Boasts of Oregon

DEAR OLD OREGON:

I have found OLD OREGON most interesting, well written, and a very great help in making me homesick for Oregon. I also take great delight in displaying the magazine to the Virginians and of boasting of Oregon, and our marvelous climate.

At present I am receiving a most valuable musical education in accompanying Louise Homer's daughter, and two other Richmond singers—and wishing that I had spent a few more hours practicing, or working on finger exercises, and listening to Mr. Hopkins! However, I am working hard now and may some day become a decent accompanist.

Best of luck to Oregon and OLD OREGON.

Likes Alumni News

DEAR OLD OREGON:

We enjoy reading OLD OREGON and the part I enjoy most is alumni news of the classes from 1905 to 1908, while the news Mrs. Gardner enjoys most is of the classes from 1908 to 1911, my class being '08 and hers being '11.

I would suggest that your staff gather up a little more news of the old Grads. This should not be hard to do. You may not have space to take care of more news or you may not care to print more, but it would be very satisfying to me, when I unwrap OLD OREGON, to find, when turning to Alumni News, items of the whereabouts and doings of my old schoolmates. A phone call from a duly appointed representative of your staff, and a few minutes conversation could secure the desired results. I'm sure you could find, in each community, where there are alumni, members who would be glad to perform this service.

I have to report that, since graduation 26 years ago, I have followed construction work; buildings, roads and bridges in Washington, Oregon and Alaska. My wife (Hattie E. Hyde, '11) and family usually spent their summer vacations with me on the Alaska work, which lasted for six seasons, and which were among the most pleasant experiences of their lives.

We lived in Eugene from school days until 1917 and since then our home has been in Portland. We have five: Maurice age 9 in the fourth grade, Nancy and Betsy age 13 graduating from the eighth grade this June, Phyllis age 16, junior in Grant high and Dan age 18, graduating from Grant high this June.

Curtis Gardner, '08,

OLD OREGON is now working on a plan of obtaining the services of alumni correspondents in the cities and towns of Oregon and the larger cities of the country where any appreciable number of alumni reside. However, except for what information comes to the alumni office through newspapers and the natural intercourse of correspondence and visits, OLD OREGON must depend largely upon the voluntary contributions of its subscribers for a thorough coverage of the large and widely separated alumni membership.—Editor.

NEWS AND COMMENT

By the Editor

Important Phase

One of the most delightful experiences in the academic year at the University is the annual summer sessions. The temperament of the summer sessions is quite different from the general sessions. The students attending these sessions are in the main a maturer group, with a better balance between academic aspirations and recreational and social activities. Many alumni are to be found attending the summer classes, and in many cases have returned to the campus merely to pick up some loose ends of their formal education which they have come to feel were neglected in their undergraduate days. The same holds true for the undergraduates who wish to make up work toward their degrees. Also, combined with this distinct "summer school attitude" is a delightfully different sort of social life from that which exists during the general sessions. In part, the season of the year is responsible; in part, the closed fraternities and sororities; and lastly the definite injection of a maturer type of individual into the campus enrollment. Without for a moment wishing to deprecate the general session, it is, however, a pleasant change on the campus when the summer sessions come around. Even the undergraduates notice it and enjoy it.

These are only a few of the reasons why summer sessions at Oregon grow more popular each year; probably the more superficial reasons. But it cannot be denied that summer sessions constitute a most important phase in the work of the University, and it is with full conviction of their worth and the many peculiar advantages they offer, that OLD OREGON in its Summer Sessions Number heartily recommends the summer sessions to all alumni and ex-students who can see their way clear to attend. Without a doubt, these summer sessions are a real boon to those persons who can in no other way continue their formal education; and for alumni they afford a perfect way for renewing campus associations with former faculty members as well as many new ones.

Callister Remains

Fred E. Callister, member of the State Board of Higher Education since its inception, has accepted an executive position with the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Spokane, Washington. When this announcement was first made, it was feared by some that this would necessitate his resignation from the state body. However, this is not the case. The new position does not necessarily change his official residence, and his resignation, which was at first feared, is not to take place. Callister has served the board with credit to himself and with distinguished service to the state. Because of his demonstrated ability and because of his long experience, it would have been hard to find a man to take Fred Callister's place on the board. OLD OREGON rejoices, as do all true friends of higher education, that Callister's new business connections have not made it necessary for him to leave the board.

