming season.

Many alumni have received their applications and ordered tickets for the fall. Those who haven't are being urged to purchase their seats prior to September 1 to take full advantage of the preference offered paid alumni.

A new type of application has been used this year by the Athletic Department and it is expected to speed service and eliminate much of the detail work which hampered operations in the past.

One of the nine classifications listed is "paid alumni" and this is most important to those desiring to take advantage of the preference seating allotted to this group. All applications were marked "alumni" as they were mailed and the final coding will not take place until September, just prior to the time the orders are filled and the ticket mailed to the purchasers. At that time the paid alumni list will be checked against the ticket applications and all of those who are paid alumni at that time will be given the "paid alumni" preference in seating.

If you are not paid for the 1952-53 year and wish to have your ticket application marked so as paid, please send your annual dues with your application or to the alumni office in advance of September 1.

A new reduced ticket price scale has been put in effect in Portland and seats are now priced at $4.00, $3.00 and $2.00. The highest price seats are located in sections 3 through 9 on the west of Multnomah Stadium. The $3.00 seats include all of section 10, the seats under cover in sections 11 through 23 and all east grandstand sections except EE and G. The lowest price reserved seats ($2.00) are NOT UNDER COVER in sections 11 through 23 and in sections EE and G of the east grandstand.

Prices in Eugene remain the same, with the Montana and COP games priced at $3.00 for reserved seats and $3.60 for Washington State, the 1952 Homecoming Game.

The same system of processing applications will be used again this season. Each order is dated as it is received and then filed. When ticket orders are filled in September, those carrying the earliest date in each classification are filled first. So, it pays to get your order in as early as possible to improve your seating.

All tickets will be mailed prior to September 17, 10 days in advance of the first home game (Nebraska at Portland on September 27).

Those desiring to order Oregon State game tickets should understand that this year's game is a home game for Oregon State and the tickets available at Oregon are in the $4.00 sections (north end zone and east grandstand) and no $5.00 tickets will be available at Multnomah field.

In the Black for 1951-52

THE UNIVERSITY of Oregon Athletic Department ended fiscal year 1951-1952 in the black with a gross operating profit of $42,114.80 and a net profit of $23,146.80. These figures are revealed in the report made available by Athletic Director Leo Harris and Howard Lemons, athletic manager, to OLD OREGON as a special service to alumni.

Even though gate receipts of both basketball and football declined somewhat from the 1950-51 figures, both sports brought in small "profits" and the overall financial condition was improved by $36,052.25 received from the Pacific Coast conference radio rights and Rose Bowl share. Student fees, special activities, and miscellaneous income, such as that from faculty season tickets and special events also helped out.

Football revenue dropped from $173,538.09 to $166,349.41, and expenses for the major sport of the year went up. But even so, a profit of more than $3,500 was recorded.

Oregon basketball again came through as a money-maker, violating the trend at most institutions. Nearly $3,000 more than expense money was taken in at McArthur court and as a share of the gate at away from home games, to keep that sport in the black, too. Last year, basketball turned in a profit of a little more than $4,000.

Biggest increase on a year-to-year basis was posted in P.C.C. income. In 1950-51, the Oregon athletic department realized only $5,481.74. A larger Rose Bowl take and increased radio rights multiplied that nearly seven times for the 1951-52 season. Student fees also were up considerably, with an increase of more than $10,000 being recorded.

The gross operating profit—the amount left before capital improvements are paid for—was about $12,000 above that of the previous year. And since considerably less money was expended upon capital improvements, the department finished with a net profit. Last year, a net loss of $14,226.64 was recorded. At that time more than $40,000 was expended on capital improvements, while during the season just past only $18,968 was spent.

That payment, incidentally, was the final one for the additional bleachers for Hayward field. These metal stands greatly increase the capacity of the field. They are sturdy and can be easily stored during the off-season period.

Further large-scale expenditures for capital improvements are not expected to be necessary for several years, making possible some diversion of funds to reserve purposes. The Hayward field plant is now in excellent condition and boasts more seating capacity than ever before.

Other items in the accompanying financial report which might need explanation include: Building and Grounds income (from rental of McArthur court and other facilities to teams other than those of the University); Insurance, Assessments, Interest income (from a loan to the University of Oregon Development fund which is being repaid) and expenses (on a loan to build the new bleachers at the south end of the field); miscellaneous income (from special events and exhibitions in which the department gets a share of gate receipts).

Presentation of a financial statement to alumni was tried out last year for the first time. That report drew favorable comment from alumni, and as a result, OLD OREGON is repeating the service this year, with the cooperation of the Athletic Department.

How to Get into

*A thousand freshmen will flock into Eugene September 14 and 15...
Here are some of the things they will do in their first week at Oregon*

ABOUT the middle of September, Barry Hugh Briggs, 17 years old, graduate of Cleveland High school in his home town of Portland, will come rolling into Eugene to join about a thousand other young people for the University of Oregon's 76th freshman week.

Along with Barry will be your son or daughter, your younger brother or sister, your nephew, niece or neighbor kid from down the block. They will become, in due course, the class of 1956. But what's in store for them that first hectic week?

