FOREWORD

IN AN ATTEMPT TO MIRROR THE MODERN SPIRIT OF THE GREATER UNIVERSITY, EVIDENCED ON EVERY SIDE IN CAMPUS LIFE AND ITS VISIONARY IDEALS, AND TO REFLECT TRULY ITS APPROACHING REALIZATION, WE PRESENT THE 1929 OREGANA.

IF AS A RECORD OF THE YEARS ATTAINMENTS, IT FAITHFULLY PICTURES THIS NEW ERA OF PROGRESS THEN THIS YEARBOOK FULFILLS ITS PURPOSE.

Sky

The sky is a shelf
That's built too high
To reach—no matter
How we try.

The sky has people
Who dance at night,
And flicker flashes
Of crazy light.

The sky is the frame
Of a pensive earth;
Its star-eyes glitter
With twinkling mirth.

The sky full of stars
With beauty burns,
Like diamonds offered
In sapphire urns.

THE GREATER OREGON

NEW INFIRMARY

Mrs. W. B. Crane
and Dean John Bovard

BUILDING plans are under way for the new University Hospital, as a result of a campaign for funds by Oregon mothers, that brought an appropriation of $50,000 from the state legislature on condition that a similar amount of money be raised by private subscription.

Realizing the inadequate facilities of present infirmary accommodations as evidenced by the epidemic of contagious diseases during the past year, the mothers of Oregon students, headed by Mrs. W. B. Crane of Portland, organized a campaign that got the legislative appropriation. To fulfill their part of the agreement in raising a matching sum of money, Mrs. Crane and her committee—Mrs. Wallace Shearer, Mrs. Herman Slade, and Mrs. Treve Jones—are now engaged in a state-wide campaign for funds.

The plans for the new hospital call for the immediate erection of the first unit at a cost of $100,000. It is to be erected so that additional units may be added when needed. The three-story structure will bring about a centralization of the Health Service. On the first floor the dispensary and clinic will be housed. The second and third floors will be devoted to hospital wards. A capacity of sixty beds has been planned for. Each of the upper floors will be built so that parts can be closed or opened as needed. Special units will be arranged for cases demanding isolation. Wards have been planned for two and four patients each, with special rooms for convalescents.

The University Hospital will fill a need long-felt on the campus. It is a significant step forward to the goal of a greater university.

COMMONWEALTH CONFERENCE

Philip A. Parsons

DESIGNED to render service to the state, and to bring together students and leaders for the discussion of timely and weighty problems, was the annual Commonwealth Conference held on the campus last March 21 and 22.

With prominent state participants in four different fields—religious study groups, chambers of commerce secretaries, crime prevention study group, and a stream pollution study group—they devoted their time to Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall's proposed survey of state resources to determine how best a survey could be scientifically applied. President Hall's survey is extensive, and its scope includes surveys of all the state's social as well as economic resources.

The conference is being directed this year by Philip A. Parsons, head of the School of Sociology. It has been an annual university event for the past decade, having been instituted by the late Dean F. G. Young. From a small unit covering a small field of endeavor, it has grown to a state-wide significance.

The section chairmen for 1929's meeting include Dean David E. Faville, of the School of Business Administration, as chairman of the chamber of commerce secretaries division; Dean John Bovard, head of the stream pollution group; Professor H. S. Tuttle, of the School of Education, chairman of the religious study section; and Dean Charles Carpenter, of the Law School, as leader for the crime prevention group.

One phase of President Hall's proposed survey was dealt with by the religious study division, when it undertook the task of supplying all churches and uplift organizations with impersonal and unprejudiced information upon which to base new programs for progress.

FINANCE CAMPAIGN

Joseph Koke

THE UNIVERSITY'S campaign for funds has made remarkable progress this year under the direction of Burt Brown Barker, vice-president.

The campaign centered on Eugene subscriptions and resulted in the raising of $153,-253.50, of which $40,000 was collected in a single day. The goal, set at $150,000, was considered a tremendous undertaking. The success of the drive made possible the construction of The Campbell Memorial and Fine Arts building. Credit for the success of the drive has been given to Joseph Koke and his chamber of commerce committee.

The financial campaign had two purposes. The first was to pay the old indebtedness of the former Gift Campaign of the late President Campbell. The second was to secure pledges for the subscription of Eugene to the Museum. Mr. Koke and his committee set out to raise the sum of $150,000 among the citizens of Eugene. Of this sum, one hundred thousand was to defray the expenses of the former Gift Campaign, $25,000 for future expense, and an additional amount for the new Museum. The first $100,000 was subscribed by Eugene business men—no subscription being less than $2,500. The next $25,000 was subscribed by fifteen other persons in business firms. In a big campaign last March the last twenty-five thousand was raised, with a margin of over $3,250.

As soon as the campaign was finished the administration proceeded with the erection of the first unit of the Museum and the Memorial Court, which had already been authorized by the Board of Regents. About $80,000 was already in hand, and a generous Eugene citizen offered to advance another equal amount in cash, against the pledges that have already been made for the erection of the building.

Considering the size of Eugene, and the wealth represented here, the amount raised is an evidence of the unusual interest taken by the city in this matter, and is an outstanding pledge of her interest in the growth and development of our University.

MEMORIAL BUILDING

The Campbell Memorial Court and Fine Arts Museum

AT LAST a dream is about to come true! The Memorial Court and Fine Arts Museum is about to become a realization. Plans have been completed for construction of the first unit which will occupy a 44x180-foot parcel of land south of the commerce building, and on the east side of the grand concourse to the auditorium to be built in the future. This concourse is designed to be the major axis of the university campus.

The Museum, which will be the most attractive feature on the present grounds, is to be built by the friends and alumni of the University of Oregon as a memorial to the late President Prince Lucien Campbell, and to house the fine arts collections belonging to the school.

A feature of the plan for the first unit is the memorial court. This will be surrounded by a covered corridor, with mosaic floors and ornamental sculpturing and lettered tablets on the walls. In the center will be a pool, surrounded by plantings suitable to the motif of the court.

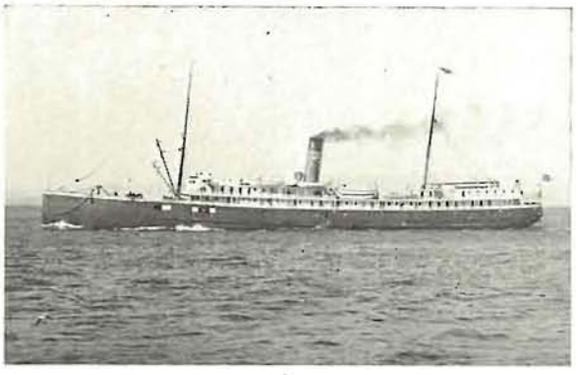
At one end a fountain will play into a basin. This basin in turn will empty into a pool over a miniature cascade. A view of the court is available from the main portion of the building.

The first unit is designed so that in the future the two other units planned can be added as wings, to completely inclose the memorial court.

Romanesque architecture will be used for the exterior design of the structure, and a particularly pleasing building mass is expected. The exterior finish will be tapestry brick.

The structure will have ample room for exhibits, a large lobby, rest and lecture rooms, and a studio.

SUMMER CRUISE



The Steamship Queen

IN ACCORDANCE with the development of our greater University is the Alaskan Cruise planned for this summer. It will be the first time that any western school has incorporated such a plan into its curriculum. Dean Alfred Powers, director of the summer sessions, has chartered the S. S. Queen, of the Admiral Line, for the trip.

Regular classes of the summer sessions will be held on board. The trip will take place in August, during the post-session. Members of the faculty and distinguished visiting professors will give courses in the following fields: geography and Pacific Coast history; geology and anthropology; journalism, art, and English; biology and botany. Each student can ordinarily carry three subjects.

The itinerary is an attractive one, including all the varied attractions of our northern land. A special train will carry students from Eugene to Seattle, where they will spend one night. After the Queen leaves Seattle, it will carry them to Ketchikan, Wrangel and Petersburg, on to the great Taku glacier, Juneau, Skagway, Sitka, and a great number of Alaska's picturesque channels and straits. On the return to Seattle a train will bring the student-vacationers back to Eugene to finish out the remaining portion of the post-session. The round-trip fare is only $140, which includes meals and berth.

The Steamship Queen, with a speed of 14 knots, has a length of 348 feet, a breadth of 38 feet, and a gross tonnage of 2727. On the A-deck there are 28 rooms with 67 berths; on B-deck are 44 rooms with 121 berths; and on C-deck there are 10 rooms with 40 berths.

The student accommodations have been limited to 185, all first class quarters.

AVIATION

At Hobi Airways

A PILOT'S license and a college diploma may now go hand in hand at Oregon. In keeping with the air-mindedness of the American college student and the growing importance of aviation to higher education, the University of Oregon faculty this year took another forward step when it prepared a group of courses for students interested in aeronautics. Another indication of growing interest in aviation on the campus is the formation of the University of Oregon Aero club, an extra-curricular group. Both are helping to make for a greater Oregon.

Tennyson predicted the success and the importance of present day flying in his oft'-quoted poem, "Locksley Hall." But today it takes no Tennyson to predict that in the future the industry of aviation will need its traffic directors, its business and its financial executives, its office men, as well as its other specialists, to operate efficiently. It is with this need in mind that Dr. Hall and members of the faculty preparing the courses take the initiative so that the student wishing to get a higher education may, at the same time, avail himself of a training in aviation.

As the result of the appointment by Dr. Hall of a committee to suggest desired subjects in these courses of aviation training, three divisions to go into the School of Business Administration were made. The list includes meteorology, physics, unified mathematics, navigation, commercial aviation, photography and other subjects, as well as an actual course in flying and ground instruction, with the Hobi Airways, local concern, as the laboratory. Among those on this committee were Dr. Warren D. Smith, its chairman, David Faville, dean of the School of Business Administration, C. Harvey Hicks, professor of mathematics and technical adviser, the president of the Aero club and other representatives.

Professor Hicks, who is a graduate of California Institute of Technology, where he engaged in important research work, will be faculty adviser in the new courses.

Leonard H. Delano is president and Myrtis Gorst secretary of the Aero club, an ambitious group of enthusiasts which plans to obtain instruction on the co-operative purchase plan and is endeavoring to further aviation in all its phases on the campus.

Clown In a Coffin

Now a clown in a coffin with the paint wiped off
Isn't a clown at all.
Stripped of his wobbly, polka-dot suit,
Robbed of his windy, hollow flute,
He's still. There's a strip of gauze for his pall.

No piece of mirth has found his lips. They're creased
In death's mock grin.
The lines of his ashen face descend,
Like the paths where drunken sailors spend
Uncounted pay in a search for sin.

He laughed at the show the world put on; and she Charged him well for his fun.
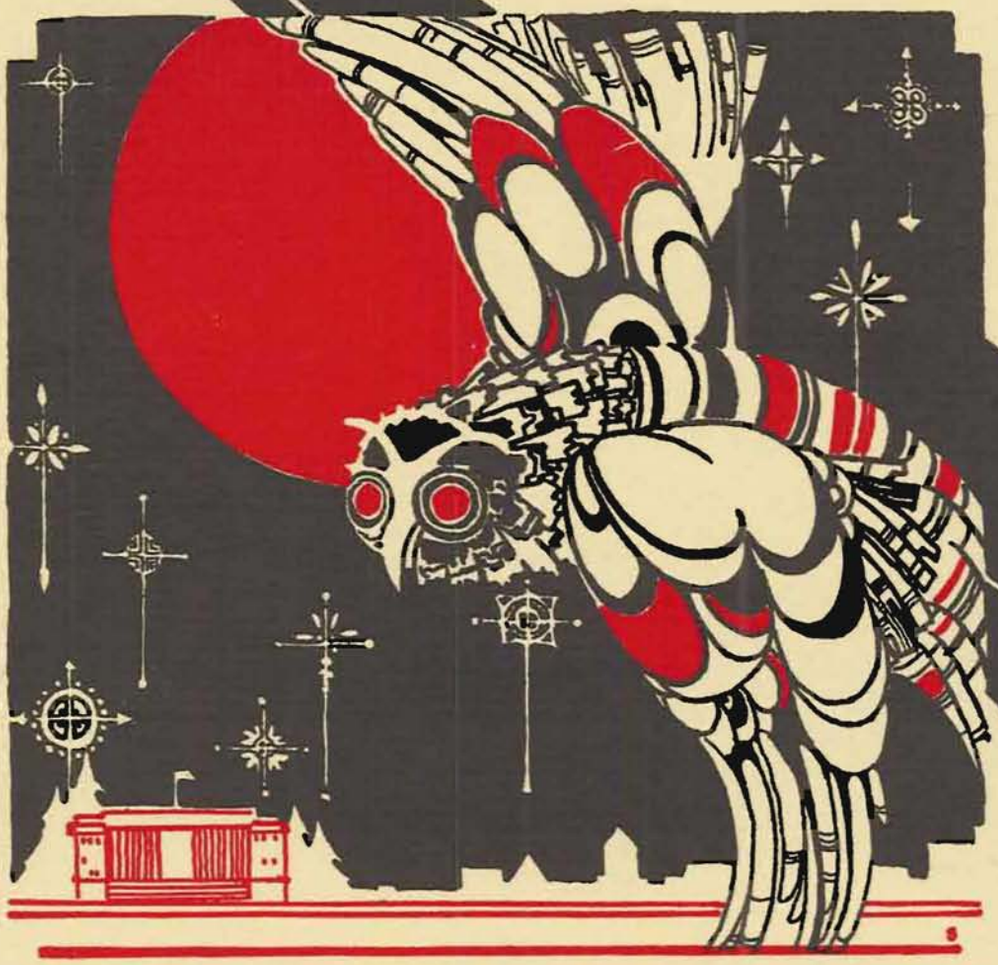
She called his bluff with a falling pole.
She told him somewhere he had a soul.
The clown's a myth . . . the man's begun.

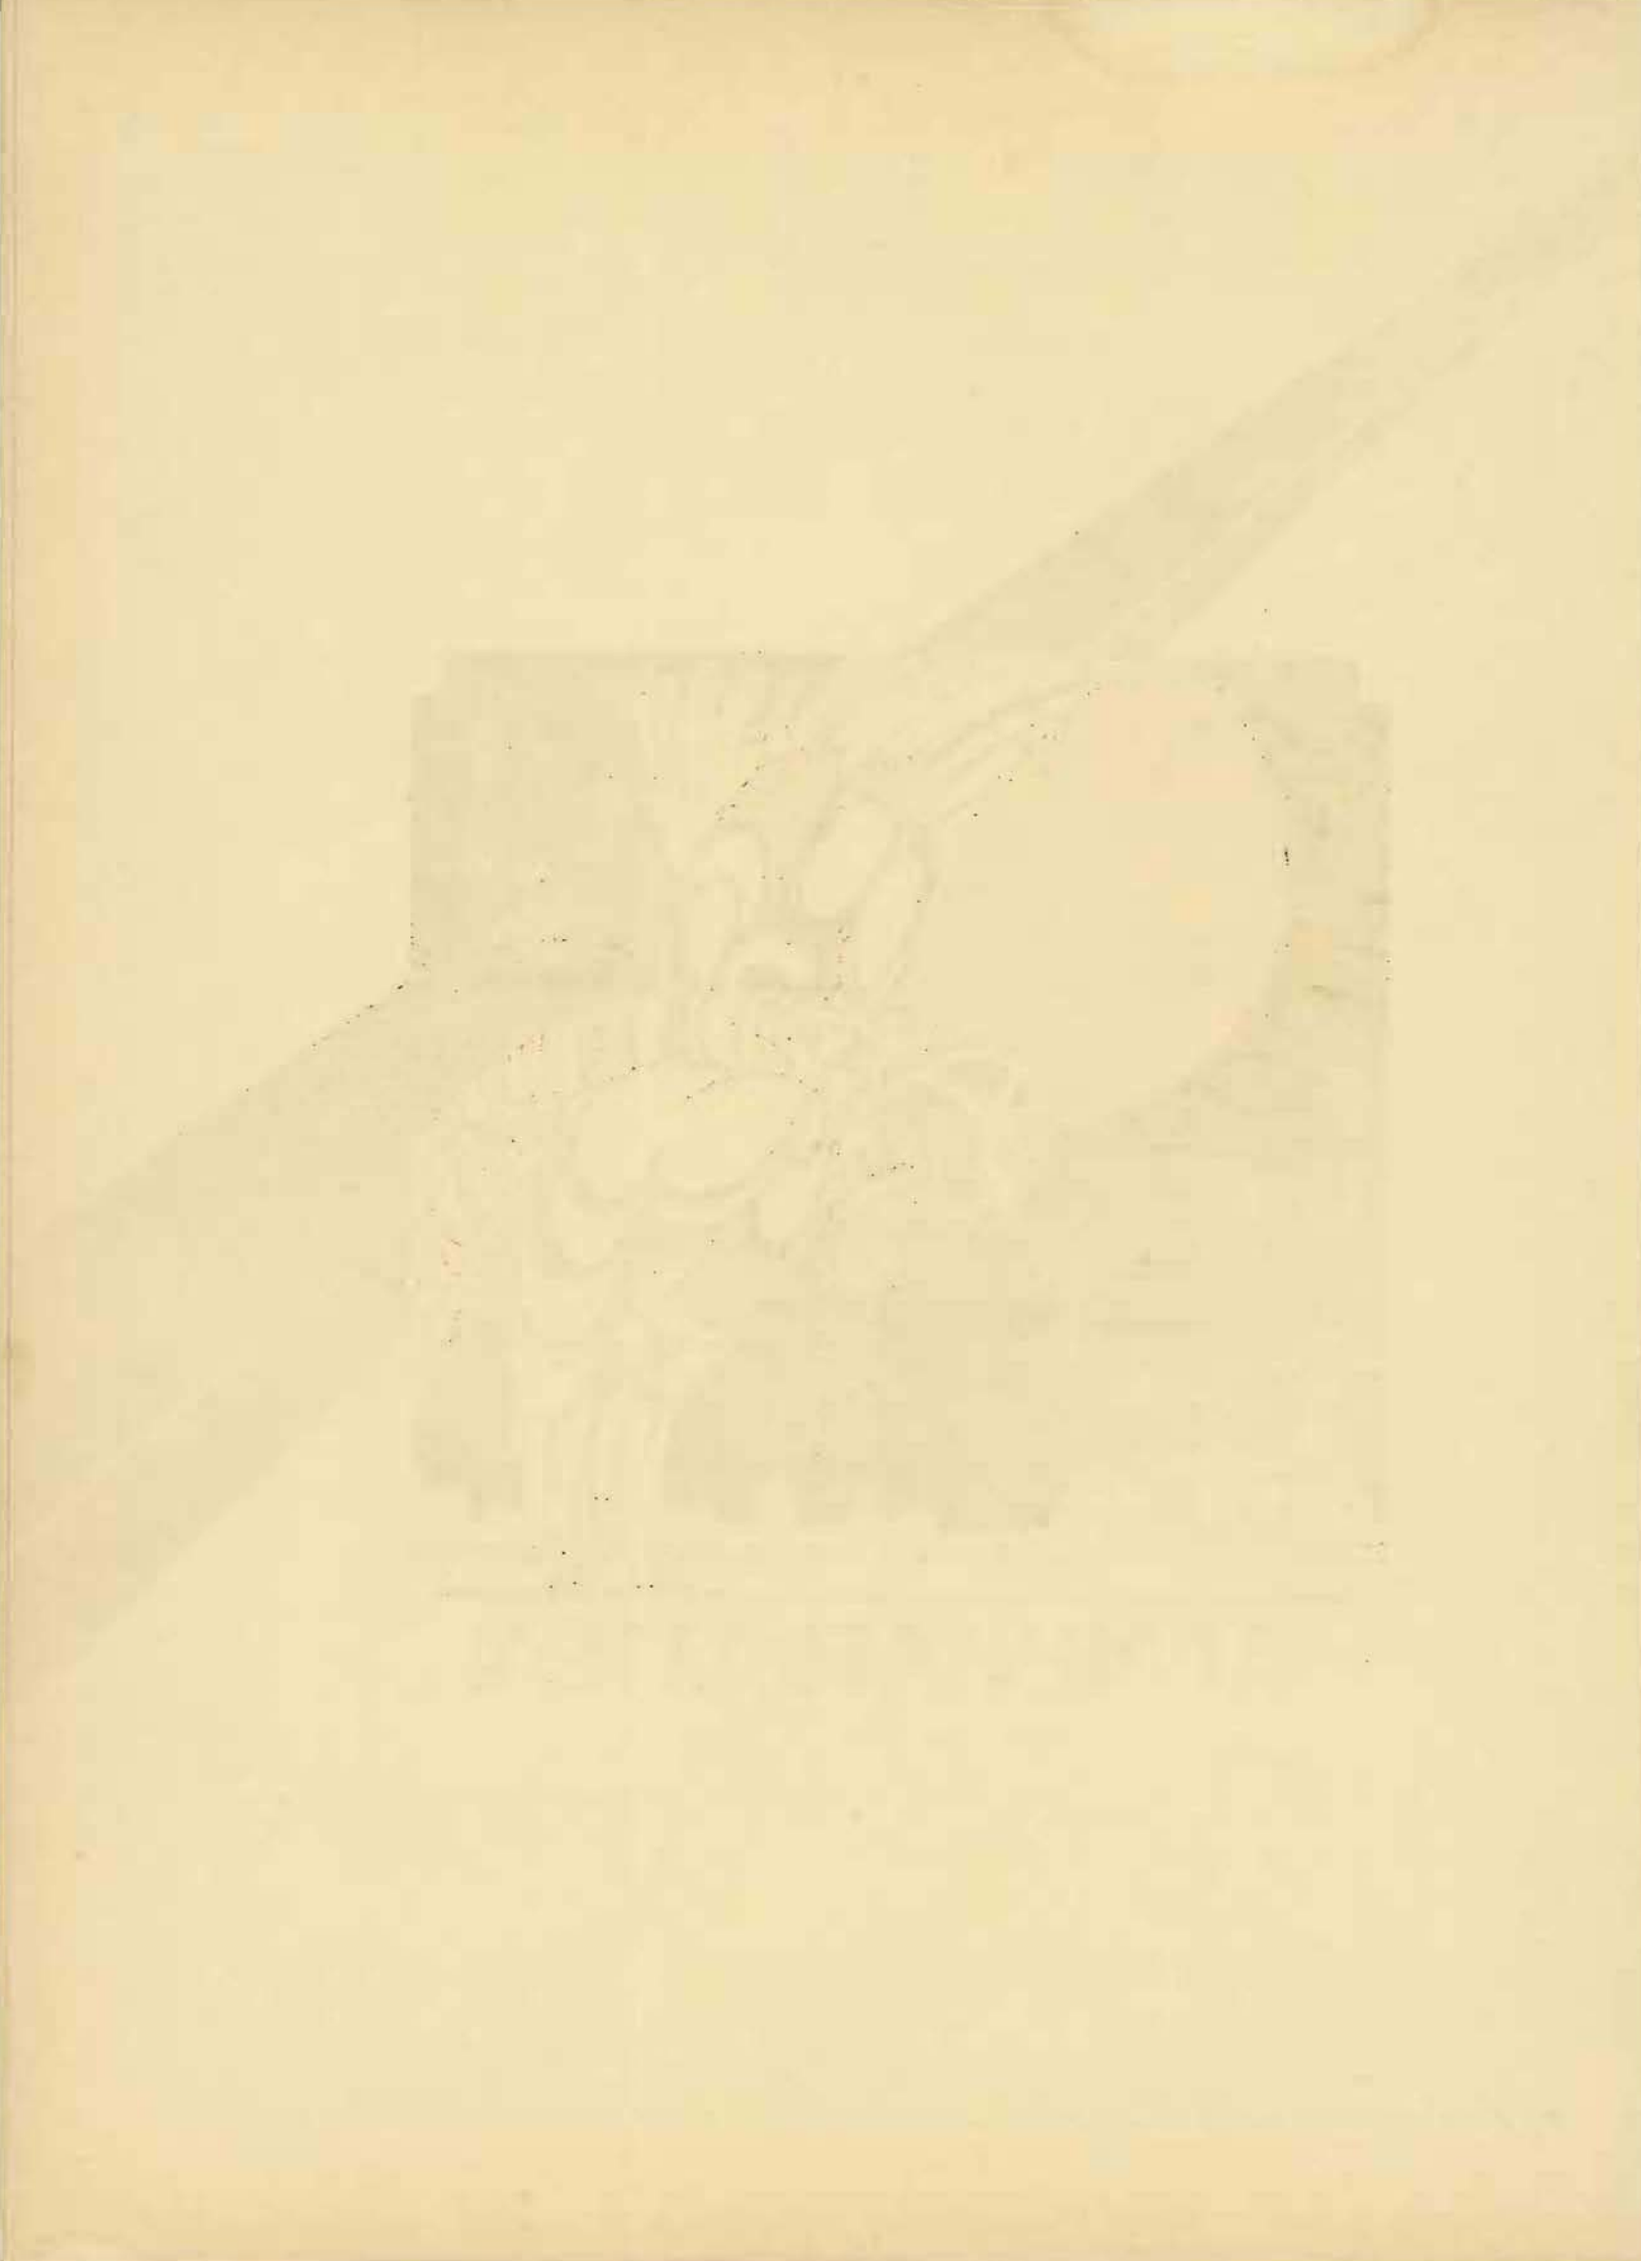
And back on the lot where elephants horn
And tigers sleep and snore
And the show drags by
With a loud-mouthed guy,
There's two where one clowned before.

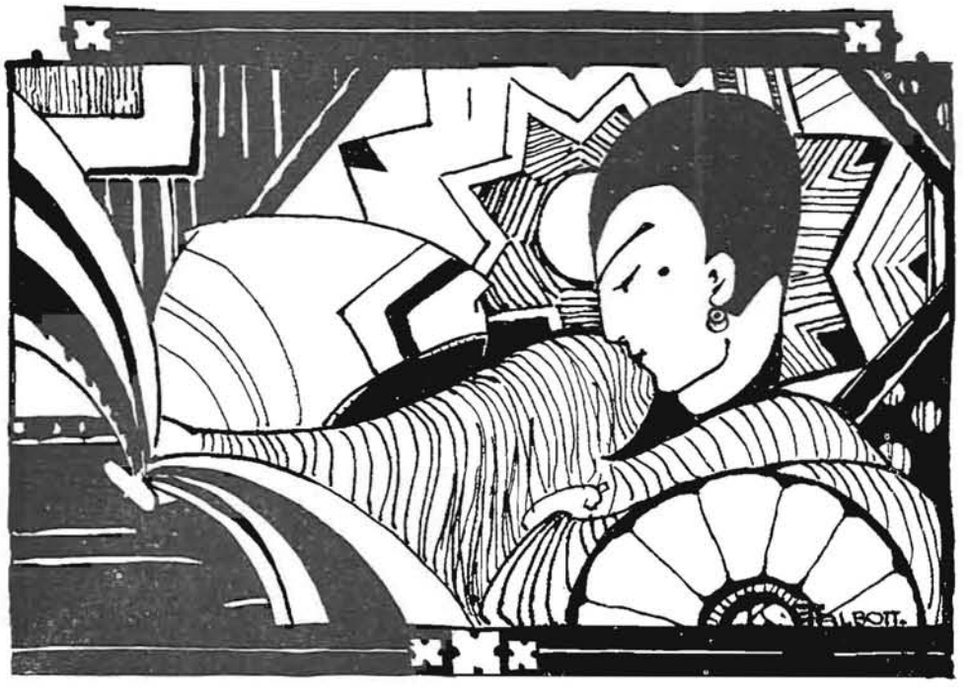
But the clown in the coffin with the paint wiped off
Isn't a clown at all.
He's five feet of clay
That has had his say
Till he sipped at a drop of gall.

CONSTANCE BORDWELL.



ADMINISTRATION





ADMINISTRATION

THE PRESIDENT

DR. ARNOLD BENNETT HALL

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall was inaugurated fifth president of the University, October 18, 1926. Dr. Hall received his A. B. degree from Franklin College in 1904 and was granted a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree in 1907 from the University of Chicago. He has served on faculties of University of Chicago, Northwestern University and the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Hall founded the National Conference on the Science of Politics in 1923. Since coming to the University he has endeavored to develop research activities, and the dissemination of the fruits of study to all people of the state in the education of Oregon's sons and daughters.

A MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

Education is our greatest public enterprise, in which Oregon now invests nearly one-half her revenue. To safeguard the principles and institutions of a democratic government, to utilize successfully the complicated machinery of industry and science, to maintain balance and to attain personal happiness in a complex society, we need every resource which a well-rounded development can offer.

The record which the college graduate makes in his business, community and state constitutes the most forceful argument for or against increased public support of educational institutions.

Let me, therefore, urge every student of the University of Oregon to prove by increased vocational efficiency, by high personal standards of character and culture, and by intelligent citizenship, that there is a direct return for the State's investment.

—ISAAC L. PATTERSON.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

Burt Brown Barker returned to Oregon where he spent his youth to become Vice-President of the University. He graduated from the public schools of Salem in 1889, attended Willamette University until 1893 when he went to the University of Chicago. He took his A. B. degree in 1897 and in 1901 he took his LL.B. degree from the Harvard Law School.

Mr. Barker is a charter member of D. S. R. and during his practice of law in Chicago, he was secretary of the Chicago Bar Association. He is a life member of the Chicago Bar Association, of the Montclair Art Association and of the Nantucket Yacht Club. He retains membership in the American Bar Association, the University Club of New York City, the Harvard Club of New York City, the Bankers' Club of New York City, and is a member of the Montclair Chapter of S. A. R.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Sammons

Burch

Pease

THE 1928 session of the Senate of the Oregon Legislature confirmed the appointments by Governor Patterson of nine members of the state Board of Higher Education. To this board of higher education the conduct of the University of Oregon, Oregon State Agricultural College, and the Oregon Normal Schools at Monmouth, Ashland, and La Grande have been entrusted.

Each member of the newly created board is extremely well qualified for this position.

Mr. E. C. Sammons of Portland is vice-president of the Iron Fireman's Manufacturing Company of Portland, besides being a director of the First National Bank. Mr. Sammons' term is six years.

Mr. Albert Burch is a horticulturist. Mr. Burch was formerly special engineer to the Clark interests in Butte, Montana. Mr. Burch was appointed for five years.

Mr. E. C. Pease of The Dalles is a retired merchant besides being a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of that District. His term is for four years.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Irvine

Colt

Starr

MR. C. L. STARR, an attorney at law, was appointed for a term of seven years. Mr. Starr was formerly on the Oregon Normal School Board of Regents, the University of Oregon Board of Regents, and the Oregon State Agricultural College Board of Regents.

Mr. C. C. Colt of Portland, who has been identified with the Board of Regents of the University of Oregon since 1915 when he was appointed by Governor Withycombe, is vice-president of the First National Bank of Portland; a director of the Oregon Life Insurance Company, the Title and Trust Company, and the First National Corporation of Portland. Mr. Colt has been appointed for nine years.

Mr. B. F. Irvine, editor of the Oregon Journal, is to be affiliated with the new board for the next eight years. Like Mr. Starr, Mr. Irvine has also been connected with the Boards of Regents of the University of Oregon, Oregon State Agricultural College, and the Oregon Normal School.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Callister

Watzek

Oliver

MR. F. E. CALLISTER of Albany has been appointed to a three year term. Mr. Callister is Vice-president and manager of the First National Bank of Albany. He has been connected with the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, the Traders' National Bank of Spokane, besides having been Cashier and Manager of the Coolidge and McClaine Bank of Silverton.

Mr. Aubrey R. Watzek, appointed to a two-year term, is a director of the United States National Bank of Portland, and of the Portland Art Association. He is president of Gales Creek Logging Company, and vice-president of the Crossett Western Company.

Mr. Herman Oliver, a stockman of Canyon City, is Vice-president of the Grant County Bank at John Day; Vice-president of the First National Bank of Prairie City. He is President of the Cattle and Horse Raisers' Association of Oregon, and a member of the Executive Committee of the Oregon Woolgrowers' Association. His term is for one year.

BOARD OF REGENTS

Howard, Kozer, Jackson, Skipworth, Mrs. Gerlinger, Hamilton, Hall, Johnson, Onthank, Fisk, Colt, Vawter, Gilbert

IN THE PAST the official governing body of the University of Oregon has been constituted in a Board of Regents. This board was composed of three ex-officio members, the Governor, the Secretary of State, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who with ten citizens appointed for twelve-year terms, rounded out the group. This board was directly responsible to the state for the management of the university, though this responsibility was usually exercised by the president and other executive officers of the university. Matters of general policy were determined by the board, besides the making of appointments, and the budget, with which the board was directly concerned.

The Board of Regents which was active during the fall and winter of 1928 and 1929 was composed of Gov. I. L. Patterson, Mr. Sam A. Kozer, Judge J. W. Hamilton, president, Mr. Fred Fisk, vice-president, Mr. Herbert Gordon, Supt. C. A. Howard, Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, Mr. Vernon H. Vawter, Judge G. F. Skipworth, Colonel W. S. Gilbert, Mr. Henry McKinney, Mr. C. C. Colt, and Mr. Philip L. Jackson. Mr. Hal E. Hoss succeeded Mr. Kozer in January.