In Process

Another rough spot that yet remains to be ironed out in the succession of readjustments since the advent of the unified system in higher education was brought to light recently by findings of state auditors in going over the books of the Oregon State System of Higher Education. It was discovered that unlawful payments were being made on the bonded indebtedness of dormitories at the University and College and the Monmouth normal school. The payments were being made in an attempt to carry the dormitories over the depression period. This practice was sharply criticised by the auditors. It is expected that the board will iron out this difficulty at its next meeting, and to be hoped that the system's accounting system will be strengthened, as are other features of the unified system from time to time, by this and other minor adjustments.

Considered Plan

Waiting on approval of the attorney-general and passage by the authorized committee of the State Board of Higher Education, is a plan for the re-establishment of the student body fee and a full activity program. The plan involves the creation of a regular academic department of activities to supplement the present A. S. U. O. office.

DEAN OF SESSIONS
Alfred Powers, Oregon alumnus, who is in charge of all the summer sessions of the system. His job is the simple matter of getting up better summer sessions on a smaller budget.

SUMMER SESSIONS

COMPLETE PROGRAM

Many Inquiries

Six regular six weeks summer sessions will be held in 1934 by the Oregon State System of Higher Education. These will be the Eugene and Portland sessions of the University of Oregon, the Corvallis session of Oregon State College, the Monmouth session of the Oregon Normal School, the Ashland session of the Southern Oregon Normal School, and the La Grande session of the Eastern Oregon Normal School. The dates for all are from June 18 to July 27.

There will be two post sessions, one at Eugene from July 30 to August 24, serving the regular sessions of Corvallis, Eugene and Portland, and one at Monmouth, from July 30 to August 31, serving all three of the normal schools.

Preliminary inquiries are several hundred ahead of last year and it is expected that the improvement of conditions will mean a larger enrollment in all sessions. Last year the total enrollment was 1,835.

The main offerings parallel the major lines of work during the regular year, with additional service courses to round out the programs at all places.

The preliminary bulletin listing courses and faculties in all the sessions is available upon request to the Director of Summer Sessions, 814 Oregon Building, Portland. There is one complete bulletin for the Eugene and Portland sessions of the University of Oregon, and single bulletins for the three normal schools and the Corvallis session, each available upon request at 814 Oregon Building, Portland.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Writers Enthusiastic

¶ These letters between Portland and Eugene include a good bit of advance information on interesting phases of the University of Oregon summer sessions this year. Judged by this "correspondence," the outlook is decidedly encouraging.—EDITOR.

EUGENE.

Dear Bill:

If you read enough of this you will discover that it's about the University summer sessions for 1934. I'm still uncertain whether to attend in Eugene or Portland, but I'm sure it will be one or the other. I suppose the result of our correspondence will be, that you'll persuade me to go to Portland and I'll talk you into coming to Eugene. But—we'll see.

Notwithstanding New Deals and NRA price codes, it's going to be possible to get a whole lot of education for very little money this summer. I've just been figuring. A fellow can attend summer session for just about what it takes to stay at home—if he's got it. Two in a room can get board and room, everything furnished, at the men's dormitory (John Straub Memorial) for $40.50 for the whole six weeks. Add the $20 tuition, and it's still only $60.50. You could add the Post Session, four weeks more, and increase the bill only $7, leaving you still $2.50 to spend foolishly out of a hundred you might have brought with you.

At Portland, of course, the tuition costs are the same, and I don't suppose there's much difference in living costs.

You'll be glad to know—maybe you saw it in the papers—that for the fifth successive time the University of Oregon has been selected by the educational committee of the American Institute of Architects as the western institution to give courses specially selected for teachers of art. Harvard is again the eastern school selected. The courses to be offered this year under special grant of the Carnegie Corporation are designed particularly for teachers of art in the public schools. These are, of course, in addition to the regular art and architecture courses offered for other students. Fellowships in these special art courses have been given to 25 specially selected teachers and supervisors of art in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, California, Utah, and Alaska.