Freshmen may feel that no one in Eugene gave thought to their arrival in advance of the day they get off the train in the Southern Pacific depot. Actually, a lot of planning will already have been done. Frosh week doesn't go just like clockwork, but it is a reasonably orderly procedure, developed in the 75 years of the University.

But all the same, to Barry and the thousand others, it will be confusing and hectic. He'll write his name at least a hundred times, it will seem. He'll take five to eight hours of examinations. He'll meet dozens of new people—faculty members, dormitory advisers, roommates, maybe even President Newburn. He'll pose for a picture, breath deeply for a physical examination, and ponder a finely-printed pamphlet called "Schedule of Classes." At the end of seven days of going and coming, standing in line, filling out forms, and hunting up places like Villard and the new Commonwealth building, he'll have a program and will be a full-fledged University of Oregon student.

Even though Barry can get a briefing in advance from his father, Hugh L. Biggs '27, the 1952 freshman week is a far cry from the procedure of thirty or even ten or five years ago. Depending upon your own time of entry, it will seem complicated, or possibly even simplified.

The process really starts during the summer for most incoming students. As soon as they have completed high school, they can—and do—write to Director of Admissions, Spencer Carlson '35. These first letters start the process of evaluating and checking the applicant's high school record.

"Any Oregon high school graduate is eligible for admission to the University," Carlson explains. The philosophy, he continues, is that "as a public institution, the Freshmen will stand in line for part of the week, they'll confer with faculty advisers, and they will "become" punched file cards in the IBM system, watched over below by Director of Admissions Spencer Carlson.

College

University should extend the opportunity to every Oregon high school graduate to demonstrate his ability to do college work." Thus, in almost every case, an Oregon high school diploma is all that is required.

Would-be freshmen from other states undergo a little more scrutiny. Carlson says that their records are studied to make sure that "they will be students who can contribute something to the University and who will have some assurance of success in college work." For example, a California or Washington student who was in the bottom 25 per cent of his high school class, probably won't make it. As an Oregon institution, the University does not feel called upon to "extend the opportunity" to every high school graduate of other states. As a result Oregon is not a "refuge for failures" and the academic level is improved.

Two out of every three high school students whose admission requests are granted actually come to the University. Carlson reports. The job of evaluating the hundreds of records is a long and tedious one, and it goes on all through the summer. As each student is accepted, he receives a "notice of admission" well in advance of September 14. Barry, for example, had his the last part of June.

Along with this slip, the potential Web-foot gets a catalog and a little pamphlet entitled "Welcome to Oregon." The latter is a good thing to keep in hand, for it has a map of the campus.

The "Welcome" pamphlet gives an idea of the fast pace which Barry will keep that week. He can get started either Saturday, September 13, or Sunday, September 14. Dormitories open on the first day. Registration material is ready the second.

An important part of the material will be a stack of IBM cards which were prepared in advance. All registration records are now kept on the intricate machines. That's a process which has been gradually put into effect the past several years, and finally was completed in 1951.

Sunday evening, the thousand freshmen will meet Donald DuShane, director of student affairs, who will present President Newburn. This first assembly provides the newcomers with an oral welcome, and a lot of information about what's in store for them. After that, there will be dormitory meetings for each unit, when more questions can be asked and answered.

Starting Monday and continuing through the week, Barry and his classmates will go through their placement examinations. Basic test is the "psych" examination. This is an old standby of freshman week, having been a part of the procedure since 1926. Results of this test eventually are added to the registration material of the student and are expressed today in "stanines." For most students, the interesting fact is that 9 is "tops." From 5 to 9 indicate that the student has a good chance of success in college work.

There are plenty of other tests. An English examination, initiated in 1930 and dropped during the war, has been given since 1947. Since 1948 a mathematics placement test has been used to help discover what math, chemistry and physics courses the student is ready to take. Last year, a language placement test was initiated. The freshman who places high may find it possible to skip the first year of a college language.

All in all, the incoming freshman will spend as many as eight hours on these tests. Their purpose is primarily to make possible more intelligent advising of the new student. That takes place in following days of the week. Then the freshman will sit down with a faculty adviser to decide what courses he will take.

He also may talk over courses with his dormitory counselor and with fellow-freshmen. The counseling program is a relatively new part of the procedure, which has been fully developed since the deferred living plan went into effect in 1950. That plan, incidentally, has removed the added hurly-burly of fraternity and sorority rush weeks from freshman week.

"The key to getting the students started is the dorm counselor," Carlson believes. The age difference is slight, since the counselors are themselves seniors or young graduate students. There is the opportunity to get together in small groups and ask the questions which might be shunted aside in more formal circumstances. Also helpful to the newcomers is the Student Orientation committee, which makes additional students available during the week to give advice to the youngsters.

Since 1946, the University registration has been on a "decentralized basis," according to Registrar Clifford Constance. Alumni who entered before that year will recall the days in McArthur court, the multitude of signs and throngs of students which gave the building something of the look of a political convention.

Today, registration clerks and faculty members of the various departments stay in their own offices. This means that the freshman must go from one to another to drop his "class cards," get registration stamps and signatures. But while it means a lot of walking, the process has a benefit—it teaches the new student something about the layout of the campus.

Freshman week isn't all official doings. There are informal events like the New-Student Picnic, the traditional football rally, the Student Union Open house, and the traditional Hello Dance, which provide some of the color and excitement of college life.