THE DEANS

DEAN OF WOMEN

Miss Hazel Prutsman, who was assistant to the Dean of Women last year, has been acting Dean of Women during Mrs. Esterly's absence.

Miss Prutsman is a graduate of the University of Chicago, and has done graduate work on the Oregon campus. She has also studied at Columbia and Harvard. She is a member of Pi Lambda Theta, women's educational fraternity; of Mortar Board; and is chairman of the American Association of University Women. Miss Prutsman has done research work for Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall in connection with the Social Science Research Council, besides work in public and junior high schools in Minneapolis.

Miss Prutsman has acted as Dean of Women for the past two summer sessions on the Oregon campus.

DEAN OF MEN

Mr. Earl M. Pallett, acting Dean of Men, received his B. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1921, majoring in education. He received his M. S. degree from that same institution in 1922.

In 1921, Mr. Pallett went to the Eastern State Teachers' College at Madison, South Dakota, where he acted as Director of Extension Work until 1927, when he came to the University of Oregon as registrar. In November of 1928, he was appointed acting Dean of Men in addition to the duties of registrar.

Mr. Pallett has done graduate work at the University of Chicago since completing his work at the University of Wisconsin.

DEAN EMERITUS OF MEN

Dr. John Straub

DR. JOHN STRAUB received his B. A. from Mercersburg in 1878; his M. A. from Mercersburg in 1879; and his Litt. D. from Franklin and Marshall in 1913.

Dr. Straub came to the University of Oregon, November 17, 1878. Today, he is the only living person to have served on the original faculty and the first board of regents. In 1900 Dr. Straub was made Dean of the College of Liberal Arts but resigned in 1920, in order to give more attention to the duties of Dean of Men. In 1924 he was made Dean Emeritus of Men.

There were only 150 students at the University at Oregon at first, ranging in ages from 9 to 30 years; while there were only 40 in the collegiate school. Dean Straub was elected secretary of the faculty soon after his entrance. Under his first nickname "Secy-facy" he conducted "extra sessions" which were the bane of all students who dared to come to his classes unprepared.

"Daddy" Straub as he is also known by the students of today, is the best loved of any member of the faculty. His title "guardian angel of the freshman class" is very dear to his heart for they have been his particular care and interest during these fifty-one years. Every Oregon student looks upon him as a personal friend; and he knows them all, inasmuch as he never fails to call each visiting graduate by his own name. Oregon is surely proud of her own "Daddy" Straub.

THE COLLEGE

Dean Gilbert

BEGINNING with the fall term of 1928-29 the dividing line was somewhat more sharply drawn between the lower and upper division work of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. During the first two years the student designates a group of departments as a field of principal interest and takes at least two survey courses broadly introductory to the field of knowledge represented by the affiliated groups. To facilitate the operation of this new plan the College was cast into four main divisions. Literature and Language, Social Sciences, Mathematics and Physical Science, and Biological Science. In the field of Literature students are acquainted with the great masterpieces and trained to cultivate their own powers of expression in written and spoken word. The Social Science group tries to acquaint the student with present-day civilization and the evolution of present day institutions. Work in Mathematics and Physical Science trains in exact reasoning and acquaints the student with the physical environment in which man must achieve his destiny. The biological sciences introduce the student to the realm of organic life and the physiological foundations of the mental processes.

During the freshman year the student's time is largely occupied in survey courses, foundation work in language, and in some elective field. During his second year a sophomore option course lays the foundation for specialization in a department which may later become his major.

At the end of his sophomore year the student may receive a certificate of graduation from the lower division and may enter a professional school with a two-year requirement of college work, or proceed for a degree with a major in some liberal arts department.

Upper division honors courses are provided for specially qualified students selected on the basis of scholastic records in the lower division courses. Honor students will be allowed the utmost freedom in pursuing under the direction of their instructors investigations into the deeper recesses of their subject as they are prompted by scientific curiosity or thirst for knowledge.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

Dean Rebec

THE PURPOSE of the Graduate School is listed under four heads.

First, the Graduate School endeavors to have the student broaden and deepen his scholarship. By the major and minor fields of study, the student is diverted from a loose scattering of his interests over more or less general things, at the same time the taking of courses which has played too large a part in his undergraduate years even in his special subjects, is transferred into an approach on the whole body of these subjects, and an attempt is made at the beginning of a real mastership in them.

Secondly, the student is challenged and expected to take a critical and investigative attitude towards knowledge and ideas, instead of obediently taking the contents of lectures and text books as they are. Thirdly, the Graduate School wishes to be animated by the idea of research in the very broadest meaning of that term.

Fourthly, the Graduate School endeavors not only to build this active and creative habit of mind and as a supplement to the ordinary college course, but also strives to inculcate it within the undergraduate years themselves.

SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE

Dean Lawrence

THE SCHOOL of Architecture and Allied Arts is unique in similar institutions throughout the country. These useful arts are to be found grouped together here, with the possibility of contact with all and specialization in any one of them. Probably in no other school is there greater encouragement for the development of individual character.

The special purpose of this school is said to be to create and sustain an environment in which the student's most worthy qualities, characteristics, and capabilities are accepted as a basis of growth, and environment which will be conducive to the discovery of his own especial and peculiar powers—intellectual, ethical and physical—and which will afford encouragement and stimulation for their free unfoldment and development.

Starting as a school of architecture with service courses in fine arts, it has developed to the point where professional work is offered not only in architecture, design, but also in the special field of structural and interior designs. Finally, painting and sculpture are offered as professional courses besides training in normal art, craft work and industrial art.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Dean Faville

THE SCHOOL of Business Administration is completing its fourteenth year on the campus in the service of training and developing business executives. The work is coordinated with the rest of the University, with the result that the schedule of the average student is divided approximately as follows; one-fourth cultural courses in the College of Liberal Arts; one-fourth economics; one-fourth law; and one-fourth technical business courses.

The problem method of teaching has been adapted to undergraduate use and has proved a successful means of supplementing factual knowledge with an ability to think and to meet the ever changing problems of the business world. The object of the school is to turn out business executives. This necessitates a broad cultural background a well as a technical training. The first two years are devoted largely to the liberal arts courses and elementary work in business administration, while the junior and senior years are given over to technical training.

Emphasis is on the managerial and administrative aspects of business, particularly in the fields of accounting, finance, sales, production, and foreign trade. A feature of the past year has been the expansion of the business administration curriculum in the Extension Division, making it possible for a student to secure the graduate professional degree in business administration, either on the campus or in Portland. By combining graduate study with business experience, the transition from University life to the business field is greatly facilitated.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Dean Sheldon

THE SCHOOL of Education has several important duties to the state. It trains teachers for the junior and senior high schools of the state. A large part of this proportion is gained from mastering subjects in the various departments of the College of Literature, Science and The Arts. The school has, not only, the usual undergraduate courses, but also a complete model and practice high school under its own immediate direction and thereby being the only University on the Pacific coast to have this advantage.

The provision of advanced training for experienced teachers; normal school graduates; and those who are preparing for administrative supervisory positions is closely allied to the high school teacher's training. The research side of education should also receive recognition.

A general service bureau has been established to supply information and guidance along modern lines of improvement.

THE EXTENSION DIVISION

Dean Powers

THE AGENCY, by which the University of Oregon renders service outside the campus is known as the Extension Division.

The Portland center, established eleven years ago, has grown to such proportions that classes are offered in Lincoln High School, the Portland Library, the Chamber of Commerce building, and the Dekum building; while an office at 322 Corbett Building is maintained as a means of clearing the additional activities in Portland. Other extension centers, which offer classwork to regularly enrolled students, are at Salem, Astoria, The Dalles, and Hood River. Work done in Portland and Salem carries resident credit.

Simultaneously with the campus session, the Portland Summer Session is held as part of the Portland Extension Center.

With the Extension Division, "the State is the Campus."

SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM

Dean Allen

THE SCHOOL of Journalism is rounding out its seventeenth year as a department and its fourteenth year as a school. Since the Commencement of 1916 the newspaper world has felt the influx of its students.

This school is one of the best equipped in the United States, being one of the ten chosen to initiate the American Association of Schools of Journalism. It is also one of the five to be represented on the American Council for Education in Journalism; besides being one of the half dozen that have received the most prominent national recognizition from the public and the profession.

This school was among the first to initiate the system of having each subject taught by a specialist.

SCHOOL OF SOCIOLOGY

Dean Parsons

THE TREMENDOUS responsibility of this school is the role in conferring upon each Oregon citizen the real possession and the fullest enjoyment of the social and natural heritage that twentieth century life in Oregon should make available. This responsibility in part, involves most efficient agencies for social work with those who are not quite able to steer their life boat in the swift and turbulent change of our land and times. This diagnosing of personality requires a clear insight into human nature and the play of the conserving forces in the various associated groups through which the coordination and co-operation of human effort are realized and inspiration of human purpose enkindled.

The service for small and large communities is also a responsibility of the school. The maintenance of twentieth century height and ascending plane of progress is a critical undertaking.

Nature does not equip the community or individual to achieve this automatically. The science of sociology has the central responsibility in this.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Dean Landsbury

MUSIC has existed in the form of a department on the University campus since 1902. Before that time, due largely to the fact that the ordinary curriculum had so many demands, there was little or no demand for it.

The music building, being apart from the campus, not only has a very commanding position, but also frees its students from the usual disturbances. The building equipment includes a spacious auditorium; a magnificent organ; private practice rooms, a lecture room with a radio; and a phonograph with complete libraries of records. Provisions are made for the students who wish to use music simply as a factor in broadening their education, to utilize this building as well as the student intending to be a professional.

The School of Music provides for a large group of regularly matriculated University students who are expected to take a degree in four years, and who will offer music either as a major or minor subject.

The faculty of this school includes men and women of national and even international repute.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Dean Bovard

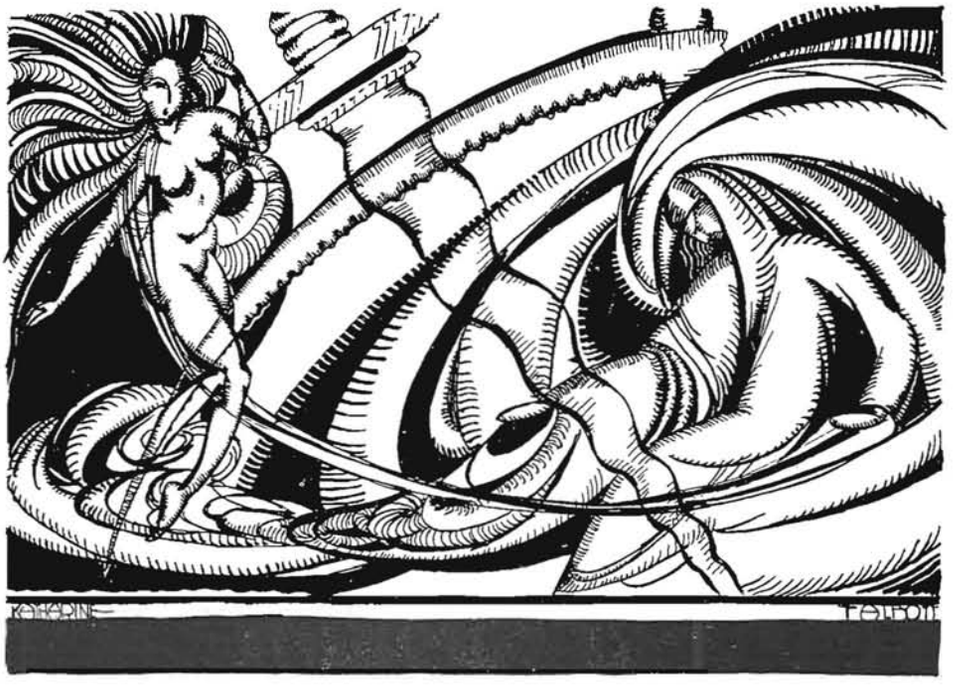
THE SCHOOL of Physical Education concerns itself with the physical welfare of the student body. Within the school there are four departments, each with its own director responsible for the technical details of the work.

For students who are ill, the University Health Service maintains an infirmary at 1212 Onyx Street, with fifteen beds and an annex with fifteen additional beds. There is also held a daily clinic at the Dispensary where students are encouraged to come for medical advice.

The Department for Men and for Women each has facilities for recreation and development and every student is not only invited but urged to use these to the limit.

The Department of Athletics cooperating with the Student Body is concerned with promoting and supervising of intercollegiate competition. We believe that every man and every woman is better equipped for life if the physical backgrounds are understood and if some time is scheduled regularly in recreative activities.

The School of Physical Education also has a well organized curriculum for the training of teachers in physical education. The first two years are concerned with acquiring certain prerequisites in English, Biology, Chemistry, Language, Social Sciences, etc., while the last two years are devoted to the more technical subjects pertaining to the pedagogy of physical activities. This training is fundamental for those going into high schools or colleges as physical directors, into playgrounds, coaching of major sports and supervising of community recreation.



MEDICINE

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

Dean R. B. Dillehunt

RISING southward from the center of Portland's business, covered with foliage and Oregon fir, is Marquam Hill on which are the hospitals and laboratories of the University and State.

To the peaceful heights are carried the sick from the city below. Here broken limbs are mended and failing health is strengthened.

In the laboratories research work is steadily revealing the secrets of nature. At the present time, the pathology of sinus disease, goitre and heart diseases is being studied; the physiology of the gall bladder and endrocrine glands is being advanced; the action of the Bacteriophoge is being applied to diseases; the pharmocologic action of drugs is being investigated and unknown nerve pathways being worked out.

As a recognition of the good work done in the Medical School, the National Board of Education of the Rockefeller Foundation has given $400,000 to the University. This fortune will be invested in the construction of the new clinic on the campus of the Medical School.

PILLS FROM THE MEDICS

You see it was this way—

By studying pathology
I had measles, arthritis and chronic nephritis,
And endocarditis besides.
I had a hundred and ninety-five chills,
And now and then cardiac thrills.
Oh, brother come quick,
I believe I am sick
I need a few more of your pills.

—o—

Spring is here—the nurses at the Good Samaritan Hospital are getting engaged.

Six and a half juniors are listed among those lost in action according to Vern Miller.

—o—

The tedium vitae of the first year class has given way, at last they have become physicians and surgeons—bought stethoscopes, thermometers and hemostats last week for experimental physiology. "Of course, we are working on animals, as yet—but you never can tell when a sick frog will hop into your office," admits Al Boyden.

—o—

Rumors that Jiggs McArthur, the handsomest man in the school, will graduate, are well founded; but false hopes raised in the heart of Mike Campbell were dashed to ground when the latest reports indicated that Jiggs was interning at the County and not leaving town after all.

—o—

The sophomores know all about medicine—it is really very simple this season.

—o—

The Seniors are wondering where to go to learn something after spending eight years in college.

As Ira A. Manville says — That will be all for today—.

—o—

According to Pop there are three type of Golgi cells:

Type I
Type II
Type III

—o—

Tom Robertson says the Nu Sig convention in Cleveland was a big success. Tom had the "flu" while there. Some Theta Kappa Psi boys are wondering if they treat the flu in Cleveland like they do in Canada.

—o—

Somebody recently said the flu was caused by a Streptococcus infection.

Streptococcus
Streptococci
Streptococceyed

—o—

Oh, Lillian stop making eyes,
You paralyze my vagus nerve,
You take away my breath,
You give me tachycardia,
And drive me to my death.

—o—

Frohlich's Syndrome Wiswall has recently read that H. Ray Allumbaugh's modification of Haskin's modification of Sahli's method of determining percent hemoglobin consists of the following steps. See page 237.

—o—

Take 457¼ drops instead of 157½ drops of the new solution.

—o—

Suckow spends all his nights experimenting on his dogs—say, George, why don't you take out some co-eds once in a while.

LAW

LAW SCHOOL

Dean Charles E. Carpenter

THE MINIMUM requirement of the law school is two years of college work. However, most of the students of the school have a bachelor's degree or three years of college work. The law school is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, composed of all of the high standard law schools of the United States.

To educate men and women for the practice of law and also give them such a broad foundation of knowledge and training that they will be able to take a leading part in the social, economic, and civic advancement of the state, are the purposes of this school. Research on Oregon law problems is encouraged and the results placed at the disposal of the citizens of Oregon.

The law school is organized into a Law Association which cooperates among the students during the law school course.

The present school of law was removed from Portland in 1915. It was established as a night school in Portland in 1884. When it became established at the University, it was recognized as a full-time day school and had entrance requirements increased from a high school course to two years of college work.

Students are given active experience in procedural work as a foundation for their later practice. In the spring practice courts are held.

Bancroft-Witney Prize Winner

IN 1922 Frank R. Hilton offered an annual prize of $50 to the student presenting the best oral discussion of a legal subject selected by the law school faculty. Forrest Cooper won second prize of $25 given by the law school.

THE BANCROFT-WITNEY company of San Francisco offer an annual prize of a law publication to the senior who has received the highest average in his senior year in the law school. In June 1928 the prize was awarded to Orlando J. Hollis.

THE OREGON LAW REVIEW is published by the law school of the University of Oregon and is one of a series of learned journals on law. It is a current quarterly scholastic work. Research work for the Law Review is chiefly done by members of the law school faculty and student body.

Professor Vincent Harper is its present editor. Orlando Hollis is the assistant editor and Roland Davis is the business manager.

LAW STUDENT BODY

Lester Oehler
Law Student Body President

THE SCHOOL of law student body is composed of 84 students and is a member of the Association of American Law Schools. The law student body is organized for the purpose of cooperating with the faculty of the law school, especially in conducting the honor system, which is left entirely in student hands.

During the fall term the law student body gave a smoker for law majors, at which Judge G. F. Skipworth was the speaker. The event for law majors winter term was a dinner.

COLLEGE YEAR

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

Arthur Anderson | Joe McKeown | Helen Webster

The Associated Students of the University of Oregon is composed of all undergraduate students in the university. The object of this association is to provide an organization to settle matters of general concern. The students elect their own representatives to carry out this purpose. It is operated under a president, vice-president, secretary, and two councils, the executive and student.

During the year 1928-1929 the student administration reduced the university's debt many thousands of dollars; sponsored an infirmary and Co-op probe which proved very successful; put all sports on an equal basis; sponsored a lecture and music series; and provided as wide a scope of activities as possible so that a greater number of students might take part in this branch of educational training.

The traditions of Oregon, around which are formed the memories of our college days, have been maintained. The Oregon spirit, of which every Oregonian is proud, was more conspicuous than for some time past, and it was this spirit which did much in determining the success of our athletic teams. The students of Oregon at all times, whether away from the campus or at home, displayed true sportsmanship and showed that they were good winners as well as good losers.

An international program with Japanese universities was started. The plan was for each Japanese student to send a small gift to an Oregon student and for the Oregon men and women to do likewise. These small gifts serve as tokens of international good will and friendship.

National and coast meetings of student officers have been attended in an effort to learn of the problems of other colleges throughout the United States and the methods used in solving them. The Oregana and the Emerald have been successfully published by the students.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Ultimate decisions pertaining to the conduct of affairs of the Associated Students rests with the two governing bodies, the Student Council and the Executive Council. Both directly represent the students of Oregon.

The Student Council is composed exclusively of students, fifteen in number, elected annually with the A. S. U. O. officers. The duties of this council cover the regulation of such matters as student welfare and conduct, student-faculty relationships, traditions, elections and entertainments.

The Executive Council controls all such student body activities as athletics, forensics and music, and approves all budgets for expenditures of student funds. It appoints all managers of student activities, the graduate manager, all coaches, trainers, and student assistants.

This council is composed of the president of the university, three faculty members, a member of the board of regents, two alumni, the graduate manager and six students.

GREATER OREGON

Ronald Hubbs

THE TASK of building a greater university is that undertaken annually by the Greater Oregon Committee this year under the direction of Ronald Hubbs.

The work for the years 1928-29 began last summer and as a result of the helpful contacts made then with the preparatory school students, one of the most promising and largest freshman classes of the university came to Eugene last fall.

The work was not ended, however, with this state-wide endeavor to interest students in higher education and in the University of Oregon in particular, for when these students came to the university an effort was made to help them in choosing curricula best adapted to them individually, to help them in registration and engender in them a spirit of union between the university and the commonwealth which the committee attempts to make felt throughout the state.

The largest portion of the work of the committee necessarily comes at the vacation periods. This year it was not confined entirely to contact with prospective students but also in interviewing old students to insure their return to the university.

This year's directorate is composed of: Ronald Hubbs, chairman; Francis McKenna, assistant chairman; Arden X. Pangborn, publicity; Larry Ogle, Lakeview; Ted Gurney, Baker; Vawter Parker, Heppner; Kenton Hamaker, Klamath Falls; Keith Hall, Marshfield; Wendell Gray, Prineville; George Stadelman, The Dalles; Charles Reed, West Linn; Don Campbell, Eugene; William Dielschneider, McMinnville; Ernest Jachetta, Portland; Walter Norblad, Astoria.

HOMECOMING COMMITTEE

HOMECOMING!—clear and crisp days—skyrockets and blazing torches — cheering rooters serpentining through the streets—the burning "O" — a glorious victory — and last of all a dance. Everything to make a perfect Homecoming.

November 24 and 25 were chosen for Homecoming this year—the latest in the history of the University of Oregon. For once the grads were not greeted by torrents of rain in Eugene, though the fog which came with the cooler weather threatened to hide the campus for a while.

Returning alumni were greeted at the entrance of the campus by large green and yellow posts holding the banner "Welcome Oregon" and living organizations vied in their welcoming signs, with Sigma Alpha Epsilon the winner.

Friday evening there was the rally and the burning of the big "O" built by the freshmen on Skinner's Butte. The luncheon for both alumns and students Saturday was in McArthur court. Then to Hayward Field where the crowds of spectators watched the Webfoots defeat Montana.

In the evening alumni and students met again in McArthur Court—this time for the Homecoming dance. The yellow and green programs said "Welcome Grads" and refreshments were served "bar-style."

Sunday the grads left for their homes, after their regained touch with college life —some feeling sad, thinking of the days that had slipped away, and others rejoicing that their days of hard study were over.

HIGH SCHOOL CONFERENCE

OREGON high school students had a real glimpse of college life when they held their annual high school conference on the University of Oregon campus January 11 and 12. A joint assembly with the university students Friday morning was the opening event. This was followed by group meetings at which the boys and girls discussed the problems their high schools had encountered.

College, in its lighter moments, was shown the students Friday evening. At six o'clock a large banquet was held in the new men's dormitory for the delegates, at which President Arnold Bennett Hall was the main speaker. Later in the evening the boys and girls were special guests at the Oregon-Gonzaga basketball game at McArthur Court, and from there went to the Woman's building, where "College Night" was being held. Here campus talent entertained the visitors with songs, stunts, and the latest jazz. Saturday morning a style show was given for the girls' league delegates and the various groups held election of officers.

Barney Cameron, of Salem high school, was elected president of the Oregon Association of Student Body Officers; John Finley of Grant high school, Portland, vice-president; Helen Hall, The Dalles high school, secretary; and Ralph Rawie, Corvallis high school, treasurer.

Dudley McClure, of Benson Polytechnic in Portland, was chosen head of the press association. Dick Gobel, of Grant high, is vice-president, and Julia Creech, of Salem high, is secretary. Girls' League officers selected were Lucille Gable, Washington high in Portland, president, and Adrienne Jensen, of Lincoln high, secretary.

MOTHERS' WEEK-END

A CAMPUS observance of Mother's Day was combined last spring with the annual Junior Week-end celebration, May 11-13. It was an unusually busy week-end of entertainment, and many mothers of Oregon students were on the campus to enjoy it. Their registration began Friday morning at the Administration building and continued that afternoon following the annual junior week-end luncheon on the lawns of the campus at which they were guests. That evening many mothers thrilled for the first time at the fairy-land floats of the canoe fete—the "Phantom Fete."

Saturday was more especially set aside for the mothers with the formal tea in the afternoon in the Woman's building one of the prettiest campus social events of the year. Many also enjoyed the Junior Prom Saturday night in McArthur Court, which carried those who attended into the lands of the Orient with its grotesque Chinese decorative figures.

Oregon mothers were honored on Sunday by a late afternoon vesper service in the Music building, following the church services and the many special dinners planned for them.

ANNUAL DADS' DAY

Left to right: Slusher, Hynd, Winter, chairman, Patterson, Milligan, McKenna

OREGON DADS were guests of the campus for their second annual Dads' Day, October 6. To encourage their Webfoot sons, who were battling against Stanford that day, the dads invented some new yells, choose yell kings, and with megaphones for all, showed the Oregon rooters a real fighting spirit. One of their favorites was:

We're your block,
You're our chip,
To it kid,
Let 'er RIP.

Early Saturday morning the dads registered at Johnson hall where they attended a general meeting of the group. After luncheon they witnessed the display of Oregon spirit at the pep rally in McArthur Court, and then went on to the game.

Following the reception in Alumni hall given them by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the university, they attended the banquet in the men's dormitory with their sons and daughters. Dr. Hall presided as toastmaster, and the speakers included I. L. Patterson, governor of Oregon; Mayor George L. Baker, of Portland, and F. W. Richardson, former governor of California.

Bruce Dennis, of Klamath Falls, heads the Oregon Dads for this year, and Frank Andrews, of Portland, is vice-president. Other officers elected last fall are Claude Rorer, Eugene, secretary; and Karl Onthank, Eugene, executive secretary. On the executive council are A. W. Norblad, Astoria; R. W. Price, Crater Lake; H. E. Coolidge, LaGrande; W. W. Banks, C. C. Chapman and H. C. Stevens, of Portland.