I'm told that while there will not be so many visiting educators in the summer session faculties as in some preceding years, the teaching staff will be kept well up to standard by the number of deans, department heads, and full professors who are staying over to teach this summer. There are eleven deans and department heads in the Eugene session—Dr. H. V. Hoyt in business administration, Mrs. Otilie T. Seybolt in drama, Dr. J. R. Jewell in education, Dr. Robert Carlton Clark in history, Dean Eric W. Allen in journalism, Prof. E. E. DeCou in mathematics, Dr. George Rebec in philosophy, Dr. John F. Bovard in physical education, Dr. Will Victor Norris in physics, Dr. E. S. Conklin in psychology, and Dr. Philip A. Parsons in sociology. And Dr. A. E. Caswell, formerly professor of physics in the University, now at Oregon State, will be here for both regular and post sessions. Doctor Caswell, you have perhaps heard, is to be back at the University next year after one year at Corvallis.

Well, we'll have to leave the rest of this for our next. Regards to everybody. Yours, Joe.

* * *

PORTLAND.

Dear Joe:

Eugene sounds good for this summer, as you put the set-up in your letter, but I'm looking things over in Portland before making the final decision. A good part-time job in either place might be the deciding factor, although, with costs so low, I can make it anyhow.

I was in at the Portland Center office the other day and talked with Dean Alfred Powers and members of his staff. The Dean is well pleased with the outlook for courses. I don't recall his exact words; but he pointed out that the various summer curricula for the whole Oregon system of higher education are very satisfactory, with the fundamentals, never more necessary than in times like these, strongly presented and new methods and particularly stimulating motivation in several important departments.

Mrs. Hilda Olsen Cooper, secretary of summer sessions, told me that she now has more than 200 more inquiries about the summer work than had come in at this time last year. More than the usual number, she said, are coming in from out of state. Texas, which is a few degrees warmer than Oregon in the summer, is sending along a lot of inquiries. More and more, to use a Lone Star phrase, "the eyes of Texas are upon" the northern summer sessions. I hope a lot of Texans come. Some who were here last year expressed their delight with these northern summers, "just right for college work," and they are not repelled by a heavy out-of-state fee as in regular sessions. You know how I feel about that whole out-of-state-fee matter—but that is another story. Anyway, with economic recovery apparently before us and no longer around some formidable corner or other, prospects for attendance this summer are regarded as promising.

BACK FOR THIRD TIME

Dr. Eugen Steinhof, director of the National School of Decorative Art at Vienna, will again handle the psychology of art teaching on the campus.

As usual, there is a fine offering of education courses in both Eugene and Portland. The Portland faculty, I notice, includes a number of visiting professors from other institutions. Prof. Bernard Hinshaw, head of the department of art in Illinois Wesleyan University, who gave art and education courses here last year, will be back, greatly to the joy of those who have a yen for art. That reminds me that Sydney Bell, instructor in portraiture in the Portland public schools, after a very successful year with Portland Center classes, will give some work in summer session in this city. I'm inclined to take a little of that myself, having heard that Bell gets results from students who were none too sure they could draw a straight line.

But here I am off the track; the subject was the education faculty courses. Another visiting professor who is expected to add immensely to the effectiveness of this work is Dr. Jay C. Knode, professor of philosophy and education in the University of New Mexico. I suppose you already know a lot about him; he's right in your line.

You knew that Prof. W. G. Beattie, of the extension division, was to give courses here this summer again. E. H. Whitney and C. R. Holloway, assistant superintendents of Portland schools, will give their platoon courses again this summer. These three are favorites in Portland.

A little aside from the subject of courses we could take, I can't help mentioning the course for county superintendents, which will be given in cooperation with C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction. This will run for a week, July 16 to 21, and the lectures will cover administrative procedure, supervision, school finance, treatment of arithmetic, public relations, and teacher work, among other things.

Ed has just come in from a movie, and he's wasting his time, and mine, arguing that I'd be foolish not to go tomorrow night. Signing off. More anon. Tell me some more about the Eugene session. BILL.

* * *

Dear Bill:

Well, how did you like that movie you weren't going to see?

