WINTER SCENE ON THE OREGON CAMPUS—WITH SNOW ON THE PINES AND THE PIONEER

It is seldom that Oregon students have the chance to see the senior bench, memorial of the class of 1910, snow decked. This picture was taken two years ago, the last time the campus was covered with snow.

"The fact is, that civilization requires slaves. Human slavery is wrong, insecure, and demoralizing. On mechanical slavery, on the slavery of the machine, the future of the world depends."

—Oscar Wilde

Slaves

In a quarter century the General Electric Company has produced electric motors having a total of more than 350,000,000 man-power. Electric light, heat, and transportation have also contributed their part to the freeing of men. These are America's slaves. Through their service American workers do more, earn more, and produce quality goods at lower cost than anywhere else in the world.

You will find this monogram on all kinds of electrical machinery. To insure quality, ask for it on the equipment you buy for your factory, office, or home.

MAIN FEATURES OF THE INTERCOLLEGIATE ALUMNI HOTEL MOVEMENT

Interested alumni can secure from a clerk at the desk of each Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel an information leaflet which describes in detail the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement.

At each Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel there will be maintained a card index of the names of all the resident alumni of all the participating institutions. This will be of especial benefit to traveling alumni in locating classmates and friends.

The current issues of the alumni publications of all the participating institutions will be on file at each Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel.

Reservation cards will be available at the clerk's desk in each designated hotel and at the alumni office in each college or university. These reservation cards will serve as a great convenience to travelers in securing advance accommodations.

The managers of all Intercollegiate Alumni Hotels are prepared to cooperate with individual alumni to the fullest extent and are also prepared to assist in the creation of new local alumni associations and in the development and extension of the activities of those already formed.

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE ORGANIZATION

The Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement is the result of a year's effort on the part of a Committee, the members of which have long been identified with alumni work.

The funds to insure the success of the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement are being advanced by the designated hotels, which have been selected after a careful study of their fitness for participation.

The committee on organization, the activities of which are controlled by a special group of the members of the Alumni Magazines Associated, has incorporated a non-profit corporation known as the Intercollegiate Alumni Extension Service, Inc., which will direct the policies of the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement and serve as a coordinating unit between the alumni organizations and the designated hotels.

DEADY HALL, THE FIRST BUILDING, AS IT WAS AFTER ITS COMPLETION FIFTY YEARS AGO AND AS IT IS TODAY
One of the photographs which will be published shortly in a booklet issued under auspices of the Alumni Association.

Antiquity of Learning and its Benevolence

By DR. LUELLA CLAY CARSON

TWO soldiers were passing an ancient building in Paris called the National Archives, that had stood there since the thirteenth century and housed the world's largest collection of documents. The soldiers paused and one stood at attention. "Whom do you salute?" said the young soldier. And the man who had lifted his hat in reverence, replied: "I salute those no more on earth, who have made us what we are."

Fifty years ago yonder ancient building opened its doors to the pioneer students of the new University. We are here formally to dedicate this honored hall of learning. But, in truth we are here to renew appreciation of all that has been done here by state, builders, teachers, and students in this half century that has passed. This building has been dedicated by those who wrought out within its walls the purpose for which it was placed here. The wealth of knowledge, power to control and create forces, and life-long influences given by the professors in this building through the half century cannot be estimated. And out of its heart this ancestor has endowed thousands of students with deeper personality and purpose, with finer, loftier character, with a new conception of the meaning of democracy and with qualities of leadership.

And the dear old building full of memories seems to those returned after a long absence like unto an old friend crowned with age. And today we honor it as one that led the way. We love its sturdy strength and balance, its unassuming ornamentation, its modest tower, and we recall the steep winding staircases at either end, and the old auditorium taking the whole length and breadth of the top story commodious enough for a commencement assembly.

We pause on this anniversary to honor with renewed gratitude and appreciation the men of Eugene who secured this location and brought about the beginnings of the State University by legislative enactment.

We would honor those early organizers and builders of Eugene and Lane County who for four years, in those meager days of scant population and limited fortunes, struggled to get the money and the means to erect this structure and secure it free from all encumbrance to hand it over to the legislative committee—according to the law and the contract, and we would not forget the workmen who toiled and waited for their returns that they too, might help in carrying out the plans for higher education for this commonwealth. This building testifies to the devoted faith of a few men and the sacrifice of many.

When Oregon was admitted into the Union February 14, 1859, Congress provided for a State University by the grant of seventy-two (72) sections of land for that purpose. But by 1872 the population of the state was not over fifty-three thousand, and five denominational colleges were already established doing earnest work, so that discussion of a State University had only recently arisen, especially due to the need of all these colleges for increased funds. Eugene had known the pride of possessing Columbia College—yonder on College Hill—and had honored the devoted president, Mr. E. P. Henderson.

On this 50th anniversary it is appropriate to recall the names and deeds of those who toiled for this foundation.

I quote in part from a report written by Mr. B. F. Dorris of Eugene, and also from records in the University Library. At the close of the school year 1871-72 the principal of the Eugene Schools reported to the board of directors that students passing the highest grade would be compelled to go abroad for education. September 10, 1872, the school directors, W. J. J. Scott, S. S. Spencer and B. F. Dorris, met and invited County Judge Thompson, Judge J. J. Walton, Principal Arnold and his assistant, Mr. T. M. Martin, to meet with them to discuss establishing a high school. Judge Thompson told the company that the following month the legislature would locate the State University somewhere and he suggested that Eugene apply. It was agreed to call a meeting for the next evening (September 11, 1872), and invite everyone interested. A large number came. It was decided to incorporate under the name "Union University Association" and to prepare a bill asking for location of the University. Judge Thompson, Judge Walton, J. B. Underwood were appointed to draft "articles of incorporation" and "the legislative bill." As five other towns had also applied for the University it was ordered that a circular letter be prepared and mailed to all legislators asking them to remain uncommitted until they heard the several bills to come before them. Within forty-eight hours this circular letter, prepared by B. F. Dorris, was mailed. September 16, 1872, the committee reported "Draft of Bill" and "Articles of incorporation" with names of twelve (12) men as incorporators: J. M. Thompson, J. J. Walton, Jr., W. J. J. Scott, B. F. Dorris, J. G. Gray, J. B. Underwood, J. J. Comstock, A. S. Patterson, S. S. Spencer, E. L. Bristow, E. L. Applegate, and R. W. Patterson.

Both reports were adopted, the secretary requested to file the "Articles of Incorporation" with the Secretary of State, (which was done September 19, 1872) and the incorporators were appointed to attend the session of the Legislature to secure, if possible, the passage of the bill. Six towns had applied to the legislature for the University—Corvallis, Monmouth, Salem, Forest Grove, Albany and Eugene. The contest, though spirited, was honorable throughout, and Eugene won. The report continues: The nonsectarian features in Section IV of our bill gave us a decided advantage, and also the central location of Eugene.

By the terms of the bill enacted by the legislature, approved October 19, 1872, we were pledged to deed to the State by January 1, 1874, free from encumbrance a completed and furnished building and grounds to the value of $50,000. Failure to comply was to void the location. Time allowed: One year, three months.

The "Union University Association" now effected permanent organization by electing J. M. Thompson, president; J. J. Walton, Jr., secretary; Thomas G. Hendricks, treasurer, and five directors. A large committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions. An act had passed the legislature authorizing Lane County to subscribe $30,000. The County Court subscribed that sum and our total soon reached $40,000.

By this time well pleased with the drawings submitted by W. W. Piper, a Portland architect, which the State Board also approved, we adopted Mr. Piper's plans.

The following two items are taken from Portland records:

"The plan of the building originated with the Board of Directors of the Union University Association, which plan was submitted to Governor Grover, and by him changed in some few particulars, then placed in the hands of an architect, W. W. Piper, who amplified the plan, giving the building many of its present architectural beauties."

From the Oregonian, May 2, 1873:

"It would seem from plans exhibited that none could be made better, and for neatness and finish the work is a credit to the architect. Our state may boast of one of the handsomest State University buildings on the coast when completed, which will be within twelve months."

SPEAKERS AT DEDICATION OF OLD DEADY

Dr. Claiborne M. Hill ('81), Dr. Luella Clay Carson, pioneer Oregon professor, and B. B. Beckman ('84) took the leading roles in the dedication of the University's first building, as a feature of Semi-Centennial Week.

We let the contracts for work amounting to about $32,000, and work was progressing steadily when a plea came before the County Court to urge the reconsideration of the court's action in appropriating $30,000 to the University fund, and the court finally rescinded the appropriation order. This was a hard blow to the subscription committee. Judge Walton said: "We will succeed without the aid of the large tax payers; we will appeal to the Patrons of Husbandry, the farmers of the county to help, and they will do it." Up to this time the canvass for funds had been confined mostly to Eugene with less than twelve hundred people. One pioneer said: "There was no wealth. We thought little and said nothing about wealth in those days."