Incidentally, one other thing has definitely changed about the whole proceeding. Nobody calls it matriculation any more.

Whatever you call it, the week will be a big one for Barry and his thousand classmates. In the words of the welcome pamphlet:

"So you are welcomed, examined, oriented, advised, registered—you are ready for your real University work. . . . We wish you success."

The Story of Jimmy Gilbert

THE SOUND of the tardy bell was just fading as the husky young man in the lemon O sweater made a final, desperate lunge for his numbered economics class seat. Drawing himself erect and mustering his full dignity, Professor James H. Gilbert crisply announced with the merest trace of a twinkle in his eye: "Sir, you are absent by six feet!"

In many respects the story of James Henry Gilbert is the history of the growth and development of the University of Oregon from a struggling infant institution of 600 students to a mature university of 5,000. Few men have had their lives so intertwined with our great state University as has the venerable former Liberal Arts College dean and long time professor of economics whose years of service span four decades.

To a host of former students "Jimmie" Gilbert—in all his vigor, intellectual alertness, and just judgment—is living personification of the University of Oregon.

Though a native of Erwin, Tennessee, Dean Gilbert looks upon Eugene as his real home. Since 1899 he has been connected with the town through his positions as student, teacher, and dean at the University. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Oregon in 1903, James Gilbert returned to the school in 1907 as a staff member having acquired his Ph.D. from Columbia University in the same year.

From 1907-47 he saw forty years of virtually uninterrupted service with the University. In 1915 Dr. Gilbert was appointed professor of economics. By 1925 he had become acting dean of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts and two years later he assumed permanent deanship. The decade following 1932 saw James Gilbert serving as dean of the College of Social Sciences until he was named dean of the Liberal Arts College in 1942, a position he held until retirement in 1947. He is now professor emeritus of economics.

But even without direct academic connection with the University Dean Gilbert still serves the institution well through widespread participation in alumni tours. "Jimmie" Gilbert, as the distinctive teacher of thousands of students, is always in great demand by former pupils at alumni functions. These meetings, admits the popular dean, never cease to bring him pleasure when he runs across classroom students of yesterday. Dean Gilbert, whose favorite course was general economics, is always gratified to hear from ex-pupils how his efforts to make economics not only clear and stimulating, but also of practical value in life, have paid off.

Primarily known for his work in the fields of public finance and taxation, James Gilbert always looked upon himself as a teacher, both through temperament and interest. Because of this he never assumed higher administrative position though the door was held open to him.

A strong rumor persists around the campus today that Jimmie Gilbert himself did not always leave the door open—not to his classes at any rate. When asked if it were true that he used to lock classroom doors after the tardy bell, Dean Gilbert agreed that such an incident might have occurred, but was quick to add that such was "not customary practice."

In the classroom he worked diligently to maintain high scholarship, enlivening lectures with such penetrating wit and open-hearted kindness that the 1928 Oregana was dedicated to him "by those who are glad to be his victims and proud to be his friends."

Ever a University booster, James Gilbert has contributed significantly outside educational circles by serving the State of Oregon in capacities ranging from economic adviser on taxation to special U. S. Employment Service representative. His 1923 presentation of an "unanswerable argument" on the state income tax resulted in the abolition of the property tax in Oregon.

Two of his original economic works have come out in book form: "Trade and Currency in Early Oregon" and Tax Systems of Australasia.

A member of the Eugene Rotary Club, and one of its past presidents, Dean Gilbert further distinguishes himself by heading numerous civic organizations and campaigns, the latest of which was the Lane County "Crusade for Freedom" drive of 1952. This district was one of the few within the state to surpass its quota.

Observers close to University affairs, however, feel that James Gilbert's most conspicuous service came in regard to the 1932 Zorn-McPherson controversy which nearly consolidated the state universities into one institution at Corvallis. His arguments, statistical tables and leadership were all important in preventing the consolidation.

Not a man to dwell longingly on the past, Dean Gilbert is impressed today by the increasing soundness and scope of the education program at the University.

As an observer of the University for over half a century he is well qualified to judge the growth of its educational program; as an untiring teacher and dean, James Henry Gilbert is responsible for much of that growth.

THE CAMPUS

The 75th Commencement

The class of 1952 joined the ranks of Oregon alumni June 15, as 1,316 candidates for degrees participated in the University's 75th anniversary commencement exercises.

The graduating seniors heard the Rev. Robert J. McCracken, pastor of the Riverside Church of New York, warn against the dangers of surrendering their individualism to the "mass mind."

"Our opinions are moulded by the press, the movies, and the radio," he said. "We don't have convictions; we have opinions, impressions, theories; and even before we air them we are careful to find in which direction the wind is blowing."

He recalled that men who were non-conformists were the ones who lifted the level of life in their generations. The graduate who goes along with the mass mind, he said, would take his color from his environment, instead of adding color to it.

To conform, the speaker warned, to do things for no other reason than because others are doing them, is to resign all moral control. Those who have lifted the level of life in their generations have been non-conformists. He pointed out that the nation was founded by people of this description. They make up the small class which creates instead of following the leader. He urged the seniors to join this exclusive group.

Spring showers, always a threat to the academic procession, held off, and the graduates paraded from Deady to McArthur court in bright sunshine. Faculty members, in colorful regalia, lead the long line of marchers.