Resuming where I left off, I should tell you—and I'm delighted to do it—that Dr. Eugen Steinhof, director of the National School of Decorative Art at Vienna, will be back this summer to handle the work in the psychology of art teaching in the Carnegie-A.I.A. art center on the campus. He was very inspiring to the art teachers who were here from various Pacific Coast colleges the last two summers, I am told. Teachers schooled in his psychological method get better and faster results.

It looks like a great summer in the drama—and I don't mean Hepburn or Ben Turpin. Both Mrs. Seybolt and Mr. Robinson of the drama division faculty are staying for summer session, and they are giving four courses—choral reading, dramatic interpretation and technique of acting, theater workshop, and play production. One of the high spots of the summer session, usually, is the play (sometimes there's more than one) given by the students of drama here. Sometimes the play is put on outdoors; you know what charming settings are available here for that sort of thing.

Your mention of the education courses in Portland gives me an opportunity to tell you about the Eugene offerings. Summer session is the one opportunity for teachers to extend their own educations, and they'll be here again in large numbers—a heavy percentage of the summer enrollment—taking some courses in their own field and others in literature and the arts. The great body of the regular education faculty—Dean Jewell, Doctor Bossing, Doctor DeBusk, Dr. Huffaker, Professor Stetson—will be here this summer, as will Miss Lillian Rayner, teacher of remedial English in the Central Junior High School at Los Angeles. Miss Rayner will cooperate with Doctor DeBusk in the clinical school for problem children handicapped for achievement by psychological or physical shortcomings. She has assisted in this work for several years. Dr. Grace Fernald, of the University of California at Los Angeles, who has come to Eugene several summers to handle the work with atypical children, will not be able to get away from her own university this summer. This is a loss; but both Doctor DeBusk and Miss Rayner are outstanding in this type of work. Eugene people are thoroughly sold on the results of the clinic conducted in connection with these courses. They have seen the reclamation of many retarded children, numbers of whom have been put back into the public schools and able to proceed at the normal rate after having been given up as hopeless. These courses are sending out, year after year, teachers skilled in remedial techniques who can do in their own communities what they have seen the teachers in charge of the clinics accomplish here. This sort of thing is going to put a stop to a most deplorable waste of a lot of good human material. Such waste is preventable now.

MAKING A SUMMER OF IT

Dr. Robert H. Seashore is one of the summer staff who will be carrying a full teaching load through both the regular and the post session. He is associate professor of psychology at Eugene, where he will remain for the summer.

So you see, these education courses are not just the sort of "theory" that the "practical" men sniff at—although, personally, I shouldn't think there'd be a sniff left in them when they contemplate the results of their own trial-and-error technique in social, economic, and political fields.

There'll be a lot of English courses, conducted by a staff which includes Miss Mary H. Perkins, Dr. E. C. A. Lesch, S. Stephenson Smith, author of "The Craft of the Critic" (a very seaworthy venture, by the way); Dr. George Williamson, authority on John Donne; Dr. Robert D. Horn, Dr. Leslie L. Lewis, and Prof. Kenneth Shumaker, who is in charge of the campus hospital for lame and halting English. I'm thinking of taking English composition from him. I understand you have Dr. Rudolf Ernst again in Portland.

German classes on the campus here will, for the second successive summer, be in charge of Dr. Joseph von Bradish, of the College of the City of New York, who made so many friends here last summer, both in and out of the classroom. Dr. F. G. G. Schmidt, veteran head of the department, will again be in Portland.

Well, there's an econ. quiz Wednesday, "and here it am Tuesday." So I'll have to forget about summer session and get ready to convince that prof that he and Taussig aren't the only ones that understand this subject.

Tell me more about the Portland session. JOE.

And P.S. I hear that Mary is coming to the Eugene summer session. Now how do you feel about the Portland courses, etc.? J.

* * *

Dear Joe:

By this time, I suppose, you have decided to come to Portland for summer session. Of course the mere fact that Ethel is coming here would have nothing to do with it, but . . . I hope you'll still be able to make a showing in class.

HERE'S WHERE THEY'LL LIVE

Or, at any rate, a good many of them. It's the John Straub Memorial hall, men's dormitory, which will be divided into several separate halls, for the use of men and women students.

