"Who's Who in America," a family of four children, and the University praises Robert Ormond Case, '20, for fame achieved as a writer of novels and more recently as a civic benefactor. "Bob" and his wife, Lora Evelyn Smith, '20, have claimed emotional ties to the campus for a quarter of a century.

This fall, the family's equity was increased when daughter Lora entered Oregon. Pledged to Pi Beta Phi, she is an Arts and Letters major.

Author Case, Texas born in 1895, transferred his allegiance northward in 1910, five years later becoming a University student. World War I disturbed his academic continuity and graduation was postponed until 1920. From Eugene to the Portland Oregonian staff went the graduate. Then to publicity work for the state of Oregon chamber of commerce. About this time Mrs. Case encouraged her husband to write fiction. He did. His first attempt was successful and "Little Songhee's Big Trouble" soon appeared in a Western "pulp" magazine.

Coupled with these experiences, the writer and his sister, Victoria Case, '21, founded a Portland suburban weekly, the Rose City Herald, in 1922, becoming its co-editors. Bob's flair for fiction was intensified while running the Sandy boulevard paper. Within a few years the Herald transferred ownership and Robert Ormond Case became known to many through his books and novels. Soon he authored stories for the Saturday Evening Post, American Collier's, Liberty and Country Gentleman, the latter getting his more recent contributions. About a dozen novels with Western and Alaskan settings have emanated from his pen since the twenties.

OLD OREGON'S cover reveals a recent picture of the Portland writer. Above him hangs a portrait, a scene from his "Wings North" novel which also ran as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post. "Yukon Drive" and "Wings North" are considered his best sellers today.

With election to the Portland school board this year, Case permitted civic duty to become more than a hobby. With private office and busy phone he studies at his home the policies of city education, manages the board's radio and publicity committee, works long hours while following the educational adventures of his children: Lora, 18; Bob, 14; Anne, 10, and Pat, 6.

Oregon takes time out to praise an Alumnus who takes little time off while serving his fellow citizens.

SHADOWS OF '93

Los Angeles, Calif.
5211 W. 8th St.,

Dear Editor:

In looking over the folder, "The University in 1940," I am impressed by this amazing comparison. The enrollment of students in 1940 is greater than the entire population of Eugene was when I attended the U. of O.

The present faculty is larger numerically than the entire student body of my day.

While belonging to no fraternity, because there were none on the campus, I can lay claim to belonging to a number of "firsts." I helped organize the first college publication, "The Reflector," of which Senator A. E. Reames was the first editor with myself as first business manager. With A. L. Veazie, K. K. Kubli and L. T. Harris, I helped organize the first athletic association back in '89 or '90. With dues collected from student membership and subscriptions from the business men of Eugene, we bought Indian clubs, dumbbells, bars and boxing gloves. The top floor of Deady Hall was our gym. Finally the regents built us a gym building on condition that we would donate our $700 worth of apparatus to equip it.

I was a member of the committee to select college colors. As I recollect, all the men on the committee wanted crimson or Yale blue or a combination of the two, but our only co-ed member, May Dorris Bronaugh, held out for yellow which she said was the color of the flower of the Oregon wild grapes—and most appropriate. She won the decision.

It's remarkable how a little circular from the old Alma Mater will stir the memories of 50 years ago.

"Shadows peeping, shadows creeping,
Shadows cast on memory's wall;
Oft concealing, yet revealing
Recollections best of all."

Very sincerely,

E. H. Lauer, '93.

(Ed.: Reminiscer Lauer's initial "E" stands for Emanuel. The Alumnus he recounts are Mrs. Jerry E. Bronaugh, '93, 1628 N. W. 32nd Place, Portland; Lawrence T. Harris, '93, 2713 Fairmount, Eugene, former justice of the state supreme court and now a practicing attorney; Kasper K. Kubli, '93, 1407 S. E. 16th, Portland, president of Kubli-Howard, printers; Alfred E. Reames, ex-'93, 816 W. 10th, Medford, a lawyer appointed by ex-Governor Charles Martin to fill out balance of Senator Fred Steiwer's term in January 1938; Arthur Lyle Veazie, '90, 611 Corbett Building, Portland, practicing law in firm of Veazie and Veazie with a Phi Beta Kappa key on his watch chain.)