It was agreed to rush the roof and the tin work in order to protect the building from damage of winter rains. Meanwhile, the committee met with liberal response from organized grangers; the school children of the county subscribed for over $1,000. But it was evident that we could not finish by the date set, January 1, 1874, and we would have to get an extension of time. When the legislature met in October, 1874, we took a photograph of the building as it stood; also the architect's original drawings, and obtained permission from the secretary of state to hang these in his office. Our request for time was granted by both houses and the Governor signed the bill October 16, 1874, extending the time three years to January 1, 1877. Work on the building was at once resumed, subscriptions grew. Many farmers had little money but like the New England founders of Harvard, they brought farm products—chickens, eggs, horses, vegetables, and offered work of any kind, as hauling, painting, and Mr. Hendricks, the treasurer, converted these into money.

In the fall of 1875 $16,000 was still needed. A county convention was called and contributed $6,000. At this crisis the Patrons of Husbandry of Lane County agreed to furnish the balance and the building was made ready for use six months before the final date. On June 30, 1876, the Board of Land Commissioners, Governor Grover, State Secretary Chadwick, and Treasurer Brown inspected and accepted the property in the name of the State.

The Board of Directors decided to open the institution on the third Monday in October. They elected John W. Johnson, superintendent of Portland schools and principal of the Portland high school, as president of the University and faculty, and professor of Greek and Latin; Professor Thomas Condon of Pacific University, at Forest Grove, as Professor of geology and natural history; Professor Mark Bailey of McMinnville College as professor of mathematics; for the preparatory department Mrs. Mary E. Spiller, principal; Miss Mary E. Stone, assistant.

On October 16, 1876, the University opened. Only the first floor was ready for classes. The University faculty was on the north side: President Johnson in the northwest corner, then Professor Bailey, and Professor Condon in the northeast corner. The preparatory department was in the two rooms across the hall under Mrs. Spiller and Miss Stone. These five met the students and set going the work of the University of Oregon. There were enrolled during this first year:

In College,	80 students
In preparatory work,	75 "

Making a total of155 "

The President of the Regents, Matthew P. Deady, states in his first report at the close of that first year: "The regents are well satisfied with the results of this first and somewhat experimental year of the School."

At the opening of the second year President Johnson and Professors Bailey and Condon moved up to the second floor. The great auditorium taking the top floor was ready for the first commencement held in June, 1878, when the first graduates, five in number, went out from the University: John C. Whiteaker, George S. Washburne, Robert S. Bean, Matthew S. Wallis, Miss Nellie A. Condon.

Judge Bean and Mrs. Ellen Condon McCormack are here today.

At the close of the second year the first catalogue recorded 89 college students, and in the preparatory department 123, making a total of 211.

NOTE: This holds its own beside the 2,949 enrollment in Eugene last year. Total enrollment last year, 8,536.

The last legislative enactment with which we are concerned today was approved October 21, 1876, just after the University had opened. This enactment is a noble document, stating the ideals, standards and laws governing the new University. It names the directing board "Regents" and provides for their appointment by the Governor. It provides against improvident handling of University funds and grants an appropriation of $10,000 per annum for two years to be set apart from the regular fund and used in completing and furnishing the University building. This appropriation was the first state aid the University received.

The first Board of Regents:

Honorable Matthew P. Deady, Portland
 Honorable Lewis L. McArthur, The Dalles
 Honorable Reuben S. Strahan, Albany
 Dr. S. Hamilton, Roseburg
 Honorable John M. Thompson, Eugene
 Mr. Thomas G. Hendricks, Eugene
 Mr. Benjamin F. Dorris, Eugene
 Mr. George Humnhrey, Eugene
 Mr. Joshua J. Walton, Eugene.

In the beginning the University had no library, and it is significant that the students themselves provided the first books. About a month after the opening, the men organized the Laurean Society and elected Jacob L. Wortman, president. A few weeks later the women organized the Eutaxian Society. At a meeting of the Board of Regents, July, 1877, the executive committee was instructed to set apart a room in the building for the use of the literary societies.

The societies themselves gave entertainments to earn money for furnishing the room and by December 15, 1877, they had purchased the books and property belonging to the Eugene Library Association. In order legally to hold the property the societies were incorporated and a joint committee of the two societies transacted the business. The catalogue of 1878-79 records: "The two societies have a common library of from 600 to 800 volumes." On July 7, 1877, the Eugene City Guard reported that the annual address before the Laurean and Eutaxian Literary Societies was given by Judge Deady.

The growing University needed more subjects, and three members were added to the faculty:

John Straub, tutor in Greek and German, appointed November 7, 1878.

George W. Collier, professor of chemistry and physics, appointed June 19, 1879.

Benjamin J. Hawinorne, professor of mental philosophy and English literature, appointed June 19, 1884.

Let us gratefully rejoice that two of this early faculty are with us today. They have been preserved to see a glorious growth of what they helped to establish: Professor Hawinorne, congenial and broad in his sympathies, responsive always to those about him, and beloved by his students and honored by the faculty. Professor Straub who made the ancient Greeks and their language live in his classroom; long secretary of the faculty who kept the faculty straight; recently dean of men who explained in Greek or plain English to the men he wished to interview the relations of causes to effects. In my Los Angeles home I often read in OLD OREGON (by the way, one of the best college magazines anywhere), appreciative comments about Dean Emeritus Straub which I always understand when I remember the glasses through which he sees life. Grave or gay, his conclusions are always kindly—often expressed in mirth that warms the heart and memory. Long may these of the early faculty be with us to keep before us the foundations.

In 1881 when the University was five years old and had just graduated a fine class of twenty, a serious crisis came. Unpaid pledges and disappointments of various kinds had accumulated into a debt of about $7,000. The creditors were weary of waiting and finally a writ of execution was in the hands of the sheriff against the grounds and building. At a meeting of the citizens $3,400 were subscribed. Members of the faculty set down a large proportion of their salaries for the next year. One day in the summer of 1881, President Johnson wrote to Professor Condon who was out of town:

"Our attendance next year will be largely affected if we fail to show the people of Oregon a determination to pay and that soon. I am confident the money will be raised and the debt which has rested like a nightmare over the University will be paid. Then our success will be established.

Yours truly,
J. W. JOHNSON"

And now follows a significant event: A benefactor of large purpose, so far, the greatest benefactor of the University, comes into the history of this institution. As if in answer to was plea from President Johnson, a copy of the Portland Oregonian accidentally carried a message to a man in New York City, one of the commanding men in the railroad development of this great northwest, Mr. Henry Villard. He saw in the Oregonian a notice that the State University was to be sold for debt. Mr. Villard knew Oregon well, and the entire northwest. He had been propesying for several years to bond holders of Europe and America the wonderful results that would follow developments in this region. In 1875 he was made president of the Oregon and California Railroad Company, and a little later president of the Northern Pacific. And here before him was a notice of disaster to Oregon's new State University! His heart was touched. He had struggled for his own education; he had known need in youth. He telegraphed to his friend, Judge Deady, to stay legal proceedings, and wrote he would soon visit the University. A few weeks later when he came to Eugene he was greeted by citizens, students, and school children in lines on either side of the walk from Twelfth street to the west entrance of the building. Mr. Villard with the reception committee walked with hat in hand between the two lines, the company following. All assembled in the auditorium. Professor Condon introduced Mr. Villard as a friend of youth and of institutions of higher learning. When Mr. Villard rose to respond he was given a hearty greeting. In appearance he was commanding with an open, kindly, beneficent countenance and manner. His words were few and full of sympathy and desire to help the institution to grow strong and to do a great work in what he thought a wonderful part of the United States.

Afterward he went through the building and was deeply interested in Professor Condon's geological collection. He inquired minutely about the financial condition and the needs. His visit resulted in his gift of $7,000 to pay off all indebtedness. He also provided books costing $1,000, the nucleus of the library, five (5) scholarships of $50.00 each, much needed apparatus and funds for establishing a chair of English literature—in all, about $12,000 in money.

In May, 1883, Mr. Villard offered to donate $50,000 as a permanent endowment fund to the University on condition that the state would levy a tax sufficient for its maintenance on a moderate scale. This being done he paid over the promised sum. In 1885 the second building on the campus was erected by the state, and in recognition of Mr. Villard's kindness and generous benefactions it was named "Villard Hall." Later, Mr. Villard sent a portrait of himself to the University which hangs in the building bearing his name.

In the summer vacation of 1899 he made his last visit to the University and rejoiced at its growth and promise. A great company assembled in Villard hall to greet Mr. Villard and his wife on her first visit, and their guest, Mr. Gregory. Mrs. Villard, daughter of William Lloyd Garrison, has for many years been associated with movements for the development of justice, freedom and peace among men. She has always been interested in the University and has kept in touch through mutual friends. She is over eighty years of age and lives at their lovely home called Thorwood on the Hudson River at Dobbs Ferry. I wrote to her of this Semi-Centennial, telling her the University would send greetings and would be very glad to have a message from her. I quote her reply:

"Dear Miss Carson:

My recollection of the University of Oregon, of which I had heard so much from Mr. Villard, goes back to August 3, 1899, when we left Oregon City at 8:30 in the morning, traveling over the Oregon and California railroad to Eugene where a touching reception was given my husband. That was the last visit that he made to the Northwest and it included a trip to the wonderland of Alaska.