You will be wanting to take a course from Dr. Merle Curti of Smith College, who is to give the social history of the United States here in Portland. Dr. Harold J. Noble of the Oregon faculty will be here. I think you've had his course in recent history of China and Japan as a part of your regular work on the campus, have you not?

Now that I know you are to be in the Portland session I won't need to go into extended detail about several other fine courses here. Dr. Alexander Goldenweiser, who is working on two anthropological books just now, will be giving philosophy and anthropology. There will be several science courses, including chemistry, given the first time in a Portland summer session, I believe. The course will be handled by Dr. A. H. Kunz, assistant professor of chemistry in Oregon State College, who, by the way, will be back at the University next year. Your old friend, Dr. Albert R. Sweetser, will be giving courses in botany here again. Courses in bacteriology and physiology will be given by two members of the medical school faculty, Dr. Henry J. Sears and Dr. C. E. Burget, respectively.

The usual extensive offerings in physical education will be given by a faculty composed of Dean Bovard, Prof. Robert Krohn, and Miss Lucile Hill.

It will seem perfectly natural to have W. H. Boyer and F. W. Goodrich in charge of music here. Music seems to suggest public speaking—which reminds me that Prof. Percy M. Collier is to give a course in public speaking for teaching and other professions that might do you a lot of good.

Some more of your best-known campus faculty folk are to be here this summer, in addition to those I have mentioned. Two of these are Dr. Calvin Crumbaker, handling economics and political science, and Dr. Howard R. Taylor, psychology.

Prof. F. M. Warrington will be giving courses in French, and prospective journalism cubs will be in charge of Wallace Wharton of the Oregon Journal staff again.

Mrs. Saidie Orr-Dunbar will put on her institute for health workers June 18 to 29.

It looks as if the traditional boat trip, the big social event of the Portland social session, which corresponds to the Kampus Frolik at Eugene, would turn out to be something else again this year. The old river boats are doing too much business to bother with anything like a picnic any more. But I seem to remember that Mrs. Sharp put something across last year that was as good as the boat trip in its best days. You, of course, will be too busy trying to fatten your scholastic batting average to take an evening off?

I have just discovered that the Eugene courses are just what I need. So I'll be there, while you're here in Portland. We can do the post session at Eugene together. BILL.

P.S. You may have noted that I said nothing about sociology. Well, it's just settled that Dr. Carroll D. Clark, head of the department of sociology at the University of Kansas, has been added to the Portland faculty, to give three courses, probably elements, social unrest, and contemporary social movements. I hear Dean Powers is promising him cooler weather than is generally offered summers at Lawrence. B.

Dear Bill:

A few odds and ends about the post session. Dr. Dan E. Clark will be in charge of it, and courses will be given in eight schools and departments: economics, by Dr. Victor P. Morris; education, by Dean Jewell, Doctor Bossing, Professor Stetson, Doctor Chambers, and Prof. E. W. Warrington; English, by Doctor Horn and Doctor Lewis; history, by Dr. Dan E. Clark and Doctor Fish; law, by Prof. Charles G. Howard; physics, by Doctor Caswell and Dr. H. J. Unger; psychology, by Dr. R. H. Seashore, and sociology, by Dr. Philip A. Parsons.

The post session starts July 31 and runs through to August 25.

I should have mentioned the library workers' courses in the regular session; Mary will be interested. Miss Marion Horton, of Los Angeles, who gave library courses here last summer, will be back, and courses will be given also by Miss E. Lenore Casford, periodical librarian; Miss Bernice Rise, acting supervisor of the circulation department, and Mrs. Lois Baker, all of the Oregon library staff.

Did I tell you that the assemblies this summer will be given in the evening, leaving the 11 o'clock hour open for class work? This is expected to be an all-around improvement in the schedule.

That's all; see you this summer, Joe.

RAMBLING REPORTER

SEATTLE

Webfoot Treachery

There seems to be near treason in the midst of many of the numerous ex-Oregonians, who are living in Seattle.