WASHINGTON RECEPTION

1726 M St., N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Fansett:

This evening after returning from the Oregon University Alumni reception for Dr. Erb, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Beeler, I am again reminded of your request regarding my whereabouts and present position.

The reception by the way was a delightful affair attended by some 75 or so Alumni. Among those I met was a very old friend of mine, Dr. Grace Linklater Stone. We attended Holladay grade school in Portland together.

I resigned my position as state supervisor of distributive education, state board for vocational education, last May to accept a position as consultant in the children's bureau, Department of Labor. I was in Washington, D. C., only a short time when my services were loaned to the congressional committee investigating the interstate migration of destitute citizens. It is popularly

Alumni Name Nominees By ELMER C. FANSETT, '28

Nasty downpours of rain greeted graduates Friday evening of Homecoming weekend. The show proceeded without a hitch: "Welcome Home" signs were judged through heaven-washed windows, Freshmen guarded the Skinner's Butte cement "O" with raincoated protection, other students below the Butte defied the elements by continuing the Noise Parade, even the spirited Frosh-Rook night game was made more interesting with unintentional skids on a muddy gridiron. Saturday brought improvement with only occasional showers but enough to make the 18-0 victory over UCLA breathtaking. The Alumni reception that evening with its postlude, Homecoming dance, composed a harmonious finale to Oregon's annual weekend of weekends for its 1200 returning guests. Alumni Secretary Elmer Fansett comments in a factual manner on the event.—Ed.

Homecoming weekend produced many familiar faces of former students on the campus. With no Oregon State game, the number of returning Alumni was not as great as last year, but Chairman Joe Gurley and his committee put on an outstanding celebration.

Appreciated by early arrivals was the Frosh-Rook football game Friday evening when Oregon's yearlings won 13-7. It is hoped future Homecoming weekends will include this annual game. Saturday noon, Order of the "O" undergraduates entertained more than 100 Alumni members with a luncheon at the Anchorage—scene of many training tables. Sports stories of other days abounded during the hour while Clarence Codding, ex-'35, acted as toastmaster, according to Jim Rathbun, student president.

Returning celebrants whooped with vigor when Tex Oliver's squad took UCLA and dusky Jackie Robinson to the tune of 18-0. Following the game, graduates trooped to the Eugene Army for an open house, the guests of local friends of the University. If all the conversations at this occasion could be pieced together, one would discover an interesting history of the school since the "days when."

New to Homecoming were the departmental exhibits organized by Frances Cox and her committee in the lobby of Johnson Hall. With little provision made for academic displays in previous years, the inaugural approval promises a successively important future. Experimental as it was, the exhibits found favor with many graduates who indicated such should be made an integral part of Homecoming weekends. Hence, we feel justified in promising a much more elaborate series of departmental displays next year.

Preluding the Alumni Association meeting Saturday morning was the first annual get-together of Oregon's county directors. Well attended, the following directors were present, with Hollis N. Johnston, ex-'21, Portland, acting president; Walter T. Durgan, '28, J.D. '31, Benton county; Henry N. Fowler, '14, Deschutes county; Dr. Clairel L. Ogle, '16, Josephine county.

Forrest E. Cooper, '27, J.D. '28, Lake; Lawrence Hull, ex-'23, Lincoln; Donald B. McCormick, ex-'32, Multnomah, president of Portland Alumni; Dr. Asa B. Starbuck, M.D. '06, Polk; Charles Erwin, '38, Umatilla; Raymond O. Williams, '14, Union; George Stadelman, ex-'30, Wasco.

Six other county directors arrived too late to attend this meeting but returned in time to see old friends and enjoy the Homecoming events. They were: Merle R. Chessman, '09, Clatsop; Edwin E. Leslie, '22, Coos; M. Harris Ellsworth, '22, Douglas; Ben F. Dorris, '15, Lane; Ralph Cronise, ex-'11, Linn; Gilbert Schultz, '38, Washington.