Summer Enrollment Up

Enrollment for the 1952 summer session of the University of Oregon is running slightly ahead of the figure for last year, Registrar Clifford Constance reports.

Preliminary figures showed that 1,559 students had signed up for the session. At the same time last year only 1,515 were enrolled. University officials were encouraged, since summer enrollment at many institutions declined following the trend which has developed since the Korean war.

More than two-thirds of the summer students are taking graduate work. Men outnumber women about two to one.

A busy schedule of classes, concerts, recreational events and other social activity has been lined up for the session. It was scheduled to end August 15.

The Failing-Beekman oratorical contests were part of the Commencement week exercises. Professor Kurt E. Montgomery of the speech department congratulates Bliss Stanley of Eugene, firstplace winner. Looking on at the left is Richard Hiatt of La Grande, second place winner, and in the center, Faber De Chaine of Portland, third. Prizes of $150, $100 and $50 were won by the three graduating seniors. The orations were held June 13.

THE FACULTY

Huestis, Wright Promoted by Board

New heads of the departments of history and biology for fall will be Dr. Gordon Wright and Dr. R. R. Huestis, whose appointment was announced in June by the state board of higher education.

Dr. Wright, who has been acting head of the department for a year, has been on the faculty since 1939. A specialist in French political history, he has served the state department and recently completed a year in France studying peasant politics under a Social Science Council grant. He also has lectured at the National War college. This fall, he will again give a series of lectures for a selected group of high officers in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Huestis, an Oregon faculty member since 1924, is professor of biology. Curator of the vertebrate collection, he has done extensive research on genetics. He replaced Dr. Paul Risley, who asked to be relieved of administrative duties to devote full time to teaching and to research, including an important project he has been working on for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Three Added to Faculty

Appointment of three new faculty members has been announced by the state board of higher education. They are Willard L. Thompson, who will be assistant professor of journalism and business administration; Miles C. Romney, associate professor of school administration and Ruth A. Willard, assistant professor of education.

Dr. Romney comes from Wayne university and will replace Dr. Carl Huffaker, emeritus professor of education. Professor Thompson, former daily newspaper advertising manager and radio station president, comes from the University of Illinois where he has been finishing work toward a doctorate.

Dr. Willard was formerly an assistant professor at the Santa Barbara branch of the University of California.

Another Nieman Fellow from Oregon

Next month Robert B. Frazier '48 will become the second University of Oregon man to join the exclusive ranks of Nieman fellows—made up of working newspapermen who have been selected for a year of advanced study at Harvard university.

The Register-Guard reporter, who has also served as city editor of the Eugene newspaper, was one of 12 men named to receive the $5,000 award for 1952-53. He will concentrate upon sociology and psychology, but an important part of the fellowship program is the study and discussion of how to make better newspapers. The Nieman foundation was set up in 1938 by Agnes Wahl Nieman in memory of her husband, Lucius Nieman, the founder of the Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal.

Malcolm Bauer '35, now assistant editor of The Oregonian, was the first Oregon man to receive the fellowship. His year of study was 1950-51. Both men were students in the University school of journalism.

Frazier, editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald his senior year, was an outstanding undergraduate. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Friars, Sigma Delta Chi and a winner of the Koyle cup.

His wife, Ruby Jackson Frazier '44, and their two children will accompany him. He will return to the Register-Guard in the spring of 1953.

Robert Frazier '48 is a pipe smoker as well as a newspaperman. During 1952 he will be at Harvard as one of the 12 Nieman fellows.

Frazier is a native of Portland. He began his newspaper career on the Bend Bulletin in 1941. From 1942 to 1946 he served in the Army following up with a tour of duty as a civilian in military government in Germany. He has resided in Eugene since his graduation.

New York Alumni Hear Newburn

University of Oregon alumni in the greater New York City area, and as far distant as Hamden, Connecticut, gathered at the Barbizon Hotel in Manhattan the evening of May 15 to hear University President Harry K. Newburn tell of his tour of European universities. Near the close of the evening, the alumni elected club officers for the forthcoming year.

Dr. Newburn, sent by the Carnegie Grant Foundation to study higher education in Europe, investigated more than 30 universities of France, Italy, Germany and Great Britain.

Following general remarks in which he described the physical and economic situation in Europe today, Dr. Newburn made specific comment on the universities. "It's interesting to note," he said, "that the universities and governments are feeding and housing more and more students, with the government underwriting the cost of the meals.

"There is a tremendous movement toward government support to public and private institutions," he added. "That support goes as high as 70 to 75 per cent. And, there is an unheard of increase in the number of students.

"After this visit," President Newburn said, "I am more convinced of the importance of universities in this world. It would be a disastrous calamity if the universities ever closed.

"One of the finest threads of European culture today," he concluded, "is the university system. That system is not a servant of the state, and it must continue to exist as a free entity to develop truth and to expound it."

Following Dr. Newburn's address, the New York alumni group reelected this year's officers by a unanimous vote: Leon Culbertson, president; Helen Johnson, secretary; and Fred Weber, treasurer.

Alan Eaton and Laura Kennon were re-appointed board members. George Mosher was newly appointed to the Alumni board of directors and will serve as the new vice-president.