One would think the memories of the "soft" climate of Portland would be sufficient to make the green land everlastingly a part of one. But, alack and alas, many former Portlanders and residents of Bend, Marshfield, La Grande and Astoria—now living in this Husky strongho'd—are convinced the Seattle spirit is the real thing.

"You'll like Seattle the longer you live here," was the assurance given two years ago to a "deported" Oregonian.

"Not if the hills still remain," was the answer, and it seems the hills are still with us.

Seattle is a haven for about 330 former students and graduates of the University of Oregon. A walk downtown during the lunch hour ordinarily brings one in a chance meeting with kindred souls, who knew the charms of the mill race, old Kincaid field and its November mud battles with Oregon State, and frosh paddling before the library steps.

All Loyal

But there is no question of the loyalty of the sons and daughters of Oregon at the annual Oregon-Washington football classic. They gather before, during and after the game and are ready to acclaim most anytime that the Huskies won't score on Oregon. Six scoreless years for Washington! Is it any wonder that Coach Jimmie Phelan of Washington will "point" his team for Oregon at Multnomah stadium, Portland, next October? Nothing but a victory will satisfy the Huskies. They may get it—and then again . . .

One of Oregon's great halfbacks—John Parsons, ex-'21—has lived in Seattle for several years and is in the creamery business. He "carried the mail" on Bezdek's great Oregon team that beat Penn at Pasadena, New Year's day, 1917. John is married.

Sterling "Bart" Spellman, ex-'17, played guard on that same Bezdek-coached eleven. Later he was line coach at Washington under the late Enoch Bagshaw. Bart is with the Henry Broderick, Inc., real estate. His wife is Le'a Cushman, '18.

Fisherman

If there is anything that John DeWitt Gilbert, '20, son of the late Colonel William S. Gilbert of the Old Third Oregon, doesn't know about fish—his friends have been unable to find it out. He is doing a right smart job as associate editor of the Pacific Fisherman. His wife is Olive Risley, '18. Their two treasures are boys—John, aged 7, and Bill, 10.

John Clark Burgard, '16, well-known Pacific Coast bond broker, recently resigned as a partner in the firm of Russell Miller & Co., and is considering other business offers in Seattle.

Dr. Raymond J. Sweeney, ex-'16, is one of Seattle's most active dentists, who is always willing to talk about the joys of "Those Days at Oregon." He is married and has a son, Joseph.

Dr. Albert J. Bowles, '20, is a goiter specialist in the Stimson Building.

Golfer

Another ex-varsity football player under Bezdek is Donald J. Cawley, ex-'18, sales manager of the American Can company. You'll find him on the golf course during his leisure moments. He has a son, Don Jr.

J. B. "Ben" Stam, ex-'19, still has hopes that the Seattle Baseball club will find a place—some day—in the first division of the Pacific Coast league. He is the very successful Seattle manager of the Clyde Equipment company. His wife is the former Louise Bailey, '16. They have three children—Dorothy, Marian and Carol.

Lloyd Bayly, ex-'17, recently was advanced to district manager of the General Petroleum company with headquarters in Seattle.

Henry I. Trowbridge, ex-'16, is with the General Furniture company and has twin daughters.

Dr. Earl B. Brookbank, M.D. '12, is an obstetrical specialist with offices in the Medical & Dental building.

Henry Schaefer, ex-'26, has been promoted to vice-president of the Seattle Trust company, in charge of development of new business. His wife was former'y Elsie Skoog, '24.

Dr. Herbert T. Condon, '92, is dean of men at the University of Washington. His wife (Maude Wilkins Condon) graduated from Oregon in '96.

Helen Johns, '17, is on the library staff at the University of Washington.

COMMENCEMENT

Full Program

Beginning with the Failing and Beekman oratorical contest to be held Friday evening, June 8, Commencement activities will continue through the week-end to Monday, June 11, when the fifty-seventh commencement exercises of the University of Oregon will be held.

Six candidates, chosen from a large field by preliminary elimination, will compete in the oratorical contest Friday evening for the two prizes of $150 and $100.

The first event on Saturday, Alumni Day, will be the annual meeting and breakfast of the State Association of University of Oregon Women to be held at 9 o'clock at the Osburn hotel.