Time allotted for the meeting of this directorate was too short. Many topics arose for discussion that would require several meetings for proper analysis. Those attending considered a program for placing annuals, the Oregana, in each high school library of the state. Business Manager Dick Williams of the Oregana staff represented the student body in explaining such a plan. Already a number of directors have pledged themselves to be responsible for at least five copies of the All-American book in their own county secondary schools. Your own county director would welcome assistance in helping to finance such a program.

During the Alumni Association meeting, immediately following, the nominating committee announced their findings. Members of the group included Mrs. Emmet Rathbun, '18, Portland; Carl Nelson, '19, Salem, and Claire Kneeland, '27, Eugene. The nominations placed before the Association members are Hollis Johnston, ex-'21, Portland, and Raymond O. Williams, '14, La Grande, for president; Chester Knowlton, ex-'32, Tillamook, and Forrest Cooper, '27, Lakeview, for vice-president. No additional names were nominated from the floor.

Balls for this election were placed in the mails on December 1. Members of the Association must cast and return these no later than December 25 in order to include their votes in the official election. Announcement of the results will be made January 1 in the daily press. Officers elected will take over their duties officially then.

Raymond O. Williams, '14, is Union county Alumni director, presidential nominee for the Association and La Grande school clerk.

Present vice-president Hollis N. Johnston, ex-'21, Portland, was nominated for the next and highest post. He is an architect.

Twenty to Nothing

By BOB FLAVELLE, '41

Secret practices, mountains of determination and Coach G. A. "Tex" Oliver (pictured below) made a football formula vigorously successful November 30 for Oregon's squad over their northern neighbors, Oregon State. Ripped-up goal posts, a Sunday "Victory Special" of the Emerald, Monday morning McArthur court pep assembly, serpentine parade, Gerlinger Hall no-date dance made even the disinterested enthusiastic. Forty-four years of football scrimmage between State and University reveal 24 wins now for Eugene, 13 for Corvallis, seven ending in tie. The spell of defeat visited upon us by the Beavers since '36 is broken. A master of understatements would say we are ecstatically jubilant!—Ed.

University of Oregon students again walk the campus with heads high. The reason: OREGON 20, OREGON STATE 0!

Four successive years Webfoot teams had to take defeat from their Corvallis cousins whenever the day for their Civil War rolled around. Finally, this snapped Saturday, November 30, when a proud, highly confident, third place Oregon State squad found themselves unable to stop the relentless power of an inspired Duck eleven—an eleven which was buried deep down in the coast standings.

Oregon State's five highly touted all-coast nominees were forced to take a back seat in the limelight glare as Oregon's graduating senior men—all nine—played the game of their lives. They couldn't be stopped and knew it. Four years of defeat was awful but five would be unbearable.

Senior Len Isberg, left half, scored two touchdowns and played the best game of his career. His long runs put the Staters in trouble twice and earned him the title of outstanding backfield man on the field.

Senior Marsh Stenstrom, fullback, really lived up to his nickname of "Bull." When he hit the line it fell apart. It took two and three men to stop him once he had blasted through the line. Mud made no difference to him, he went straight ahead. His blocking was vicious.

Senior Johnny "Buck" Berry, right half, played a brilliant defensive game. His blocking on Isberg's sweeps was a main factor in the offensive success of Oregon. He wasn't bad at lugging the ball, either; an average of 7.8 yards in 8 attempts can't be sneezed at.

Senior Chet Haliski, quarterback, showed the 18,000 OSC Homecoming fans the reason he's considered the best blocker in coast football. Whenever a Webfoot backfield man broke loose, nine times out of ten it was this rugged quarterback who led the interference.

Senior Jim Stuart, tackle, made a great bid for all-American recognition. As captain of the Webfoots he played his greatest game against the Beavers. An all-coast man last season, he is a cinch to repeat.

Senior Erling Jacobsen, center, effectively kept the enemy from penetrating his side of the line. Despite the muddy field, "Jake's" passes were true.

Senior Dick Horne, end, played his usual steady game for the Ducks. Not much yardage was gained when the Orange elected to sweep his end.

Senior Jim Harris, end, has alternated with Jim Regner most of the year on the right side of the line. Although light, he successfully broke up many plays.

Senior Don Mabee, left half, was substituted in the last half for Isberg and did all right for himself in the short time he played.