"As it was during the summer and there were no students present, the shop-keepers closed their doors and joined some of the professors and the board of regents—to the number of five hundred—in Villard hall which had been named in honor of Mr. Villard.

"It would be difficult to express my husband's deep appreciation of so unexpected and so beautiful a tribute.

"I remember that in the address that he made, he spoke with great feeling of his belief in the higher education without which he could not have accomplished all that he had been able to in this, the country of his adoption.

"After Mr. Gregory, my husband's guest, had spoken, I was embarrassed because I, too, was asked to say something on that occasion, which I did to the best of my ability.

"How great would be Mr. Villard's astonishment at the growth of the Eugene University if he were alive today!

"For all the never failing remembrances of my husband at Eugene, I wish to give utterance to the heartfelt thanks of my children and myself with best wishes for its power for good in days to come.

FANNY GARRISON VILLARD

August 24, 1926.

As leader of the organization of the University, Oregon gave one of her most learned pioneers, her most distinguished jurist, Judge Matthew P. Deady. He was born in Maryland May 12, 1824, of Irish and English ancestry. His early life was spent in labor on the farm, in the school his father taught, and reading English books and poems. His mother died when he was ten. When seventeen he learned the blacksmith trade which he followed for four years. Through these years of wholesome work he gained superb physical development. In 1843 and 1844 he read law and carried on historical research. In 1847 he was admitted to the Supreme Court of Maryland, and in 1849 he started across the plains to Oregon and worked his own way. He began his Oregon life in Lafayette, Yamhill County, practicing law and teaching in the school under John Lyle. In 1850 he was elected to the legislature, and at the close of this session he prepared the first volume of laws published in this territory. In 1853 he was appointed Associate Judge of the Supreme Court of the territory and was assigned to Southern Oregon, a district from which many able men have come. During the entire six years in that district he never missed a court or failed to be present at the appointed time. In 1857 he was elected to the Constitutional Convention of which he became president. Sixty members met and says Bancroft:

"His influence was strongly felt in framing the constitution—his sound, calm and philosophical spirit reviewed the many and complex problems involved."

This Constitution was adopted in November, 1857. For nearly seventy years the people of this state have lived contentedly and prosperously under this original constitution, with very few changes in amendments, as adopted in 1902, 1906, and 1908.

When Oregon was admitted to the Union in 1859 Matthew P. Deady was appointed United States District Judge, and moved from "the dear old farm" in Southern Oregon to Portland. He frequently sat as Chief Justice in the Circuit Court in San Francisco. In 1862 he was appointed Code Commissioner of the state. He prepared the Code of Civil Procedure which was enacted by the legislature. During the spare moments of the session he prepared a general incorporation act which has kept its place on the statute books ever since. He prepared the act incorporating the City of Portland which has since been the model in Oregon of such acts. He next compiled all the laws of Oregon and the published volume contained 1100 pages.

JUDGE LAWRENCE T. HARRIS ('93)

Whose address at the memorial service for President Johnson was one of the high points of Semi-Centennial Week. His address, "John W. Johnson, the Founder," will be printed in an early number of OLD OREGON."

In addition to all his legal work Judge Deady was a lover of books and a constant reader. In 1864 he was one of the organizers of the Library Association of Portland and was its acting president for over twenty years. Judge Deady was a teacher of the law wherever he presided. He attached great importance to the study of the principles of the common law. I quote a passage:

"To the people who speak the English tongue the common law is more than a rule of action; it is a living inheritance. The laws of a people react upon them and mould their characters and opinions. The common law was made by free men for free men. You should cherish it in private and exalt it in public."

I wish to quote a passage from another honored pioneer, a great contemporary of Judge Deady, Mr. Harvey W. Scott, editor of the Oregonian, long one of the far-seeing builders of the state. He thus writes of Judge Deady:

"Coming to Oregon in the flower of his early youth, he has grown with the growth of his adopted state, and strengthened with her strength. His hand and mind are everywhere seen in her constitution, her laws and her polity. It was fortunate for Oregon that a man of so much native strength and largeness of character should have become so important a factor in her history in the critical formative period."

Likewise are we of the University proud that this man was at the head of the formative forces in those first seventeen years; and that his judgment and opinions are in the foundations. His voice was in the selection of that early college faculty of three men and his confidence was given to them. Pioneers conferring with pioneers they were—looking into the future with visions of a great commonwealth, and they proposed to establish safe education for the youth who would inherit grave responsibility in the building of an American state.

Members of the University from the beginning down to this day, it is a holy heritage that we have in keeping from this first and great leader who grounded our state in the knowledge and obedience of law. In these days of disregard and growing indifference for the laws of our pioneer fathers

The State Meets President Hall

By F. H. YOUNG, '14

WHEN this is written for OLD OREGON, President A. B. Hall has completed the first half of his east and south state tour, a trip that has probably no counterpart in the annals of the University of Oregon.

Sensing the desirability of meeting personally the people of Oregon, of greeting the University alumni, of acquainting himself with the resources of the state and gaining a first hand knowledge of state and local problems, including taxation, President Hall left Portland for La Grande Sunday night, November 28. He had been preceded by Alfred Powers, dean of the extension division of the University; A. A. Rogers, cashier of the First National Bank, Eugene, who drove a Lincoln car through the courtesy of R. S. (Dick) Smith, who was unable to make the trip as originally planned, and the writer. These three met President Hall in La Grande Monday, November 29.

The keynote of the president's numerous speeches before chambers of commerce, service clubs and general mass meetings of citizens that he addressed, is summed up in these words:

"I deem it the duty of the president of your University to report to the citizens of the state on the condition of the University, and with unflinching good humor and candor to lay before them the aspirations and needs of that educational institution. After all, I am but your servant. I can only make suggestions. The will of the people is supreme, even in the management of your University."

Speaking before several alumni groups, President Hall expressed the hope that the alumni would find numerous opportunities to gather together informally and rekindle the fires of altruistic enthusiasm for community and state service, that were originally laid during their college course. Only by such rejuvenation of the collegiate ardor and aspirations could the corroding effect of the cynical elements of present day life be mitigated or avoided, he asserted frequently and with emphasis.

To state that President Hall on several occasions received an ovation from the citizenry of the several cities visited, is to keep within the bounds of accurate and temperate expression. His contact with business men, parents, professional men, and with the average man on the street, was most cordial and conducive of confidence in his leadership.

To date, December 6, President Hall has visited La Grande, Union, Baker, Pendleton, Hermiston, Arlington, The Dalles, Hood River, and Oregon City. Scheduled for the coming week are visits to Salem, Corvallis, Roseburg, Grants Pass, Medford, and Ashland.

At La Grande, he spoke at noon before a chamber of commerce-Rotary noon meeting, in the afternoon at the high school, at dinner with La Grande alumni, and in the evening before a mass meeting at the Presbyterian church.

At the alumni dinner were Mrs. Donald Pague, Mrs. Lorna Coolidge Miller, Mrs. Nita Hunter Dutton, State Senator Fred Kiddle, who presided, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ingle, Ronald Coolidge, Henry L. Hess, law '15, Alice C. Miller, L. G. Knight, Brook Colt, Raymond O. Williams, E. D. Jasper, Alicel, '06; Allodeen Seroggin Warnock, Marjorie O'Brien Gilbert, Dr. Ray F. Murphy, Hugh E. Brady, Rolex Prillaman, J. A. Wonderlick, medicine, '23, Joel Richardson, '10, Roy B. Currey, Dr. R. P. Landis, Hoke Smith, Willard Stone, '27, Dr. G. E. Kirby, Dr. G. L. Biggers, Mrs. Hugh Huron, Imbler, Bertha Berger.

Tuesday morning Dr. Hall's party left for Baker, stopping on the way at Dr. Phy's Hot Lake Sanatorium, and at the high school in Union, where Dr. Hall spoke to the high school students, and met several parents of students and citizens of Union who gathered at the school at the invitation of C. L. Cadwell, an enthusiastic University booster.

At Baker Tuesday noon Dr. Hall spoke before a combined Kiwanis-Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Geiser hotel, being introduced by A. A. Smith, one of Baker's leading attorneys. Frequent applause greeted the president's discussion of the University's obligation to render complete service to the state. In the afternoon another high school address was followed by several conferences with alumni and business men. In the evening the dining room was again packed at a dinner meeting of alumni, parents and special friends of the University. Alumni present at Baker were:

C. B. Baer, '12; Emma J. Waterman, '12; Elizabeth Baker, ex-'12; Blanche A. Kennon, ex-'23; Walter S. Kennon, '20; F. D. Hunt, Jr., '19; Alma Payton, '12; Henry McKinney, '07; University regent, Mrs. Henry McKinney, '09; James T. and Florence Cleveland Donald, '15 and '13, and the balance of the alumni list at Baker was lost in the shuffle, but there must have been at least forty alumni and former students.

After the Baker dinner, the party drove back to Hot Lake, as the over-night and breakfast guests of Dr. Phy, father of three daughters who have attended the University.

After a short stop at La Grande, where President Hall called on John S. Hodgkin, who was a student at the University under President Johnson, and the democratic candidate for congressman from his district at the November election, the party left for Pendleton, where it arrived about 11 o'clock.