ICC Member Retires

Clyde B. Aitchison '15 of Portland has retired as a member of the interstate commerce commission, after 35 years on the powerful regulatory body. Appointed by President Wilson in 1917, Aitchison had served continuously since that time.

Now 77, he began his public career on the old Oregon railroad commission. He is considered one of the foremost experts in the nation on western freight rate structures.

Miss Kitts Heads AUOW

Miss Nina Kitts '31 of Eugene is the new president of the State Association of University of Oregon Women. She was named unanimously at the annual senior break-fast and business meeting of the group on the campus June 14.

Other officers are Mrs. Charles Pressman '43, first vice-president; Mrs. Ehrman Giustina '45, second vice-president; Mrs. Wayne Atwood '44, secretary, and Miss Claire Dunn, '11, treasurer.

New Old Oregon Editor

Paul Deutschmann, '40 has been appointed editor of OLD OREGON, it was announced by Les Anderson '43, alumni director. Deutschmann is assuming responsibilities for the magazine with the current issue. For the past two years he has been an instructor in the University school of journalism and will continue to teach next year. A former assistant city editor of The Denver Post and city editor of the Eugene Register-Guard, the new editor has been in publication work for more than 10 years.

"We are happy to have Paul taking over OLD OREGON," Anderson said, "because of his background and knowledge of the University and because of his considerable experience in publication work. We hope also that having a permanent editor for the alumni magazine will give it a continuity which has been difficult to maintain under the student editor system."

The Corporal and the Colonel

Two Oregon Men Meet In Korea

A colonel and a corporal, who hadn't seen each other since they were at the University of Oregon together three years ago, met in Korea recently.

Their relationship hadn't changed much since 1949. Frank R. Maerdian, 1910 Columbia street, Eugene, was still the Colonel, and William S. Hall '51 of Klamath Falls was again one of his men, a Corporal now instead of a cadet.

But the locale of the meeting was substantially different. When the two Oregonians last met, Colonel Maerdian, a regular army officer, was professor of military science and tactics and head of the ROTC program at the University. Corporal Hall was one of his cadet students and a member of the rifle team that received instruction occasionally from the colonel.

Corporal Hall, now a document control clerk in the intelligence section of the 160th Infantry Regiment, followed the career of his campus commanding officer after he became a regimental commander in the 45th Division in September. But Hall lost track temporarily when he was assigned to duty in Korea.

He caught up with the colonel in reverse when Colonel Maerdian was appointed commander of the 160th, Hall's own outfit.

Colonel Maerdian recognized his former rifle student immediately.

"We see each other almost every day now," the corporal said. "The colonel keeps telling me that a man with my rifle experience should be on the front line. Of course, he's only joking—I think."

Hall was a student in business administration at the University. He had completed two years of study before he was called into service.

Game Movies to be Shown

Movies of the Webfoot football team in action will be shown to at least seven additional alumni groups on a regular basis this fall.

Plans have been completed to make an extra print of the movies and to show them on a circuit which will include alumni clubs in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, and groups in Grants Pass, Lakeview, Astoria and Pendleton. Several additional groups may be added to the "circuit."

The film will be processed in San Francisco, and after a showing to Duck rooters there the Monday following the game, will be air mailed to other clubs on the loop. Accompanying the movies will be mimeographed copies of a play-by-play description of each game, as well as a program.

It is anticipated that the movies will be seen by all units on the loop within 10 days after the game. First contest to be filmed under the new system will be the Oregon-UCLA tussle in Los Angeles September 20.

In the past, game movies have been available on a current basis only to the Duck club in Portland and the Oregon club in Eugene.

Brown Named Director

Ralph J. Brown '34 will be the new director of the Oregon Alumni association for Crook county. He was appointed by retiring president, William N. Russell '35.

Brown, an attorney in Prineville, is currently a Republican candidate for the State Legislature from Prineville.

New Officers Elected

Charles R. Holloway, Jr. '35 of Portland has been elected president of the University of Oregon Alumni Association for 1952-53. His term of office became effective as of July 1. George Corey '38 of Pendleton was elected vice-president, the office Holloway held prior to his election as president.

First official action of the new president will be appointment of twelve new county directors and two members-at-large to the executive committee. These will be announced in the next issue of OLD OREGON.

"We expect a good year," Holloway stated, "especially after the fine accomplishments made under Bill Russell (retiring president) last year. Our main purpose, of course, will be to enlarge the scope of our alumni activities, and make them increasingly effective in promoting the welfare of our University."

Among the projects set forth for the coming year are the expansion of the Alumni Tour program, encouraging additional support of the University of Oregon Development Fund, and providing additional program activities for alumni county organizations and the out-of-state-clubs.

Seattle Alumni Elect

Donald V. Cawley '42 and Boyce Stanard '35 have been elected president and secretary-treasurer respectively for the Seattle alumni club. Cawley succeeds Steve Selak '25 who has held the presidency for the past two years.

Plans for the coming year include the showing of movies of all ten of the Oregon football games, and a pre-game party prior to the Oregon-Washington game on November 8.

Robnett Promoted

Ronald H. Robnett '28, professor of accounting in industrial management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been appointed assistant dean of the school of Industrial management of M.I.T.