Let's give credit where credit is due. To Coach Gerald A. "Tex" Oliver for whipping an Oregon ball club into an unbeatable aggregation, and to the aforementioned seniors, for carrying their team to the most decisive Oregon victory over the Beavers since 1916.

The Seniors will be missed, but with the hordes of returning lettermen, the finest backfield material on the coast, and several fine players from this year's Frosh squad, ready to go when the first whistle sounds next fall, Oliver can look forward to the 1941 season with glee.

Engineer Returns

Chatting with fellow undergraduate Marion McClain, '06, manager of the University Co-op store, Clifton E. Hickok, ex-'04, recounted the days when tubbing parties, furniture moving and other hazing methods prevailed upon the freshman in the dormitory, now S. H. Friendly Hall.

Today senior civil engineer with the national resources planning board, Hickok has offices in Portland while checking the flood control projects in the Willamette Valley. After completing his education (Portland Methodist university, Oregon, California) he served as city manager of Alameda, Calif. During the World War he was a captain in the engineers corps, is at present a major in the reserves.

Member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Hickok told of his Oregon schoolmate, Herb G. Moulton, '05, who was elected president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers a year ago. "Scintillatingly brilliant" was the phrase Hickok used to describe Moulton, who served on the war industries board with Bernard Baruch and became chief examiner for the war finance corporation.

Nicknamed "Hickey" in his University days, the civil engineer related how Dean O. F. Stafford of the Lower Division was the youthful head of Oregon's chemistry department in 1902, how life was lived by campus folk of 1900. Hickok has a brother, Clarence G. Hickok, Jr., ex-'24, who owns the Scribner's Ink Co. in Portland.

Leaving the Co-op store the engineer indicated his desire to investigate the second floor of Friendly Hall some day to find his initials which he carved on his last day of school in 1902.

"Unto the Second Generation"

"Unto the second generation" at least have numerous families continued their undergraduate relationships with the University. Thirty years ago last June, Oregon's 1910 Class was graduated, left this cement bench upon which succeeding seniors might sit. Located before Fenton Hall (once the old Library) 'til Homecoming Weekend this year, the bench was then moved to its present spot, between Susan Campbell Hall and the new Library. Pictured above are eight undergraduates whose parents were members of the 1910 Class. They are, from the left, John Powers, son of Dean Alfred Powers, '10, Portland; Edwin Wheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Wheeler, '07, M.A. '09 (Ruth Balderae, '10), Eugene; Frank Loomis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loomis, Eugene, father is printer at University Press, mother is the former Ruby Pratt, '10; Mary Booth, only senior, daughter of Mrs. Edith Siefert, '10, hostess at Gerlinger Hall; Mary Word, mother is Mrs. Ruth Hansen Word, '10, Portland; Mary Jane Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. # Three Cities See President Erb

Editorial assistant to Washington's editor of "Railway Age" is the occupation followed by Writer John Henry King, '33. Phi Beta Kappa keyman, he received a full tuition scholarship to Cornell university in 1933. Active in Alpha Kappa Psi, debate, Skull and Dagger, as an undergraduate, King studied at Columbia university law school before removing to the National Press building in the nation's capitol. Host for the President's Reception was Donald Casper Beelar, '28, pictured here. President of Oregon's student body during the '27-'28 season, Beelar followed this experience with studies at George Washington law school. An LL.B. degree and Department of Justice employment preceded his present practice of law.—Ed.

Taking advantage of his first trip to Washington since his induction into the presidency some three years ago, Oregon Alumni in Washington, D. C., and vicinity turned out 100 strong to honor Dr. Donald M. Erb at a reception given October 28 by Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Beelar, '28 (Virginia Patterson, '33, M.D. '36), at their home, 5047 Sedgwick St.

Many students who knew Dr. Erb when he was a professor of economics at Oregon were glad to have the opportunity of seeing him again and to get a firsthand account of their alma mater from its active head. Others, who met him for the first time, pressed him with many queries regarding their old friends and conditions at the University.

Assisting Mrs. Beelar were Mrs. David G. Wilson, Mrs. John W. Halderman, Mrs. John H. King, Mrs. Roger J. Bounds, and Mrs. Harry R. Turkel who poured and Mrs. Edward Fisher who assisted about the rooms.