The president's first address at Pendleton was a noon luncheon of the chamber of commerce and Rotary club. Many alumni, including "Coach" J. E. Murray, one of the main springs of alumni enthusiasm in Pendleton, James S. Johns, '12, and others, heard all three of Dr. Hall's addresses in Pendleton, at the noon luncheon, at the alumni meeting in the evening, and at the high school Thursday morning. In the afternoon Thursday, Dr. Hall spoke to the Parent-Teachers association meeting at the Pendleton library. At the alumni dinner in the evening at the Methodist church, which had to be cut short on account of important counter attractions previously scheduled, those present were:

Glenn E. Scott, Helix, ex-'10; Minnie C. Johnson, Weston, '24; William E. Van Winkle, Weston, '25; Maude Schroeder, '25; Maryann Hanson, '25; Dorcas Conklin Stockman, '23; Sadie Baum Wise, '98; Leura Jerard Bowler, '18; S. A. Pennick, '05; E. A. Storie, '10; D. S. Randall, Freewater, '22; C. Z. Randall, '12; Donald Whiteman, '24; Emily Veasie, '23; Genevieve Tillotson, '23; Glen Storie, '13; Tom Boylen, Jr., '15; Mildred M. Berkeley, '24; Nat Kinball, ex-'14; Folsom Tallman, '18; Howard Drew, '11; Pearl McKenna Johns, ex-'12; James S. Johns, '12; John Dickson, ex-'11; Elsie Fitzmaurice Dickson, ex-'20; H. W. Dickson, ex-'15; Harold J. Warner, '13; Willetta Wright Donert, ex-'11.

The party left Pendleton Thursday morning after the high school address, the first stop being Hermiston, where Dr. Hall spoke to the Hermiston high school, and shook hands with Bill Warner, football coach at Oregon 1910, and 1911, the brother of Coach Glen Warner, Stanford. By two o'clock Arlington was reached, where a community reception followed another high school address. After consuming at the Arlington hotel the best piece of meat and the best hot mince pie encountered on the trip, and after meeting Mrs. Claire Yoran Smythe, the party hastened along to The Dalles, which was reached just in time to prepare for a notably large and enthusiastic community dinner reception held in the auditorium. More than two hundred alumni and citizens greeted the president. One feature of the dinner was a roll call of all University graduates and former students, and a roll call of graduates and students of other educational institutions. The oldest University student was Honorable A. S. Roberts, who attended in 1883 to 1886, the father of five sons who have attended or graduated from the University. Elliott Roberts, ex-'14, made an excellent dinner chairman.

The University alumni and students who attended the dinner at The Dalles included:

A. S. Roberts, representative from Wasco county in the state legislature; Elliott Roberts, Loren Roberts, Roscoe Roberts and Wilton Roberts; Dr. Fred F. Thompson, David G. Glass, '14; Robert Hayes, Francis V. Galloway, Ralph Newland, '12; Tom Crosswaite, Paul Krausse, Marion D. Lay, Ethel Johnston, '25; J. Miner Booth, '96; Mrs. Grace Pease, L. A. Carlisle, C. R. Ellis, Emmerson Edwards, Dr. O. D. Doane, Thomas R. Hudson, ex-'14; Grace Young, F. L. Phipps and others whose names it was not possible to secure.

Friday morning, December 3, Dr. Hall spoke to The Dalles high school student body, and at noon was the guest of honor at a luncheon of business men and community leaders at The Dalles hotel. L. Barnum, president of the First National bank, presided, and Elliott Roberts spoke for Wasco county alumni. A quick run to Hood River, which gave President Hall his first good view of the Columbia river gorge and Mt. Hood and Mt. Adams on a clear day, enabled him to speak before the high school of that city at 3:30 p. m. An evening address for the general public at the high school was preceded by an alumni dinner at the Waukoma Cafe, which had been arranged by Roy T. Kelly, '07, Frances Oberteuffer Moller, '10, and C. Ted Baker, '24. Other alumni and students at this dinner were: Judge A. J. Derby, Law '03; Mary Rothrock Culbertson, Roger W. Moe, ex-'15; J. William Johnson, '24; Jesse Crenshaw, '14; Ernest C. Smith, and wives and husbands and friends of the University. The return to Portland after the Hood River meeting Friday night was slow and tedious due to excessive fog.

On Saturday, December 4, the party moved on to Oregon City, where in spite of the unfavorable day of the week and the distraction of Santa Claus and his reindeer on the streets, an unusually large group of citizens and alumni met Dr. Hall at dinner. Alumni and former students who met the president at Oregon City were, according to Phil Hammond, '12, who called the roll:

Byron O. Garrett, '21; E. Rea Norris, Phil Hammond, Clyde Mount, Mrs. Caldwell, Livy Stipp, Julius Goldsmith, Paul Fischer, Ivan Goldsmith, Wallace Caulfield, Ailene Phillips, E. F. Short, Dr. Guy Mount, Mrs. Edna Henderson, Brenton Vedder, O. D. Eby, Marvin R. Eby, Roland D. Eby, Chris Scheubel, Lucia M. Buse, Louis A. Henderson, Charles T. Sievers, Stella Sallisbury, Marjorie L. Read, '25; Lawrence A. Read, '99; Mrs. Laura B. Carter, '90; Mrs. Jennie B. Harris, '96; Mrs. Emma Kleinsmith-Marshall.

The First Hundred Thousand

By IRENE H. GERLINGER, Regent, University of Oregon

IT WILL be good news, to the Alumni, I am sure, to know that during the years 1925 and 1926 one hundred thousand dollars has been raised for the Fine Arts Building at the University of Oregon. This has been brought to pass by the generosity and the devotion of friends of the University and of the late beloved President P. L. Campbell. The expenses of this campaign have been paid for by the Alumni Holding Company and by the writer, the part of the Alumni Holding Company amounting to one hundred dollars a month, spent mainly for postage, occasional clerical help and some use of a car. The balance has come from the private resources of the writer, who has given most of the time for the past two years to this enterprise. For a promise was made long ago to President Campbell to get this much needed building so that Mrs. Murray Warner's beautiful and valuable collection might be protected.

Furthermore, many valuable objects of art and of historical significance are to be given the University as soon as a safe place for their keeping is provided. The rapidly growing Fine Arts department needs the vitalizing influence of an art museum and art library. Already a large number of most valuable and rare books are the possession of the Museum and are awaiting a proper place for their display and use. President Little of Michigan University, when he was here in October, said that there was one of our University departments which he would like to pick up bodily and take home with him because of its unique and high quality—the Fine Arts department.

The great generosity of the members of President Campbell's family and of himself, made them the largest donors to this fund. They gave over $33,000. Citizens of Eugene as a group have pledged $25,000. Six individuals of Eugene are Founders of the Museum at $1000 each. The recently formed Fine Arts Club, made up largely of Oregon Alumnae, has pledged $2000. Friends in Salem have pledged $1000, led by Mrs. Clifford Brown (Alice Bretherton, 1906). The All-Oregon Exposition held in Portland in October, 1925, netted $14,000. There are seventy-five members of the Committee of 1000, each of whom give $100, and there are only 925 members yet to seek. Eleven of the seventy-five members are classes that have graduated from the University, as follows—1890, 1895, 1878, 1926, 1920, 1911, 1907, 1901, 1925, 1919, etc.

Portland Oregon Alumnae, and many campus organizations have joined the Committee of 1000. One great service that the Alumni can give this cause is to stir up members of their class to give $100 collectively, and by becoming members individually. It is gratifying that many such gifts have come voluntarily; and practically all the ten $1000 Founders' gifts have been given also in this gracious way.

Another very definite service which Alumni can give is to help the committee of undergraduates who are coming home at the holidays to put on some benefit affair for the Art Building in each town in the state. If no student appears to start this, it is hoped that the Alumni will get together and give some affair themselves while the undergraduates are home so that a large amount may come in quickly this way. A similar enterprise nearly ten years ago netted six thousand dollars for the Women's Building, and we were in the midst of troubled war times then.

New York Alumni Welcome Dr. Hall

"GOUR telegram turned the trick and we had a very pleasant luncheon with Dr. Hall on Thursday," wrote Allen Eaton with regard to a recent meeting of University of Oregon alumni living in New York. For some time, Mr. Eaton had been planning such a meeting; and upon receiving word from the alumni secretary that Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall would be in New York on October 18, he decided to make arrangements for that day on the chance that the president might be able to attend. The time for preparation was short; but due to the efforts of Mr. Eaton and the apparent interest of the New York group, a number assembled for luncheon on October 18 at the St. George hotel. Dr. Hall was present and with him was Dr. Richard Dillehunt, dean of the University medical school.

It was brought out at the meeting that, although there has been for several years in New York City an organized group of former Oregonians, there is no permanent organization exclusively for alumni and former students of the University of Oregon. Those assembled voted that plans be made for such organization, and suggestions were offered as to means of forming such a group. Mrs. Ruth Duniway Kerby agreed to get in touch with Oregon alumni not present at the luncheon and to formulate plans to be presented at a future meeting. It was the consensus of opinion that the meetings should be scheduled at a definite time and place and the preference was for luncheons monthly or bi-monthly.