A native of Salem, Professor Robnett is a former assistant graduate manager of the University of Oregon. He served in that capacity from 1928 until 1932. He joined the M.I.T. faculty in 1934 after completing graduate work in Harvard.

Attend AAC Conference

Five representatives of the University of Oregon Alumni association, headed by the new president, Charles R. Holloway, Jr., '35 attended sessions of the American Alumni Council annual convention in Sun Valley, Idaho, during July.

Others in the Oregon group included Herbert J. Darby '23, past association president, Lester E. Anderson '43, alumni director, Paul Deutschmann '40, editor of OLD OREGON, and Pat Murphy, secretary.

Scientist Honored

Dr. Walter H. Brattain, co-inventor of the point contact transistor, has received an honorary doctor of science degree from the University of Portland. Dr. Brattain, who received his master of arts in physics from the University of Oregon in 1926, is a member of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., staff. He has been with the company for 22 years. The tiny transistor can be used in place of a much larger radio tube.

THE CLASSES

Half Century Club

On Saturday evening following the University Luncheon of June 14, the Half Century Club gathered in the Erb Memorial Union for its third annual dinner meeting. More than forty were present, all of whom attended the University fifty or more years ago. The class of 1902, nine in all, were attending for the first time as they had just crossed the fifty-year mark. The earliest class represented was 1836 with Mrs. Kate Buick Sewell of Roseburg present as one of the three surviving members.

Leslie M. Scott '99, club president, opened the evening program with a brief summary of past activities, followed by minutes of the previous meeting, new business, and such other formal procedure. With the formalities satisfied, Lewis R. Alderman '98 was introduced as the toastmaster for the evening program.

Letters of greeting from those near and far who were unable to attend were read. Music then entered the picture with several numbers by a soloist followed by community singing of the songs which were popular at the turn of the century.

A fine array of speakers were assembled to recall vividly the era of the "gay nineties." Five-minute talks featured Leila Straub Stafford '02 on "The Walkaround vs. the Fantastic," a comparison of social life then and now. Lawrence A. Read '99 discussed "Perapetetic Philosophy," a subject upon which he spoke with great authority, having written several books of his own. E. N. "Ned" Blythe '02 likewise spoke from a background of years of experience in his talk "Keeping Up with College Journalism."

Allen Eaton '02 wound up the program with his "Back to Oregon with Eaton" lecture. The title suited the situation perfectly as Eaton was making his first visit to the West in more than thirty years.

Everyone present had a chance to talk, and they did, as they were called upon for brief comments which ran all the way from early campus life to pride in their grandchildren.

Officers were elected for the coming year. These are: Leila Straub Stafford '01, president; W. B. Beattie '01, vice-president; and Blanche Taylor Thurston '98, secretary.

Maude Kerns '99 provided the attractive table decorations, Lester Hulin '96 directed the music to his own piano accompaniment, and Melville Wire '00 gave the invocation and benediction.

1900

Homer D. Angell, congressional representative from Oregon's third district, is now completing his seventh term in Congress and is now dean of the Oregon delegation.

Mr. Angell received his A.B. degree at Oregon and then graduated from the Law department of Columbia university, New York, where he also received his master's degree in political science.

1902

Mrs. Merlin Ennis (Elizabeth Logan) was one of the women of the class of 1902 who was honored at the annual June breakfast for graduating senior women. She flew here from Lexington, Massachusetts for the reunion of her class.

Allen H. Eaton recently gave a talk on "Arts and Crafts of America" at the Pauline Potter Homer Silver Tea at the University. Mr. Eaton is a widely-known author and authority on the nation's handicrafts and is reported to have had the first art store in Eugene. Because of his art appreciation courses in the School of Architecture and Allied Arts at the University he is credited with having served the cultural background of this community. He is the author of three books, "Handicrafts of the New England States," "Handicrafts of Southern Highlands," and "Beauty Behind Barbed Wires."

1903

Recently announced was the retirement of Kenneth C. Miller from the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railway Company. He joined the company in 1929 as Agricultural and Livestock agent and in 1941 was appointed general Industrial and Agricultural agent, which position he held at the time of his retirement. He has been very active in state farm organizations, especially the State of Oregon Reclamation congress and National Reclamation association, for which he was the first secretary, treasurer and recipient of an Honorary Life membership. At present he is a member of numerous committees of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and a member of several State boards.

First Allen Fellow

Harold Hughes, city editor of the ASTORIAN-BUDGET, will begin studies at the University of Oregon school of journalism this fall as the first Eric W. Alllen Memorial Fellow. He was chosen from among a group of working newspapermen for the $1,000 award, donated annually by the EUGENE REGISTER-GUARD. It honors Dean Allen, founder of the school of journalism and its first dean. Hughes will be on leave of absence from his paper for nine months.

1907

Dr. R. R. Hamilton and his daughter, Helen Hamilton, have recently opened an aviary at 128th Avenue and N. E. Glisan in Portland.

1910

Oliver B. Huston, who held the silver cup for the most children at the 25th, 30th and 35th reunions of his class, has recently announced that he expects to regain the cup at the 50th reunion for the most grandchildren. Mr. Huston made this announcement after the arrival of his fourth grandchild on May 24.