Attending the reception were, among others, the following: Mr. and Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison, '15; Mr. and Mrs. Roger J. Bounds, Guy Cordon, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse S. Douglas, '31 (Florence Reynolds King, '32); Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Fisher, LL.B. '32 (Nancy Thielsen, '32); Mr. and Mrs. Ben S. Fisher (Katherine Chatburn, ex-'21).

Mr. and Mrs. John Halderman, '31 (Eleanor Lonnergan, '35); Miss Ethel Johnson, '26; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kendall, LL.B. '35; Mr. and Mrs. John H. King, '33; Mr. and Mrs. Basil Manly (Marie Bradley, '03), and William Michel, ex-'35.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Turkel (Margaret Stauff, '34); Mr. and Mrs. David G. Wilson, '39 (Dorothy Illidge, '33); George Verne Blue, '22; Don Casciato, '40; Miss Maxine E. Glad, '40; Lieut. and Mrs. Douglas Polivka, '38; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Reinhart, '34; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Roberts, '93; Mr. and Mrs. William T. Stone (Grace Linklater, M.D. '25); John Caswell, '34; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dunn, '84 (Jessie R. Nichols, '85).

Mrs. Frieda Goldsmith, '12; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newbold (Cora Cameron Lawrie, '08); Miss Marguerite E. Mauzey, '31; Dr. and Mrs. Giles Murrel Ruch, '14; William F. Lubersky, '38, LL.B. '40, and Bernard O'Donnell, '40, and Miss Ariel E. V. Dunn, '35.

All who attended are not necessarily listed but one can readily see a variety of University classes involved. Known to many Oregon graduates are Mrs. Frederick Steiwer, who was present, as well as Dr. John Ganoe, professor of history.

Labbe, ex-'37); William Crowe, '32; Mrs. Myrtle McDaniel Holman, '32; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Koyle (Alice Carter, '32); Miss Doris Stamps, '33; Dr. and Mrs. Roger W. DeBusk, '29 (Wayfe Hockett, '30); Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Millett, '30; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence O. Wagner, '30 (Elizabeth Helen Brown, ex-'32).

Ralph Fisher, '29; Philip Bergh, ex-'27; Rolf Klep, '27; Miss Jane D. Gavin, '28. Others who attended were interested Oregonians now making their homes in the east.

Los Angeles Entertains

Edward J. Crowley, Jr., ex-'28, president of the Los Angeles Alumni, tells by letter of President Erb's visit to the Southern California country en route home from the east, November 12.

"Had 25 Alumni out and a most enjoyable round table discussion." Added attraction at the meeting was the presence of Ken Carpenter, ace announcer for N.B.C. The President and Carpenter worked together as young men in a Peoria, Illinois, store and had not seen each other since leaving that city.

With Toastmaster Crowley, President Erb and Announcer Carpenter were Bob Byington, ex-'30; Vern Duncan, '24; Ted Gillenwaters, '26; Anselmo Leonardo "Bud" Pozzo, '34; Don Belding, '19; Roger Dennis, ex-'32; John Edlefsen, '32; H. Kimball, '31; Ken Stephenson, '26; Doug Farrell, '24; Cy Vallentyne, ex-'24; Fred Hendricks, ex-'27; Roy Herndon, '29, and many others.

President Erb left after the University Club meeting for San Francisco and then home.

John M. MacGregor, '23, notifies OLD OREGON of New York's recent Alumni dinner. Latest issue of Banta's Greek Exchange carries his article on relation of national fraternities to tax and insurance laws.

Manhattan Graduates Meet

Classes from '97 to '40 were represented at an Alumni dinner meeting in New York City, October 30, according to John M. MacGregor, '23, prominent Manhattan attorney. Inspiration for a turnout of 66 Oregonians at the Town Hall club was the presence of President Donald M. Erb.

Dr. Erb addressed the meeting in an "informal conversational vein and delighted all those present with his report concerning the progress of the University. His thoughtfulness in telling the Alumni of their friends who remain on the faculty was especially well received, although a note of sadness was given to this by the information concerning the resignation or decease of some of the older faculty members."