Inasmuch as the gathering at the St. George hotel was planned primarily with the hope of meeting President Hall and for the purpose of organizing a permanent group, little business was transacted other than suggestions for future gatherings. It was the unanimous wish of all present, however, to send a telegram to the football team, praising them for their showing during the season and expressing best wishes for the outcome of the game with O. A. C. It was also the sentiment of the group that Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard be remembered. Mrs. Villard was the wife of the late Henry Villard who gave so generously to the University of Oregon in its time of need. Mrs. Villard herself has always been a friend to the University, and during the semi-centennial, she sent her good wishes through a letter to Dr. Luella Clay Carson. The group voted that sentiments of gratitude be conveyed to her.

NEW YORK ALUMNI ENTERTAIN DR. HALL AT LUNCHEON

Beginning at the right hand side at the end of the table, they are as follows; Laura H. Kennon, '11; Mrs. Cecil Lyans; Dean Dillehunt; Mabel Byrd, ex-'21; Wayne Osburn, ex-'03; Russell Calkins, '13; Walter R. McClure, '13; Clarence Steele, '10; Mary A. Brownell, '22; Hazel Robinson, '26; Miller Jones of New York, a friend of Dr. Hall; Virgil Johnson, '93; President Arnold Bennett Hall, at far end of table; Mrs. H. B. Torrey; Allen Eaton, '02; Mrs. Marie Louise Allen Rosenberg, '17; Nelson Gammons, ex-'12; Cecil Lyans, '09; John MacGregor, '24; Herbert Graham, ex-'23; Edgar Bohlman, '26; Anna Bergman, '10; Ada Boone Coffey, ex-'11; Ruth Duniway Kerby, '10.

Dean Dillehunt, who had accompanied President Hall across the continent, spoke on the future of the medical school. Mr. Virgil Johnson, who was among the company, praised the school by relating a conversation which he had had with Dr. Thomas S. Harris, professor in the post graduate medical school of New York and distinguished surgeon. He quoted Dr. Harris as saying that he would as soon send a boy to the University of Oregon medical school as to any medical school in the country.

President Hall, according to a letter received by OLD OREGON, "spoke with brevity and directness and remained after the luncheon to cordially shake hands with each person there," leaving the New York alumni with a feeling of enthusiasm and confidence in the future of the University.

Those present at the luncheon were: Anna Bergman, '10; Edgar Bohlman, '26; Mary A. Brownell, '22; Mabel Byrd, ex-'21; Lieutenant Russell Calkins, '13; Ada Boone Coffey, ex-'11; Nelson Gammans, ex-'12; Herbert Graham, ex-'23; Virgil Johnson, '96; E. Miller Jones, a friend of Dr. Hall; Louise Kennon, '11; Ruth Duniway Kerby, '10; Cecil Lyans, '09; Captain Walter R. McClure, '13; John M. MacGregor, '24; Wayne Osburn, ex-'03; Hazel Robinson, '26; Mrs. Louis Conrad Rosenburg, '17; J. W. Shaver, ex-'14; Clarence Steele, '10; Francis Taylor, ex-'26; Mrs. Harry Beal Torrey, Dr. Dillehunt, and President Hall.

The alumnus, who at the request of the chairman, Mr. Allen Eaton, reported the affair for OLD OREGON and who gave no signature to his report except signing himself, "among those present," made some interesting comments on the assemblage. He wrote:

"Satisfaction with the choice of the regents and high hopes for the future of the University under the new president's administration were expressed by those present.

"Mr. Allen Eaton charmed the newcomer with the evident sincerity of his very warm friendliness.

"The Army and Navy were both represented. Walter R. McClure, captain in the Eighteenth Infantry, stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York, represented the Army; Russell Dean Calkins, lieutenant in the United States Navy, Brooklyn Navy Yard, represented the Navy.

"The gracious and distinguished Mrs. Harry Beal Torrey showed her interest in things Oregonian by being present. Dr. Torrey is carrying on research work in New York City and in Ithaca."

Mr. Eaton and the other alumni who were present at the luncheon are to be congratulated on their endeavor to found a lasting union of Oregon alumni in New York and on the success of their impromptu gathering.

Oregon Alumni Give Service to the State

By F. H. YOUNG, '14

WHEN the clerks in the two houses of Oregon's 1927 legislature call the roll, seventeen alumni and former students of the University of Oregon and the University law school will answer.

In the House of Representatives, an even dozen will respond. In the Senate, five.

This number is by far the largest representation of alumni and former students that an Oregon legislature has contained. The remarkable thing about it, is the steady increase in the number of senators and representatives who have attended either the school at Eugene or the law school in Portland. In the 1925 session, there were four senators and nine representatives.

Members of the Senate who are either alumni or former students are:

George W. Dunn, Ashland, graduated in the University's seventh class, 1886. He is a banker of Ashland and Medford, and a retired farmer. He went to school when faculty permission had to be secured by the baseball team for a Saturday trip to Coburg in a springless hack. He is senator from Jackson county, serving his second four-year term. He was a representative from that county in 1895 and 1897.

Edward F. Bailey, 1913, newly-elected Democratic senator from Lane county, who will serve a four-year term. Everyone knows that "Ed" Bailey practices law at Junction City, and was a star tackle, one of Oregon's greatest, for three years.

Fred E. Kiddle, Island City flour miller, graduated in 1917. He had a narrow squeak in the elections, being elected by 44 votes. He will represent Union, Morrow and Umatilla counties in the 1927 and 1929 sessions. Fred helped organize the American Legion in Oregon, was its state commander one year, and is widely known over Oregon as a Legionnaire.

W. W. Banks, Portland, is a graduate of the University law school, Portland. He is serving his second term as state senator.

Jay H. Upton, Bend, graduated from the University law school in 1902. He was president of the Senate in 1923, and was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, 1926.

In the House of Representatives, alphabetically, we find:

Earl C. Bronaugh, Jr., Portland attorney, U. of O., 1917. Representative Bronaugh got a tremendous vote in both primary and general election.

A. M. Collier, 1913, Klamath Falls business man, was re-elected from the district composed of Crook, Deschutes, Jefferson, Klamath and Lake counties. "Andy" for the second time poled more votes in this entire district than did either of the other two representatives elected. Space doesn't permit enumeration of all "Andy's" business interests. He is an ice man who hasn't turned professional.

Walter S. Fisher, 1913, Roseburg dry goods merchant, was re-elected representative from Douglas county. Walter is a Democrat.

John B. Giesy, mayor of Salem, attended the University law school.

Wilber Henderson, Portland attorney, received his law degree from the law school in 1911.

Dal M. King, Myrtle Point merchant, 1914, will serve his second term as representative from Coos county.

Lynn S. McCreedy, 1920, Eugene banker, prominent as basketball player while in the University, received his B.B.A. in 1920.

James W. Mott, Astoria attorney, ex-'90, will be serving his third term from Clatsop county.

Mark A. Paulson, Silverton attorney and former city recorder of that city, attended the University during 1912-13, taking his M.A. degree in political science and education.

E. O. Potter, Eugene attorney, was re-elected from Lane county. He received the degree of B.A. from the University in 1887; in 1890 he took his M.A. and his LL.B. degrees.

Albert S. Roberts, The Dalles, attended the University of Oregon during the '80's. He will be serving his fifth term as representative from Wasco county.

Charles T. Sievers, Oregon City attorney, attended the University for three years and later graduated from the University law school. While in the University, Sievers was one of Bill Hayward's star distance runners. He lives at Gladstone, and represents Clackamas county for the first time.

OREGON ALUMNI IN THE 1926 HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Phi Beta Kappa Elects

Six seniors outstanding in scholarship were elected to membership in the Oregon chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at a meeting held December 2. Three of those chosen are men, and three women. Following is the list of those elected to the organization, which stresses scholarship among undergraduates: Hugh Biggs, Ontario, president of the student body, a major in political science; Lois Inman, Eugene, major in Latin; Elizabeth Karpenstein, Eugene, German; Samuel Newsom, Prineville, zoology; Ruth Miller, Eugene, zoology; Theodore Ruch, Eugene, psychology. Probably twenty more will be elected to membership in the spring.

Officers of the Oregon chapter for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Charles E. Carpenter, professor of law, president; W. E. Milne, professor of mathematics, vice-president; Ralph D. Casey, professor of journalism, secretary. Executive committee members, to act with the officers ex-officio: Fred L. Stetson, retiring president, professor of education; Miss Mozelle Hair, director of correspondence-study in the extension division. Membership committee: Donald Barnes, professor of history, for three-year term; holdover members, Dr. James H. Gilbert, acting dean of the college of literature, science, and the arts, for two years; O. F. Stafford, professor of chemistry, for one year.

New Councillors Assume Office

AT THE Alumni Council meeting held at Homecoming, four new members replaced as many retiring councillors. In an election in which more ballots were cast than in any previous election for council members, one woman and three men were chosen. They are: Frederick W. Steiwer, '06, of Pendleton, newly-elected United States senator from Oregon; Vernon T. Motschenbacher, '14, Portland, who resigned the last of November as general agent for Oregon of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company; Leith Abbott, '23, Longview, Washington, western advertising representative of the Long Bell Lumber company; and Marie Myers of Medford, who became Mrs. Harlan Page Bosworth, Jr., on October 30, 1926.