At 10:30 the semi-annual business meeting of the Alumni Association will be called to order in Guild Theatre by Joe Freck, vice-president. President Ralph Cake has been called to the East and will be unable to be on the campus for the Commencement week-end. Several items of business affecting the welfare of the University and the Association will be dealt with at this gathering.

Following the meeting will be the annual University luncheon at which Dr. C. V. Boyer, president of the University, will be the principal speaker. He will outline for alumni and seniors who, together with the members of the reunion classes, will be honor guests at the luncheon, his ideals for the University of Oregon, stressing the part that alumni and especially the new alumni, as represented by the graduates of 1934, can play in fulfilling these hopes. Representatives of the five reunion classes will be called on for a few words each. Merle Chessman, permanent secretary of the 25-year class, 1909, has been asked to serve as toastmaster in place of President Cake.

Reception

A reception to the new graduates and visiting alumni will be given in the afternoon by President Boyer and Chancellor Kerr. This is a traditional part of the commencement activities, and it is expected now that the University again has a president of its own, that a revival in interest in this event will result. Alumni are particularly anxious to meet the University's new chief executive.

At five-thirty the classes of 1884, 1904, 1909, 1914 and 1924 will hold reunion dinners. These affairs are entirely in charge of the officers of the classes and arrangement committees. Several distinctive programs have already been arranged by the classes. These dinners, however, are popular with alumni mainly because of the opportunity for classmates to gather together entirely by themselves.

Except for the usual gathering of classmates at the homes of Eugene alumni later in the evening, these dinners afford the only opportunity for the classes to gather as a distinct group. However, several of the classes are planning to attend Commencement functions in a body. Unscheduled reunions are being planned also by the classes of 1913 and 1899.

Following the dinners the annual flower and fern procession and twilight concert will be staged on the lawn surrounding the Pioneer Mother statue.

Rev. David J. Ferguson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Astoria, will deliver the Baccalaureate address on Sunday morning in McArthur Court. Dr. Ferguson is nationally known as a scholar and orator.

Bane Is Speaker

The Commencement exercises will start at 10 o'clock Monday morning in McArthur Court, Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare Association will deliver the Commencement address. Bane has for many years been identified with leading sociological and welfare movements in the United States. He was one of the principal speakers at the recent Commonwealth conference held on the campus and was so well received that the Commencement committee decided to bring him back to Eugene for the graduation exercises. Dr. P. A. Parsons, head of sociology on the campus and a close friend of the speaker, says of Bane, "He is a delightful public speaker. He has a fund of humorous stories, a pronounced southern dialect, and an entertaining way of presenting his speech."

Women Active

Commencement time at the University will bring many activities for women, both graduates and former students.

Of special importance among these events for the women will be the annual breakfast and meeting of the State Association of University of Oregon Women, Saturday morning, June 9, and the annual flower and fern procession that evening. The breakfast will be a no-hostess event at 9 a. m. in the Osburn hotel at which time officers will be elected and reports given on the progress of the Mary Spiller loan fund, which is one of the major projects of the group and which is to be put into operation soon. The flower and fern procession will be at 7:30 p. m. on the women's quadrangle lawn on the campus.

The State Association of University of Oregon Women was founded for all graduates and former women students, with two main goals: One to establish and maintain the Mary Spiller loan fund, named after Oregon's first woman faculty member, and to be used in helping worthy women students; and secondly to perpetuate the flower and fern procession.

The flower and fern procession is one of the most impressive and beautiful ceremonies held on any college campus in the country. The women who sponsor this event are anxious that every alumna and every senior woman graduate this year be on hand for this event Saturday evening.

Mrs. C. V. Boyer, wife of the president of the University, and women members of the class of 1884 will be honor guests for the breakfast and procession. Senior women are especially urged to attend the breakfast meeting. Reservations, open to all senior women and former graduates of the University, may be made by calling 891. Price per plate will be 50 cents.

Exhibit

An interesting exhibit of historical material concerning the University of Oregon, its early classes and faculty members is being arranged by Miss Pauline Walton, indexer for the University library, and will be placed in the main room of the library during Commencement week. Pictures, graduation programs of early classes, and historical documents will make up this display. Miss Walton is herself a member of the reunion class of 1904 and the daughter of J. J. Walton, secretary of the founding group of the University, in whose handwriting many of the documents that will be on display are written.