During the dinner, those attending were informed the next Alumni get-together would be December 14, night of the Madison Square Garden appearance for Coach "Hobby" Hobson's basketball team. Through good fortune, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Woodward, '27 (Lillian Boker, ex-'25), of Portland were in New York during the celebration and attended.

Other Alumni present included: Clyde Fillmore, '98; Dr. Robert Boggs, '27; Edwin P. Shattuck, '97; Miss Betty Brown, '38, J.D. '40; Miss Mary J. Bowles, '25; Allen Eaton, '02; Dr. Luton Ackerson, '15; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ross Marshall, '39, J.D. '40 (Harriett Douglass, '40); Mrs. Lois Inman Baker, '27; Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Green, '37; Paul W. Ellis, M.A. '33; Frank Dorman, '24; Mr. and Mrs. Loren J. Ellis, '20.

Miss Constance Bordwell, '31; Paul Staley, '25; Paul M. Clark, '29; Dr. Laura H. V. Kennon, '11; Francis E. Taylor, '25; Miss Mary A. Johns, '19; Enos L. # Hobson's Men Travel East

By BRUCE HAMBY, ex-'34

The University of Oregon will seek to maintain its top ranking among the nation's basketball leaders with another colorful, fast-stepping court aggregation this season.

After three seasons at the top of the northern division, Pacific Coast Conference, Howard Hobson's Webfoots slipped to second place last year as a sophomore lineup slumped in midseason.

This year four of the five 1939-40 regulars are back, plus five experienced reserves and talented, if green, sophomore material. The Webfoots appear to be well supplied with height, speed and shooting ability—prime requisites of the spectacular fast-break offense which has made Oregon basketball famous from coast to coast under Hobson's guidance.

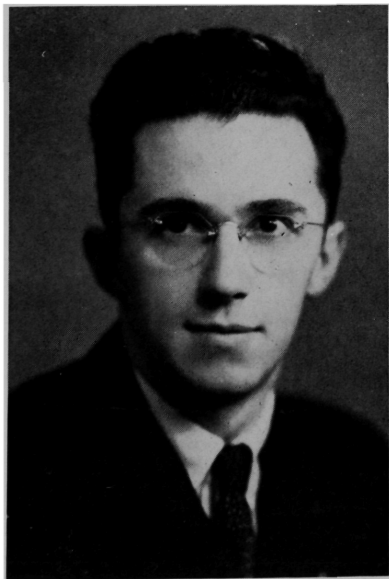

John Dick, high-scoring all-coast forward, is the lone missing regular. Matt Pavalunas, guard, and Ted Sarpola, forward, both used as relief men in the past campaign, also completed their eligibility last winter.

PRESENT PERSONNEL

Back for this season are four holdover regulars—Hank Anderson, forward; Archie Marshik, center, and Vic Townsend and Paul Jackson, guards. Returning reserves include George "Porky" Andrews, guard; Earl Sandness, forward; Evert "Red" McNeely, forward; Bill Borcher, center, and Toivo Piippo, guard. Andrews, Sandness and McNeely are lettermen.

Here is a position-by-position sketch of Webfoot personnel:

FORWARDS: Anderson, a 6 foot 7 inch sharpshooter, is one of the most spectacular shot-makers in the business. He won a regular berth midway in the 1939-40 season and was one of the league's most potent scorers.

"Colorful, fast-stepping" is Oregon's 1940-41 edition of Hobson basketball says Athletic News Bureau Director Bruce Hamby, ex-'34, in this double-spread on a sport for which Oregon is famed.

Evert "Red" McNeely, a two-year letter winner, is one of the steadiest and most polished performers on the squad.

Earl Sandness, 6 foot 4 inch senior, won a letter as a member of the 1939 national champions as a relief forward or center and filled the same assignment last season.

Leonard Gard, another unorthodox shot, was held out of competition last year. He was high scorer for the 1939 freshman five.

Warren Taylor, rugged 6 foot 5 inch sophomore, is the cream of the new forward aspirants. Fast and a good shot, Taylor has the makings of a great player and may become a regular this season.

Ralph Ruhman and Quentin Sidesinger, who alternated as Taylor's running mate for the freshmen last year, are two more promising sophomores. Both measure 6 feet 3 inches and are strong scoring threats.