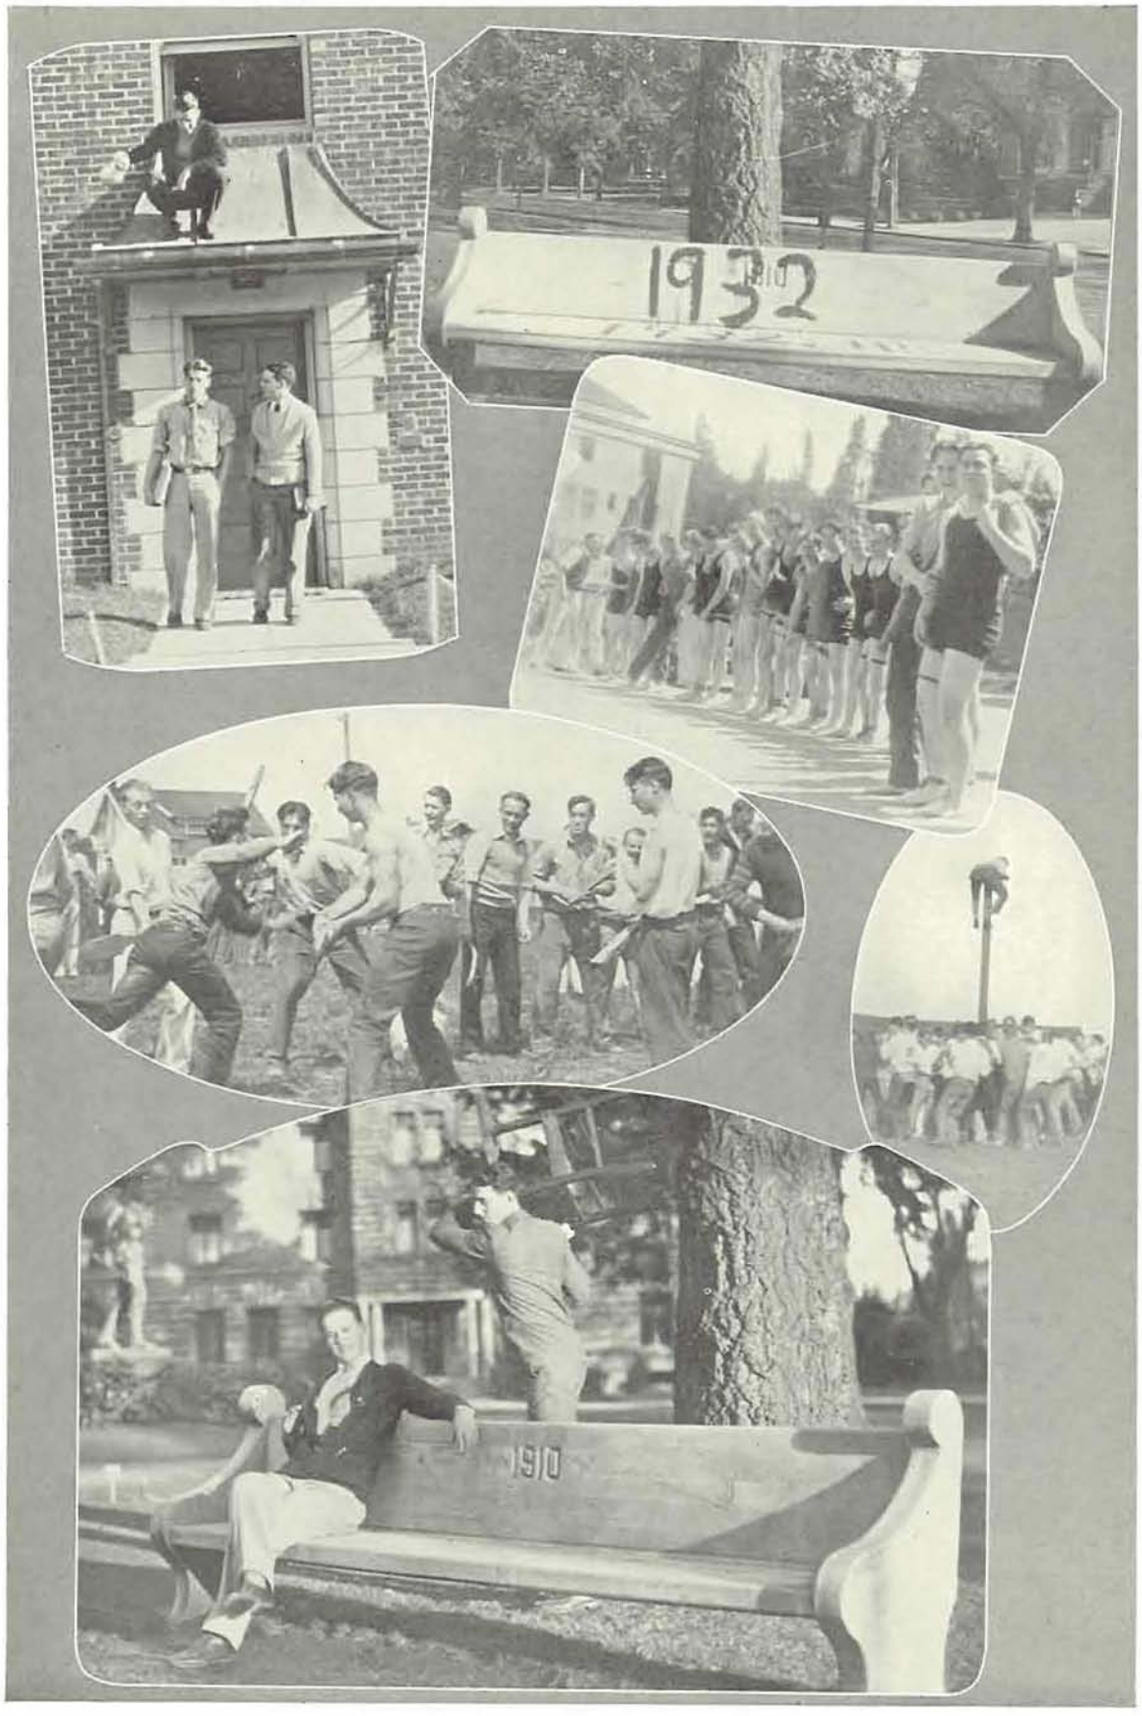
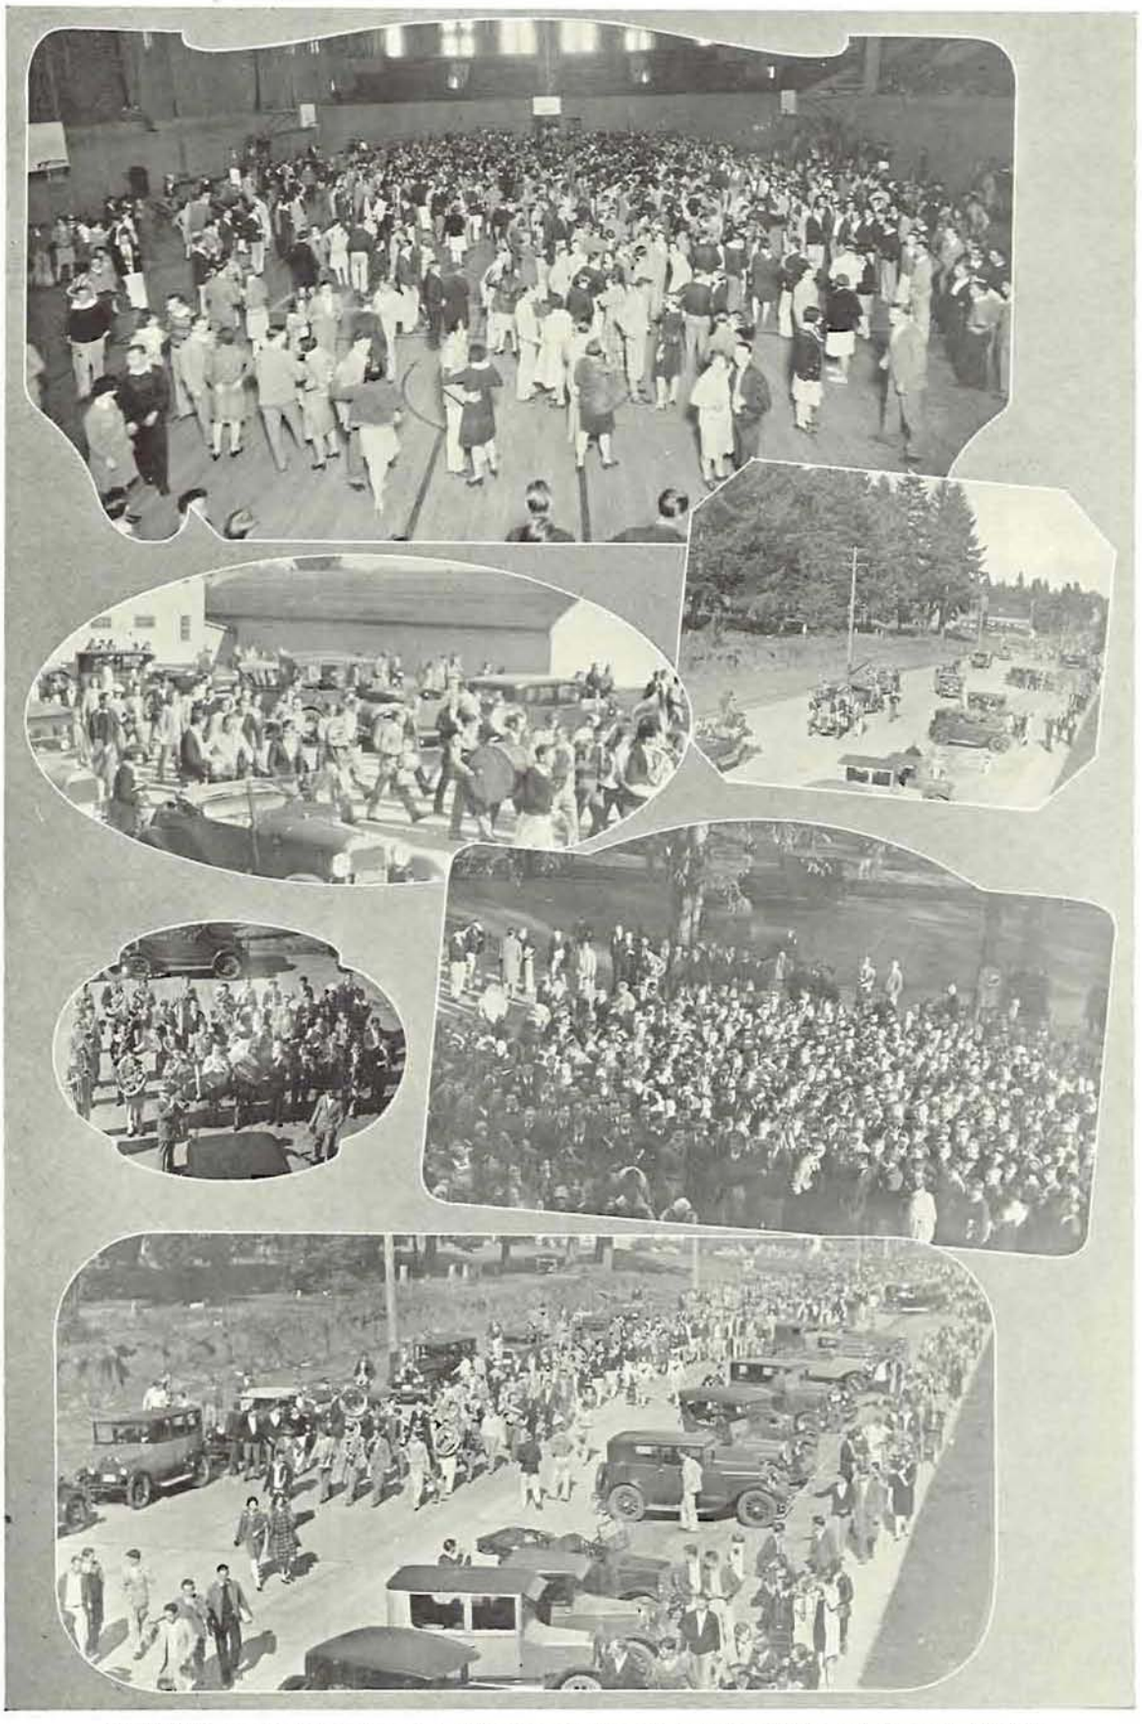
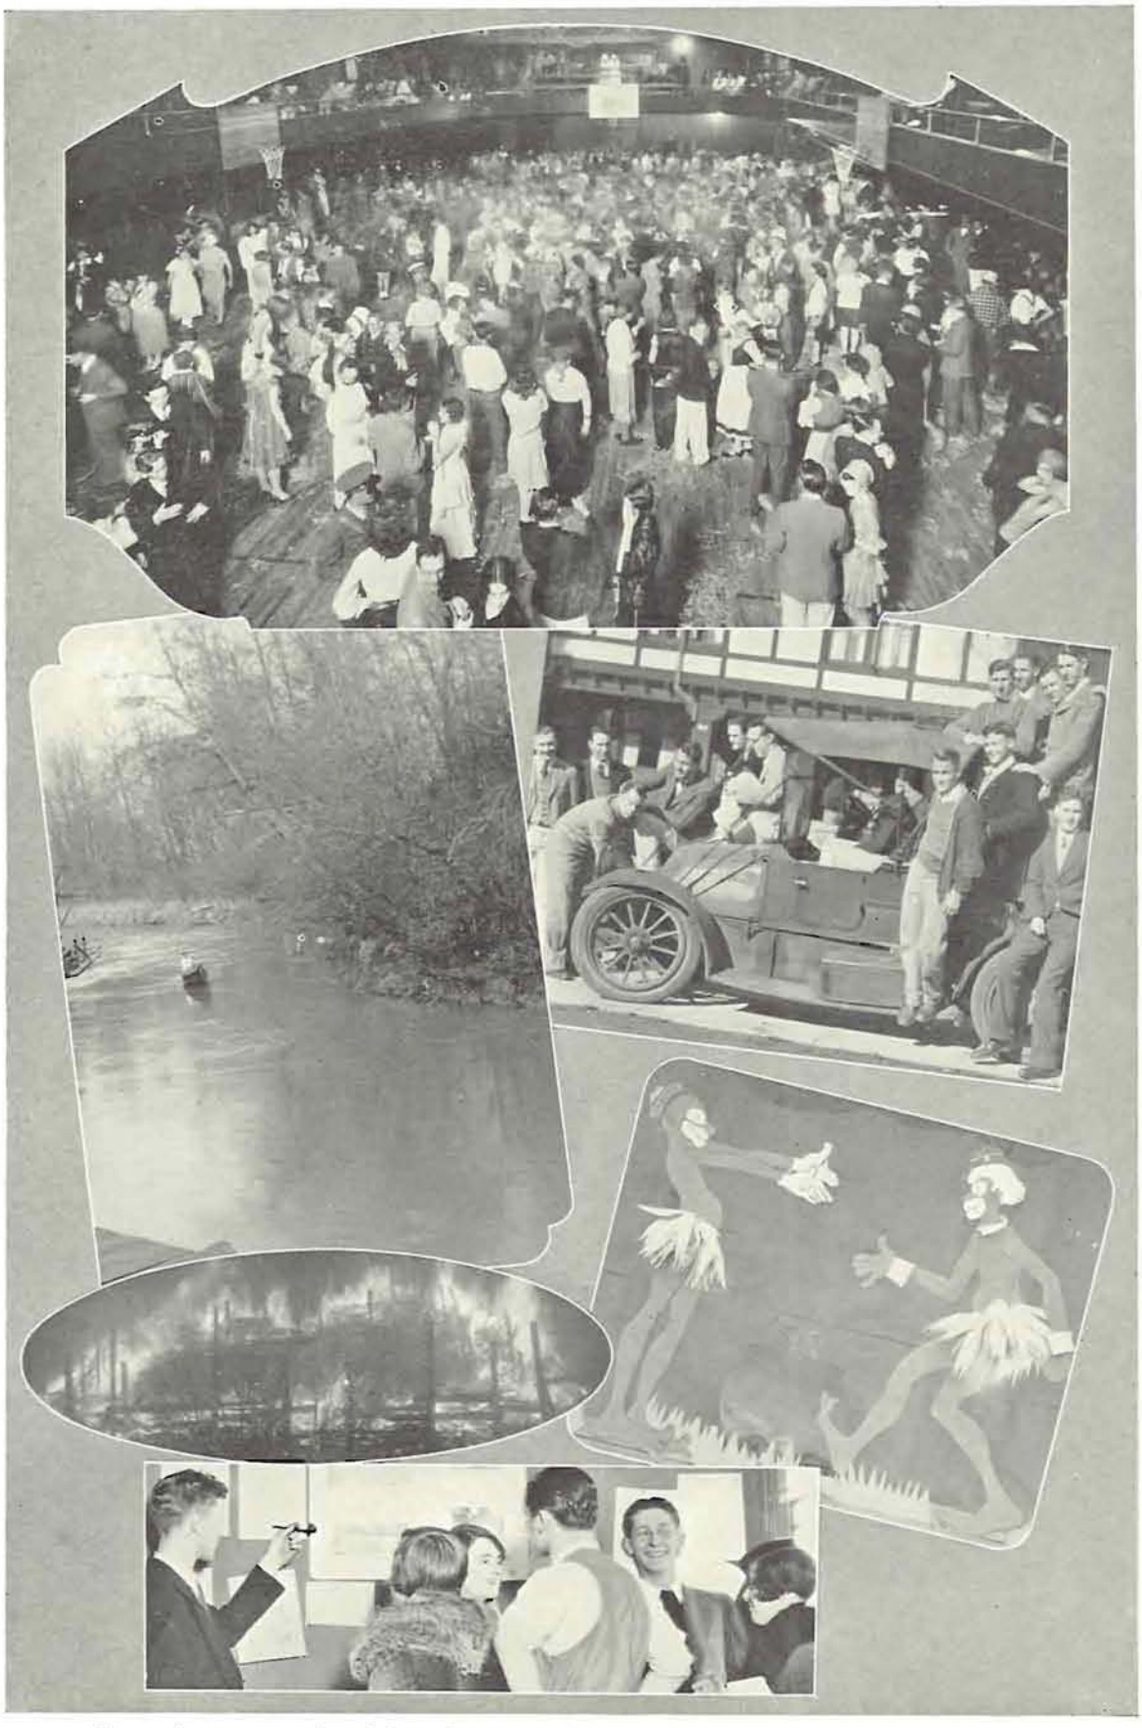
The first days at Oregon are always busy ones, for there is registration to be done, the campus to be seen, an official welcome assembly to attend, and a get-wise party to start the girls out right.



Oregon is famous for its traditions—and the freshmen for breaking them. The yearling boys furnish the campus entertainment with their parade, a "fair and square" mix with the sophomores, and the many impromptu affairs they stage.

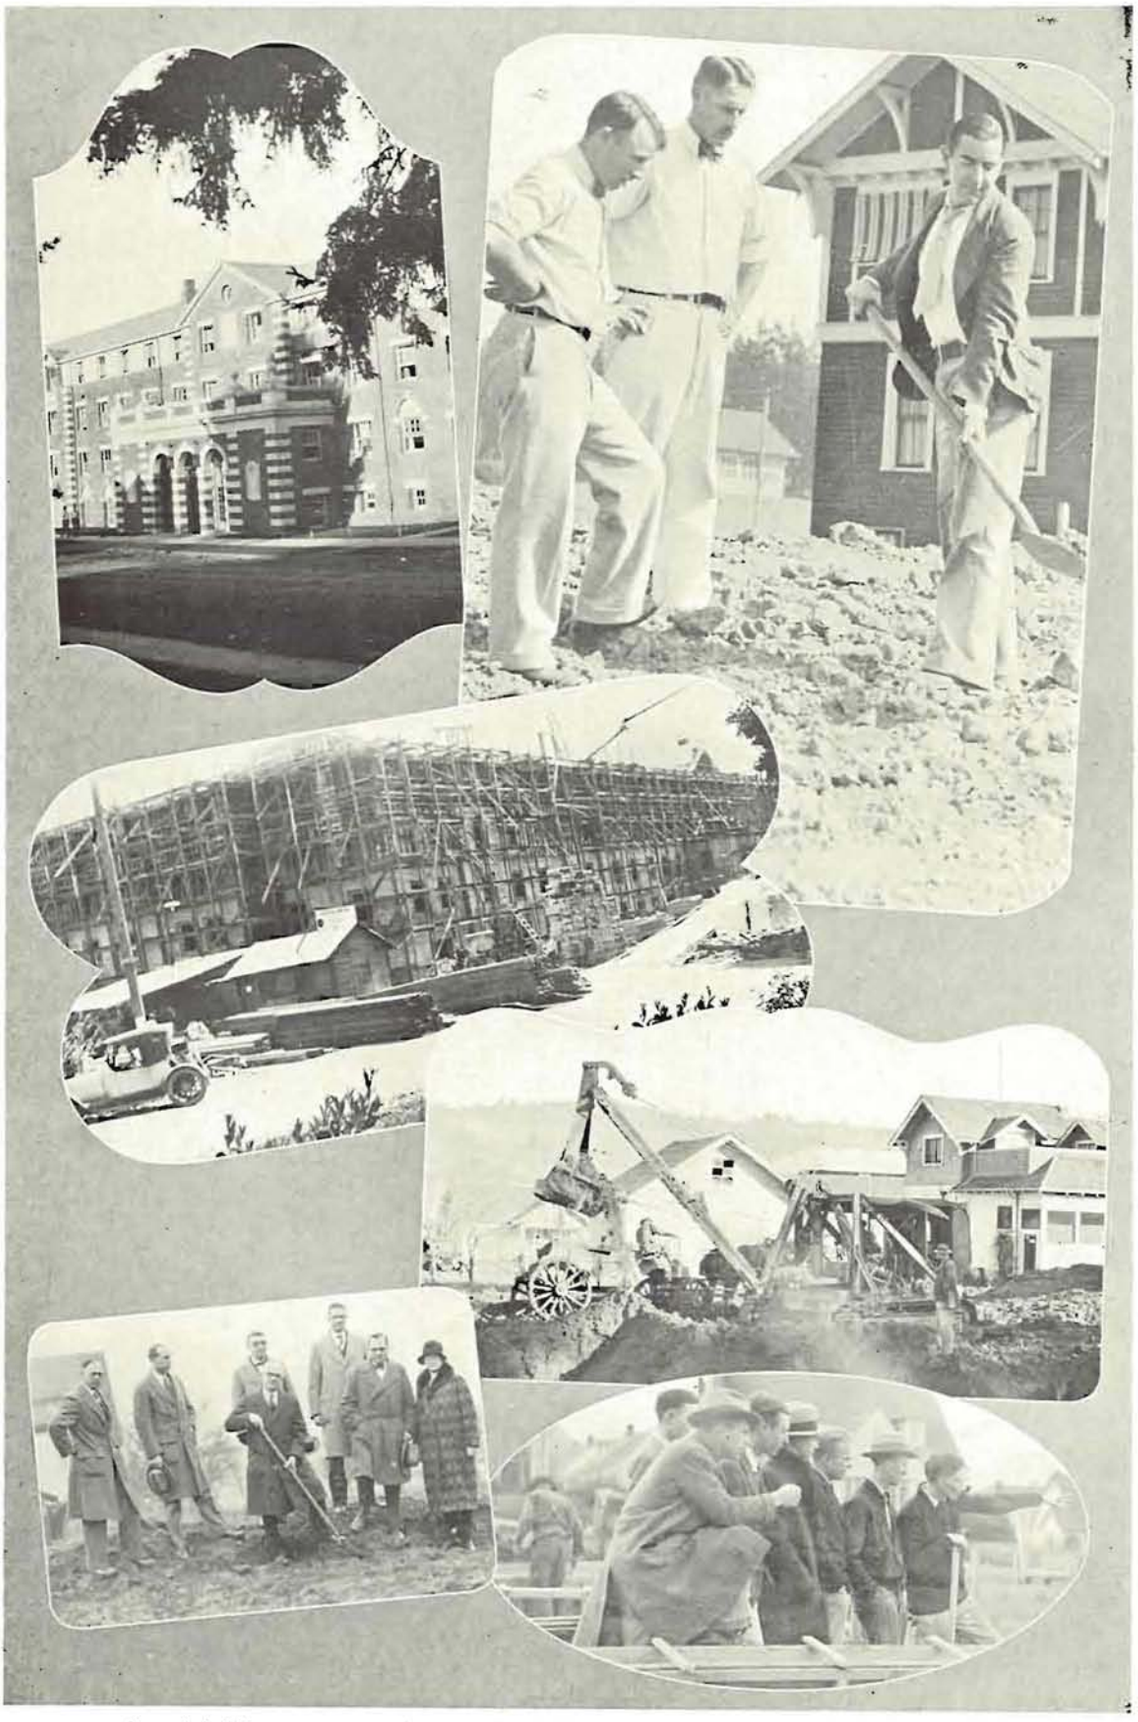


The "Old Oregon spirit" flared to new glory this year and was at its height during the football season. Victories over old rivals resulted in huge pep rallies, serpentines of cheering students, and informal dances at McArthur Court.

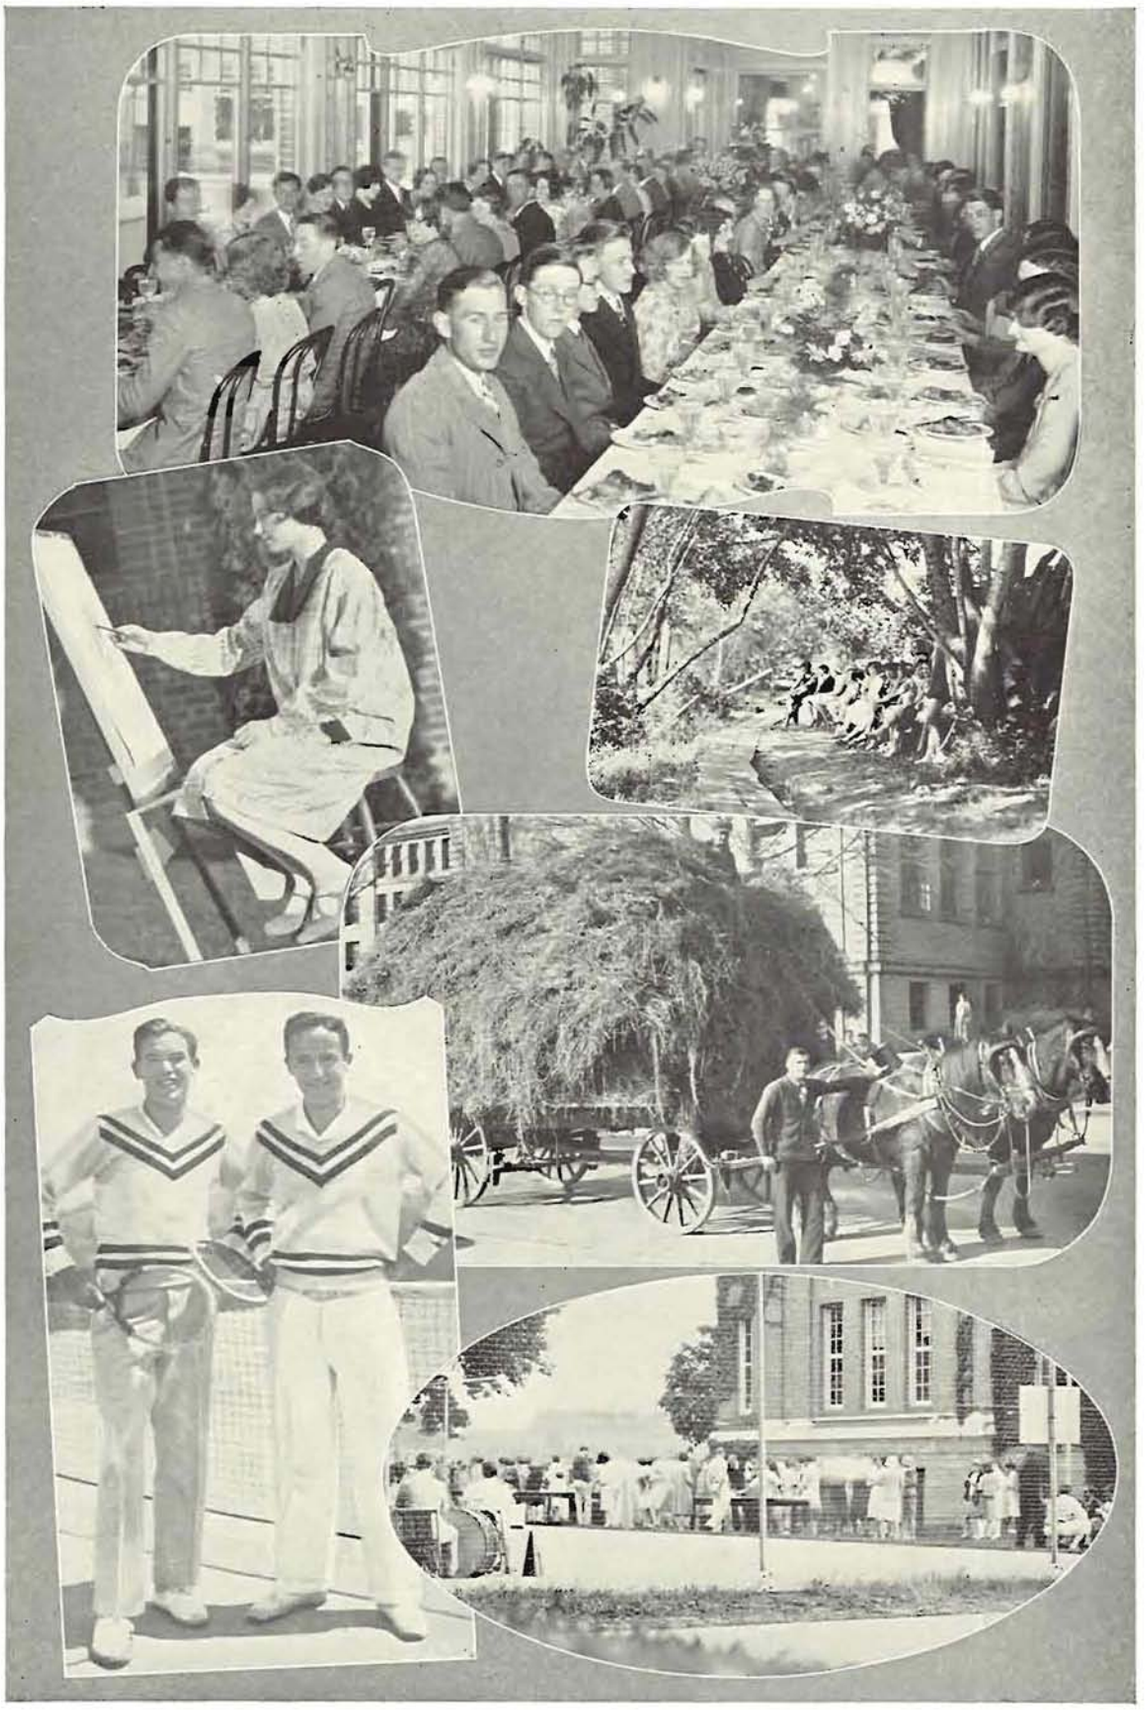


Homecoming saw many alums back on the campus. Living organizations vied in their welcome signs. The Journalism Jamboree provided entertainment for the guests on Friday night, and Saturday morning they visited old places and renewed campus acquaintanceships.

Aviation proved itself a popular sport at the University of Oregon, and both students and "Prexy" showed a weakness for sky-riding. The Sophomore Informal and Dad's Day ended fall term nicely, and Shine Day and the Oregana drive started winter term off with a bang.

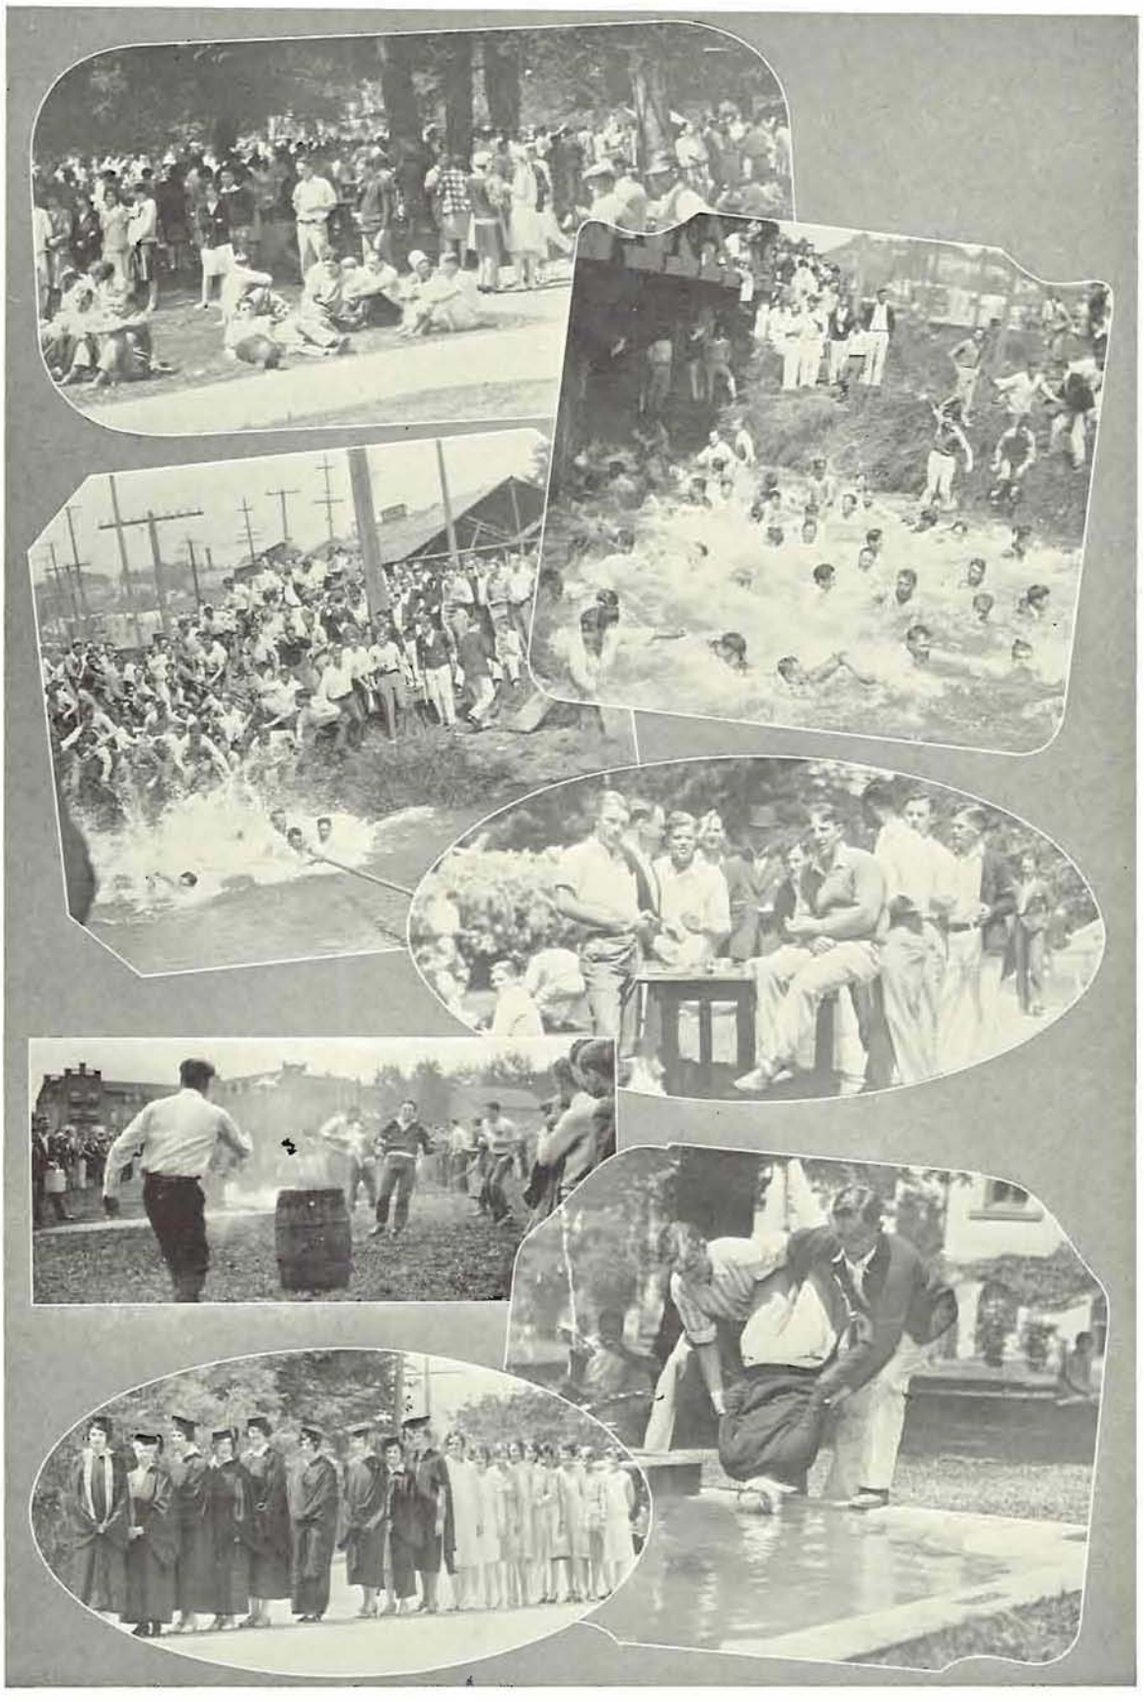


Oregon's building program was given a good send-off when construction started on the men's dormitory in the spring of 1928. By fall the structure was entirely completed. Many Greek letter organizations have also erected new homes.