1912

The class of 1912 thoroughly enjoyed its fortieth reunion, June 13th and 14th, 1952, even without the "old school tie," so vividly displayed in Life magazine by Harvard's 1912 reunion class. Neither did we fall asleep over the commencement speeches as was also prominently displayed.

After an all-out effort on the part of the committee composed of Leon Ray, Ralph Moores, Jennie Fry Walsh and Mildred Bagley Graham to round up the flock, about forty arrived including a few wives and husbands.

On Friday evening, the committee greeted their classmates at a pre-arranged re-union gathering at the house of the secretary near the campus. Each was complete with ear trumpet, feather box, cane, party dress of 1912, shoe bags, and scarves of the dear dead days of long ago. Their faces were a little the worse for wear, and one could see that their minds were wandering. However, their classmates were very kind and overlooked Mildred's brand new set of teeth, and Jenny's hearing trouble. She was rather slow at catching the names.

An impromptu meeting was held after which cheese and crackers, pop corn, sweet wafers, and punch were served.

On Saturday morning, the State Association breakfast meeting was held at the Student Union Building. This was followed by the noon luncheon in the ballroom of the same building. The four reunion classes were seated at separate tables decorated in Oregon colors. Speaking for our class was Chester A. Moores of Portland, a former first citizen of that city. His splendid talk was very appropriate and much appreciated by the class. Following the luncheon the class pictures were taken indoors since the weather was rather damp. Guided tours of the Student Union Building, new Science building, and Carson Hall were enjoyed by all who had not been through them before.

A short period of rest and aspirin next in order. At 6:00 p.m. a social hour was held in the banquet room of the Eugene Hotel followed by the banquet and business meeting conducted by Bob Kellogg, class president. Each individual cleared up the details of his or her life after college, including grandchildren and other achievements. Mike Stastney brought each a ten-pound sack of potatoes from his prize ranch at Malin. Also the hotel baked one of his potatoes for each person at the banquet. We are indebted to Mike for his generosity.

We are also indebted to Raphael Geisler for his piano accompaniment to the good old-fashioned songs which were so familiar to us on the campus such as "Cuddle Up a Little Closer," "Harvest Moon," "To you, Beautiful Lady," "As I Sit and Dream," etc. We closed with "Mighty Oregon" and we sincerely hope

1915

Edith Vaughn McCormick received her degree in law this June after four years of concentrated evening study. She received her B.A. in Latin and her M.A. in history from the University. Miss McCormick is a life member of the National Education association and served as president of the Portland High School Teachers association from 1947 to 1949.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Lombard (Verna W. Skade '27) sailed in June for an extended tour of Europe. They expect to return around the first of September. They flew to New York where they boarded the Ile de France for England. In addition to England, they will visit Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Paris.

1917

Official reunion activities of the Class of '17 began at the Alumnae breakfast where Dr. Ada Hall, professor of biology at Wellesley College was the principal speaker. She discussed "Bones" which she has been studying during a sabbatical winter at the University of Oregon Medical School in Portland. Mary Chambers Brockelbank received alumnae dues, and the table decorations were in charge of Frances Shoemaker Gregg.

At the University Luncheon, Nicholas Jaureguy spoke for the class. Scoring the use of the loud speaker, and keeping well within the suggested three-minute limit, he nevertheless made clear to all our abiding interest in, and gratitude to, the University.

Lawrence "Larry" Mann of Oswego took over as master of ceremonies at the class dinner, ably assisted by Frances Heath Mann. Several class members are promoted to the grandparent status. As only Dr. John Harold Fitzgibbon of Milwaukie came armed with pictures, a unanimous vote restrained him from showing them. John McGuire, now a Tacoma architect, claimed a record in having completed four years at Oregon with a "date." John J. "Jack" Elliott of Portland, soon to be "father of the bride" was comiserated by those fathers with experience of daughters' weddings.

Eulalie Crosby Barnett of Portland was accompanied by her husband, John G. Barnett '18 and Ruth Ralston Otten of Beaverton by her husband, George Otten '13. Several wives of members joined the group including Marion Mitchell Jaureguy '22, Helen Robinson Roberts

'16 and Loren C. Roberts of Portland; Ella Parsons and Johnny Parsons of Eugene; Betz Boyd Beach and Frank Beach of Portland; Helen Betts and Charles R. Betts of Gladstone; Betsy Geary and Roland "Hawkshaw" Geary of Portland, who as class president had charge of arrangements for the reunion.

Elisabeth Hales, children's librarian at the Eugene Public Library, attended the luncheon but not the dinner.

Greetings from absent members included Rosalind Bates who reported that she would be in Tokyo on the reunion date. Helen Johns was marshalling a commencement procession in Seattle. Chalmer N. Patterson was teaching at Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois. Myrtle Tobey of Wahiawa, Oahu, Hawaii reported that she would be in Oregon later in the summer. Good wishes and regrets were also received from Karl Becke, Salem; Jeanette Wheatley Rowland, Santa Cruz, California; Nellie Cox Reagan, El Cerrito, California; Dorothy Wheeler Odlin, San Marino, California; Mildred Brown Brosius, Berkeley, California; N. P. Akers, Rialto, California, and Margaret Spangler Higinbotham, Victor, N. Y.