TALL CENTERS

CENTERS: Marshik, 6 foot 7 inch Bohemian lad, is the most experienced of a trio of center candidates. Marshik belies an awkward appearance on the court with surprising agility and is a strong defensive player.

Bill Borcher, measuring 6 feet 5 inches, filled a reserve pivot role last year and may do the same this season. Like Marshik he is big and active.

Tallest of the centers—and the tallest hoopster on the Pacific coast—is Wally Borrevik, 6 foot 8½ inch sophomore. Borrevik, who paced the freshmen last year, has all the qualifications of a great pivot man, except experience.

GUARDS: Vic Townsend, a senior, broke in the Oregon lineup last year directly after transferring from a California junior college—one of the few transfers ever to do so. He is one of the cleverest back court men in the West, both defensively and as a scorer. Great ball-handler.

Paul Jackson, only 5 feet 7 inches, was both the midget and the sparkplug of the Oregon team last year. He is one of the fastest players in the league and a potent point-maker.

George "Porky" Andrews won his first letter last year as a reserve but this season shows indications of becoming a regular. He is very fast and a good shot.

The fourth veteran guard is Toivo Piippo, Finnish lad from Astoria, who has developed greatly after his sophomore year. His actions are a great deal like those of Townsend, whom he usually spells.

Best bet among the sophomore guards

Coaching Record Recalled

Howard A. "Hobby" Hobson, '26, starts his sixth year as University of Oregon head basketball coach with a truly brilliant coaching record already behind him.

Hobson has been coaching for twelve years and in that time his basketball teams have won 251 games and lost only 82 for an all-time winning percentage of .754—three victories in every four games played. For the past five years, since taking over at Oregon, his Webfoot quintets have won 111 games and lost only 45, a .711 percentage. His Oregon teams have twice won northern division, Pacific Coast Conference championships and two years ago also won both the Pacific Coast and National Collegiate title.

OUTSTANDING ATHLETE

Hobson's first taste of coaching was in 1926 after he completed an outstanding athletic career of his own at Oregon. He was captain and all-star choice for two straight years in both basketball and baseball.

His first coaching assignment was at Kelson, Wash., high school. After two successful seasons there he dropped out of the game to attend Columbia university and earn his master's degree in physical education.

While attending Columbia Hobson played basketball with the Montclair Athletic club in the Eastern Athletic league and led the team in scoring. He also played second base with the Brooklyn Bushwicks in 1929. The year of 1929-30 Hobson was head football and baseball coach at Cortland State Teachers' college in New York state.

Returning to the West coast, Hobson was named basketball coach at Benson Polytechnic in Portland, where he produced two city championship teams. His showing there won him the coaching post at Southern Oregon College of Education in 1933. At the Ashland, Ore., school his hoop teams won 68 and lost only 15 games in three years of competition with larger coast schools, including Oregon and Oregon State college.

He was elected head basketball and baseball coach at Oregon in 1936, succeeding William J. "Bill" Reinhart, now at George Washington. His five years at Eugene have seen Webfoot teams rise to top national ranking.

His first court team finished fourth in the northern division but the second season saw him pilot a sophomore outfit to a tie for the northern crown. In 1937-38 the Webfoots won the northern championship outright, only to lose to Hank Luisetti & Co. of Stanford in a hard-fought series for the Pacific coast title.

GREATEST TEAM

His 1938-39 team is unanimously regarded as the greatest ever developed in the Pacific Northwest. It swept to the northern division title with only two setbacks in 16 games. California was defeated in two straight games for the coast championship and in the following ten days the Webfoots thumped Texas, Oklahoma and Ohio State to become the first officially recognized national collegiate champions.

Last year, with only one regular back from that championship team, Hobson moulded a colorful, fast-moving quintet that lost out for title honors only in the final series of the year.

Hobson not only has produced outstanding teams but equally outstanding individual performers at Oregon. Three members of the 1938-39 team were given all-American rating—Laddie Gale, forward; Urgel "Slim" Wintermute, center, and Captain Bob Anet, guard. Last season Captain John Dick, forward and center, was an all-American selection and Vic Townsend, sophomore guard, won all-conference rating.