These four councillors take the place of the following retiring members: Margaret Bannard Goodall, '04; Earl Kilpatrick, '09; Dorothy Duniway Ryan, '20; and Herald White, '20.

The hold-over members of the council whose term of office will not expire until next June, are: Homer Angell, '00; Jennie Beatie Harris, '06; Dr. Harold Bean, '12; Andrew Collier, '13; and Grace Edgington Jordan, '16.

At the semi-annual business meeting, which was held in Guild Hall on Saturday morning of Homecoming, F. H. Young was re-elected president of the Alumni Association, Jeannette Calkins re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Edward N. Blythe was unanimously elected vice-president of the association. Mrs. Blythe was Isabel Jakway, '02, in the University. The year of her graduation she married Edward N. Blythe, also of the class of 1902, who is now managing editor of the Vancouver Columbian. They have three children, and one of the two daughters, Barbara, is now registered in the University.

Fine Arts Club Organized

With the organization of a Fine Arts club in Eugene for the purpose of aiding the campaign for funds to erect a fine arts museum on the campus as a memorial to the late President P. L. Campbell, Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, regent and leader of the campaign, estimates that two-thirds of the amount needed for the first wing of the building has already been pledged.

Mrs. Gerlinger recently addressed the alumnae and women of Eugene who organized the Fine Arts club. They expect that their group will be one of the first of a series to be banded together throughout the state for the purpose of raising funds for the Fine Arts building.

Officers chosen to direct the Eugene club are: Mrs. David Graham (Mildred Bagley, '12), president; Mrs. Carl Washburne (Narcissa Jewett, ex-'22), vice-president; and Dorothy Collier, '18, secretary-treasurer.

The group pledged itself to raise $2,000 in the next two years for the benefit of the Fine Arts Museum.

Juniors Raise Money for Thanksgiving Dinners

One hundred and twenty-two dollars were turned over to Mrs. Ady, the Eugene police matron by the junior class from the profits of the Junior shine day held November 17. This event is sponsored annually by the junior class to obtain funds to buy Thanksgiving dinners for the poor of Eugene.

Quartet Gives Out-of-Town Concert

The Underwood string quartet gave its first out-of-town concert December 3, at Klamath Falls. Dean John J. Landsbury, of the school of music, played a group of piano solos, also. Other appearances about the state are expected to follow this initial one, including one at Monmouth and one at Corvallis.

The quartet is composed of Rex Underwood, first violin; Delbert Moore, second violin; Buford Roach, viola; and Miss Miriam Little, cello.

Co-ed Debaters to Hold Meet Next Term

The University of Oregon women's debate team will meet the teams of the Universities of Idaho and Washington in a triangular contest to be held next term. The question to be discussed has not yet been decided upon.

The teams will consist of two speakers each and the speeches will be fifteen minutes long. One of the Oregon teams will go to Seattle and the other will meet the Moscow contestants at Eugene.

The women from whom the debate teams will be chosen are: Marion Leach,

OREGON'S NATIONAL CHAMPION

Walter E. (Jack) Hempstead ('28), who recently received notice that he had won the national Peace Oratorical prize, in competition with college men all over the United States. Hempstead is a two-year member of Oregon's forensic squad.

Margaret Blackaby, Cecile McKercher, Loretta Mason, Pauline Winchell, Mildred Whitecomb, Irene Hartsell, and Frances Cherry. J. K. Horner of the public speaking department will coach the debaters.

Fred Lockley Gives Volumes to Library

Four rare old Bibles, a gift of Fred Lockley of the Oregon Journal, have been sent to the University of Oregon library. This gift collection is composed of an old Dutch Bible, printed in Amsterdam in 1792, containing a complete text with the Psalms set to music; a Swedish edition printed in Stockholm in 1853; a French Bible printed at Rouen in 1610 and a book of Jewish scriptures printed in the United States in 1853.

Mr. Lockley is a connoisseur of rare old books and has a fine library in Portland. About 90 of his prized volumes have been given to the University of Oregon library.

Douglass Book is Reviewed

"Douglass isn't particularly tender, but he strikes me as being refreshingly true." So Principal Philip Manzer writes in his review of "Modern Methods in High School Teaching," a book which has recently been written and published by Earl R. Douglass, professor in the Oregon school of education and director of the University high school.

The remarks appear in the November issue of the "Educational Review" in a section called "Professionals Review Professional Books," in which teachers tell what they think of books on teaching which are recently from the press.

The book has attracted considerable attention among educators, and other favorable reviews of it appear in the Hawaiian Educational Review and the High School Quarterly. The book is one of the "Riverside Educational Series," of which Elwood Cubberley is editor.

University Men Beat Australians in Radio Debate

Three hundred and seventy-six ballots have been turned in as a result of the University of Oregon versus University of Sydney, Australia, radio debate over KGW October 16. Of these, 272 favored Oregon, 104 favored the Australian team.

The number of ballots turned in and the large number of towns which returned ballots is remarkable," said Dr. Dan E. Clark, of the Extension Division. "There are ballots, one or more from each town, from seventy-three towns in addition to Portland."

The subject of the radio debate was: "Resolved: That this Audience is Opposed to the Prohibition of liquor." Benoit McCroskey and Jack Hempstead, representing Oregon, upheld the negative side of the question.

A. S. U. O. Officers Attend Conference

Frances Morgan, secretary, and Hugh Biggs, president of the A. S. U. O. represented Oregon at the second annual conference of university students of America, held December 2, 3 and 4 at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

One purpose of the convention was to strengthen the bonds of friendship among the various universities of the country. Open discussions about fraternities, schol-

Russian Choir Sings in Eugene

The Russian Symphony choir, a group of 25 Russian singers, appeared in a concert in Eugene November 30. Basile Kibalchich, director, has been an outstanding figure in the field of music for several years, having earned fame in both his own country and the United States.

In 1924 his present choir was formed with the idea of arranging the singers as the conductor of a symphony orchestra would his instruments, and plan the part of each singer to correspond with the change. The result is surprising, but has met with instant acclaim; eastern music critics have hailed his choir as a revelation.

The choir was presented as one of the concert series sponsored by the Associated Students.

Students Low in Scholarship Given Aid

Better Books Read by Students

Students are reading fewer books than last year but the selection is more discriminating, the sensational novel being less popular, according to Mrs. Mabel McClain, circulation librarian.

Poetry and drama are being read less than formerly but there is a revival of books of a philosophical nature. Among the popular books are "Tolerance" by Hendrik Van Loon, "Decline of the West" by Oswald Spengler, "Story of Mankind" by Van Loon, "The Silver Spoon" by John Galsworthy, and "The Romantic Comedians" by Ellen Glasgow.

"Webfoots" is Chosen as Team Name

Lair H. Gregory, sports editor of the Portland Oregonian, was declared winner of the name contest for Oregon teams. While Gregory's contribution of "Webfoots" is not original, having been derived from the old name, "Webfooter," he was given the prize because his selection was considered most suitable.

Writing Taught by Music

Teaching one kind of writing by means of music is the unusual method adopted by Walter Snyder, assistant professor in the English department, who believes that emotional efforts in the short story and descriptive writing may be obtained in the same way as music.

Vocal and instrumental selections are played on the phonograph in the classroom to demonstrate how the same theme or motif runs through one composition. In the same way, Mr. Snyder points out, a story is built around a central thread of interest. By using one motif throughout one story the same emotional effect may be secured as in a musical composition, he explains.

Conference to be January 14 and 15

January 14 and 15 have been set as the dates for the annual Oregon high school conference. Ward Cook, of Astoria, is general chairman in charge of a directorate of ten students who will supervise the affair.

Problems affecting high school administration and the publication of newspapers and magazines will make up topics for the discussions. Representatives from various institutions on the coast and in the middle west will be brought to Eugene to give addresses and conduct discussions.

The directorate members are: Assistant chairman, Bill Powell, Portland; secretary, Edith Bain, Portland; welcoming, Lester Johnson, Portland; housing, Fred West, Portland; entertainment, Jack Renshaw, Portland; banquet, Elizabeth Waara, Astoria; publicity, Herbert Lundy, Wheeler; Women's league, Kathryn Ulrich, Klamath Falls; finance, Robert Love, Tacoma.

SENIORS FORGET THEIR CARES AND WOES

It was pack my grip and light the light—I'll be home late tonight—when the seniors held their annual bust this year.

DEPARTMENT EDITED BY RICHARD SYRING, '28

WITH the caked mud from Bell field, Corvallis, scraped from the Oregon varsity football team's equipment, the 1926 grid season came to an end but not without reminiscences of the two games won, one tied and four lost. True, the Webfooters did not win a championship, but the first year regime of Captain John J. McEwan was more successful than last year, during which the varsity finished last in the Coast Conference football race.

Of the seven games played, five of which were Pacific Coast Conference tilts, the Oregon men scored 86 points against their opponents' 88.

The Oregon 1926 grid machine started the season off in an impressive style against the Willamette University Bearcats with a 44 to 0 win. The next game, against the Pacific University Badgers, resulted in an 0 to 0 tie. The Forest Grove team was playing at its height during the opening weeks of the season. They finished third in the Northwest conference race.