More class news in OLD OREGON was demanded by all present and the secretary was instructed to get it by whatever means possible. It is hoped that members will respond with frequent items, so that resort to blackmail or fiction will be unnecessary.

FRANCES SHOEMAKER GREGG
Permanent class secretary

Mrs. Ernest S. Bates (Rosalind Goodrich) has been appointed library chairman of the Women's University Club in New York City.

1918

A former graduate has become one of the most-publicized women in the United States. She is Vivien Kellems, who has recently organized the Liberty Belles, a national political-action organization of women and its auxiliary, the Liberty Boys.

She is one of the nation's best known women industrialists and recently won recognition as the best-dressed one. At present she is continuing her ten-year fight with the government over income tax. In addition she is an electrical engineer, a popular lecturer, an author ("Toil, Taxes and Trouble") and a politician.

Dr. Clinton H. Thienes, who is now head of the pharmacology and toxicology department in the University of Southern California School of Medicine, gave a report to the American Society of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics in New York on parathion, new chemical insecticide spray for oranges. Dr. Thienes has been conducting his research in cooperation with the California Fruit Growers Exchange at Ontario, Calif., and the University of California Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dundore Jr. flew East May 28, picked up a new car and then went to Syracuse University, New York where their daughter, Mary Margaret received her master's degree in music education.

1923

A gathering honoring Governor and Mrs. Len B. Jordan (Grace H. Edgington '16) of Idaho was held recently in New York City where the Jordans were staying for their son's graduation from West Point. In addition to Governor and Mrs. Jordan, Allen Eaton '02, John MacGregor '23, Mrs. Leonebel Kays Jacobs '07, Rolf and Alice Klep '27, Leon Culbertson '23, Margaret Scott Gable '23, Claude and Betty Robinson '24, and Aulis and Owen Callaway '23 were present.

Palmer Hoyt editor and publisher of the Denver Post, was recently re-elected to the Board of Directors of Brand Names Foundation, Incorporated, at the seventh annual Brand Names Day meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

Mr. Hoyt began his newspaper career in 1923 when, after his graduation he became Telegraph and Sports Editor of the East Oregonian, Pendleton, Oregon. In 1926, he moved to the Portland Oregonian and became publisher in 1939. In 1946, he assumed his present position with the Denver Post. Mr. Hoyt is a director of the Associated Press, a member of Chi Psi, Sigma Delta Chi, Sigma Upsilon and Rotary.

A son, Lincoln Porter Hoyt, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Hoyt on July 4, in Denver, Colorado.

1927

Our silver anniversary is now history, and such pleasant history! Its tremendous success was due directly to the untiring efforts and enthusiasm of George Mimnaugh, general chairman of the Reunion Committee, and the members of the committees appointed to plan the various events.

There was an excellent turnout—nearly 100 in all—but we missed the absent members of the class and were sorry they could not share in the fun.

Festivities began Friday evening with an informal no-host party at the Eugene Hotel. Kay Graef Powers took over the piano and the vocal harmonizing that followed revealed hitherto unsuspected talents. Some of the star performers were Calvin Horn, Ward Cook and Ray Bolger.

Saturday morning things began humming with the eye-opener breakfast, and at noon the University Luncheon was held where Earl Chiles spoke for our class. Following the luncheon a tour of the campus was arranged, and later in the afternoon the President's reception took place. At 6:00 o'clock the class met again in the Persian Room of the Eugene Hotel for a social hour preceding the climax of our reunion activities—the gala class dinner. Cliff Powers was the toastmaster and Hugh Biggs the speaker of the evening. An election was held to determine who had changed the least, who had changed the most, etc, and prizes awarded. It was a great advance in the field of elections since everyone won something.

The question arose as to the disposition of any surplus funds and contributions and the class voted to make a gift of these to the University Scholarship Fund.

Among those who attended the various events were the following and because of limited space, only the names of the class members are given although most were accompanied by husbands and wives:

WHO READS OLD OREGON?

This is a question most advertisers will ask above all, because they naturally want their message to reach people who will ultimately be purchasers.

OLD OREGON readers are a select group. Few publications can claim among their readers higher figures in personal income earned, life insurance carried, homes and automobiles owned, money spent on travel, etc.

If you are in a business that is looking for more and better customers, it will pay you to investigate the advertising opportunities in OLD OREGON.

company. He was also regional vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, past president of the Portland Executives club and a member of the University club.

1920

Andrew Fish, emeritus professor of history of the University of Oregon, died recently. He had been a member of the University faculty for 30 years.

Born in Newcastle, England, on October 16, 1879, he came to the United States as a young man. He received his baccalaureate degree from Oregon in 1920 and the following year earned his master's degree at Oregon. His doctor of philosophy degree was granted by Clark University in 1923.

At Oregon Dr. Fish taught in both the English and history departments. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the American Historical association. Dr. Fish was also the author of several historical articles.

After retiring from the University faculty, he taught at the University of Washington and the University of Utah.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy G. Fish, who resides in Claremont, Calif.

Miss Lexie Strachan, who received her bachelor's degree in education from the University and her master's degree in psychology from Stanford, died early in July in Kansas City where she had been psychologist for the Kansas City public schools since 1921.

1952

Howard William Smith was killed in an automobile accident on the Mulino-Colton road near Oregon City on June 20. The accident occurred just one week after his graduation.