Oregon's baseball fortunes also have risen under Hobson's guidance with two championships in five years. A large number of his diamond prides have risen to professional ranks, eight in the past two years.

known as the "Grapes of Wrath" committee. As a field investigator I spent a month in New York, two weeks in Chicago, and a month in Lincoln, Nebraska, three of the cities where hearings were held this past summer. At the present time I am helping to recruit witnesses for the Washington hearings which will be held for six days early in December.

This assignment over the past five months has been one of the most interesting I have ever had, offering a wonderful insight into the social-economic life of the less fortunate.

Enclosed my check for $2.00 for my dues, and I should like to receive my OLD OREGON magazine again.

Sincerely

Great Virgil Visits

The Great Virgil, magician who entertained several thousand in McArthur Court Tuesday evening, November 19, has the off-stage name of Virgil H. Mulkey, ex-'25. As an undergraduate, he majored in drama and the speech arts. Today he is internationally known for his escape acts and circus of illusions.

His roommate of undergraduate days, George Godfrey, '29, associate in the University news bureau, has much to say of the magician. The amiable newsmen classifies Virgil as distinctly a Eugene product, having attended grade and high schools in the campus city before entering Oregon. "He is easily as good as there is—ranks up by the late Houdini as an escape artist."

Mulkey was manager of the Townsend theatre in Port Townsend, Wash., several years. He is married to Miss Julie Caprotti.

Houston Now Mayor

November elections in the state elevated another Alumnus to civic position. John H. Houston, '21, insurance agent in Klamath Falls, was elected mayor of the southern Oregon town.

is Don Kirsch, 5 foot 7 inch firebrand, who is making a strong early season bid for a starting position.

On the basis of early season practice performances a tentative starting lineup might include Anderson and Taylor, forwards; Marshik, center, and Townsend and either Jackson or Andrews, guards. The front-line combination of Anderson, Taylor and Marshik will average over 6 feet 6 inches.

THE STYLE OF PLAY

Oregon will continue to feature the blazing fast-break offense used so successfully the past five years. Webfoot offensive tactics, in a nutshell, are to beat the defense back down court for a quick shot at the basket before opposing players can get set. When this is not possible the Webfoots establish fast-moving set plays. Success of this spectacular offense is shown in the 49-point-per-game average maintained for three years in 98 games, played before 420,000 spectators.

On the defense Oregon employs either a man-to-man or shifting zone, adapting the defense to the particular offensive threat of the opponents.

Oregon will play a 30-game schedule this year, 16 games in regular conference play. Highlight of a third annual eastern trip will be a third straight opening-night appearance in Madison Square Garden in New York City.

History of the University of Oregon

BY DR. HENRY D. SHELDON

This is the story of a whole host of Mr. Chips. A series of epochal struggles. You who think you know your University will be amazed, amused and informed, when you have read this "human document."

It is literally a panorama of "human vignettes." The chapter on Colonel John Leader and the war years of 1917 and 18, is itself worth the price of this unusual book.

And WHO, we ask, is better qualified to write about the school we love so dearly, than our own revered Dr. Henry (Shelly) Sheldon? From the turn of the century Dr. Sheldon has been a moving and dynamic spirit behind the scenes, as well as in the class room. He has served under five college presidents, has seen the student body grow from four hundred to nearly four thousand. He has known personally nearly all the men and women who contributed most generously to the promulgation of learning and culture. His story of the University is something far more than a history; it is the stirring saga of pioneer folk creating for themselves and posterity a shrine, dedicated to a magnificent idea—"mens agatat molem."

Peak record for reserve rooms in Oregon's modern half-million dollar Library was reached January 25 when 2132 books went out in 14 hours, according to Willis C. Warren, '30, executive assistant librarian. Statistics compiled this year indicate peaks are not as high, nor low outputs as low. More Oregon students, therefore, tend to study consistently over a period of weeks instead of "cramming" for exams.

Miss Doris Elaine Dunberg, '40, and Rev. G. Marvel Chapman, '38, were married in Eugene on October 29. They will make their home in Etna, Calif., where Rev. Chapman is the pastor of the Scott Valley Baptist church.