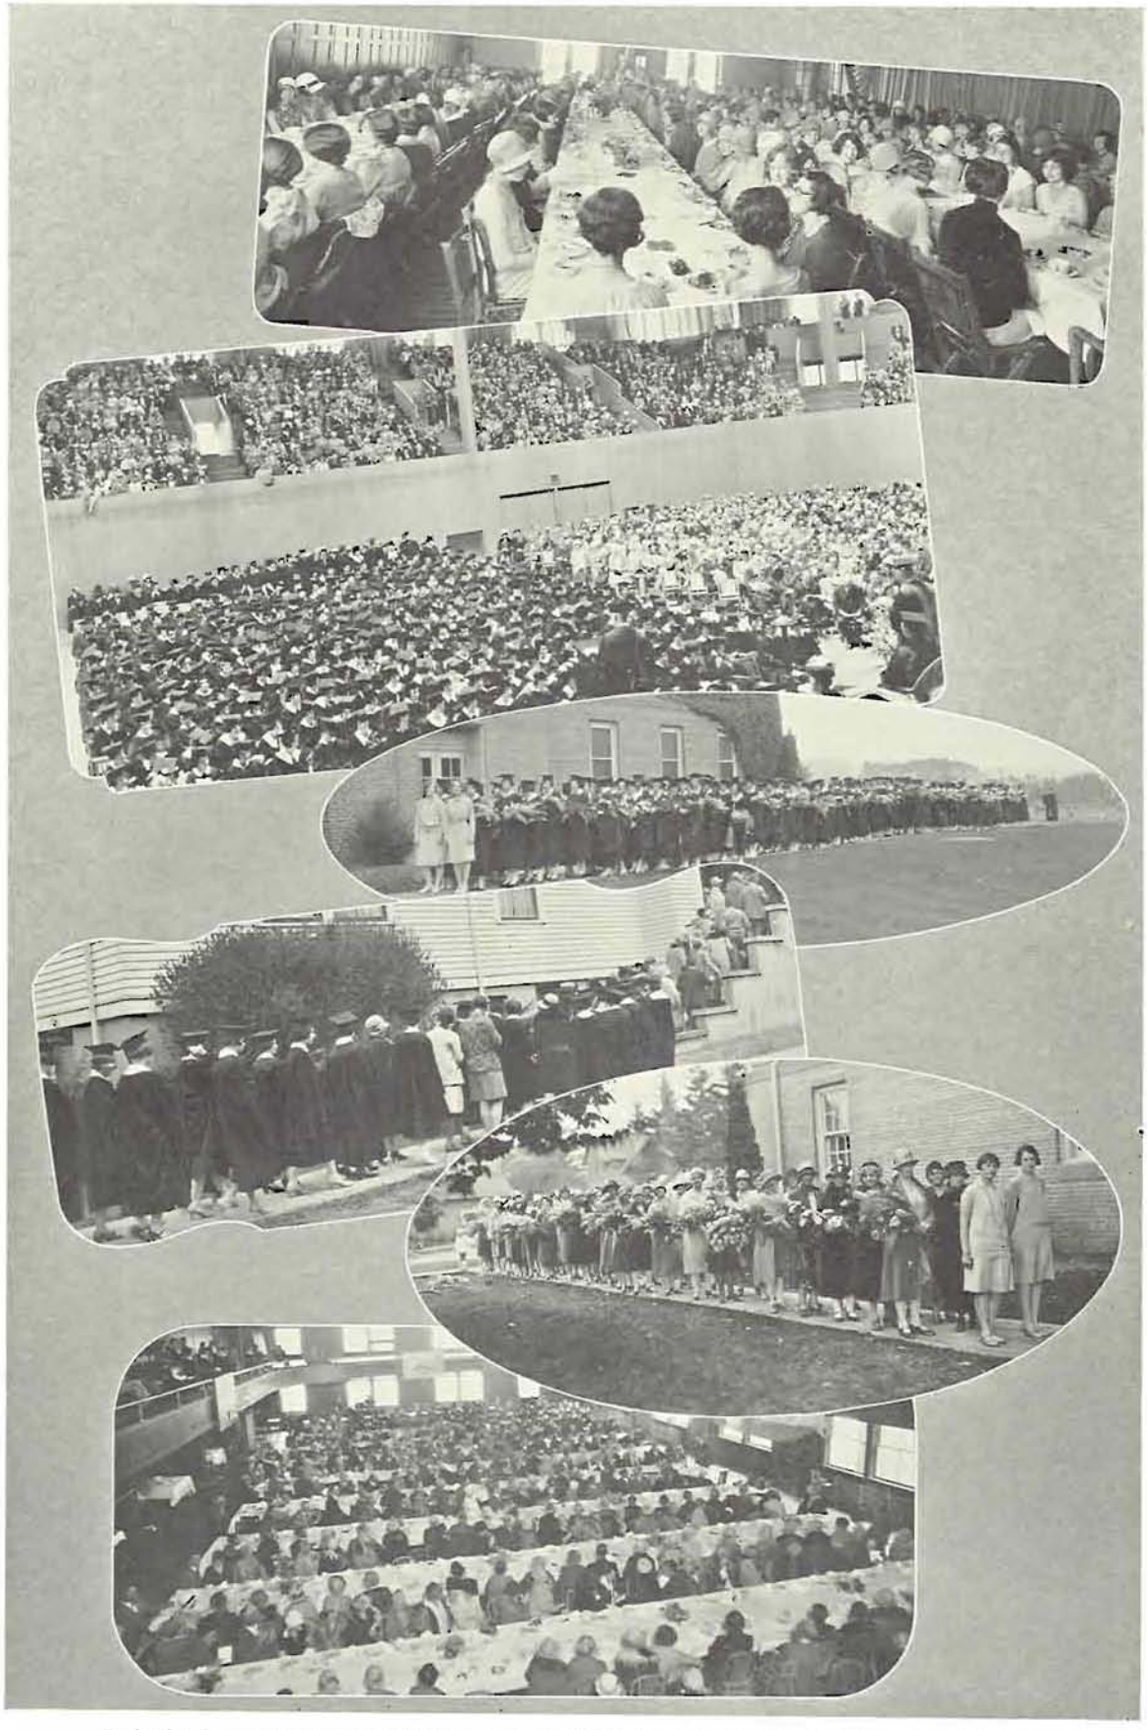


Spring term on the Oregon campus is always a wonderful time. There are strawberry festivals to attend, class picnics, banquets for the hard working, and all sorts of out-of-door sports to participate in.

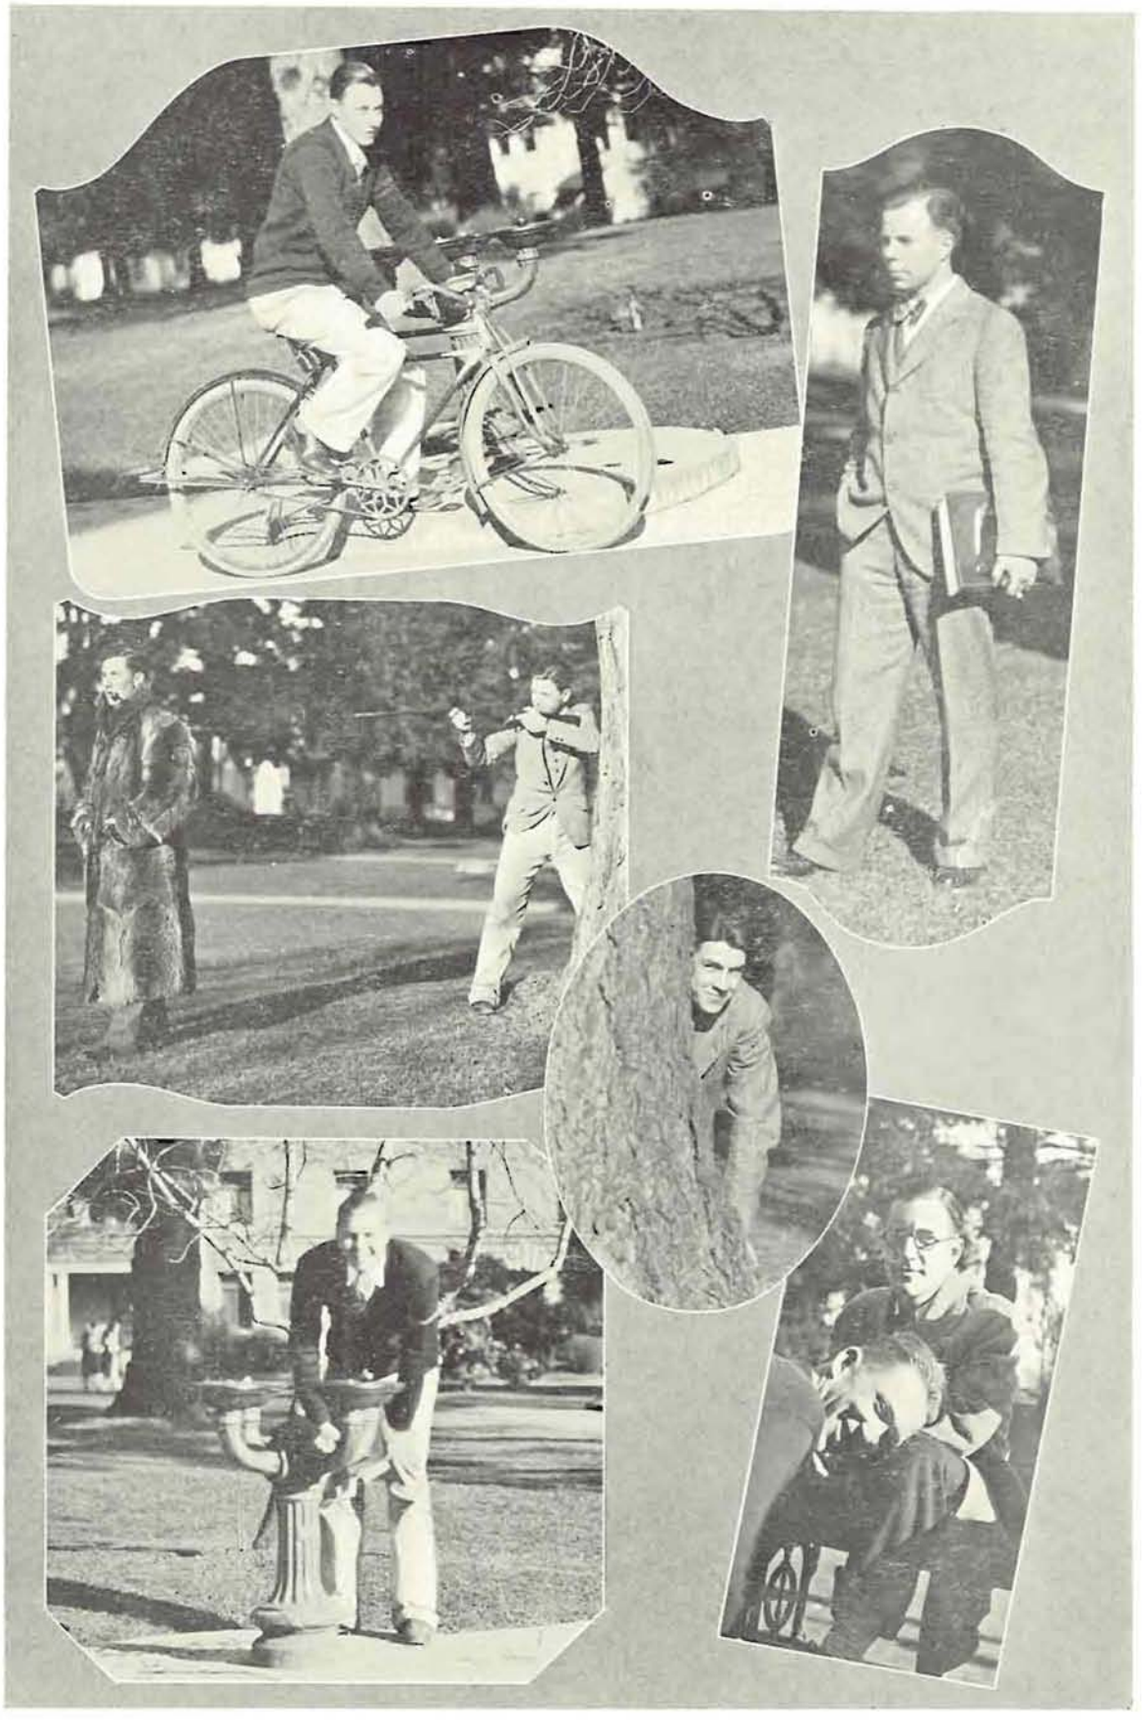
Junior Week-end is enjoyed by both students and their mothers. When the Vod-Vil is over, there is the Canoe Fete, the Campus Luncheon and the Junior Prom to attend. A special Mother's Day Tea is always given on Saturday.



The Campus Luncheon is always especially full of thrills for the Junior men and women—for there are the Mortar Board and Friar elections. Dips in the fountain and special music furnish additional entertainment for the crowd.

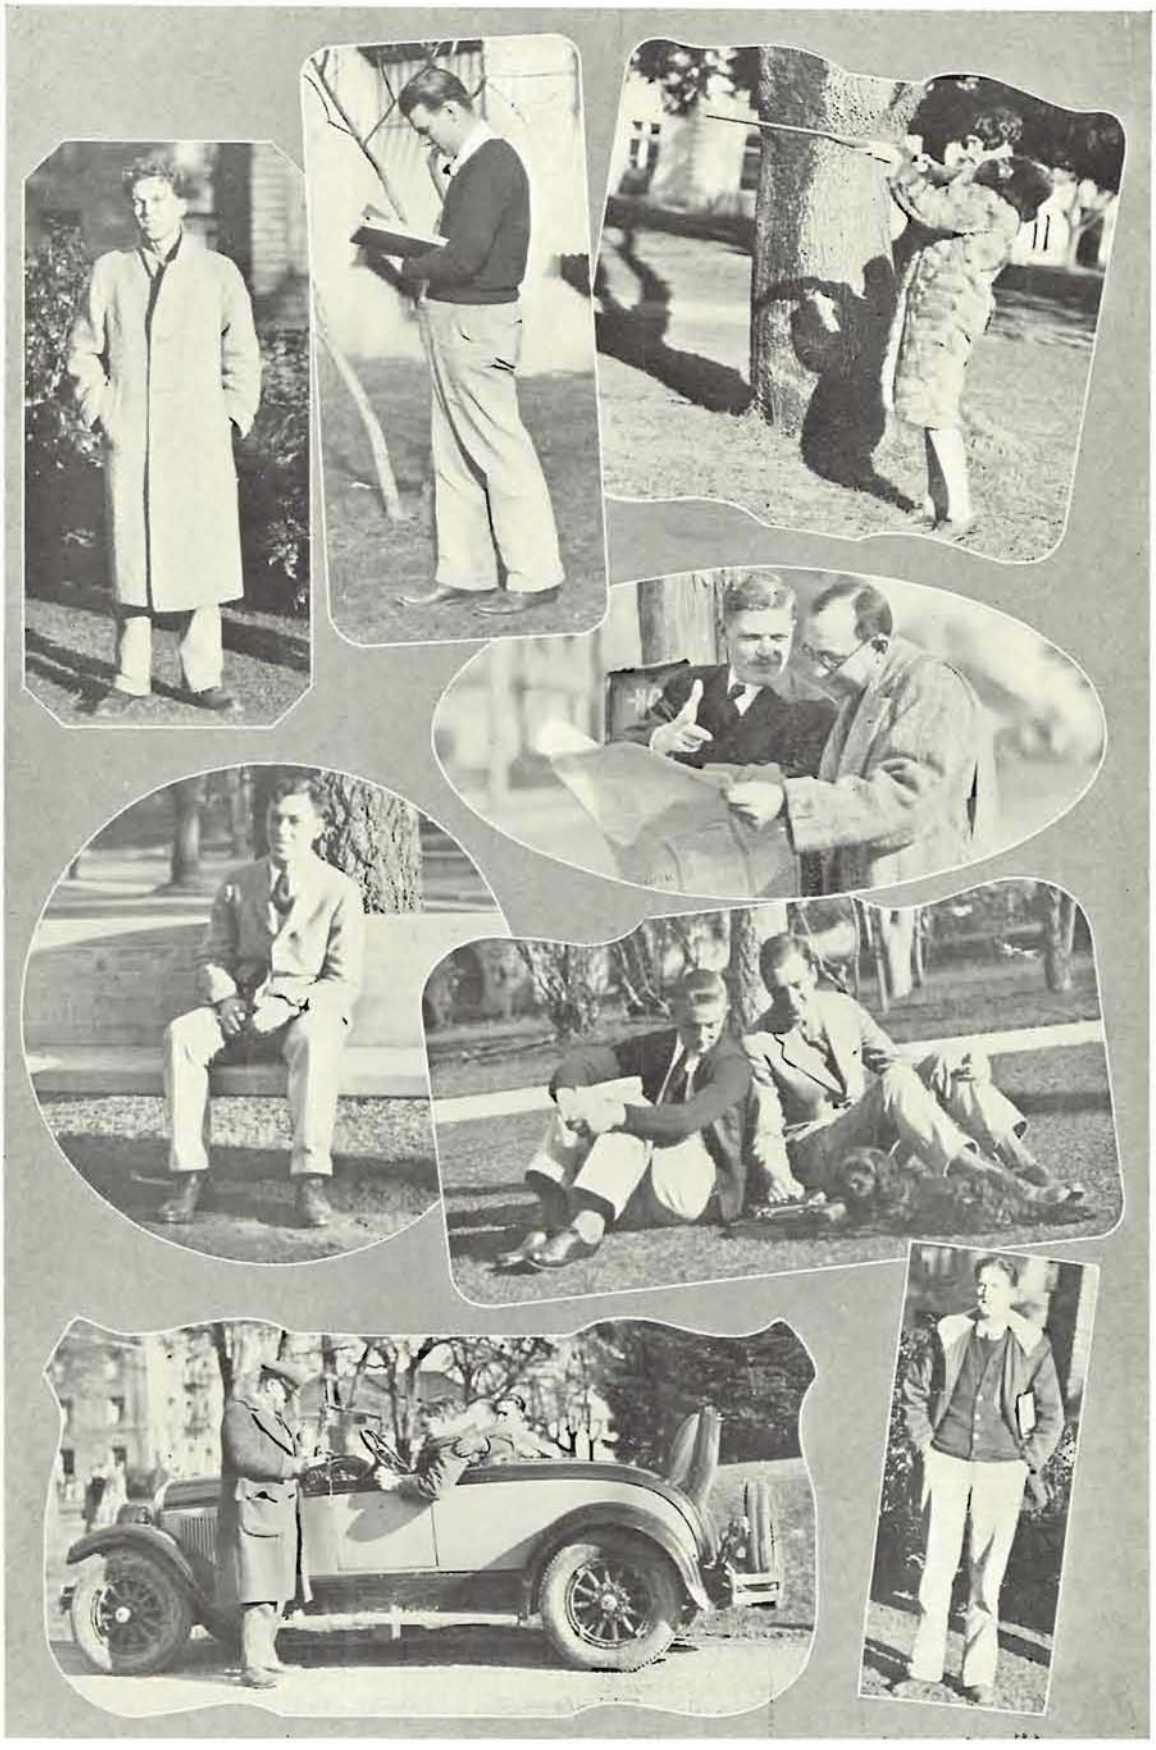


Graduation days mark the close of college life for the seniors. A luncheon for the graduates and their parents, the fern and flower procession, commencement, and a Junior-Senior breakfast for the women complete the ceremonies.

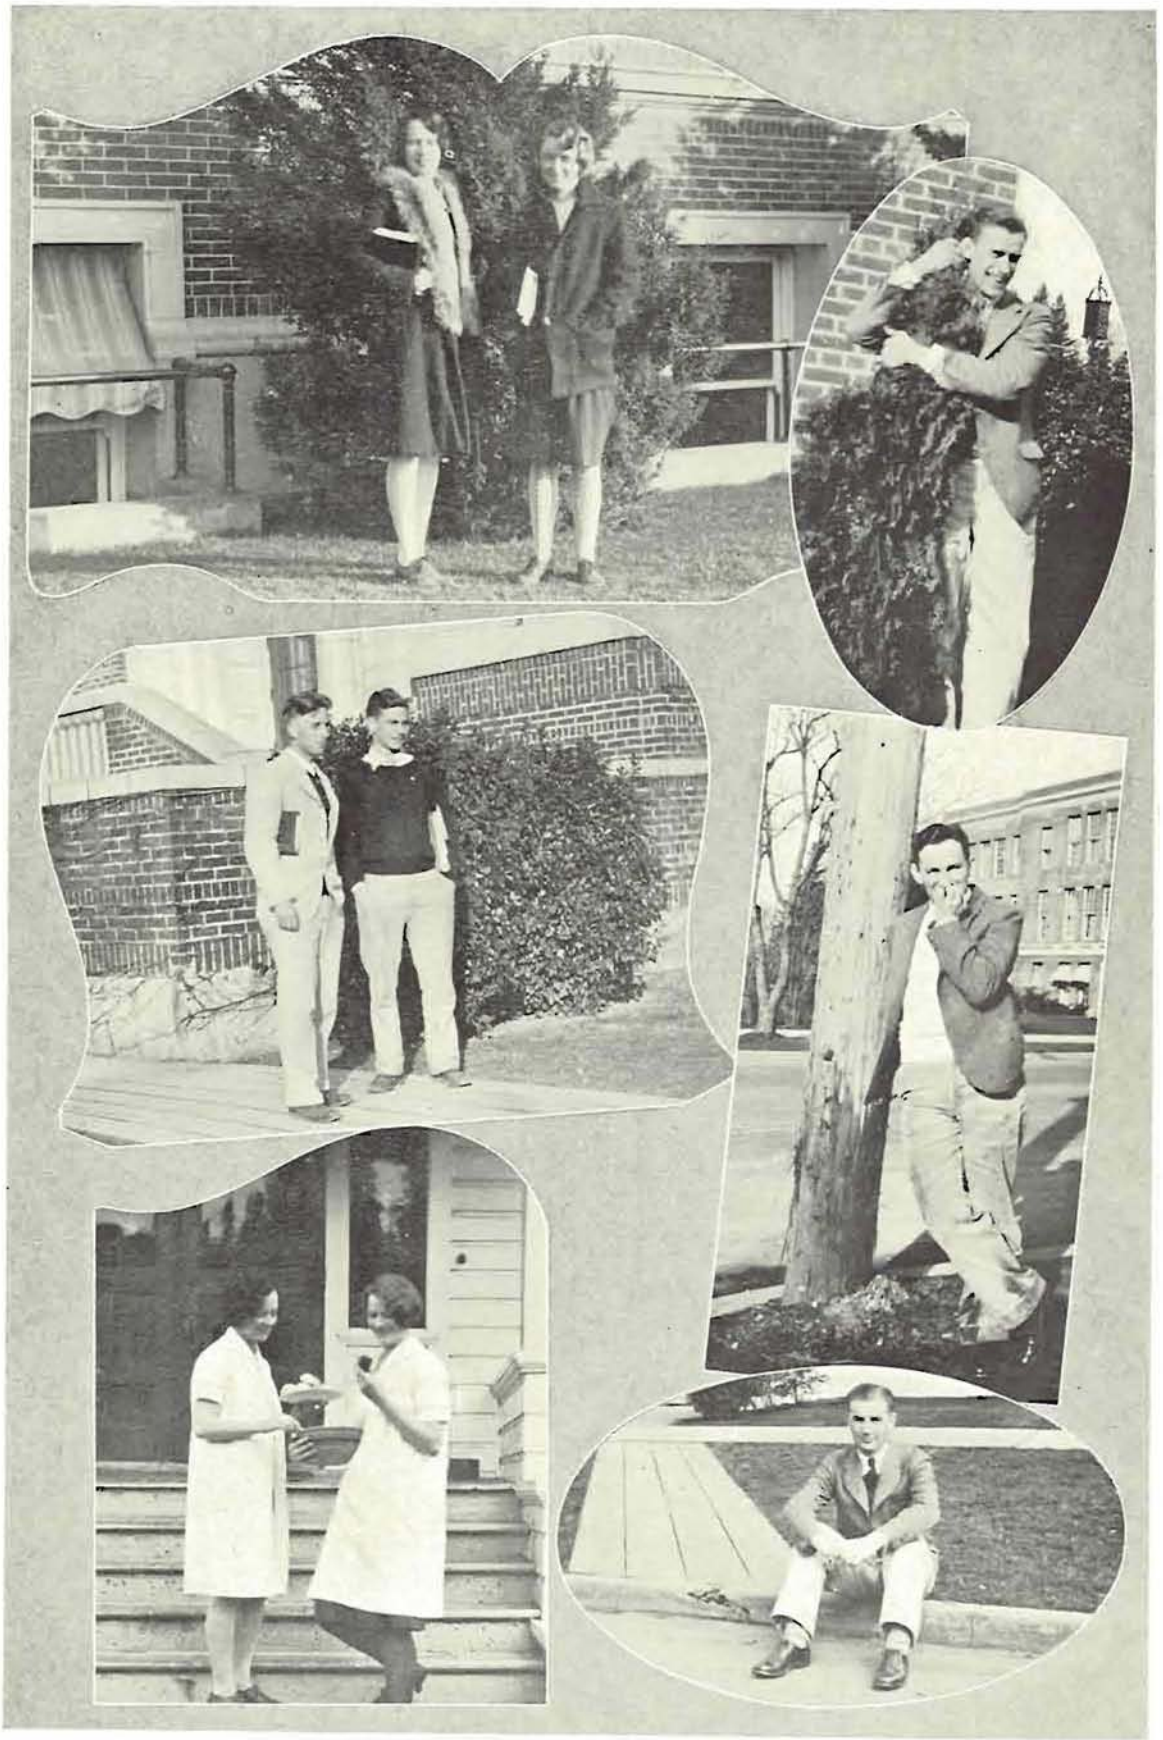


"Wild West" Johnson—Scholar Hunt—Syd Dobbin fixes the raccoon—Chuck Reed plays peek-a-boo—Bun stoops to drink—Prexy McKeown gets a shine.

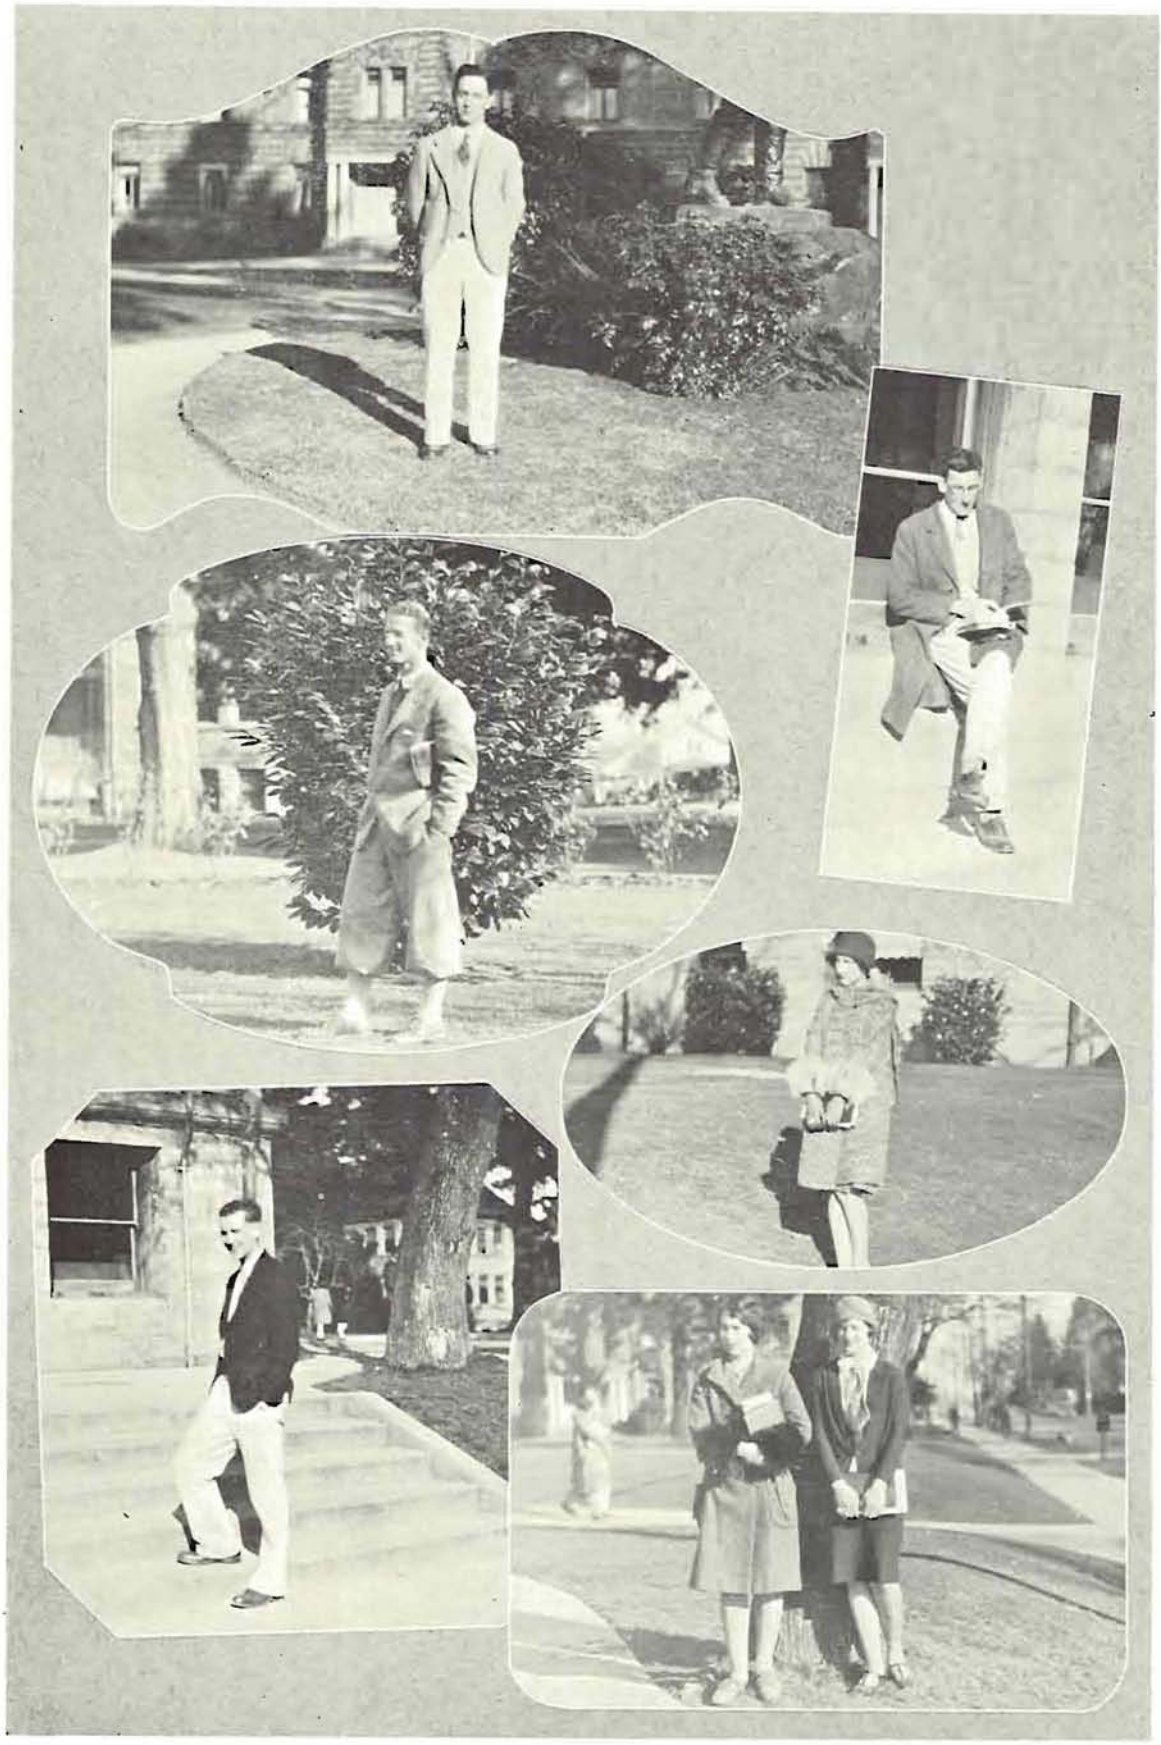
Carvel Nelson moves in—It's home for Thielen and Geyer—Dena Alm mails her letter—Bill Eddy's private probe—Dick Horn "smiles big"—Art and Elaine's tintype.



