

Art Feature: “Balance”

Josie Saccio-Devine*

This piece was inspired by a scene I saw while birdwatching that reminded me of yin and yang. The dark of the grey heron was balanced by the bright green water, and the light of the egret was balanced by the dark red algae. Simply observing nature is a large part of environmental science, there's so much that we don't notice day to day.

Medium: Acrylic Paint on stretched canvas.

*Josaphine (jsacciod@uoregon.edu) is a second-year student majoring in Environmental Science and Biological Anthropology. She has always found the connection between art and science to be integral and enjoys using her studies to inspire her work about the natural world.