As part of the dedication program of the new Multnomah civic stadium, and playing their first conference game, the Oregon eleven met the University of Washington Huskies on the Portland field. Leading 9 to 7 at half time, the Oregon varsity, weakened by injuries and lack of reserves in the second canto, lost to the Washingtonians, 23 to 9.

The Stanford University Cardinals furnished Homecoming opposition and romped back to Palo Alto with a 29 to 12 win. Again the Oregonians led their opponents at half time with a 12 to 9 score.

For the first time since 1917, the University of Oregon grid machine passed and bucked its way to a 21 to 13 victory over the California Golden Bears. McEwan's men went down to a muddy defeat at the hands of the Washington State Cougars, 7 to 0, and the traditional Oregon-O. A. C. game was lost 16 to 0 at Corvallis.

The Webfooters, who tied with Idaho for sixth place in the Pacific coast conference standings, played in more Homecoming games than any other team of the conference. Oregon participated in alumni reunion tilts in Eugene against Stanford; Pullman against W. S. C.; and Corvallis against the Aggies. To the University of Washington Huskies, placers fifth in the coast standing, goes the honor of playing in two stadium dedication games. The first game was against Oregon in the new Multnomah civic stadium, and the second against Whitman College, October 30, in the new Walla Walla municipal stadium.

The 1926 season will probably not prove as successful financially as in 1925. Last year's profit exceeded $17,000. According to figures compiled by Jack Benefiel, graduate manager, the attendance for games in Eugene, both conference and non-conference, amounted to approximately 27,000, while the Washington game in Portland netted 25,000, or a total of 52,000 for home games.

The Oregon-O. A. C. games have continued to go ahead each year. This year approximately two thousand more attended the game in Corvallis than in Eugene last year. The gross receipts at Corvallis will probably total $26,000.

A vast increase can be noted in the Oregon games played in Portland. In 1923 the Stanford game drew about 7,000; in 1924 the Washington State fracas yielded 14,000; in 1925 California attracted 17,000; and this year's contest against Washington crowded together approximately 25,000 persons.

To date the complete season's receipts have not been totaled. Receipts for the home games came to $18,000 and the Portland game netted $42,000, bringing a total of $60,000. Though no settlement has been made as yet for games played on other campus gridirons, it will total about $25,000, bringing the net receipts for all contests to about $85,000. After the expenses are deducted the profits for 1926 will probably fall considerably short of the 1925 total.

The tie game with Pacific University the week before the Washington game in Portland undoubtedly cut down the Multnomah stadium attendance. The contest at Pullman did not draw well, and this

TWO IMPORTANT COGS IN BASKETBALL MACHINE

On the right: Jerry Gunther, all-coast forward, who is looking to a great year. Gunther was one of last year's high point men. Roy Okerberg, center, who is out to lead the conference in scoring again. "Okie" was barely beaten out by Higgins of California for all-coast honors last year.

ALL-COAST GUARD AND LAST YEAR'S CAPTAIN

On the right: Algot "Swede" Westergren, who, after being selected for the past two years as all coast guard, is out to make it in his last and third year. Howard "Hobby" Hobson, last year's captain, who will be missed from this year's combination.

year's Homecoming attendance fell short of the 1925 showing.

The referee's shrill whistle at the beginning of the O. A. C. game started the "swan song" for seven of Oregon's stalwart gridiron sons, Otto Vitus, halfback; George Mimnaugh, quarter; Lynn Jones, fullback; Captain Al Sinclair, tackle; Bert Kerns, tackle; Sherman Smith, end; and Carl Johnson, center. When the timer's gun ended the game these seven moleskin warriors passed from the University of Oregon's athletic spotlight.

Twenty-three football players won the coveted lemon-yellow "O" this year. This is perhaps more than at any other time in Oregon's athletic history. Besides the seven graduating players, the letter roster includes Ted Pope, Ted Slauson and Frank Riggs, ends; John Warren, Homer Dixon and Bob Keeney, tackles; Beryl Hodgen, Harold Mangum and Hal Harden, guards; Nick Carter, center; Ira Woodie and Merrill Hagan, quarterbacks; Victor Wetzel, George Burnell and Whippet Ord, halfbacks; and Cotter Gould.

With 16 letter men on hand to answer Coach John J. McEwan's call for practice next spring and a wealth of material from the freshman ranks, Oregon's prospects in next fall's pennant race looks very promising.

Varsity Basketball

LOOMING upon the athletic horizon of the University like a mountain against an ant hill, the 1926-27 basketball season has taken the Lemon-Yellow hoopsters into tow and daily varsity workouts are now being held each afternoon. Three members of last year's Northwest championship quintet are on hand, Algot Westergren, all-coast guard; Jerry Gunther, all-coast forward; and Roy Okerberg, center, who was beaten out of the all-coast pivot honors by Higgins of California in a hotly contested race.

A telegram from Jack Benefiel, who is in the south attending the Pacific coast conference meeting; contained the schedule for the Webfooters' Christmas holiday barnstorming trip. A squad of probably ten men will start for California immediately after Christmas.

The first game is scheduled for December 27 against the Olympic club quintet of San Francisco. After three days' rest, the Ducks will meet the San Jose Golds in San Jose. The Amblers club of Stockton will be played the next day, January 1. The Auburn club and the P. A. T. club of Grass Valley will wind up the journey. These games are billed for January 3 and 4 respectively.

Oregon's new $175,000 basketball pavilion is now almost ready and will be occupied after December 10. The large spacious playing floor will give Coach "Billy" Reinhart's men ample room in which to practice. Three practice courts will be available with a like number of baskets. Ted Gillenwaters, guard on the 1924 and 1925 team, has been selected to assist Reinhart in teaching.

While it is a bit early to predict next term's outcome, it is a safe bet that the Lemon-Yellow hoopsters will finish close to the top of the Northwest conference ladder. They may assume the roll of leader which was held all last season.

A number of last year's super-varsity and freshman team who will make strong bids for varsity honors include Red Sealton, Gordon Ridings, Keith Emmons, Mervyn Chastain, Bernard Hummelt, Ray Edwards, Arni Kiminki, Verl Flynn, Dave Epps, Pat Hughes, Joe Bally and Scott Milligan.

With one successful basketball season behind him, Earl "Spike" Leslie has been again selected to lead the freshman hoopsters through the coming season. Last year Leslie made an enviable record, losing but few games.

The names of the men who are to manage the coming winter sports were announced several days ago by Paul Sletton, senior athletic manager. Heading the list is varsity basketball, which will be managed by Harold Socolofsky, with Ronald Hubbs and Bert McElroy as assistants.

Stuart Ball will have charge of minor sports with Wade Newbegin as his assistant. Frosh basketball will have as its manager Ted Hendry, and the reception managers are headed by Ronald McCreight.

The flash of lights which will give a detailed account of the University of Southern California-Notre Dame game Saturday will mark the fourth time that the gridgraph has been used this season. So far the grid-graph has enjoyed a successful financial run. Approximately $550 has been cleared, which leaves only a small amount over $150 yet to be paid on the machine which was purchased by the student body in 1923 for $1,300. Several years ago the Order of the "O" took over the grid-graph. When paid for, its profits will be divided between the A. S. U. O. and the Oregon lettermen.

New Year's day will see the grid-graph flash into action for the last time this season, when a play-by-play account of the Stanford-Alabama tilt will be given at the McDonald theater.

A BANK ACCOUNT FOR CHRISTMAS!

At this time of year everyone is thinking of Christmas and "what to give"! It might not be amiss to call the attention of alumni to the fact that here, again, your banker can be of assistance.

If the gift is to be for a boy or girl—give a Savings Account!

If you are searching for something for an older relative, ask your banker to order a bond for you to give.

If for a friend, go to your bank for a draft or cashier's check, and let the friend buy with it what he wishes.

(This is the third of a series of advertisements financed by a group of Eugene bankers who for years have watched with interest the growth of the University and of Eugene.)

But it is not only at Christmas time that your bank will serve your needs. All through the year, whether your account is large or small, you will find the officers and employees ready and willing to advise and consult with you on your business problems.

Regents Make Biennial Report to Governor

THE University's power to hold its students for the full four-year course has increased 50 per cent since 1920, according to the biennial report of J. W. Hamilton, president of the board of regents, to the governor. During this period, the University has gradually increased the number of its advanced and graduate students.

In scholarship "the steady improvement in quality of instruction prevents more Oregon students from going elsewhere for their advanced and professional studies," and "more students are transferring from the smaller colleges to the University for professional and graduate study," the report stated.

In the graduate school standards have been raised, and the provisions made for the master of arts degree are more systematic and thorough than in any other institution on the coast, according to the report.

"The graduating class has grown during this period from 10 per cent of the total enrollment to 15 per cent of the total enrollment, a 50 per cent increase in the ratio," the report states. This means that fewer and fewer students are dropping out.

"It is a fact of no small significance that in the last five years the University has graduated 1,864 students, the great majority of whom begin to take up at once the responsibilities of life in Oregon communities. The steadily increasing number of alumni who are assuming leadership in constructive community development is an evidence of at least one substantial service by its University to the state," according to the report.