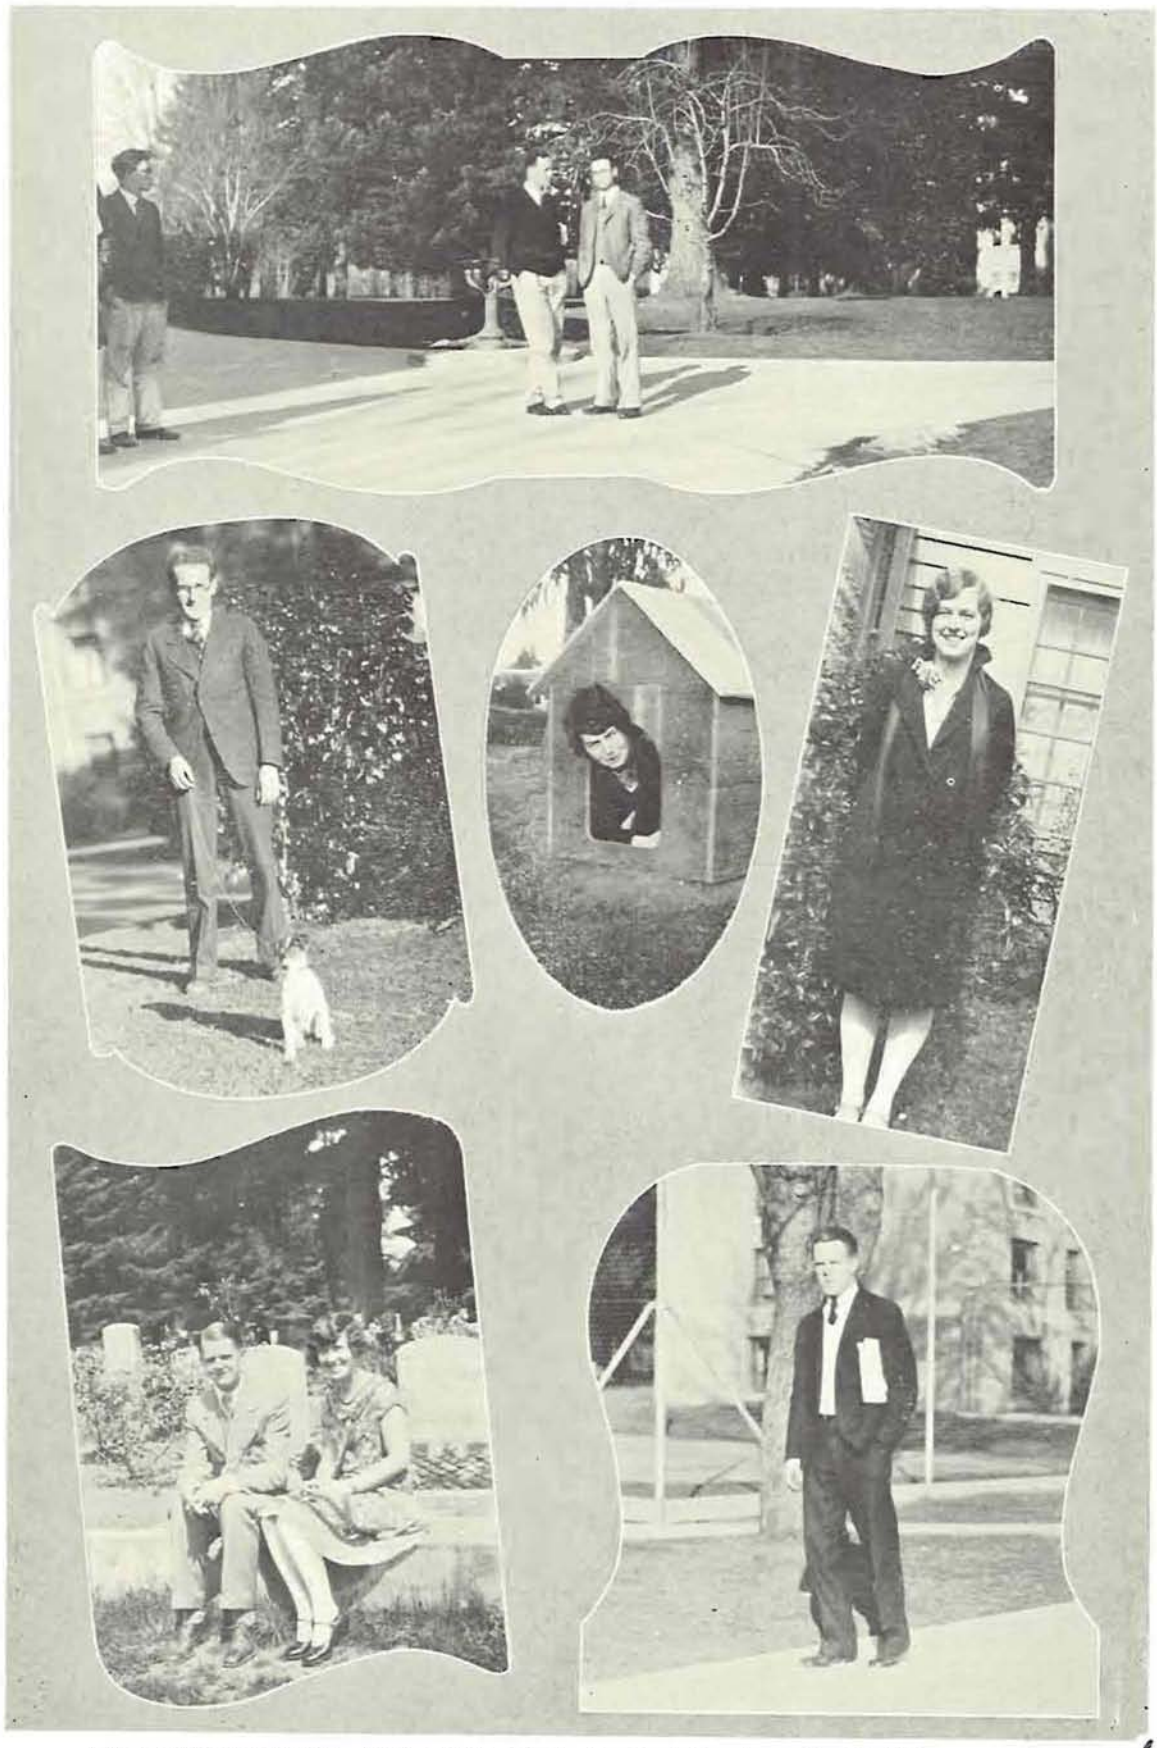
Bill Gillett "looks pretty"—Final score: Oregana 100; Emerald 0—W. E. Hempstead acting natural—Dave Epps poses—The Schade-Hynd rest cure—Coppy struts his stuff—Bill Crawford looking nonchalant



Edith Dodge and Helen Peters—New hold by Sharp—Minnaugh and Horner look 'em over—Ron Hubbs registers rage—Bea and Lou Ann in ectasy—Roy Herndon at home.



Tom Stoddard looks serious—Joe Holaday studies hard—Johnny Anderson in new spring raiment—Elsie Goddard gazes cameraward—Walter Norblad happy—Dot Baker and Marg Edmunson intent.



A Pigney-Milligan combination—"Doc" and Pete Robnett—Virginia (believe it or not)—Helen's happy as usual —T. N. T. and Dot at rest—Hagstrom ambles to class.

To An Old Photograph

I must have looked like that once long ago
Before the look of pain came to my eyes,
Before the questioning wonder left them,
Before the little wrinkles creased my cheek,
Before the brightness faded from my hair,
Before the softness of my chin grew harsh.

I must have felt like that once long ago
Before my eyes had seen the pain of life,
Before my heart had known its meager joys,
Before my body knew its agony,
Before my brain confused the worth of things,
Before my soul grew old with petty sins.

HARRIET MCLEOD.

CLASSES

CLASSES

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

Anderson Foster Hubbs

October, 1925, saw the entrance of the Class of 1929 into the world of university activities. To the somewhat bewildered Frosh it seemed a long time until they would become wise and solemn Seniors. There would be four years full of vague and intriguing wonders before their ambitions could be realized, for to have a moustache, to wear cords, and to walk about the campus with the assurance that only experience can bring, seemed the height of glory to the lowly Frosh.

The four years have passed, and those same Frosh are now Seniors. As Seniors they take pleasure in reviewing the past, in recalling the early trials and triumphs, and in taking account of their days at Oregon.

One morning the Frosh awoke to find posters glaring at them from telephone poles and other advantageous positions. Those posters proclaimed the commandments of the Frosh Bible which they had to obey. The Frosh were made to feel the warmth of the paddle, the chill of cold water, the slipperiness of mud, and the stickiness of yellow paint. By evening, the Class of 1929 had made its formal debut to the traditions of Oregon.

Frosh-Soph Mix

The class further proved its eligibility as a group worthy of Oregon by the highly successful Frosh Glee. In a flurry of cotton snowflakes, under lights that sparkled from a prismic globe, the students danced to the tune of a wonderful time.

The class officers were Arthur Anderson, president; Audrey Jensen, vice-president; Sally Hughson, secretary; Vernon McGee, treasurer, and Ray Rankin, sergeant-at-arms.

Thus the Class of 1929 looks back upon its childhood and turns to its adolescence—the Sophomore year.

As Sophomores, the class, according to tradition, adopted a distinguishing garb; this time the "Beer Suit." White jackets and trousers were worn by the men, and white jackets by the girls.

Sophomore Informal

THERE were the usual traditions to impress upon the new Frosh, and from its own experience the class was able to perform its duty—most impressively.

The class officers for the sophomore year were: Bob Foster, president; Helen Shanks, vice-president; Rose Roberts, secretary; Bill Hynd, treasurer; and Jack Jones, sergeant-at-arms.

From adolescence to conscious sophistication, and the Class of 1929 became Juniors.

During winter term, Juniors who harbored suppressed desires to be on the stage tried out for the Junior Revue of which Billy O'Bryant was in charge. People who saw the production will remember for a long time the different scenes and the musical hits. Some of the outstanding scenes were: the Night Club, with the Maker of Dreams floating in on his magic carpet; Cleopatra's Court, with Antony singing an enchanting love song; and Hades, with Madge Normille singing "I've Got Permission From Mr. Devil."

Junior Week-end was the most important event in the junior days of the Class of 1929. Festivities began with the Canoe Fete on the Mill Race. The Kollege Knights played music from the Junior Revue, and the strains of "Blue Nights," drifting across the water, bright with colored lights, lent the proper atmosphere to the Fete.

Frosh-Soph Mix

The Campus Luncheon, with the parade and pledging of Mortar Board and Friars, was held on the lawn in front of Deady. The Junior Prom came as a fitting climax to a most successful week-end.

The Class of 1929 is now closing its fourth and last year and can look with a certain pride over its past glories. There have been four years full of some work, not a little play, few disappointments, and much pleasure. Soon the class will have reached old age. Baccalaureate and Commencement will take their places among the memories of Oregon.

SENIOR BALL

Lawrence Shaw

FUTURISTIC art furnished the motif for the decorations of the Senior Ball of nineteen twenty-nine. At intervals, there appeared along the walls, hung with red and black curtains, beautiful futuristic designs of gold on green and red. At the entrance and at the opposite end of the room, great white pillars lent an atmosphere of dignity. The orchestra was on a huge dias at the back of which there was a black curtain covered with sparkling flakes that caught and reflected the light. The Senior Ball was the outstanding formal affair of the year.

MERIT AWARDS

Edith Dodge

Roy Herndon

THERE are three cups presented each year to students, one woman, and two men, whose college careers have been exceptional.

Roy Herndon was chosen to receive the Koyl Cup which is presented each year to the best all around junior man. Mr. Herndon has been outstanding in scholarship and student activities throughout his college career. He was chairman of the Canoe Fete last year, was chairman of the 1928 Homecoming, and is the senior man on the Student Council. He is a member of Scabbard and Blade, Friars, Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Kappa Psi.

The Gerlinger Cup is awarded each year to the junior woman whose merit, personality, and scholarship have been outstanding at Or egon. Edith Dodge was chosen for this honor last year. Miss Dodge is a member of Kwama, Mortar Board, Theta Sigma Phi, Phi Theta Upsilon, and Alpha Delta Pi.

Ronald Robnett

The Joseph H. Albert Cup is awarded to "that member of the senior class, who, during his college career, has shown the most progress toward the ideal in character, service and wholesome influence." Ronald Robnett won this cup last year. Mr. Robnett was senior man on the Student Council, was a member of the Varsity Debate team, and was general music manager. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Gamma Sigma, Alpha Kappa Psi, Phi Mu Alpha, and Phi Sigma Kappa.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

George Moorad
President

THE ELECTION to office of persons who are capable and who will push the year's activities through to success, is a problem which each junior class must solve before it can launch itself upon the series of important events that go to make up the third, and perhaps most active year of a college career.

The junior class of 1930 faced an especially hard task in choosing those who were to guide its destiny through the ensuing year. So many juniors had proved their ability as organizers and leaders. So many were capable and possessed stick-to-it-iveness.

George Moorad of Portland, was elected as junior class president. He had shown competence in handling committee work during his freshman and sophomore years, and will do much toward making the class' junior year a success.

As vice-president, the class chose Murdina Medler of Wasco. Murdina was active in freshman affairs, and as a sophomore served on the Informal committee.

Augusta Gerlinger of Dallas, was elected as secretary. During her sophomore year, she displayed more than ordinary ability as a manager of sophomore tennis.

The position of treasurer for the class fell the lot of Wallace Giles of Portland. An athlete was elected sergeant-at-arms, Harry Wood of Portland, who has held a berth on both freshman and varsity football squads.

HISTORY OF JUNIOR CLASS

The Campus Luncheon

THEY CAME . . the class of 1930 . . then freshmen . . now juniors . . Laughed joyously . . entered the new world . . wondered at its vastness . . loved unaccustomed independence . . sobered . . toiled.

The Frosh Glee unprecedented. The Woman's building changed overnight . . displaying a work of marvelous creative imagination. A vast medieval castle hall . . towering . . massive colonnade . . cold stone masonry warmed by soft glowing lights . . narrowed windows . . on the walls shining armor . . glistening swords . . blazoned shields. Richness . . lavishness everywhere . . and music throbbing syncopation.

Outstanding again as sophomores. They introduced the "Square Mix" . . alleviated harsh hazing . . yet upheld tradition. As class insignia they introduced "moleskins."

The Sophomore Informal . . sophisticated . . facetious. A Chinese motif . . monstrous dragons . . greenish-gold . . fiery-mouthed. Chinese idols . . cruel . . severe . . impressive in the half darkness. Smooth floor . . feet dancing rhythmically . . moaning drone of saxophone . . pom . . pom-pom . . pom . . of drums.

Juniors now . . after long hours of study . . minutes of joyous laughter . . moments of triumph . . perhaps.

The class of 1930 upholds its reputation . . progressiveness . . originality . . achieved success. The traditional Junior Shine Day . . Junior Week-end . . a brilliant vodvil . . the Junior Prom . . with the intoxicating gayety of a young crowd . . the canoe fete . . sparkling beauty. The Campus luncheon . . Mothers' Day . . the week-end crowded with colorful events. Innovated a new style of class section in the Oregana.

Another year will pass . . the class of 1930 . . kindhearted juniors . . are seniors . . slightly serious . . wondering . . a little . . for graduation is near . . and glancing from this "new world" . . now old . . they glimpse . . a vaster . . older world. .

JUNIOR SHINE DAY

Eugene Laird
General Chairman

TODAY they are gypsies . . just the co-ed juniors in disguise . . the men of the class of 1930 . . bootblacks.

Jingling jangling tambourines . . simple dresses . . gaudy hue . . flashing eyes and smiling lips . . fluttering scarfs of red on yellow . . gold on green. Ear-rings too . . queer wrought bracelets.

"Cross my palm . . just a dime . . a junior shine."

Bootblacks laboring happily . . smearing blackening . . wielding brush . . vying for a prize.

Eugene Laird, chairman of Junior Shine day, appointed a large group to help make the day a success. Eleanor Flanagan, in charge of ticket sales, appointed twenty-four girls as ticket sellers.

Proceeds from Junior Shine day, which amounted to $113.00, were contributed towards the purchase of a radio for the University Infirmary.

Bill Barry, in charge of stands, appointed sixteen men as heads of stands, and forty-eight under them as bootblacks. The heads of stands were: Richard Horn, Kenton Hamaker, Melvin Parker, Donald Speer, Carl Nelson, Jack Paige, Harry Wood, Harvey Wright, John Allen, Phil Smith, George Stadelman, Arlen McCarty, Keith Hall, Arthur Stendal, John Anderson, and Joseph Erkenbrecher.

JUNIOR WEEK-END

Sid Dobbin
General Chairman

A HISTORY making event for the junior class is Junior Week-end. Upon its degree of success, is based the achievement rating of the class.

Sid Dobbin of Union, general chairman of the Junior Week-end directorate, appointed members of the directorate early this year in order that plans could be given carefuly consideration, and a successful Junior Week-End program be more nearly assured. As assistant chairman Sid chose Walter Norblad of Astoria, who has been especially active in all branches of campus work. Eleanor Flanagan of Marshfield, was appointed secretary. She was an officer of the freshman class and has served on many committees.

Plans for Campus Day were left to James Sharp, of Hammond, Indiana. Eldress Judd of Roseburg, was appointed chairman of a committee in charge of the Campus Luncheon. Her ability to handle other committee work of this kind has been outstanding. Publicity was handled by Wilfred Brown of Camas Valley. Wilfred is an outstanding student in the school of journalism, and is well known around the "shack."

CANOE FETE HISTORY

A winner in 1925

THE ANNUAL Canoe Fete has not always been the gorgeous and fantastical display of floats that it is today. In fact, the first canoe fete did not in any way resemble a canoe fete as known by the class of 1930. The idea was entirely different.

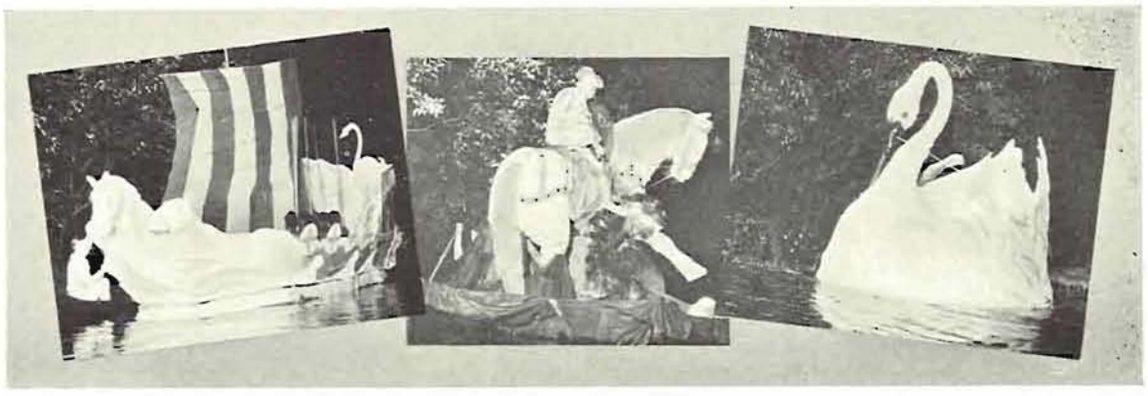
Way back in the Oregana for 1911, we find on the Junior Week-end program, the first evidence of a water carnival. May 11, 1911, the first annual Canoe Carnival and Festival included canoe races, balancing stunts, and tilting competitions. It wasn't very successful at first, and was abandoned by the Junior Week-end committee in 1915.

In 1916, a Water Fete was sponsored by the junior class. It is the first evidence of an event resembling the present day Canoe Fete. Canoes were decorated with flowers and ribbons, not the elaborate and artistically beautiful floats of today, which display so much imaginative genius, but simply canoes decked out with strings of flowers around the gunwale, and up to tiny masts erected at either end. The more elaborate floats sported light canopies supported on up-rights and covered with flowers and figures made from paper.

After 1916, the event developed into the modern Canoe Fete. Each year saw the introduction of more elaborate, intricate and artistic designs mounted on floats grown much too large to be supported by canoes alone.

From available pictures of the various Canoe Fetes, it would seem that the floats of 1919, 1926 and 1928 are outstanding as the finest produced during the history of the Canoe Fete.

ON THE OLD MILL RACE



Second Prize | First Prize | Honorable Mention

MOST productive of a spirit of rivalry in aesthetic design is the Canoe Fete, outstanding event of Junior Week end. From each float that glides slowly down the old mill race, past the judges stand, is reflected a wealth of imaginative beauty, comic originality, or reproductive skill.

"St. George and the Dragon," entered last spring by Hendricks Hall and Bachelordon, was awarded first prize. The famous painting was most skillfully reproduced in plastic sculpture.

A close second was "The Allegory of the Pearl," entry of Delta Delta Delta, and Sigma Pi Tau. Exclamations of wonder escaped the spectators as they watched this float emerge from a futuristic ice cave, float gracefully past, and fade again into the night.

A great snow white swan, "Lohengrin," entered by Alpha Delta Pi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon was awarded an honorable mention. Two other floats were awarded honorable mentions. "Lily Sprite," entry of Alpha Xi Delta, and Beta Theta Pi; and "A Chinese Junk," entry of Alpha Chi Omega, and Phi Gamma Delta. The Chinese junk furnished an exciting few moments when it slowly overturned after passing the judges' box and deposited its crew in the old mill race.

Kenton Hamaker of Klamath Falls, was appointed to the Junior Week-end directorate as chairman of the Canoe Fete Committee. He was a member of the committee in charge of the Canoe Fete last year. Kenton has been active in campus affairs, being a member of the Homecoming directorate last year, and treasurer of the sophomore class.

Kenton Hamaker
General Chairman

THE JUNIOR VODVIL

Men's Beauty Chorus of 1928 Junior Vodvil

A DIFFICULT task confronts the chairman of the Junior Vodvil Committee. On his shoulders rests responsibility for the success of the event. Not just from the standpoint of the show's popularity with the public, but also from the standpoint of success financially.

Paul Hunt of Portland, a pre-law major, was appointed as chairman of the Junior Vodvil Committee for this year. Paul has shown ability in managerial work on numerous committees. He is president of the Oregon Knights. He was a member of the directorate for the high school conference this year, and was in charge of College Night at the conference two years ago. Edwina Grebel of Portland, was appointed secretary of the committee in charge of the production.

The class of 1930 decided that the Junior Vodvil this year was to be in the form of a musical comedy. Manuscripts were called for, and "Oh Dear," submitted by Donald Johnston and Boone Hendricks, was selected by the committee as the main plot for the production. The selection of a manuscript was difficult, for all of those submitted to the committee had at least one "big" feature.

Student written, student cast; managed and directed by the class of 1930, "Oh Dear" was a big hit from start to finish. It was by far the best type of entertainment for a campus production. It left open to the directors a large field of campus talent. The type of talent that could be readily adapted to the necessary roles.

Madge Normile of San Diego, California, famous on the campus for her "blues singing," and an outstanding feature of the Junior Vodvil of previous years, was again a star in this year's musical comedy. Madge played for her own class this year, being a member of the class of 1930.

Paul Hunt
Chairman

THE JUNIOR PROM

The Sophomore Informal of the class of 1930

LAST of the varied and numerous events which go to make up Junior Week-end, comes the Junior Prom. It is the last of the big campus dances. Not because it is unimportant, is it held back until the end, but because it is so very important. The last fling of the Junior class as Juniors.

The last fling must be a big one. It must leave memories. Of a year drawing to a successful close. A Junior Week-end that approached unprecedented elaborateness. So, the Junior Prom is held back until—the end.

When the Juniors glide over the smooth floor at the Junior Prom, they are dancing their last dance—as Juniors. When next they gather to "trip the light fantastic toe," it will be as Seniors.

Crosby Owens of Berkeley, California, was appointed by the general chairman of Junior Week-end to take charge of the Junior Prom committee. As in the selection of all members of the Junior Week-end Directorate, the choice was based on ability displayed by past achievement.

During the three years that Crosby has attended the University, he has been engaged in managerial work of various kinds. He was a member of the frosh yell staff two years ago, and a member of the sophomore picnic committee last year.

To develop plans for a Junior Prom that will uphold the high standard set by the class of 1930 for originality in its social events, is not an easy task. The Frosh Glee sponsored by the class of 1930 was unprecedented. The reproduction of a great medieval castle hall was an enormous task, elaborately achieved. The Sophomore Informal is remembered for its unique Chinese decorations, great red dragons on a black background, and semi-darkness to produce an air of mystery.

Crosby Owens
Chairman

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

Francis Hill
President

FROM the unique place which the freshman class holds, the transition in becoming sophomores is either pleasant or disillusioning. As an integral part of the University, members of the sophomore class must compete, not only among themselves as is the case of first year students, but also with persons of greater experience in the junior and senior classes.

This year's sophomore class has been unusually fruitful. From its number came several varsity football players. Besides placing on the football team, members of the class of '31 are also found on the swimming and other athletic teams of the school.

The representative organizations of the sophomore class, Kwama, for women, and Oregon Knight, for men, have members who have served on committees and done good work, not only in the organizations themselves, but throughout the school.

During fall term, the sophomores entertained the University at the annual informal. The motif for the decorations at this unusually fine dance was Egyptian. Huge columns of hieroglyphics and sun-scorched pyramids of stone very appropriately carried out the idea.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS

AGAIN a "largest freshman class" entered the complicated channels of university life, carefully guarded by sophomores and upper classmen. In the Greek living organizations there is always an orgy of house duties, personal favors, pre-initiations and initiations and, on the campus, such traditional happenings as the Frosh-Soph Mix, the flaming "O" at Homecoming, library steps and the Frosh Glee during the winter term.

The first year at college—a whirl of customs to which the entering freshman must get oriented rapidly. The traditions concerning green caps, senior bench, cords and mustaches must be learned immediately or the wayward freshman will repent the error of his ways. The freshman class is always a unit in itself, with its own sports and activities. And the rest of the University always looks hopefully forward to the time when the yearling athletes will be able to strengthen the varsity squads.

Twenty-three freshmen won letters in football in the fall, and from this number, Coach McEwan will find valuable material to build up the university team next year.

The freshman class also has good material for swimming teams. The freshman women's team made a phenomenal showing in the fall, defeating some of the teams representing higher years. On the men's team are two men who once belonged to the Olympic Club.

Thespians, composed of one freshman from each woman's living organization, has been active this year—doing time-hallowed services, serving at Women's League teas and any number of familiar tasks.

The Freshman Commission at the Bungalow, under the leadership of Lois Nelson, president, is a fitting preparation for freshmen girls who desire to continue further into Y. W. C. A. work.

Many freshmen, not actively engaged in any of the classifications so far mentioned, have served on student body and class committees, and have shown themselves worthy of representing the school they have chosen as their Alma Mater.

The Tap Dancer

The show has been dull, and the crowd's in a doze—
But the tap dancer taps out a tune with his toes
That rouses the sleeper straight up in his seat
To watch, fascinated. He's flipping his feet
In rapid succession, and slapping his soles—
He shakes like a flivver with faulty controls.
To vary the rhythm he taps on the floor,
He adds anatomical puzzles galore
That bewitch all the watchers even more.
Then, with a parting clickety-clack
He's gone—but the crowd starts clapping him back.

DRAMA

DRAMA DEPARTMENT

Mrs. O. T. Seybolt

Interesting and highly commendable work has been done by the drama department this year under the direction of Mrs. Ottilie T. Seybolt, who came to the campus during the fall term to act as head of the department. Particularly outstanding among her productions of this year was Lord Dunsany's "The Gods of the Mountain."

Mrs. Seybolt is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, and took her master's degree in English at the University of Wisconsin, and has since been a member of the faculties in Grinnell College and the Universities of Colorado and Minnesota.

She has been associated with the Greek Theater Players of the University of California under Sam Hume, and director of the Poughkeepsie community theater, Poughkeepsie, New York. During the summer of 1927 she was with the Chicago Art Theater, which is conducted on the method of the Moscow Art Theater.

Mrs. Seybolt has been instrumental in enlarging the interest in dramatics on the campus among the students by means of selecting members for some of her plays by general tryout. Students who were not majoring in dramatics or even taking dramatic work were given roles in plays on the basis of general ability. One of the most interesting results of this plan was shown in the case of the leading role in "The Gods of the Mountains," played by Thomas Simons, who was not taking classes in dramatics.

PRODUCING STAFF

Constance Roth

MUCH of the credit for the excellence of the Guild Theater productions this year goes to Constance Roth, graduate assistant in the drama department. "Connie," as she is known around the department, directs rehearsals, supervises make-up, teaches classes in dramatic interpretation, and is general assistant to Mrs. Seybolt, as well as looking after the business end of the department.

Below is shown a view of the theater workshop. Here the students design and execute all settings, and make whatever costumes are necessary, from beggar's rags to fairies' gowns. Members of the class in stage-craft constitute the workers.

The plans for sets are originated and sketched by members of the class and approved by Mrs. O. T. Seybolt and Constance Roth.

THE GODS OF THE MOUNTAIN

OUTSTANDING among the plays presented this year by the Guild Hall Players was Lord Dunsany's "The Gods of the Mountain." So popular did the production prove that three performances were given in order to accommodate the crowds who wished to see it.

The fantastical tale of six beggars who masquerade as six sacred gods made of green jade, and who make the citizens of Kongros offer them up fruit and meat and "woldry wine" is one that is peculiarly appealing to the imagination, and the actors entered into the fanciful grotesqueness of it with a great deal of conviction.

Agmar, leader of the beggars, played by Thomas W. Simons, was undoubtedly the success of the play. A compelling voice, handled with flexibility in all its modulations, and an ability to maintain his part throughout the play, made Mr. Simons' portrayal an especially praiseworthy one.

The parts of Slag, servant of Agmar, and of Oogno, the greedy, were also well played. The performance of Perry Douglas as Illanaun, and of Constance Roth, also deserve mention.

FOUR ONE-ACT PLAYS

Perry Douglas, Fletcher Udall

"THE GLITTERING GATE," by Lord Dunsany, shown above, was one of four plays produced by the Guild Hall Players at the opening of the dramatic season, November 21 and 22. Two separate casts presented the plays, one cast playing Wednesday evening, and the other playing Thursday evening.

"The Glittering Gate" shows two thugs, both of whom have died, trying to force the gate of heaven, and finding only stars and a vast void facing them when they succeed. Milton George and Perry Douglas evoked praise as the two burglars.

In "Will-O-the-Wisp," an Irish play of great strangeness and mysticism, Grace Gardner as the poet's wife, and Mary Lou Dutton as the sprite-like creature who took her revenge on the poet's wife, both did excellent acting.

"Lone-some Like," by Harold Brighouse, a character study with a wistful appeal to the emotions, relates the story of an old woman destined for the workhouse, but who is saved from going there when a half-wit boy asks her to become his mother. Glenn Potts as Sam Horrocks, Joy Ingalls as the old woman and Katherine Talbott as Emma Brierly executed their parts particularly well.

A humorous satire on the vanity of human beings, when told they have dramatic talent and should be on the stage, was set forth in "The Flattering Word," by Doris F. Halman. Edna Assenheimer and Diana Deininger as Mrs. Jooker, Ed Merges and Frank Jackson as the actor, and Milton George as the minister, all called forth applause.

CRAIG'S WIFE

Graham, Douglas, Allen, Andre, Rennie, Merges, Dennis, Udall, Beakley, Edmonds

SHE MARRIED Walter Craig in order that she might have a house—did Craig's wife. That house was never a home; it was far too immaculate and cold for that under her management. She dominated every move of her husband's and alienated him from his friends. She was supremely selfish and calculating.

Such was the woman portrayed in George Kelly's play, "Craig's Wife," presented by the Guild Hall Players on February 28 and March 1. Helen Allen played the part of Mrs. Craig on the first night with much skill. Grace Gardner had the role next evening, and performed it with subtlety and poise.

The part of Walter Craig was played first by Perry Douglas, whose interpretation of the husband who was dominated by his wife was a serious and impressive bit of acting. Gordon Stearns, who took the role on the following evening, gave it more lightness and boyishness, but acted with equal skill.

Mazie, the maid, was played on different evenings by Luelia Andre and Joy Ingalls, who both did the part well.

The rest of the characters in the cast played on both programs. Miss Austin, Walter Craig's aunt, was played by Mary Graham with quietness and dignity; Mrs. Harold, performed by Maybelle Beakley, added a touch of humor to the tense drama of the play. Elinor Rennie, as Ethel Landreth, performed the ingenue role well. Mrs. Frazier, the talkative widow, was created skilfully by Sylvana Edmonds. The other minor roles added to the interest of the play. Billy Birkmire was played by Fletcher Udall; Joseph Catelle by Jack Dennis; Harry by Milton George, and Eugene Fredericks, fiance of Ethel, by Ed Merges.

LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

Helen Allen, Merrill Swenson, Mary Duckett, Marshall Hopkins

"I WILL have no one in my house about whom there is any scandal," says the lovely and virtuous Lady Windermere of Oscar Wilde's play, "Lady Windermere's Fan." She believes that there is an unswerving line of division between what is right and what is wrong, and allows no compromise. The shortcomings of human nature portrayed by Lady Windermere was played with skill by Helen Allen, who gave the role both charm and interesting interpretation. Lord Windermere, played by Merrill Swenson, was also outstanding. The roles of Lord Darlington and Lord Augustus, played respectively by Hugh Logan and Marshall Hopkins, also deserve mention. Mary Duckett portrayed Mrs. Erlynne, the widow who was misunderstood, with both finesse and vigor.

Others who had roles in the play were Jack Waldron, as Cecil Graham; Merle Benedict as Mr. Dumby; Veral Wright as Mr. Hopper; John Konigshofer as Parker; Harriet Hawkins as the Duchess of Berwick; Virginia Coke in the role of Lady Agatha; Frederica Warren as Lady Plymdale; Esther Saager as Lady Jedburgh; Sylvana Edmonds as Lady Stutfield; Anne Dolph as Lady Cowper-Cowper; Maybelle Beakley as Rosalie; Florence Grimes as Lady Paisley; Frank Jackson as Lord Paisley, and Louis Ankeny in the role of Lord Bowen.

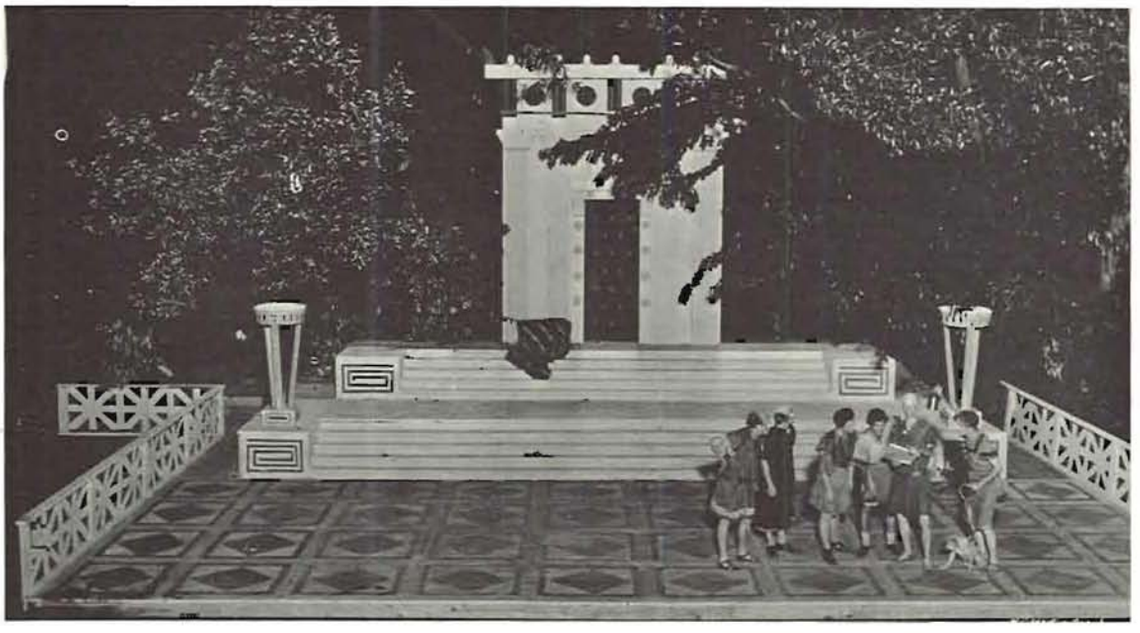
COMMENCEMENT PLAY



John Konigshofer, Marshall Hopkins, Jack Waldron, Veral Wright, Ed Merges, Louis Ankeny

HIGH PRAISE, both locally and in magazines of national circulation, has been accorded to "Midsummer Night's Dream," the commencement play of last year, produced under the direction of Miss Florence Wilbur. With its novel and artistic setting on the mill-race, a floating barge being the stage, it was a departure in the way of Shakespearian production.

"Surely Titania was never given a more enchanting fairyland than that devised by Miss Wilbur," comments the magazine Theater, in its issue of September 28, 1928.

The Journal of Expression for December, 1928, contains a full-page picture of the stage shown above, with the following comment:

"Built over water, this simple and appealing setting would be worthy of Irving and Terry."

Credit for the design and execution of the stage goes to Floyd Runk, technical art director, and to Carl Heilborn.

Among the students who had roles in the play those who distinguished themselves were Cecil Matson as Theseus, Duke of Athens; Lawrence Shaw as Lysander, in love with Hermia; and Arthur Anderson as Demetrius, his rival. The parts of Hermia and Helena, played by Grace Gardner and Mary Duckett, deserve praise. Joy Ingalls as Titania, queen of the fairies, added to the effect of the play. Special praise is due to Helen Barnett, who played Puck with a skill and vivacity that charmed the audience.

The Hard-Handed Men of Athens (above) furnished an excellent bit of comedy. Nick Bottom, the Weaver, was played by John Konigshofer; Quince the Carpenter, by Marshall Hopkins; Snug, the Joiner, by Jack Waldron; Flute, the Bellows-Mender, by Veral Wright; Snout, the Tinker, by Edward Merges; Starveling, the Tailor, by Louis Ankeny. Glenn Potts had the role of Oberon, king of Fairyland, and the Changeling was Ardine Blair. The fairies included Thelma Park, Virginia Coke, Rae Stevens, Alice Gorman and Luelia Andre.

Music by the University Orchestra and singing by the glee clubs added greatly to the atmosphere of the production.

COLLEGIATE PLAYERS

Marshall Hopkins, Helen Allen, Glenn Potts, Eunice Payne

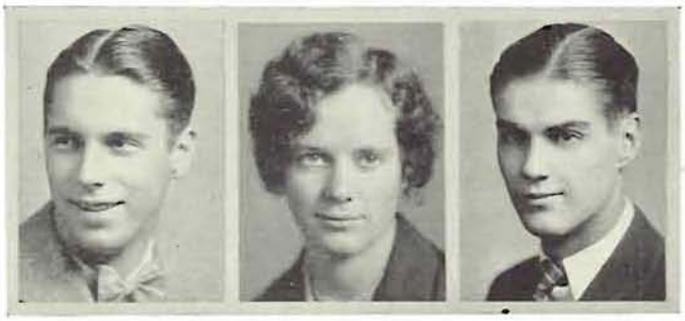
MASK AND BUSKIN chapter of National Collegiate Players numbers among its members, in addition to those shown above, the following persons: Helen Barnett and Milton George. Constance Roth is a graduate member, and among the faculty members are Dr. C. V. Boyer, advisor; Mrs. O. T. Seybolt, head of dramatics; Mrs. Rudolph Ernst and Lloyd Reynolds.

Since its reorganization two years ago the chapter has been active, producing such a popular campus success as "The Patsy" by Barry Connors, given last year, with Helen Barnett as the popular feminine lead, and Cecil Matson playing the leading man's part. The play is a comedy of a girl who had always been obliged to take a "back seat" in favor of her older sister. But when she met The Man she bought a book on "How to Be the Life of the Party," and practiced it on him. That, together with some good psychology which he told her to use, unaware that she was in love with him, culminated the play happily for Patsy.

"Pigs," by Anne Morrison and Patterson McNutt, was also produced by Mask and Buskin in connection with the senior class. The play is a hilarious comedy of how two young people save a family from financial difficulties by buying two hundred fifty pigs for $250—and succeeding in paying off the debt that threatens the family, as well as terminating two romances happily. The cast included the following persons:

Mildred Cushing	Grace Gardner
Thomas Atkins, Jr.	Lawrence Shaw
Grandma Spencer	Constance Roth
Thomas Atkins, Sr.	Gordon Stearns
Mrs. Atkins	Diana Deininger
Spencer Atkins	Hugh Logan
Lenore Hastings	Helen Allen
Dr. Stringer	Milton George
Hector Spencer	Edward Merges
Mr. Hastings	Glenn Potts

THE CAMPUS MOVIE



Carvel Nelson, Bea Milligan, James Raley
Production Staff

"CAMERA! Now the heroine comes in. Hey, you over there, register manly emotion. All right, camera!"

Such filmland expressions lent a Hollywood atmosphere to the Oregon campus this spring when the campus movie was photographed.

Scenes of the mill-race, overhung with willows and dappled with light and shade, formed some of the picturesque "shots" in the movie, and other spots of beauty about the campus, such as the courtyard of the art building, and vistas through the trees on the campus, were also used effectively.

Oregon is one of the few universities who have produced a moving picture, and is therefore a pioneer in the field.

An attempt was made in this movie to get away from the conventional football story, and the purpose before the scenario staff was to produce an original story designed to convey the spirit and atmosphere of Oregon.

James F. McBride, for eight years on the photographic staff of the Cecil DeMille studios at Hollywood, directed and photographed the film. Mr. McBride has been on the photographic staff of such productions as "Dress Parade," "Chicago," and "Power."

The production staff is shown above. Others who held positions were: George Godfrey, trustee; Ronald Hubbs, business manager; Fred Stanley, properties; Louise Clark, costuming; Perry Douglas, lighting; Myron Griffin, scenario; Lois Nelson, publicity; Renee Nelson, make-up; and Wilson Jewett, camera. Mrs. O. T. Seybolt and Constance Roth were on the dramatic production staff.

The screen tests for determining what persons would screen well aroused great interest in February when they were given to those who paid the necessary 50c for having their faces daubed with yellow, blue and violet grease paint, and acted a few minutes before the camera. Everyone who took the test was given a role in the picture, if only in the mob scenes in the College Side.

An interesting result of this was that it was found that men screened much better, on the whole, than the women, who were more inclined to be formal and "stiff" and to pose before the camera. The men, it is said, screened better than the women because they were more natural. About 350 students, all told, took the screen tests and made their debut on the flickering film.

DRAMA TOURNAMENT

"Two Crooks and a Lady"

"TWO CROOKS and a Lady," produced by the Eugene high school, won the 1928 drama tournament cup, awarded by the Guild Hall Players to the high school presenting the best play in competition with other high schools in the state. The cup goes permanently to the high school winning it three times.

The cast in the play included the following:

Miller, a crook	Howard Strawn
Lucille, the other crook	Roma Gross
Mrs. Sims-Vane, the lady, a paralytic	Dolly Horner
Miss Jones, a companion	Edra Dillon
The Inspector	Delmar Newman
Garrity, a policeman	Joe Black

Honorable mention went to Mill City high school for "Maria Cotita," a folk-play of the southwest. The author of the play is unknown. The cast for the play follows:

Maria Cotita	La Velle Hill
Rafael, her husband, half blind	Charles Kelly
Tornino, a pedler	Dan Olin

Scene: A home in a New Mexican village.
Time: An afternoon. About 1850.

Two other high schools participated in the contest, and presented plays of merit. Enterprise high school staged "The Purple Dream," by Donald L. Breed, laid in Newport, New Jersey, in the present time. Roseburg gave "The Locked Chest," by John Masefield, the scene being laid in Iceland, in the interior of the farm house of Thord Goddi in medieval times.

Members of the class in dramatic interpretation acted as hosts and hostesses, entertaining the visitors with a performance of Sir James Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies?"

"Two Crooks and a Lady"

"My plea for drama in the schools," Miss Wilbur said, in initiating the movement, "is a plea for the opportunity to develop the creative ability of youth: not to commercialize the activity, but rather to build the use of drama on educational principles; to make drama an integral part of the school curriculum, with the goal the desire to know, to do, and to enjoy."

High schools which took part in the 1929 tournament were: Marshfield, St. Helens, Henley, Milwaukie Union, Newberg, Roseburg and Corvallis. This was the third year of the drama tournament.

The general committee in charge of the affair this year were Mrs. O. T. Seybolt, chairman, and Dan E. Clark, secretary. Other members of the committee were James H. Gilbert, C. V. Boyer, and George Turnbull. A student committee and members of the National Collegiate Players also aided in the entertainment of the high school students.

Thanatos

(Who in Greek mythology is Death)

Thanatos dances glibly,
Grappling in his grave,
Crackling his ribs in Satyric revel.

Thanatos widely grins
Rattling whitened head
'Gainst neck and arms in
Gay dishevel.

Thanatos nods, knowing
That you and I are going
Down . . down . . down
To his level.

MUSIC

MUSIC MANAGERS

Perry Douglas, Clarence Veal, Albert Cousins, Herbert Lasselle, chairman, Lawrence Ogle.

ARRANGEMENTS for all musical affairs of the year were made by the student managers, under the directorship of Herbert Lasselle, as general music manager. They supervised entertainments of the men's and women's glee clubs, the University orchestra, and the band, handling the detailed arrangements for trips outside of Eugene, scheduling dates, transportation, and hotel accommodations. On the campus they supervised ticket-taking and ushering for concerts and lecture programs.

Managerial appointments were given to juniors and seniors who did outstanding work in the school of music as underclassmen.

Herbert Lasselle was general music manager during the year 1928-29 and directed the work of the managers of the respective musical organizations, whom he appointed.

When the glee clubs and the orchestra made their spring trip to Portland to play with the Portland Symphony orchestra, the music managers made the necessary plans and carried out the detail arrangements.

Clarence Veal was manager of the University Orchestra, Albert Cousins of the Men's Glee Club, Perry Douglas of the Women's Glee Club, and Lawrence Ogle of the University Band.

THE GLEE CLUBS

THE MEN'S and women's glee clubs, under the direction of John Stark Evans, were combined this year, to form a chorus of 108 voices. The glee clubs composed the University Symphony Choir, which appeared in conjunction with the Portland Symphony Orchestra, in a program at the Municipal Auditorium in Portland, March 4. The combined groups presented the Blessed Damozel, by Debussy, and the Highwayman, by Deems Taylor. Nancy Thielsen and Jack Dennis sang incidental solos.

Earlier in the year, the vesper choir, composed of the men's and women's glee clubs, appeared in their ninth annual presentation of the St. Cecelia Mass, at the school of music auditorium.

The Fortune Teller

She saw a pansy in my hand,
But me—I could not find it.
She saw a man's face near my thumb
With a money bag behind it.
She bent my hand—and then did see
Two husbands and children three.
Ye Gods! It's all a mystery—
These fortune tellers!
She told me I would travel soon
And soon would get a letter.
She said some papers I would sign
(The first is here—I'd better.)
She told me I had eyes of blue
That I was much in love with you.
Ye Gods! I wonder how she knew—
These fortune tellers!

FORENSICS

Coach J. K. Horner

WITH a debate squad made up principally of veteran speakers, the University of Oregon opened its 1929 forensic season with the brightest prospects in several years.

Eight members of the squad have had one or more years experience in varsity debate, while two more saw service on the 1928 frosh team. Eight contests with Pacific Coast universities were scheduled for the Oregon speakers this season, as well as a tentative contest with Northwestern University, of Evanston, Illinois.

Eugene Laird was general forensic manager for the University of Oregon during the 1929 season, with William Knight as his assistant. Florence McNerney headed women's debate.

THE FORENSIC COUNCIL

Roy Herndon, Chairman	Kenneth Rowe
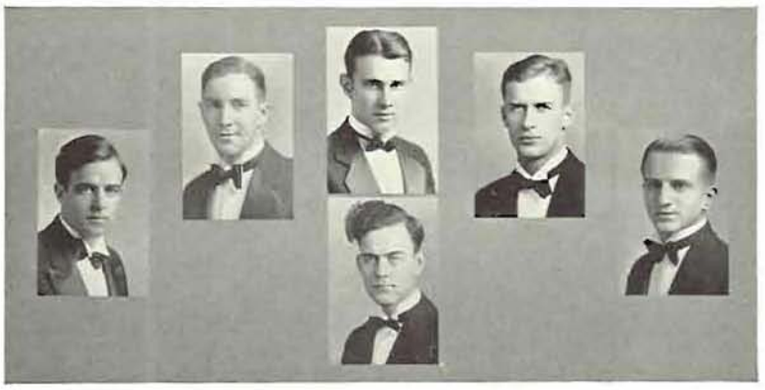
Dr. James H. Gilbert	Art Anderson
J. K. Horner	Jack Benefiel

THE 1929 men's varsity debate squad was composed of Avery Thompson, Errol Sloan, Ellsworth Plank, Stanley Darling, Leland Fryer, Ralph Geyer, Ernest Jachetta, Paul Clark, Walter Durgan, John Nelson, Hal Paddock, Eugene Laird, George Cherry, Arthur Taylor, and Joe McKeown.

1929 SCHEDULE

March 7—Oregon vs. Nevada at Eugene.
March 9—Oregon vs. Washington State at Pullman.
March 10—Oregon vs. Idaho at Moscow.
March 25—Oregon vs. Wyoming at Portland.
Oregon vs. Southwestern at Los Angeles.
Oregon vs. University of Southern California at Los Angeles.
Oregon vs. Nevada at Reno.
Oregon vs. Northwestern (Evanston) at Eugene.

ORATORY



Baldridge McKeown Pfoff Sloan Sharp Jachetta

UNDER the coaching of A. H. Baldridge, who came to the campus in 1927 from the University of Oklahoma, the University of Oregon orators entered three oratorical contests and two extempore contests during the 1929 season. This was the first time in many years that Oregon had entered any of the extempore contests.

Roger Pfoff, though only a freshman, represented the University of Oregon in the Pacific Forensic League Oratorical contest held at Washington State College, Pullman, March 28. This was the first time that Oregon had ever entered this contest.

James Sharp entered the State Old Line Oratorical contest at Pacific university, Forest Grove, March 8. This contest is sponsored by the Oregon Intercollegiate Oratorical association, of which every institution of higher learning in the state is a member.

Joe McKeown represented the University in the Oregon division of the National Constitutional Oratorical contest at Eugene April 28. The winner of this meet competes in the coast finals, and the coast winner enters the national finals. McKeown won the Oregon contest last year, but was unable to enter the coast finals.

Errol Sloan represented the University of Oregon in the Pacific Forensic League Extempore speaking contest at the University of Idaho, Moscow, March 29. All of the major colleges on the coast were represented in this contest. In this meet the general subject was not announced until two hours preceding the contest, the speakers being forced to rely on their knowledge of current problems.

Ernest Jachetta entered the State Old Line Extempore Speaking contest held at Linfield college, McMinnville, April 12. This contest is sponsored by the Oregon Intercollegiate Oratorical association.

Other members of the oratory squad, who were unable to represent the University in intercollegiate competition, were Harvey Wright, John Nelson, Claude Hall, and Avery Thompson.

WOMEN'S DEBATE

Caniparoli, Clausen, Edmunson, Hicks, Klemm
Leach, Looney, McNerney, Welcome

THE 1929 varsity women's debate squad was composed of Margaret Edmunson, Florence McNerney, Mary Klemm, Marion Leach, Marguerite Looney, Gladys Clausen, Mary Caniparoli, Eleanor Welcome, and Lavina Hicks. They met Washington at Seattle, Idaho at Eugene, Washington State at Eugene, and Washington State at Pullman, during the 1929 season. The question used in the debates was: "Resolved, that admittance to universities should be granted only on examination."

WOMEN'S FROSH DEBATE

The freshman women's debate squad was composed of Jean Gorman, Elizabeth Painton, Bernice Conoly, Frances Haberlach, Betty Neff, Alexis Lyle and Ida-Helen Hurulin. The Frosh women defeated Willamette university, Pacific university, Albany college, and Ashland Normal school.

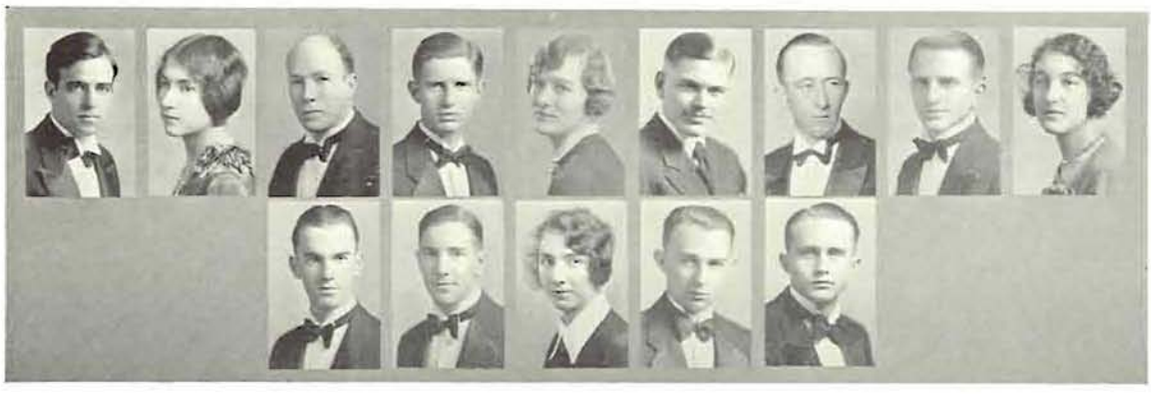
DELTA SIGMA RHO



Baldridge, Clink, Davis, Durgan, Edmunson, Hempstead, Horner, Jachetta, Klemm
Laird, McKeown, McNerney, Plank, Thompson

DELTA SIGMA RHO, honorary debating fraternity, was installed on the University of Oregon campus in 1927. The officers are Ernest Jachetta president, Florence McNerney secretary, and Mary Klemm treasurer. The members are A. H. Baldridge, Alice Clink, Roland Davis, Walter Durgan, Margaret Edmunson, Walter Hempstead, J. K. Horner, Ernest Jachetta, Mary Klemm, Eugene Laird, Joe McKeown, Florence McNerney, Ellsworth Plank, and Avery Thompson.

MEN'S FROSH DEBATE

The members of the 1929 Frosh debate squad were Robert Miller, Arthur Potwin, Roger Pfoff, John Long, Walter Evans, Jame Landye, Art Adams, Wallace Baker, Merlin Blais, Omar Palmer, J. H. Stiges, Wallace Campbell, and Hobart Wilson. The Frosh met Pacific University, Willamette University, Albany College, and Ashland Normal School, using the jury question.

ORATORY CONTESTS

Clark Cherry

THE FAILING prize, which was won last year by Dudley Clark, is given annually to the member of the senior class who delivers the best oration at commencement. The Beekman prize, won last year by Frances Cherry, is awarded for the second best oration. The prizes are the incomes from endowments given the University more than forty years ago.

The Jewett prizes, given annually by Mrs. W. F. Jewett to encourage interest in public speaking, were won last year by the following: Men's extempore, Calvin Bryan first, John Galey, second, Ralph Geyer, third; Women's extempore, Florence McNerney first, Mary Klemm second, Lou Ann Chase third; Pre-legal oratorical, James Sharp first, Walter Norblad second, Claude Hall third.

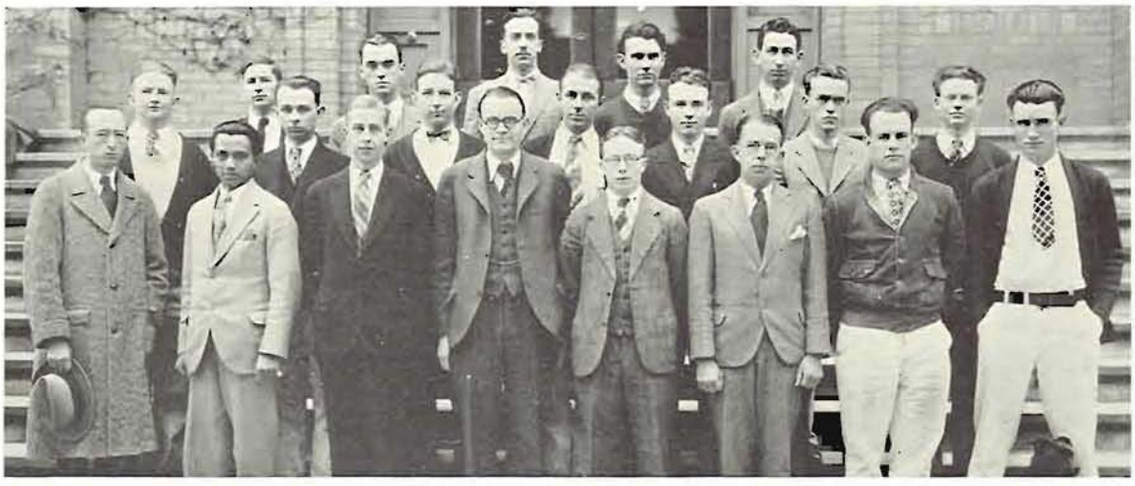
CONGRESS DEBATE CLUB



Front row: Horner, Padilla, Smith, Hall, Knight, Nelson, Robinson, Wright
Second row: Tinker, Plank, Todd, Fryer, Potwin, Paddock, Campbell
Third row: Blais, Laird, Belonni, Pfoff, Veatch

THE CONGRESS Debate club was organized at the University of Oregon during the winter term for the purpose of increasing interest in public speaking and debating and furnishing more students an opportunity to participate in public discussions than is possible through the debate and oratory squads. The club meets every two weeks and discusses some current question or problem. Certain members are appointed to lead the debate on each side of the question, and any of the members may participate in the discussion which follows.

The Congress club was sponsored by J. K. Horner, head of the public speaking department and coach of debate, who modeled it after a similar organization at the University of Oklahoma, where he coached debate before coming to Oregon. In providing an opportunity for participation in debate by students other than the regular squad members, it is fulfilling a need that has been felt on the campus since the demise of the Philologian and Laurean debating societies about twenty years ago.

The present officers of the Congress club are Leland Fryer president, William Knight vice-president, Wayne Robinson secretary, George Todd treasurer, G. Allan Belloni parliamentarian, and Donald Campbell sergeant-at-arms.

The members are: Ben Padilla, Sylvester Smith, Claude Hall, William Knight, John Nelson, Wayne Robinson, Harvey Wright, Warren Tinker, Ellsworth Plank, George Todd, Leland Fryer, Arthur Potwin, Hal Paddock, Wallace Campbell, Donald Campbell, Merlin Blais, Eugene Laird, G. Allan Belloni, Roger Pfoff, Wayne Veatch, Ernest Jachetta, Joe McKeown, Walter Durgan, Arnold Bodtker, Virgil La Clair, and Earle Miller.

OREGON'S FIRST DEBATE

Villard Hall

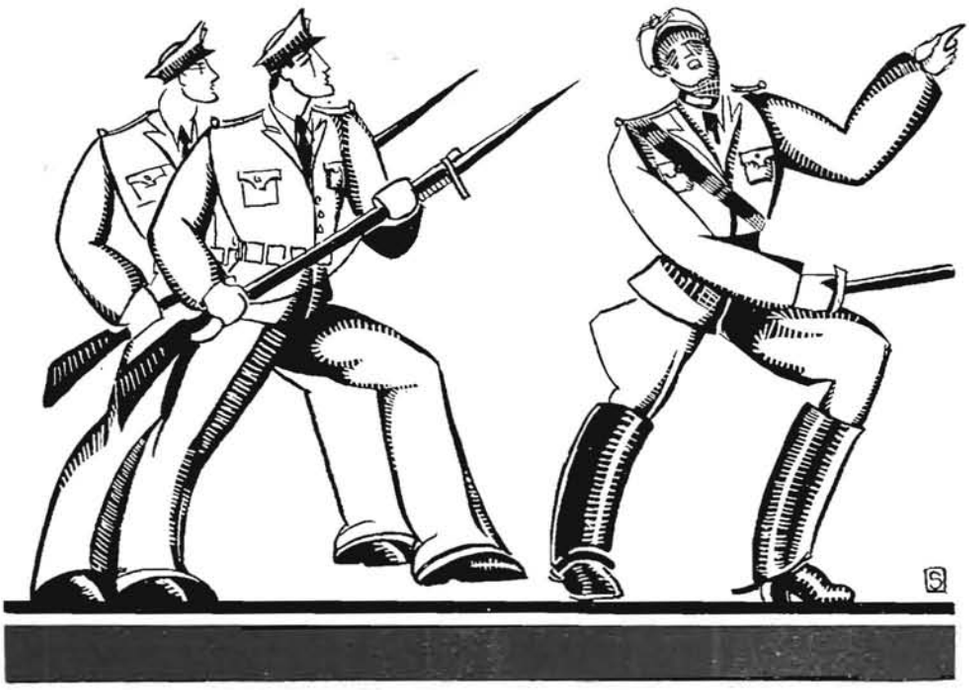
IT WAS a spring night early in the nineties. The two hundred students attending the University of Oregon and a sizeable delegation of the Eugene citizenry, the men clad in black cut-away suits and bushy side whiskers, and the women in long flowing skirts that dragged the ground, flocked into the assembly room of Villard hall, one of the two buildings on the University campus.

The occasion was a debate between the representatives of the University of Oregon and those of Albany College. The audience listened with rapt interest to the arguments advanced by each side, and then cheered heartily when the decision for Oregon was announced.

Every year, since it was erected in 1885, Villard hall has been the traditional scene of forensic encounters in which the University has participated. Here Oregon has vanquished and has lost to, Washington and California and Idaho and the Aggies. An Oregon team once trounced the representatives of Oxford University, who had crossed the ocean to America. Here Oregon orators have triumphed over those of other colleges.

Debate was a great activity at the University of Oregon in the days when Villard hall was new. There were two men's debate societies, the Philologian, and the Laurean, as well as Eutaxian, a women's organization. These met every Monday night, and great were the arguments that arose at those meetings.

In 1903 the Old Line Oratorical contest, which is still held annually at some college of the state, was held in Villard hall. The entire assembly room and the balcony were crowded with enthusiastic forensic fans, although an admission of one dollar was charged. In that year varsity debate and oratory netted $900 above all expenses. Part of this was used to subsidize the football team and other activities which did not pay!



R. O. T. C.

R. O. T. C. OFFICERS

Captain Moore

Major Barker

Captain Bragg

Lieutenant Herbert

Sergeant Conyers

Sergeant Agule

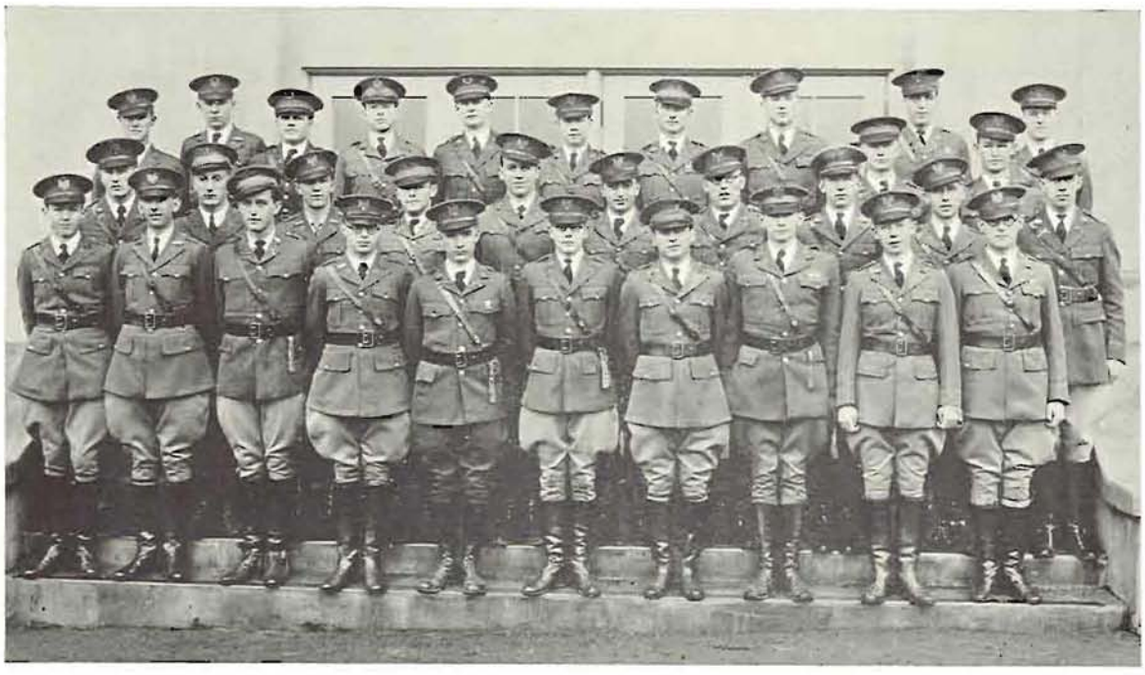
Under the direction of Major F. A. Barker, serving his first year as commander of the Reserve Officers Training Corps unit at the University of Oregon, the military division of the school has continued to make rapid strides. Major Barker, a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, entered the work at the point where Colonel W. S. Sinclair, past commander of the local unit, left off.

The new commander sought to have the students attain as many fundamentals of military tactics as possible, and his aim was well accomplished judging by the manner in which the men performed in the various drills and other military performances.

Playing an important part in the National Defense System is the R. O. T. C. The units in the various colleges and universities throughout have been established under the National Defense Act of 1920, which states that the "Army of the United States" shall consist of a small regular army, the National Guard, and an Organized Reserve. When the call of war is sounded, the emergency call brings out the students trained at the college units. The college military men receive training sufficient to make them junior officers in the "Army of the United States."

Contributing to the training of the military aspirants at the University of Oregon is the staff of instructors: Captain Moore, Captain Bragg, Lieutenant Herbert, Sergeant Conyers, and Sergeant Agule.

CADET OFFICERS



ONE OF the prime essentials for the success of a military officer is that of being able to lead his subordinates in all types of military activities. That those who aspire to become army officers may have an opportunity to practice military leadership, the cadet officers are offered the opportunities throughout the college year to direct the student forces.

With the opening of the spring term when battalion reviews are the vogue, nine cadet officers are awarded ratings of captain while the other cadet officers numbering about 45 retain the tentative rank of first lieutenant. The honored officers are selected on the basis of their ability to command men and also upon their general knowledge of military science. The cadet officers are closely supervised and aided by the unit officers who are men of experience in the way of company leadership. Freshman and sophomore students in the basic course form the various companies on which the cadet officers practice leadership. Sophomores act as squad leaders.

The lower division students are put through several drills, parades, and reviews with the cadet officers as their leaders. The army aspirants also aid the basic corps students in rifle marksmanship.

MILITARY BALL

Arlen McCarty, chairman

AMID a well decorated room adorned with flags draped here and there, and cannons and machine guns offering a military atmosphere, the annual Military ball was held Saturday, January 19, at the Osburn hotel. The ball, given for the R. O. T. C. instructors and cadet officers exclusively, is the outstanding social event for the army men on the campus.

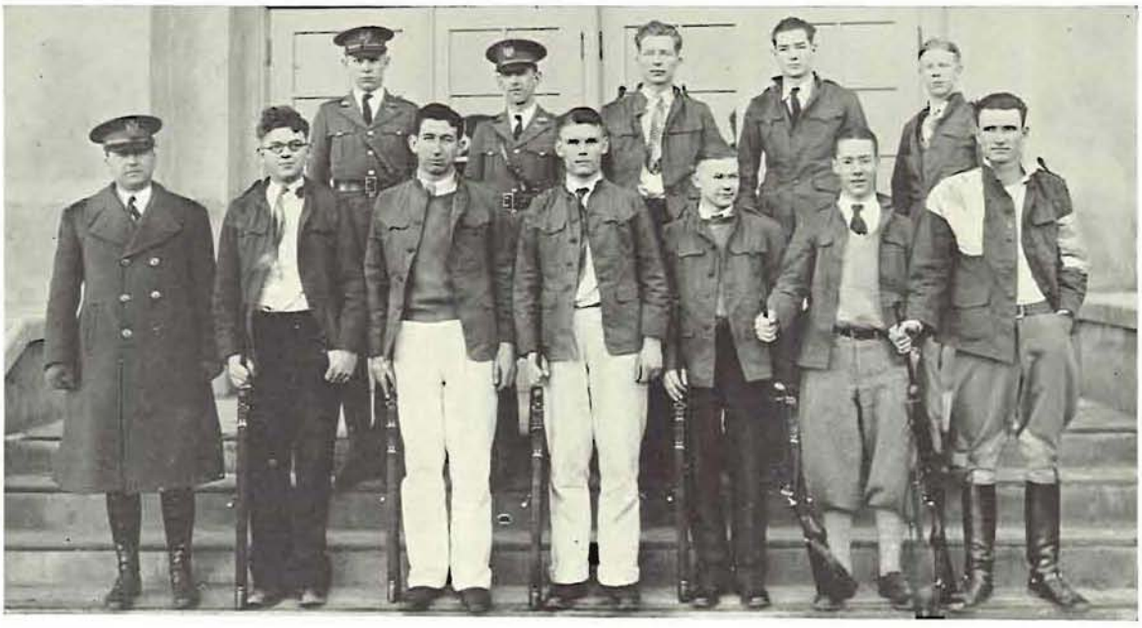
The 1929 formal military affair proved to be a very brilliant occasion with the cadet officers attired in their snappy looking officers' uniforms and the women guests dressed in formal garb.