Progress has gone on, in spite of inadequate financial support. Attention is called to an increase of 158 per cent in enrollment between 1913 and 1920, while the University's income has remained nearly stationary for that same period. Recent provision for the support of higher education has not kept pace with the growing wealth of the state, the report points

"Assessments which supply the basis for millage taxes levied for the support of higher education, which were expected to increase with the wealth of the state, have failed utterly to respond to the increasing resources. During the period 1912-1922, while the wealth of Oregon increased 65 per cent, the assessed values increased a little less than six per cent," according to the report.

"Since 1920, when the second millage tax was passed, full-time enrollment at Eugene has increased 62 per cent, while the income of the University has been augmented by a bare nine per cent.

"The University's responsibilities have outgrown its income, and financial support intended for the education of 1,785 students has been stretched to take care of 3,000 in the same institution."

Scholarship standards in the University, both for entering and for remaining, have steadily risen, the report states, citing such newly-enacted rules as that barring out-of-state students who are not qualified to enter their own state universities, psychology tests for freshmen, an increase in the minimum number of hours necessary to stay in the University, placing the entering students whose high school record places them below average in special groups where their records are checked.

Speaking of the University as a center of education for both physicians and nurses in the prevention and cure of children's diseases, the Doernbecher Memorial hospital, in connection with the Portland medical school, is cited as a valuable addition. It was made possible by gifts.

Growth of the extension division has been greater than in any other department, and, the report adds, demands on the University in the field of adult education are probably just beginning.

Everything's going to be all right

THAT'S the way P. A. talks to you in the bowl of a pipe. This great national gloom-chaser stabs the darkest clouds with a ray of sunshine. Buy a tidy red tin of Prince Albert today and see. Tamp a load of this friendly tobacco into your jimmy-pipe and light up.

Cool as a sub-cellar. Sweet as the breath of fresh-cut violets. Fragrant in the tin and fragrant as you smoke it. Never a tongue-bite or a throat-parch. So mild you can hit it up from sun-up to sun-down, yet with a body that satisfies completely.

There's more philosophy in a pipe-load of P. A. than in the average Doctor's thesis. No matter what brand you are smoking now, you don't know how much your jimmy-pipe can mean to you until you pack it with good old Prince Albert. Get started now.

—no other tobacco is like it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

LEGISLATING ALUMNI

ALUMNI of a state university in politics! An alumni association in state politics!

You've heard those terrible words before. They make the citizen who isn't sure about state-supported universities see red. They excite and inflame him.

But what are you going to do about it, when several alumni, through natural political processes, get into politics, and without an iota of help, encouragement or assistance from organized alumni, are elected to the state legislature by a vote of the people?

NOMINATING COMMITTEES

ARTHUR M. GEARY, than whom there is no alumnus of the University more consistently serious in his interest in the institution, made a thoughtful point at the Homecoming meeting of the Alumni Association.

He questioned the method now in use of nominating candidates for the three offices of the association that are filled annually by election. That method of nomination is through a nominating committee selected by the president of the association. There is no doubt but that that method does not insure representative control of the association by all alumni, it is liable to be abused, and tends to stifle widespread interest and rivalry among alumni for the honor of directing the association's affairs.

The trouble is, as Art knows, that there is no other method provided by the constitution of the association. But there is no reason that we can think of, why candidates for these offices should not be nominated by a much larger group of alumni representatives, if only that larger group can be created and made to function.

There has been appointed a special committee of alumni to consider this problem of a reorganization of the association. Is there some plan of securing a governing board, representative of all districts of the state, which can and should do this nominating?

We would like to have your suggestions. Write 'em down—now! Then send them to the alumni secretary.

NO MORE SLOGANS

OLD OREGON is not an alarmist, but we have come to the conclusion that a hideous problem threatens the succeeding generations of University of Oregon students: Namely: How and from Whence will arise the future Homecoming slogans?

Nor do we flaunt this problem without offering a solution. Instead of permitting Homecoming committees to write the year after year under the battery slogans submitted, OLD OREGON suggests the permanent adoption of "Jimmie" Gilbert's pertinent offering for the 1926 Homecoming: "Home to Honor Oregon!"

"Slogans arise," says the Penny Post, "from the same imbecile urge which makes people start parades; they are at best linguistic exhibitionism," and at worst they are—perhaps here it is wise to place a discreet period.

With the Penny Post we advocate a Society for the Deflating of Bloated Phrases and concur in its motto, Slaughter all Slogans!

All, indeed, except the one, "Home to Honor Oregon!"

Our Oregon

From the glory of the mountains,
From the mighty, rushing streams,
From the splendor of the prairies
From the longing and the dreams
Came the great, undaunted spirit
Of our hardy pioneers,
Who laid the firm foundation
(Through the early, trying years)
Of Our Oregon.

With the glory of their vision
With their courage, lofty, true
With the splendor of their conquest,
With their will to dare and do,
Here are we, their sons and daughters,
We, the youth of this fair land,
Guarding now the priceless treasure
That came freely from their hand,
Our Oregon.

From the challenge they have flung us
From their faith in learning's might,
From their sacrifice and labor
From their striving through the night,
May we gain the love of service
And our lives fair laurels bring
To our own loved Alma Mater
While the years new praises sing
Of Our Oregon.

Our treasure ship has sailed the seven seas—to bring to Portland a wealth of rare and wondrous wares! Here you will find rich silks, exquisite linens, furniture, aristocratic china,... frivolous... underthings—and myriads of "little things." Here, too, you will find a spirit of service, a service that brings with it a welcoming smile, a helpful suggestion that makes your gift-seeking not drudgery but pleasure unalloyed!

OLDS-WORTMAN & KING

The Antiquity of Learning and Its Benevolence

and the founders of our institutions may the University in every community stand steadfast in respect and reverence for law.

For himself Judge Deady quoted at the head of an autobiographical article this passage from Socrates:

"Four things belong to a judge: To hear courteously, to answer wisely, to consider soberly, and to decide impartially."

This noble judge was a giant in stature who towered in any room he entered six feet two inches, erect with broad and massive brow, wavy auburn hair and beard later tinged with grey and then white, grayish blue eyes, and a most beneficent countenance. He looked as if he were a king come from some other planet—but he was of the people of Oregon—a pioneer of 1849. And he wrought incessantly to make this state and its institutions wholesome, law-abiding, lofty in ideas and ideals, spiritual in its attitude to God and man—for the children of the pioneers he loved, and their children's children.

And as a representative of the pioneers of Oregon and a daughter of pioneers and associated with the University twenty-one precious years, I may insert here for all pioneers and citizens of the state appreciation of the devotion and service through the half century of the boards of regents who have helped to make the University what it is.

I want to add a word about this beautiful campus. When the first building was erected it stood in a bare field, not a shrub or vine or hedge of roses or tree nearer than the ancient oaks over yonder; companions they were of this old building. But now it is in the midst of beauty and fragrance. A professor of mathematics in Columbia University, New York, told me a few years ago on his return from the University of Oregon that the gardener here had told him that he had cut at least 50,000 roses that season. This campus has many elements of rare beauty—its rich greens of lawn and tall, graceful trees, acres of upland and lowland, snow-capped mountains always on the east; the sources of a majestic river flowing by and these ever changing, involuting, picturesque surrounding ranges of hills. The University looks out on this spreading upper Willamette valley to be in a few years the home of a great city and a greater University. Fifty years ago a bare field and one building! What a transformation!

On March 30, 1893, at a meeting of the board of regents, on motion of Mr. A. G. Hovey, the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, one of the buildings of the University of Oregon has no distinctive name by which it can be conveniently designated, therefore be it

"Resolved That the original University building be designated as 'Deady Hall' and be henceforth known by that name in honor of the late Honorable Matthew P. Deady."

The beneficent influences of a man do not die with him. Neither do the benevolent purposes of any nation or any age die as time moves on. Records of some sort transmit to succeeding ages and other nations benevolences that advance the human race on its way upward.

Our inheritance of the past fifty years is here in the keeping of the thousands that have gone out and are to follow. May it be kept ever worthy of the ideals of the founders in old Deady hall; a source of true, productive scholarship, nobility of character, unselfish service and reverence for the Father of us all.

The retrospect of the past and something of its meaning would emphasize the promise of the greater future for the next half century and lead us out of full hearts to extend greetings and welcome to our President Hall as he leads us on into ever widening paths of knowledge and service.

No other cigarette ever had so many millions of friends

WHEREVER you travel, by sea or by land, in places of work or palaces of pleasure, you find the friends of Camel. And since the art of increasing life's comfort through smoking was discovered, no other cigarette ever made and kept so many friends.

Why does Camel lead the world? Because only the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos are bought for Camels. Because Camel is given a blending that, regardless of price, can be found in no other cigarette. Because the world's largest tobacco organization spares neither cost nor effort to make Camel the utmost in cigarettes.

Camel rewards its friends with never-ending peace and satisfaction. Through the day and into the night, it's simply impossible to smoke enough Camels to tire the taste. We invite you to answer, now, the world's most popular smoke invitation—Have a Camel!