In addition to the Eugene folk present at the affair, there were also in attendance several members of the Scabbard and Blade chapter at the Oregon Agricultural college, military notables from the barracks at Vancouver, Washington, and National Guard officers.

Serving as patrons and patronesses at the R. O. T. C. formal were: President and Mrs. Arnold Bennett Hall, Dean Hazel Prutsman, John M. Rae, James T. Brown, Hugh L. Biggs, Captain and Mrs. C. H. Bragg, Lieutenant and Mrs. George F. Herbert, Captain and Mrs. F. M. Moore, and Major and Mrs. F. A. Barker.

To offset the prevalent opinion that the military formal ball was a campus wide function, it was announced by the dance chairman that a military dance for the whole campus had been planned for the spring term.

RIFLE TEAM



FURTHER alterations in the rifle range at the local R. O. T. C. unit and additional recognition of rifle marksmanship as a sport at the University of Oregon, have served as leading incentives to the onward progress of rifle marksmanship on the campus here.

Backed by an increased interest in the activity, ten men, under the direction of Captain C. H. Bragg, coach, engaged in the various telegraphic shoots held with rifle teams of other universities. Under the telegraphic system, the teams shoot on their home range, and the scores are sent to the opponents to determine by comparison the winner of the match.

Matches were scheduled the winter term with the following schools: University of Washington; University of Dayton, Ohio; Washington State College; University of Illinois; Kimper Military School, Missouri; Agricultural and Mechanics College, Texas; North Dakota University; University of Cincinnati; Culver Military Academy; Rhode Island State College; Lafayette College, Pennsylvania; Washington University, St. Louis; O. S. C., Corvallis.

Captain Bragg, coach

Gold pins are hereafter to be awarded to members of the rifle team. The pins consist of spreading eagle above a red and white shield and go, on a basis of marksmanship, to the ten members of the rifle team who place the highest during the target season.

The fall term was the occasion for a remodelling of the rifle range.

COMPANY AT ATTENTION

THERE is the sound of the bugle! Then a long silence. Suddenly begins the onrush of musical chords emanating from the many instruments of the military band. Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! and an array of 500 men starts in military procession. "Eyes right!—front!" roars the company leader.

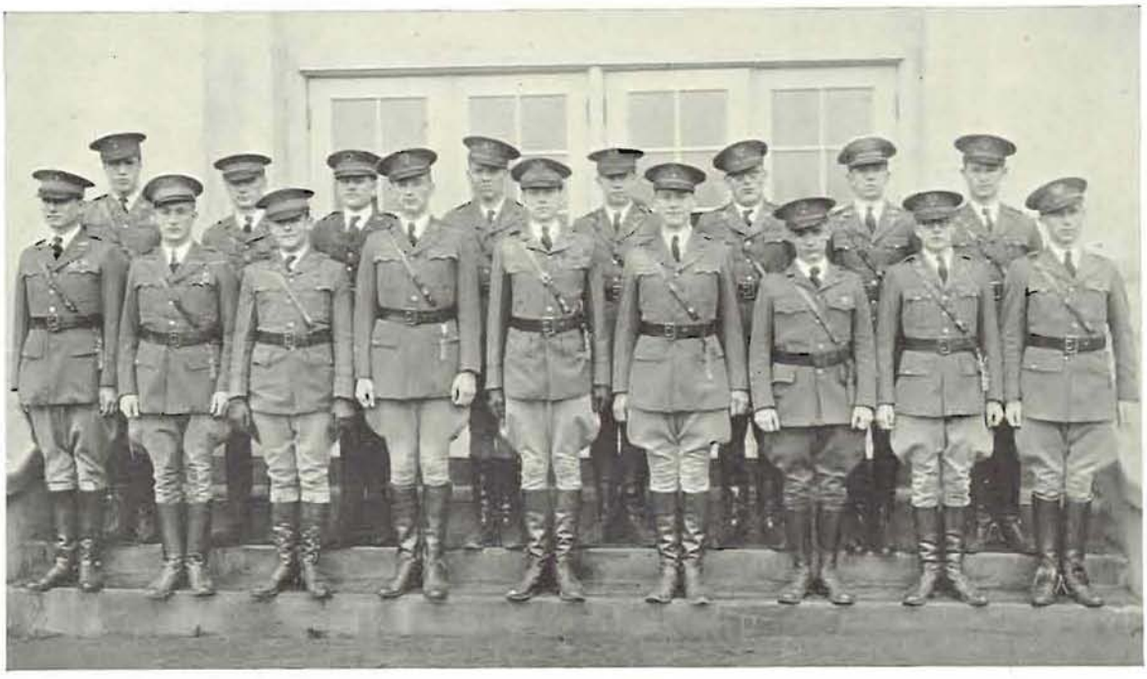
It is Wednesday, 5 o'clock at Kincaid field, and the military students are passing in review—a battalion review.

During the spring term, all the companies of the local R. O. T. C. unit parade once a week in battalion review under the leadership of cadet officers.

The final battalion review each year is the occasion for the awarding of commissions of second lieutenants to those who have satisfied the requirements necessary for graduation from the local unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Eleven graduating seniors received commissions spring term, 1928.

Henry H. Hall, '28, was named "honor cadet" of the local corps for 1928 by a board of regular army officers who convened here last spring term. This honor entitles him to a commission in the regular army without examination. Cadet Hall, a captain in the local organization, is a member of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military society.

SCABBARD AND BLADE



RECOGNITION of the work carried on in the military department of the University of Oregon was acclaimed in a national respect in April, 1928, when the Officers club of the local R. O. T. C. unit was awarded a charter for organization as Company L of Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity.

Officers of the local chapter are: Francis McKenna, captain; Palmer Schlegel, first lieutenant; Vawter Parker, second lieutenant; and Lawrence Shaw, first sergeant.

Scabbard and Blade was founded at the University of Wisconsin in 1904.

The national organization is modelled after that of the United States army. The various chapters are designated companies, and are organized into regiments in order of their establishment.

There are now 73 companies, being 6 full regiments of 12 companies each and part of a seventh regiment.

Francis McKenna, captain

The purpose of Scabbard and Blade is to raise the standard of military training in American colleges and universities, to unite in closer relationship their military departments, to encourage and foster the development of the essential qualities of good and efficient officers, and to promote intimacy and good fellowship among the cadet officers. Members are selected not on scholarship alone but also on those qualities of leadership, initiative and character.

OREGON PRESTIGE INCREASES

It is within the scope of this book to record four Northwest championships won by Oregon in football, baseball, tennis, and swimming. Perhaps a fifth championship might be considered, one in general athletic supremacy, for no other northern school can lay claim to such accomplishments this year. Washington was second, with top standings in basketball and track.

The most smashing and unexpected triumph was in football. In this sport, no northern team came within 12 points of the Webfoots,and the only one able to score was Montana, though the Grizzlies were defeated, 31 to 6. Oregon did not play W. S. C. or Idaho. The Cougars shared northwest honors equally with Oregon until their very last game, when they were beaten by Washington, 6 to 0. Oregon had previously trounced the Huskies, 27 to 0. Idaho was out of the running early in the season. The Webfoots won eight out of ten games, and were playing in the toughest field of football competition in America, as was shown when Stanford defeated the Army, 26 to 0; when O. A. C. wrecked the United States championship aspirations of New York University by walloping that school 25 to 13; when U. S. C. beat Notre Dame 27 to 14; and when California held the powerful Georgia Tech to 7 to 8.

The 1927 baseball team had finished close to the cellar, and only three new men were available to bolster up the weak spots for 1928. But these men came through, and helped win seven out of eleven games, for the championship.

The varsity swimming team won four out of five conference swimming meets, two of these being with O. A. C. for the Northwest championship. In a practice meet the Oregon frosh downed the varsity by 12 points!

For the first time in Webfoot history the Oregon tennis team defeated the University of Washington team, and won the championship of the Northwest, and, incidentally, shut out the Aggies completely in two matches.

A natural inference from the fact that Oregon stood so high in four sports might be that basketball and track suffered for lack of men. That was not true in basketball, however, for although the Webfoots won only three games, there was on hand the same team, with the exception of one man, that had placed second in 1928. Most conference teams traded beatings this year, showing how close they were in ability. Oregon simply got the worst of the toss-up. The only team that did not beat Oregon was the one owned by O. S. C.

It was track that paid the bill this year for the supply of championships. Coach Hayward had but a third of a team to put on the field, and as a result, Oregon did not win a track meet.

Major rating was given this year to golf, swimming, and cross-country. This new sports democracy system, as it was introduced, is the outcome of a more or less general agitation on the campus. The cross-country team was promising at the beginning of the fall term, but sickness and injuries kept it from winning a single meet. Golf is still in the experimental stage.

COACHING STAFF SMALL

Willis D. Fletcher
Trainer

CAPTAIN JOHN J. McEWAN said he didn't think he would be able to put out much of a team his first year here. And he was surely right about that, because the only conference game Oregon won in that period was from California. He said he thought that in the third year his system would begin to take root, and that perhaps by that time the Webfoots would look something like the West Point teams he had been coaching. He was right again, for that was exactly how things turned out.

McEwan was assisted this year by Dick Reed and Gene Vidal. Dick, who coached the ends, is an Oregon man, and was captain and star tackle and end on the Webfoot team of 1924. At the start of the season the ends were new at their jobs, having been transferred from backfield and line positions, but in the last games the wingmen were as capable as any other players on the team.

Vidal learned much of his football at West Point, where he played under Captain McEwan. His job on the staff was to put the Oregon backfield into condition. He was called away at mid-season, however, and his work was left entirely to McEwan.

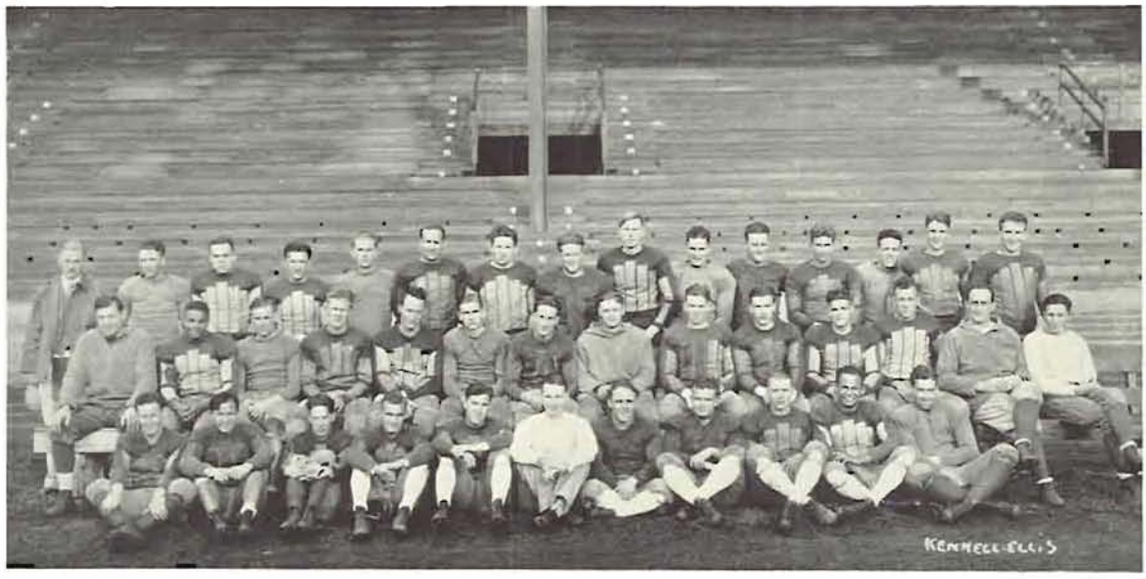
VARSITY ROLLS TO FRONT



Football Squad

AS UNDEFEATED champions of the Northwest and of the Mid-Pacific, and with the reputation of being one of the smoothest and smartest football combinations in the country, the 1928 Webfoot team, made up largely of sophomores and juniors, dispelled exactly eighty per cent of the gloom that had been settling over the Oregon gridiron since 1920, and which reached its greatest density in 1927, when McEwan's men failed to win a single game.

The first sign of football prosperity was a 45 to 0 victory over Pacific; but it was not until the Stanford game, a week later, however, that a real alarm sounded up and down the coast—to watch out for Oregon! Stanford beat the Webfoots 26 to 13, but not without going through one of the hardest battles ever fought on Hayward field. Willamette was next, and Oregon took the Bearcats down, 38 to 6.

Then Washington was defeated, 27 to 0. And with that game there came scores of compliments and apologies from people whose prejudices against the team and coach had been wiped away in that contest.

But the Webfoots were not yet ready for such a strong opponent as California proved to be, and were beaten by the Bruins, 13 to 0. It was after that game that Oregon was ready to compete with California on even terms, for it was that very experience at Berkeley that put the emerald team into a finished working condition.

So it was that two weeks later Oregon met the Oregon Aggies on the mud of Bell field in Corvallis and scorched them with the brand of a 12 to 0 defeat. The coast season ended after Oregon had overwhelmed Montana, 31 to 6, and U. C. L. A., 26 to 6.

Post-season games were played in the Hawaiian Islands, where the Honolulu Town team was mastered, 13 to 2, and the University of Hawaii, 6 to 0.

STANFORD FORCED TO LIMIT

STANFORD 26; OREGON 13

Stanford, the national champion of 1927, did not perspire any more from exertion than from worry in the first conference game of the 1928 season. When Everett McCutchan raced down the field under Oregon's kick-off and fell on the ball across the Cardinals' goal, thus scoring a touchdown in the first 30 seconds, people were puzzled. Webfoots were not in the habit of doing such things.

People wondered still more when play after play of Stanford's was smothered by the green sophomore line, and when a half-dozen times these same forwards held Stanford for downs within a yard of the goal.

Stanford won the game, but not with a second string as in 1927. Stanford fought for this victory. The final score was 26 to 13. Three of Stanford's touchdowns were made in a business-like manner, while the fourth was made from mid-field on an Oregon fumble. Oregon's second touchdown was made by Dave Mason, who caught a 30-yard pass over the Stanford goal.

When the shock of the thing, this stubborn resistance to seemingly overwhelming odds, had worn off, people realized that George Stadelman, all-coast center, Austin Colbert, mentioned by some as all-coast tackle, Merrill Hagan, George Christensen, and Marshall Shields composed a wall of forwards comparable to any in football history.

PACIFIC 0, OREGON 45; WILLAMETTE 6, OREGON 38

The Webfoots exceeded the hopes of their adherents in the first game of the season by defeating Pacific, a non-conference school, 45 to 0; and substantiated these same hopes by walking over Willamette a week after the Stanford game, 38 to 6.

Pacific put up a good scrap. The Badgers always do, but as was shown later in the season, they were up against something completely out of their class. Most of the Webfoot squad saw action in this game. The outstanding feature in the playing was the exceptional pass receiving of Dave Mason. Dave's ankle was hurt so badly in a practice session just after the Stanford game that he could not play the rest of the season.

Oregon's real offensive strength was demonstrated in the Willamette game, for McEwan's system of interference running had at last started functioning smoothly.

WASHINGTON 0, OREGON 27

On the ninth play in the game with Washington in which the Webfoots handed the Huskies a 27 to 0 lacing Gould plunged over for Oregon's first touchdown. Burnell scored next in the middle of the second quarter on a 24-yard pass from Bobby Robinson, Washington started a rally at the beginning of the second half, with Chuck Carroll carrying the brunt of the attack, but they did not threaten seriously till the last few minutes of the game when on a desperate series of passes over Oregon's second string they came within scoring range.

Chuck Williams and Austin Colbert were instrumental in helping Kitzmiller, dubbed Oregon's "flying Dutchman," to make two touchdowns, Williams with a buck to the 2-foot mark, and Colbert by intercepting a pass on the 5-yard mark.

John Kitzmiller and George Burnell were Oregon's best ground gainers. Colbert and Christensen starred on the defense.

CALIFORNIA 13, OREGON 0

"Stop Benny Lom!" was the battle cry of the Webfoots in their California game, which resulted in a 13 to 0 victory for the Bears. The whole Oregon defense was centered in this one objective, and for the first half it did stop him, holding the southerners to a 0 to 0 score.

The first half was a stern battle on both sides, but the playing was mostly in Oregon territory. Once the Californians reached the Webfoot 11-yard mark, but the green team held them for downs, and Kitzmiller's trusty foot booted the ball far down the field.

It was in the third period that Lom, the Bears' all-coast halfback, proved too much for the Oregon defense. After having carried the ball nearly half the length of the field on a play from a fake punt formation, he broke away again for a dash of 21 yards to score the first touchdown of the game. With a but minute to go, Newman, California end, camped out for a pass and ran untouched across the goal with it. Oregon's offensive was colored by long runs of Kitzmiller and Robinson.

O. S. C. 0, OREGON 12

The fighting Oregon team won a 12 to 0 victory over Oregon State. It was a great green team that bucked, passed and ran over the much vaunted Aggie eleven. The game, played at Corvallis, drew one of the largest Aggie homecoming crowds in history. Three thousand Oregon rooters swarmed out over Bell field in a victory serpentine after the game.

The first Oregon score came in the middle of the first quarter, after the Webfoots had marched from mid-field to the 10-yard line. Kitzmiller dashed through tackle, and shaking off three Aggie tacklers, crossed the goal. The Aggies tried a rally, but were unable to get started because of the deadly tackling of the Oregon ends, Pope and Archer. Burnell scored the second touchdown after a Kitzmiller-Robinson pass, and a plunge to the one-yard line by Gould.

MONTANA 6, OREGON 31

The Montana Grizzlies came to Eugene with odds so much against them that through only the barest chance could they have expected to win. It was Oregon Homecoming week, and the stands at Hayward field were fairly well packed.

Major Frank Milburn, the Grizzly coach, played with McEwan at West Point, and the systems their teams worked were very similar. In the first three quarters, the Webfoots went up and down the field at will, but in the final period, a Montana end, Rule, caught three passes in succession from Chinske, and Harmon, another end, caught a fourth for the Grizzlies' lone score. Oregon made two touchdowns on lateral passes, Burnell to Kitzmiller.

U. C. L. A. 6, OREGON 26

In the last game of the Coast Conference season, the Oregon eleven easily put to rout the cub member of the conference, the University of California at Los Angeles, by a score of 26 to 6.

In making their first touchdown, late in the second period, the Oregonians took the ball on the U. C. L. A. 45-yard line and started a march which ended with a lateral pass from Burnell to Robinson, who crossed the goal. The third period again saw the northerners drive half the length of the field, Gould plowing through for a touchdown.

The next score came in the fourth quarter, when Robinson intercepted a pass and sprinted 55 yards for a touchdown. The California team became aroused and started a drive which resulted in their only score. They threatened again soon afterward and had advanced the ball to the 5-yard mark, but Kitzmiller intercepted a pass and ran the ball back 95 yards for a touchdown.

HAWAIIAN TEAMS DEFEATED

HONOLULU TOWN TEAM 2, OREGON 13; UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII, 0, OREGON 6

The Webfoots had to fight all over the 5,000 square yards of the Honolulu gridiron to capture the championship of the Mid-Pacific. The Hawaiians rated Oregon among the first 25 teams in America and knew what they were up against.

Speed and power were at a premium on Christmas day against the Honolulu Town team, because a rain storm and a terrific gale swept the field and any passing or punting plays were extremely hazardous. Gould and Burnell scored touchdowns for Oregon, and Robinson made a try for point on a pass from Kitzmiller. The Hawaiians' safety came late in the game, and made the final score 13 to 2 for Oregon.

The game New Year's day with the University of Hawaii was a 100 per cent thriller, for the Deans threatened from start to finish, to be beaten by a score of only 6 to 0. Archer was in top form for the Webfoots that day, while Rusty Holt, Dean halfback, proved himself equal to any halfback in America. One bit of Hawaiian stategy was a second down pass attempt over the Oregon goal line.

VARSITY PROSPECTS GOOD

Fletcher, Ricks, Dizney, Browne
Forsythe, Keltner, Schultz, West, Forsta, Bessonette, Tarbell

WHEN a hundred or so strangers turn out in football suits, each of them expectant of becoming an all-American in a year or two, it means that a coaching staff has a job on its hands to boil this rabble down into something that resembles a football eleven. Billy Reinhart, Spike Leslie, and Beryl Hodgen were the men who took over that task this year. They were successful, too. The Frosh team performed at times with a smoothness that any varsity would be proud of.

The Oregon varsity was short of experienced ends this year, but the frosh certainly were not. John Erdley and Deane Ricks made a combination of pass snatchers and punt chasers that any coach in the country would like to see in his warehouse. These men are rough, and they can play in mud or gravel or turf with equal indifference.

In a year or two the great varsity line may need Glen Bessonette and Desmond Anderson, or a few more of the husky frosh linemen. Maybe some of them will even push in for permanent positions next fall. That frosh line was good this year. If Stadelman breaks a bone or two next season, perhaps Eric Forsta, who played center for the frosh, will see some action. The varsity wouldn't be badly off, either, with Eric snapping the ball.

Clarence Dizney was as consistent a back as any team could want. He was disabled early in the season, but in the first two games, his interference running and tackling were of high quality. Steve Fletcher was the star pass receiver of the team. In Al Browne the varsity may expect a first rate triple threat quarterback.

BASKETBALL HOPES BLASTED

IN THE TEN Northwest Conference basketball games of 1929, Oregon scored a total of 329 points to opponents' 313. Yet Oregon won only three games. The Webfoots opened the season with five road games, and the toughest of these, the one with Washington, was first. All training up to that time had been centered on an attack on the Huskies. But the preparations had been in vain, for Washington took the game with a score of 38 to 29. That was the beginning of the most disastrous Oregon basketball invasion in many years. W. S. C. defeated Oregon in the following game 31 to 28; and in the next one Idaho came out ahead, after an overtime period, 39 to 35. Even Montana upset the dope for Oregon on that trip and won the fourth game 29 to 29.

The common belief was that Oregon had started the season at the wrong time. This was proved true when Oregon returned to the Willamette valley and walloped O. A. C. at Corvallis, 30 to 21; and again when a few days later the Webfoots more than settled their account with Montana by smothering them 45 to 21; and still again when they turned the Oregon Aggies out of McArthur court with a drubbing of 35 to 26. But the spurt ended as suddenly as it had begun, and W. S. C. wrenched away from the Webfoots with a win of 29 to 28. The Idaho Vandals also descended on Eugene for a victory, and this time the score was 29 to 27. Washington came to Eugene for the last game of the season. The Webfoots, playing in their best form of the year, led in score right up to the last quarter, being as much as eight points ahead at times, only to lose to the Huskies 50 to 44.

THE SEASON began as it ended, with Webfoot defeats at the hands of the rangy Washington team, the undefeated champions of the Northwest. Oregon lost in Seattle, 38 to 29; and again when Washington came to Eugene, 50 to 44.

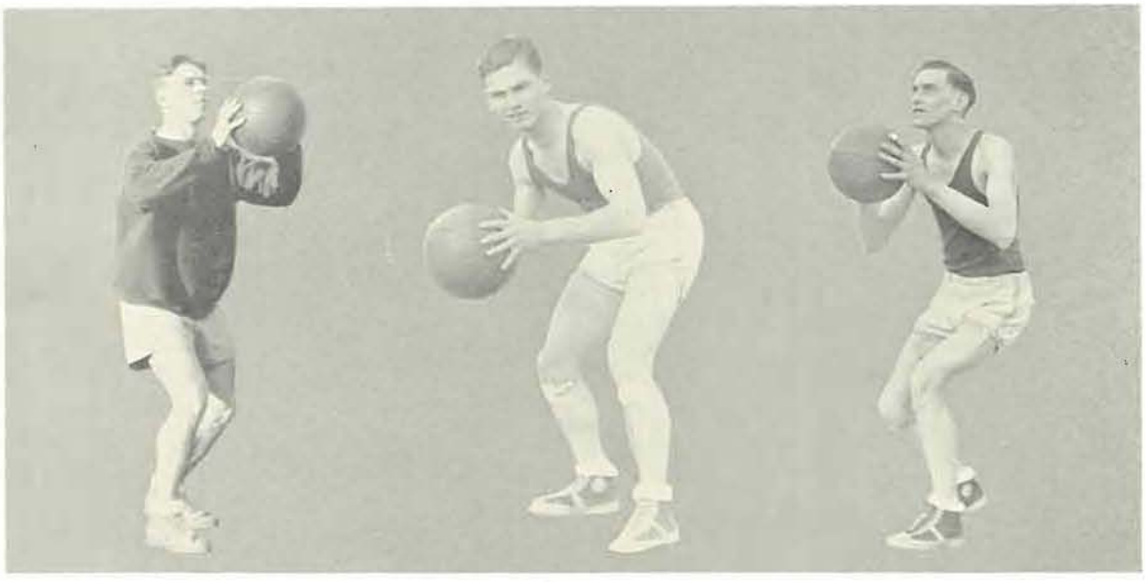
OREGON STATE DISILLUSIONED



Mervyn Chastain | Cliff Horner | Jean Eberhart

THE WEBFOOTS forgot all about being delicate and temperamental in the two encounters with O. S. C. Perhaps the Aggies never will know just how Oregon happened to win from them by scores of 30 to 21, and 35 to 26.

Jean Eberhart and Cliff Horner, sophomores just breaking into the Oregon lineup, supplied the necessary genius for the Webfoot team. Eberhart was high point man in both contests, with 11 and 14 points to his credit. Horner was of great value to the Oregon defense.

Had these two games not been played, the Aggies could have fastened a logical claim on the state title on a basis of comparative scores, since they won from every other team in the conference except Washington.

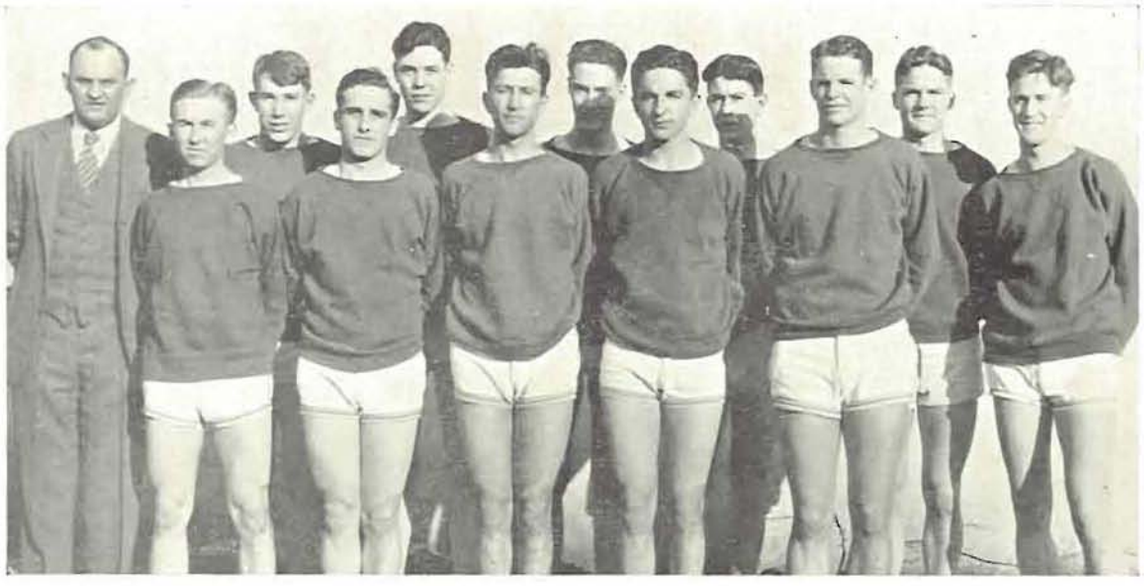
FROSH HOOPSTERS TRY



Leslie, coach; Keenan, Bale, Stevens, Phipps, Bradley, Ragan, Levoff, Mahan, Fletcher, Scales, Dolp

SPIKE LESLIE coached the frosh basketball team through a rather dull season this year. The rooks can claim an edge over the frosh. They were able to take three out of four games from the Oregon players. The games were all close, however. In the last two, the rooks overcame margins of around 10 points in the final quarters. The Washington babes defeated the Oregon frosh at Seattle, but the series was divided when the frosh defeated the babes at Eugene.

Vincent Dolp was one of the steady players of the team. He was a guard, and fell more readily into the Oregon system than did some of the others. William Keenan, forward and Kermit Stevens, guard, won their berths on the team through aggressiveness. Stephen Fletcher got the call at center, being perhaps a bit more consistent than other aspirants for his position. Two forwards of ability were Henry Levoff and Donald Ragan.

TRACK

OFF YEAR IN VARSITY TRACK

William L. Hayward
The Coach

WILLIAM L. HAYWARD came to Oregon as head track coach in 1902 with a most remarkable athletic career behind him. One does not wonder on seeing Bill even now, that during a single day years ago he won a three-mile boat race and entered 22 track and field events and won all but three or four of them.

Bill's slogan is that every man with two legs is a track man, and he has often proved its practicability by developing weaklings into stars. Five times Bill has traveled to Europe as a coach of the United States Olympic team.

THE TRACK SEASON

When compared with other Oregon track years, the 1928 season was disappointing, though not so keenly, perhaps, on consideration of the prospects for a team at the start of the spring season. Not one meet was won by Oregon this season.

In field events the team was practically normal, for in the meets with Washington, W. S. C. and O. S. C., Oregon weight men and jumpers scored a total of 83 5-6 points to opponents' 78 1-6; while in the same meets, the other two-thirds of the team, the runners, scored only 58 points to opponents' 173.

It was a dark period for Oregon track, but fortunately its effects will not carry over into another year. There were too many good frosh and erstwhile ineligible varsity men on hand for that.

Cross-Country Team
Leonard Steele, Harry Fitch, Ralph Hill, Mervin Simpson, Bill Winter, Ed Jensen

Mile relay—O. S. C., first (Wood, Ritter, Joos, Sisson;) Oregon, second (Standard, Pearson, McKennon, Ross.) Time, 3:27 4-5.

220-yard low hurdles—Martin, O. S. C., first; Twitchell, O. S. C., second; Kelley, Oregon, third. Time, 26 seconds.

Javelin—Wetzel, Oregon, first; Whitlock, O. S. C., second; Dickson, Oregon, third. Distance, 188 feet, 9½ inches.

THE CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM

As far as quality was concerned, Oregon's cross-country team was good, but it was weak on reserve strength. The harrier season and flu season happened to have been scheduled at the same time this year. To make matters worse, the captain, Clarence Hill, broke his leg while running in the first race, which was against O. S. C., though his brother, Ralph, placed first against the field.

O. S. C. won the first meet 73 to 92. In a triangular meet, which was the only other entered by Oregon, Washington took first, W. S. C. second, and Oregon third.

THE FROSH TRACK SEASON

THE FROSH track team of 1928 had about everything that the varsity lacked; that is, most of the points for the season were made in the running events. Howard Lowry, a sprinter and broad jumper, was high man for the season with 37 points. Bert Tuttich and Francis Hill pressed him in every one of his events. Edward Siegmund was a hurdle star, and was at times used as a sprinter.

Ralph Hill ran some beautiful races in the mile, and went through the season undefeated. Irving Anderson, in his first experience at the 440, turned in some exceptionally good time and finished his season by winning his event against the O. S. C. rooks.

Billy Reinhart
The Coach

BILLY REINHART is famous; and it is because the varsity baseball, varsity basketball, and frosh football teams he coaches have learned that when Billy gives advice, he knows what he is talking about.

Perhaps more dope has been upset by Billy's teams than by any or all of the other Webfoot teams since he came here.

THE BASEBALL SEASON

Oregon won the baseball championship of the northwest last spring.

Washington lost two and O. S. C. lost three out of four games each played with the Webfoots. Then W. S. C., who had defeated Idaho and Montana, came to Eugene to settle for the Northwest championship in a three-game series.

Oregon won the first game of the series without very much trouble, but lost the second after tying the score several times right up to the end of the game. Oregon won the third by only the slimmest of margins, made possible by a circuit hit by Cecil Gabriel in the seventh inning, and another by Don McCormick in the tenth. In these three games. Kenneth Robie, Oregon shortstop, accepted 27 chances without making a single error.

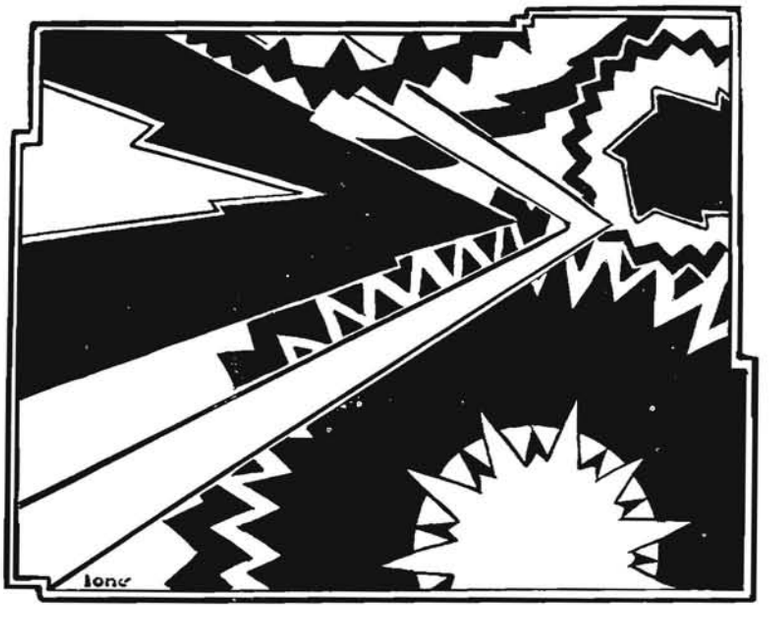
THE FROSH BASEBALL SEASON

There was very little about the frosh baseball team to indicate just how poor or how good it was. The frosh did not win a Northwest championship as the varsity did, but at the same time it could not be said that the youngsters displayed any seriously harmful traits. The frosh won four out of the eight games they played. They did not lose any games by very large scores, and defeated every team they met at least once. Many of the contests were played so loosely that it was difficult to determine just what the frosh could be expected to do.

The frosh lost three out of four games to the rooks. Monmouth normal beat the frosh in their first game by a score of 5 to 3, but on the very next day the frosh swamped Monmouth with a score of 11 to 0. Other games were won from Salem high school and from Southern Oregon normal.

Harold Olinger, who batted .500 per cent, and Robert Barnes, who batted .485 per cent, were perhaps the most consistent players on the team. Both men were outfielders.

Vernon Arnett pitched the best game of the season when he held the Monmouth normal team down to two hits. Fran Andrews, Al Hilgers, Harold Blackburn, Koke Smith, Cliff Horner, and several others are the infielders the next few varsities can call on. George Chappell and Fred Basche were an important part of the patching staff. Ted Park proved himself to be a catcher who actually knows how to bat.



TENNIS

RACKETS SING CHAMPIONSHIP

Edward E. Abercrombie
The Coach

EDWARD F. ABERCROMBIE is the man who coached the Webfoot swimming team and tennis teams into northwest championships this year.

When Abbie came here three years ago, tennis and swimming were obscure minor sports. This year they were both given major rating, and frosh were kept busy looking for seat-stretchers to accommodate the crowds at the contests.

Men like to work for Abbie. They have confidence in him; and what is more, Abbie sees that his men have confidence in themselves.

Abbie has an eye for material, and he knows how to develop it when he finds it. He has shown that conclusively. And this year, he has shown what he could do with teams of experienced men.

THE TENNIS SEASON

The Oregon tennis team introduced their game as a major sport on the Oregon campus by winning the championship of the Northwest, defeating the University of Washington for the very first time since tennis matches have been played between the two schools. Oregon won 17 out of the 18 matches played in three Northwest meets, by completely shutting out O. S. C. in two meets with scores of 6 to 0, and by winning a meet from Washington with a score of 5 to 1.

The California schools were superior to Oregon last spring, however. The best the Webfoots could do on a trip south in the early part of the season was to win two out of ten matches played in meets in the University of California, and with Stanford. Henry Neer and Clarence Hartman won their doubles match with Dick Hoogs and Bud Hager, of California, and Henry Neer won his singles match with Allen Herrington, of Stanford.

In the Pacific Coast Conference tournament, held at Seattle, Henry Neer, who played number one on the Oregon team, reached the semi-final round, but was eliminated there by Ralph McElvenny, of Stanford, who was the same player that Neer had defeated in winning the coast conference singles title in 1927. The finals of the tournament was won by Allen Herrington, of Stanford, whom Neer had defeated in the dual meet earlier in the season.

The Stanford doubles team, of McElvenny and Herrington, later won the national intercollegiate championship.

Oregon's strength outside of college competition was tested in a meet with the Seattle tennis club. Oregon won, 4 to 3. Dick Edge of the Oregon team, gave Leon Turenne, ranked as Northwest champion, some close competition, but lost to him by a small margin. Henry Neer defeated Dan Lewis, playing in number two position on the Seattle team; Clare Hartman won from Armond Marion; and Howard Shaw won from Howard Langlie. Hartman and Neer won their doubles match from Lewis and Langlie, but Edge and Shaw lost to Turenne and Marion.

Throughout the season Neer played in the first position on the team. Shaw and Hartman alternated between the second and third positions, while Dick Edge held down the fourth. Til Peterson, Tom Cross, and Bill Powell broke into the Oregon lineup occasionally.

Dick Edge was the only man on the regular team who was lost through graduation. Clarence Hartman and Henry Neer each have one more year of competition, while Howard Shaw will be eligible for two more years.

VARSITY MATERIAL

There are three men in school who should do much to bring national recognition in tennis to Oregon. Two of them, Stanley Almquist and Sherman Lockwood, were members of the frosh tennis team, and went through the season undefeated. The other, Bradshaw Harrison, who transferred here and was ineligible for conference competition last spring, has the distinction of being one of the leading players in the United States, and ranks perhaps first on the Pacific Coast. The Oregon frosh made a clean sweep of the meet with the Washington frosh.

SWIMMERS REACH NEW HEIGHT

Varsity Swimmers
Back row—Brown, Gillett, McAlpin, Creech, Neer
Middle row—Sharp, Atkinson, Floyd, Anderson, Lewis, Allen
Bottom row—Abercrombie, Coach; Silverman, Hatton, Bishop, Thompson, Wood, Manager

THE 1929 SWIMMING season was the most successful Oregon ever had. Stanford possessed the only team on the Pacific Coast capable of defeating the Webfoots. For that matter, no other coast team could even approach Oregon this year in swimming. Oregon won four out of six meets with decisive scores.

Northwestern University, touring the country with a remarkable combination of titleholders in quest of the national championship, defeated Oregon 41 to 26 when their team invaded Eugene, but the Chicago outfit had to better a coast record in nearly every event to do so.

O. S. C. was foundered by a score of 52 to 14 in the first meet of the season, and was given the same sort of treatment in the final meet, losing by a score of 40 to 27.

California and U. S. C. also had water kicked in their faces, for when the Webfoots traveled south, they defeated the Bruins 48 to 19, and the Trojans 38 to 21. Stanford alone upheld the honor of the state where there is outdoor swimming the year around, by beating Oregon 51 to 16.

THE FROSH SWIMMING SEASON

The frosh swimming team proved itself to be actually better than the varsity this year by defeating the latter in a dual meet by a margin of twelve points. Outstanding members of the frosh squad were Tommy Blankenburg, Frank Walton, and McGowan Miller. These three men did not swim in the regular frosh meets, but they did swim unattached against the Northwestern medley relay team and forced the Chicago boys to break a world's record in that event. The three frosh clipped a part of a second off the old world record themselves in the same race. Blankenburg was a member of the 1928 United States Olympic team, and holds the national outdoor record in the 440-yard breast stroke. Since he has been in school here he has broken unofficially several national and coast breast stroke records. Walton has several times unofficially broken coast free style and back stroke records. Miller is unofficially credited with bettering coast records in free style races.

Without these three stars, the frosh team was able to make a good showing in all of their meets, and did not lose a single contest. The frosh defeated the O. S. C. rooks and Salem high by decisive scores.

Members of the regular team turning in high point totals were Al Edwards, Paul Lafferty, and Dick Torrey.

GOLF

GOLF RECOGNIZED

Robert Giffen Richard Schroeder Steadman Shaw John Gray

THE 1928 SEASON was the first in which golf was given a minor sports rating on the Oregon campus. The team placed fourth among the seven coast schools. Bob Giffen was the coach of the team as well as an active member himself. The Webfoots suffered a severe handicap because of the lack of experienced men from whom to select a squad, and also because of the loss of the captain, Ed Crowley, in mid-season.

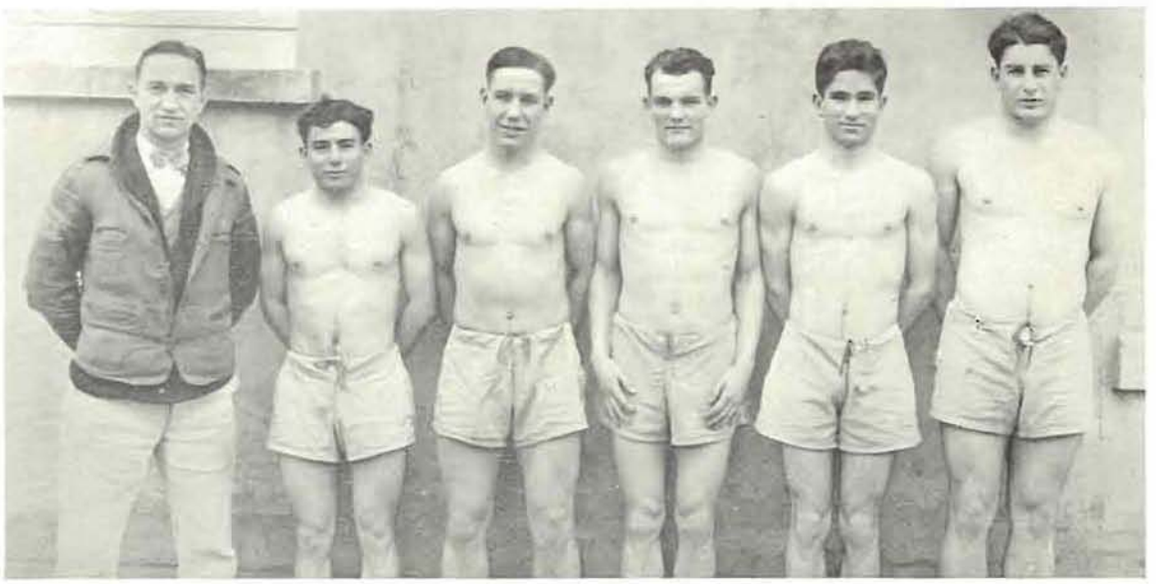
The first event of the season for the Oregon team was the coast conference tournament held at San Francisco. The Webfoot team, made up of Ed Crowley and Bob Giffen, was not accustomed to the faster California courses and had trouble, but managed to place fourth.

After returning from this tourney, Ed Crowley, playing first man on the squad, gave up golf in order that he might participate in track.

The O. S. C.-Oregon team match, held at Eugene Country club, ended in a tie score of 3 to 3. The Webfoot team consisted of Bob Griffen, Dick Schroeder, John Gray, and Steadman Shaw. The next day the team went to Corvallis for singles matches. They did not fare so well there, and were defeated by O. S. C. with a 6 to 3 score.

The Oregon frosh team did very well against the O. S. C. rooks, making a clean sweep of the matches and winning 6 to 0. Those participating for the frosh were Bob Hammond, Francis Andrews, Bill Johnson, and Art Ireland.

BOXERS ENTER LISTS



Herman Gawer, Coach; Reuben Lockitch, Lloyd McKillip, Robert Knox, Gaither Everett, Henry Patton

THE MILLIONAIRES' game, boxing, clamored for admittance into the circle of recognized sports this year. There had been a general agitation for some time to put a boxing team into the large field of intercollegiate competition.

Up till last spring there had been no important boxing meets held in the state of Oregon for several years, and the sport was not well enough along to warrant the expense of sending a team any great distance.

Last spring, however, Olympic team elimination tryouts were held in Portland, and though no Oregon boxers were sent from there to the national meet, several men did earn recognition. Robert Knox won the Northwest title in the 145-pound class, and Harvey Wright fought to a draw in the 155-pound class.

Several of the men who had participated in this meet were back in school this year, and the general interest in boxing around the physical education department ran high. And as a further stimulation to the activity, it happened that the Pacific Coast amateur boxing tournament was scheduled for Portland in February, thus assuring the boxing team of at least one meet.

Accidents of various kinds weakened the team for this meet, and as a result, the Webfoot representatives brought credit to themselves for but one thing—for trying.

MANAGERS EARN PRAISE

Wade Newbegin
General Athletic Manager

SPORT MANAGERS receive credit on the merit system. To earn letters men must work three years, beginning in their sophomore year. Freshmen are eliminated. From those sophomores who work as managers' assistants, the junior managers are selected. There are from three to five of these for each sport.

Seniors who completed their third year of service in 1929 were: Football, George Schade; basketball, Fred Stanley; swimming, Marcus Woods; track, Burr Abner; tennis, Austin Shepherd; baseball, Gordon Miller. These men received sweaters this year.

Junior athletic managers for 1928-29 were: Football, Carl Landstrom, Myron Gray, Russell Baker, Jack Sammons, and Seth Thompson; basketball, LeRoy Hall, and Russell Baker; swimming, James Raley and George Peterson; track, Frank Cusan, Harry Wolf, Bill Barry; baseball, Lawrence Parks, Harper Barnard, and Fletcher Udall; tennis, Phil Holmes and Don Wheat.

Sport managers are busy men. Upon them rests the responsibility of making all athletic events function smoothly. There is a lot of work involved in this. Teams must be cared for, especially on road trips, and athletic fields and equipment have to be kept in condition. Sophomores assist in this latter work.

Golf, recognized last year as a major sport, is still in an embryonic stage, and managers have not as yet been chosen for it.

MRS. MURRAY WARNER

A childhood predilection, fostered by intensive study of museums in Europe, America, and the Orient, has made Mrs. Murray Warner an authority on art collections.

At the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war, Mrs. Murray Warner, then Gertrude Bass, accompanied her brother, John, a war correspondent, to Japan. Later they moved to Shanghai, where she met and married Major Murray Warner.

Shortly afterwards, Mrs. Warner started her collection of Oriental art, establishing what she called her "play room" in her Shanghai home. She and her husband traveled far inland, finding many rare objects and having a great many adventures.

Sam Bass Warner, her son, while a professor of law on the Oregon campus, first drew her interest to the university, an interest which culminated in the gift of her collection. The seven years since that time have frequently found Mrs. Warner in the Orient gathering objects of untold value to add to the collection.

Ancestral robes, we find there--huge and gorgeously wrought in vivid hues, scarlet, gold, and purple--bearing the woven symbols of religion and time honored tradition--tokens of the veneration due to forefathers. And there are other robes which hung perhaps in ancient times from the stately shoulders of a mighty oriental prince--robes whose embroidered skirts picture the fantastic legends of a bygone age--

There are prints--dimmed, many of them, by the passing of centuries--but beautiful nonetheless--speaking of delicate handicraft done by the patient fingers of old Chinese artists--

And here--an enormous incense burner--strangely fashioned of brass--breathing the fragrance of the Orient--bringing thoughts of pagodas and dreams of a land across the sea.

A spirit of friendship and co-operation among the women at Oregon, which is not to be gained through the casual contacts of campus life, is brought about by the work of the Women's League.

The Big Sister organization, through which new women students are helped to adjust themselves to college life, is perhaps the biggest work of the League. The annual "Get Wise" party and the bi-weekly informal teas, which are held at the Woman's building under the auspices of the Big Sister committee, bring about a closer friendship among university women. This year each house on the campus has been in charge of one of these teas.

Each year a foreign student is brought to the campus through the scholarship fund. To secure the means to do this, the League sponsors the "Dime Crawls" which are held each term on the campus, and the annual Christmas College Ball. This year, Luise Huls, of Germany, is the foreign student.

The Y. W. C. A., which may be called the connecting link between the institutions of the church and education, has its headquarters at the Bungalow on the edge of the campus. Miss Dorothy Thomas, Y. W. C. A. secretary, is at the head of the organization, but much of the work is done by a cabinet of students.

The Y. W. C. A. has a wide range of activities. It sponsors conferences such as those held annually at Seabeck; the Frosh Commission furnishes first year yomen a chance to become acquainted and to do interesting work. Vesper services supply a religious element to busy college life.

Another successful year of sports has been passed by the Women's Athletic Association of Oregon. The athletically inclined co-eds have engaged in everything from speedball in the fall to tennis in the spring.

These intramural sports are one of the most interesting features of the organization. Teams for each year are organized in a sport, and anyone who wishes may try for a team. Each player is awarded a stipulated number of points, which count toward an Oregon letter. First team players earn one hundred points; second team, seventy-five; and third, fifty. As many teams are organized in each class as there are girls out for the sport. Five hundred points is the amount required for an Oregon letter.

Fall term much interest was aroused by swimming, speedball, and volley ball. During the winter term, the girls occupied themselves with basketball and lacrosse. In the spring, the tennis, baseball, and hockey enthusiasts held sway.

In addition to these sports, hiking is a favorite way to win points for W. A. A. By hiking seventy miles, a girl can earn fifty points. The cabin at The Braes, opened last year, is a popular place to make the object of a hike. The cabin is furnished by the organization and is an ideal place to cook and rest after a long trek.

A movement was started this year by the association to introduce inter-house sports among the girls' living groups. The annual banquet of W. A. A. was held on February twenty-eighth. At this time, letters were awarded and the officers for next year announced.

This year eight letters were awarded girls having won five hundred points; three sweaters were given for one thousand points; and one stripe was given. The stripe was won by Marjorie Landru, and was the second one that she has earned. This is the highest award given by W. A. A., and means that the girl winning it has earned 2,000 points. Marjorie is the second girl in the University to have attained this honor.

The Ultimate Web

Small, black spider
Who have just spun
A taut, new web,
What have you begun?

Leaving your old net
Ragged and dry,
You weave a new thread
For some foolish fly.

Small, black spider
Your web is not yet done;
For the earth you'll spin at last
Grey oblivion.

JOHN SCHEFFER.

This volume was made possible largely through the support of the advertisers. Each one of the following pages contains a message that comes from those who are interested in the welfare of every student as well as the University at large.

¶ Students will do well to give their most thorough consideration to these advertisements, and to use the same judgment in their business affairs as has been evidenced in their university life.

¶ We take this opportunity to thank the advertisers for their cooperation and support.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

The passing of the Kappa, the decline of the Chi Psi, and the evolution of the Fiji just aren't in it alongside the turning of the Theta! But she has turned, ladies and gentlemen, she has turned. The once highly exalted name Theta has been dragged through the mill race and under a fraternity shower bath. It was all done under the guise of Hallowe'en, but it counts.

THETA CHI

If just a new house will put Theta Chi on the map, the new house had better be about fifty stories high. The boys have been rushing by blue prints for years, and many an innocent frosh fell for them. A novel plan to be carried out in the new house is a big leather rocking chair for each letter man. (Not much will be spent on rocking chairs).

He united the country with nails

BEN FRANKLIN made the horseshoe nail a symbol of the importance of little things. "The kingdom was lost and all for the want of a horseshoe nail", goes one of his wise sayings. So when he became Postmaster General, he knew full well the need for proper horseshoeing as one step in punctual mail schedules.

The care given to details can still make or break a great plan. In the telephone industry, for example, the development of compact paper insulation helped to make possible the small diameter cable and therefore the vast underground plant necessary to serve large cities.

A multiplicity of details, from the testing of long fibre cotton to the "voice with the smile", offer a continual challenge to the Bell System men who unite the nation with telephones.

ALPHA PHI

There ought to be a lot of good singers in this house. That is, if Lucky Strike advertisements carry any truth at all. Smoke from the Alpha Phi house is blamed by the weather man for the heavy fogs that have blanketed Eugene all year. Alpha Phi's are popular with Chi Psi's because it is so handy to drop over and bum a smoke from the girls.

IN THE old days when the clerk weighed his hand along with the butter and scooped up beans with a false bottom measure, business was business.

Our more acquisitive natures have not lately become less acquisitive; we are just more civilized. Education, travel, trade associations, business men's faith in one another, have softened the tones in the business scale.

Today the man who insists that "business is business" finds it hard to buy fire insurance and the salesman whose "business is business" finds himself out of pitch.

Our policies have always been to offer full value for value received. Today more than ever before we are striving to keep up with the modern trends of business and to offer a greater service to the public.

KAPPA SIGMA

Better known on the Oregon campus as a music honorary. Of course athletes aren't exactly barred, but nevertheless something seems to bar a lot of them. Maybe it's because the Kappa Sigs are out after the Phi Psi type now. Why, they're almost saying how good they are in the East. And it's a fact that they were too good to bother with Open House.

This is what comes of putting girls from Eastern Oregon on the building committee. The barn and silo are rather out of place in a city like Eugene, but the girls built outside the restricted district and the city council could do nothing. The barn is to be paid for from the profits of a dairy herd, and also from field crops.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Football men and basketball men won't pledge S. A. E. any more. In fact S. A. E. letter men in these sports are as scarce as sauerkraut and weinies in a Chinese restaurant. The novelty is wearing off the new house too, so this year the boys have been at their wit's end trying to get their much loved publicity. Of course they always have "Noble."

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

If there is a scarcity of girls, you can get in by swimming one length of the tank. Otherwise, the requirement is three lengths. If you have lots of money and can help pay for the new house, you can use water wings. There is no limit on the time, but they do favor speed—the idea being that you won't have time to change your mind about pledging.

WHOLESOME FOOD—attractively served — a pleasant, restful environment—service par-excellence—good music and dancing—all these combine to make Lee-Duke's the rendezvous for people who know. Our banquet hall and ball room are at your disposal for private parties.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Hugh Biggs, A. T. O. and acting dean of men, must have known what he was talking about when he said that Oregon men do not drink. At least he has lived around the A. T. O. house long enough to know. In all seriousness though, can you imagine an A. T. O. getting kicked out of school for anything? Why, the police can't even search the house without Hugh's consent!

DELTA GAMMA

"A bigger anchor on the pin, and bars over the windows," is the slogan being used in the drive to hold onto the girls. Bank book pledging has been resorted to this year in an effort to wipe out the debt of the new house, but some of the girls consider the rates a little high. At any rate, two star pledges moved out and went back to California.

SIGMA CHI

It was a shame to let the "Sigma Chi House Wreckers" move into a nice new home. Before long it will look like every other house they have lived in. They have the "Holy Trinity" of tennis now, but they still let Joe McKeown eat there. You should have peeked in on their "basement banquet" in Portland. It had what their Eugene barn dance lacked!

The girls bought an old, one room house, tied a few rooms and things onto it, and now they have a new house. It is so far out that the University health authorities are considering leasing it for a pest house. It is certainly isolated. The artist who sketched this was out there for nearly twenty-four hours and didn't see a soul.

CHI PSI

Chi Psi is on the Oregon campus. It says so in the telephone book. They are noted for lack of grades and athletes. As long as so little time is taken up with activities you would think time for studying would not be lacking. Of course it can't be denied that they have activities. They're just of a different sort, that's all.

CHI OMEGA

The inmates of the Chi Omega "nunnery" have broken more rules than any other house on the campus. That's because they have more to break. In another year men won't even be allowed in the house, and if things keep on as they are, they won't want to. Why, the girls can't even carry on a telephone conversation in a dark telephone booth!

DELTA TAU DELTA

The boys have sworn off having a football player for house president. They weren't able to cut loose and drink their Canada Dry this year at all, except when he was away with the team. Do you like the Delt singing trio? Music critics who have heard it say that it has something in common with Al Jolson. (It is so pathetic).

"Success To Printing"

SUCH was the toast of Benjamin Franklin when he returned to England in 1768 and gathered about him the workers at the wooden hand press at which he was a journeyman printer forty years before.

Franklin succeeded because he recognized that printing is a fine art of expression, such as literature, painting and sculpture.

Franklin studied words, and wrote his own copy. He studied type and cuts and did what many printers fail to do: recognized paper as an important vehicle of expression. He learned early what many ignore: that paper expresses much which is beyond type and cuts—strength, vitality, life, delicacy, atmosphere, and character.

The Oregana effectively illustrates how modern printing reaches far beyond the realm of type and pictures and offers the opportunity of greatly enhancing the appeal of any message.

When the reader unconsciously feels an atmosphere of quality about the communication the printer has fulfilled his mission. Koke-Chapman printing creates such an impression.

What This "Ad" Means

IT MEANS that the University Co-operative Store, founded in 1916 by the Associated Students of Oregon, has during the past years faithfully sought to follow the program that was set for it.

Since that year it has progressed . . sometimes slowly . . until now the term Co-op implies an institution that can meet every need of the Oregon Student. . . It was designed for such an institution by its founders.

It has entered into competition, set fair prices, lent its strength to student activities . . and above all has been eager to serve.

Today you may step into the Co-op and find a staff that is willing and able to help you. Today the students of Oregon find their interest centering in a store that is their own.

A city is no better than its institutions

THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON is Eugene's greatest institution—fifty-three years old—yet ever young—always its campus vibrates with the spirit of youth. Through its halls and corridors tramp the young joyous life of the great forward-looking west.

Natural it is, that this modern store growing up in the shadow of the University — inspired by the vision of its leaders—enlivened by the enthusiasm of its young men and women should also become one of Eugene's great institutions. Here, always, the young people who make their homes in this charming city will ever find that kind of a store which responds to their desires—which enters into their activities and which believes whole heartedly in the modern young man and young woman of today.

PHI DELTA THETA

The two Portland basketball players who were such big stars at the University of Washington this year would gladly have come to Oregon, only they were afraid they wouldn't make Phi Delt. It would be only fair if the Phi Delts would help the school out a little by sharing at least part of the team's road trip expenses.

PI BETA PHI

The girls won one honor this year. They were awarded the Pan-Hellenic Prowler Cup, given the house wearing the most attractive pajamas during the prowler scare. It was queer that the Pi Phi's made such a fuss over a solitary prowler, when they have been living right across the street from about fifty of them ever since the house was built.

Their list of pledges each fall resembles the Eugene city directory. It is a mystery how they pledge so many, and still it isn't. All you need to do is carry a musical instrument over to dinner and you're pledged. You don't have to be able to play the instrument. At least that's what we hear. No wonder the Diji's moved so far away.

PHI KAPPA PSI

It's all right if you can stand it down there, but a good many of the boys can't. That's why Sherry Ross hall is full of Phi Psi's. That and the fact that it opens up a source of possible rushees. And goodness knows such a source is needed, now that Kappa Sig has turned some high powered rushing guns in that direction.

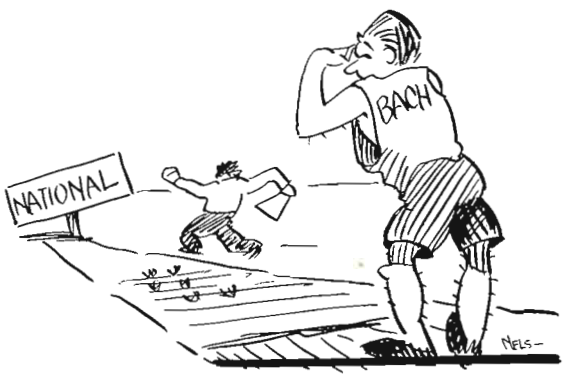
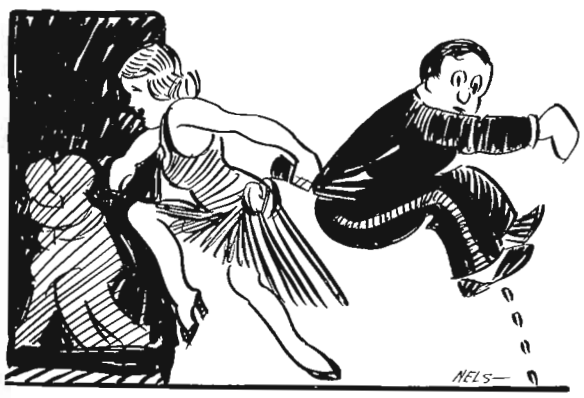
BACHELORDON

The boys expected to break into the head-lines in swimming big this year, but some swimmers from other states came to school here and spoiled it all. It all means that Bredthauer will have to jump farther than ever to jump the boys into a national. People are still drawing a distinction between Bachelordon and "Old Bachelordon."





DELTA DELTA DELTA

The girls live so far away from civilization (apologies to Delt, Fiji, and Ally-oop), that they had to have something special to attract men. Madge Normile and "New Orleans" finally failed, so now they have the Den, or "necking parlor." There is always a rush home after dates because the first girl there can take the boy friend into the den.

PSI KAPPA

The Psi Kappas have been out to dinner lots this year. All the girls want to meet Johnny. Whenever Psi Kappa needs pledges, Johnny goes up through the dorm and brings back all they need. When they get Theta Delt they should call it Kitzmiller chapter of Theta Delta Chi, even thou Johnny himself will have long since graduated.

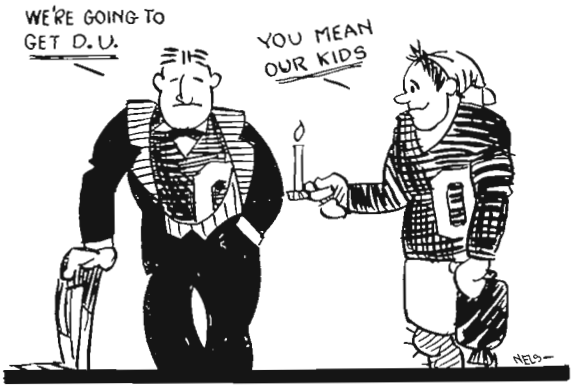
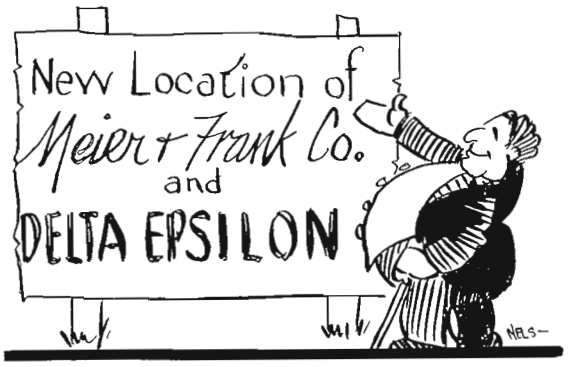
Pi and Alpha Xi fought it out for the small town belles last rush week, the rushees finally choosing between the latter's Studebaker and the former's "Dodge."

SIGMA PI TAU

If D. U. ever comes, so many S. P. T.'s will die of heart failure that there won't be many left to be initiated. In the meantime the boys with letters will go on leading a life of misery. They have to wear their sweaters to the dinner table, to formals, to commencement, and to bed. About now the annual rumor that they have their national is due.





DELTA EPSILON

They have been here long enough now to have something said about them. It will be remembered that Meier & Frank of Portland were going to help the boys along in building a new house. Well, the latest dope is that Meier & Frank are waiting until they put a store in Eugene, and then they will give the Delta Epsilon boys the upper floor.

SIGMA NU

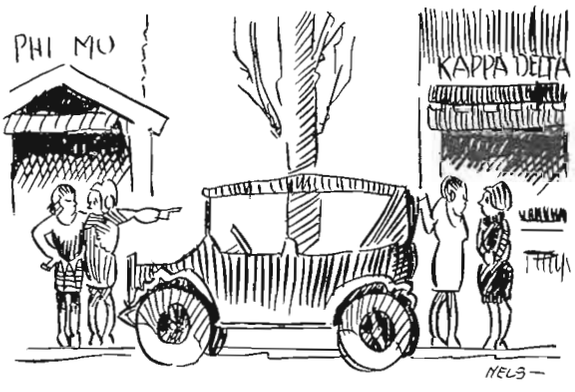
The chapter on the fifth floor of the Multnomah hotel in Portland was more than popular during all games played in that city. It was nearly as popular as the Eugene chapter always is during vacations. The boys nearly went bankrupt over a heavy piece of rushing that didn't turn out just right, but then every house gets tough breaks like that.

ALPHA UPSILON

So near bankruptcy that they can't even buy soap. They wash at the men's gym and Hagstrom even had the nerve to complain about University soap. Together with Psi Kappa and Sigma Phi Epsilon, they make up the "Big Three" on the Oregon campus. Alpha Upsilon will have a national some day. Yes, and the Co-op will give books away some day.

CHI DELTA

We will pay $1000 to the person who can tell us where they live or who they are. It will be too late to do us any good, but we'd just like to know. The name sounds so much like Tri-Delt and Phi Delt that the girls are said to get no little company that was intended for these houses. They just jump right onto you and hold you.



PHI MU AND KAPPA DELTA

An intense feud has raged between these two rival houses for years, and it is all due to a car that is usually parked directly between the two. The Kappa Delta's tell rushees that it belongs next door, and the Phi Mu's say the same thing to their rushees. Lest we influence any rushee either way, we shall let the car's ownership remain a secret.

DELTA ZETA

The girls live so far away that they aren't a bit strict about sneaking out or letting men stay after hours. We hate to see it end, but there is talk that Delta Zeta is coming to the campus next year and if they do they will of course discontinue their Delta Tau (Down Town) chapter. We hope they really do come to the campus; we've heard so much about them!