The Murray Warner Collection of Oriental Art will be open from 3 to 5 p. m. on Saturday, Sunday and Monday of Commencement week-end. The Campbell Memorial Court will be open throughout the week.

TRACK

Upset Huskies

"Foxy Bill Hayward Beats Huskies 67 to 64" read headlines May 13, the day after the Oregon-Washington track meet on Hayward field.

The outcome surprised everybody—even Bill himself pretended to be amazed. But those who know Hayward best suspected something like what happened, for the more doleful he is early in the season, the better team he usually turns out. This year was no exception to this rule.

The thrill of all thrills at the track meet was the finish of a race that Oregon didn't win—the two mile. Bob Wagner, Oregon, who has been undefeated for the past two years, kept ahead of Ariel Edmiston, sophomore runner from Washington, all the way, and the two came into the stretch nearly even. Both sprinted, until six inches from the tape it looked for a split second like a dead heat. Then Edmiston lunged, to beat out Wagner by three inches (see picture).

The only record of the day was set by Bob Parke, who heaved the javelin 207 feet, 11 inches (see picture), to better the Northwest division mark set last year by Warren Demaris of Oregon of 205 feet 9 inches. Parke's first in this event put Oregon over for the victory.

Oregon's first surprise of the day came in the 100 yard dash, when the Webfoot sprinters came in first and second. The first dash was called off due to a poor start, but the result of the re-run was the same, with Hopson and Shoemake trading places.

Each team won seven firsts, but Oregon scored seven seconds and seven thirds to win. Washington easily won the relay, the final event, but had already lost the meet.

In view of the fine showing made in the dashes, Oregon is now conceded to be a real contender in the Northern Division meet to be held on Hayward field June 2.

BASEBALL

Flashy Team

The Oregon baseball squad this year looks and plays like a real ball club. To date the varsity has played seven games, won five and lost but two. One of the losses, Washington State, was a game that was called on account of rain in the sixth, when Oregon was but one run behind.

Oregon this year has a crack, fast infield that has aroused the admiration of every visiting coach, even "Tubby" Graves, never-silent coach of Washington who dropped two games here. Besides a fast-fielding team, Oregon has a flock of real hitters this year. Mike Hunt, right-fielder, in 18 times at bat, has smashed out 8 hits for an average of .444. Ray Koch, who can heave them clear over the fence at just the right time, has hit 12 times out of 30 trips to the plate, for an average of .433. Ivan Elliott, although batting but 7 times, has three hits to his credit, which keeps him over the .400 mark. Three others, one of whom is Joe Gordon, crack short-stop, have over .333. The other two are Ossie Edwards and Mark DeLaunay. Three others, Maury Van Vliet, Jack Todd and Wes Clausen, are over .300.

So far Coach Reinhart has really worked but two pitchers, Don McFadden and Ike Donin. McFadden, a transfer from Ashland, has hurled four games, winning two and dropping two. He has plenty on the ball, and is cool and collected when put in a hole. Donin has allowed but 12 hits in 26 innings that he has pitched, and he and the team won all three games with him in the box. Although he throws with seeming nonchalance, Donin pays attention to business and can be depended upon at all times. He also gets away some nice hits occasionally.

Oregon is now on the road for nine days, with six varsity games scheduled, two each against Washington, Washington State and Idaho. Prospects for the Northern division pennant were never brighter.

World's Records

Two world's swimming records were established by Jim Reed, University aquatic star recently in competition in the all-university swimming meet which was carried on for about two weeks.

Reed covered the half-mile backstroke in 12:16.6 to break the world's intercollegiate record of 12:33.5 by 17 seconds. The old mark was set by Joseph Wohl of Syracuse university in 1931. The three-quarter mile backstroke mark of 19:40, set by Pete Bix of Washington in March of this year, was broken by one minute and ten seconds. The time was 18:30.

Both new marks have been sent to the American Athletic Union for confirmation. Mike Hoyman, Webfoot coach, is confident the records will be accepted.

The Oregon medley relay team of Jim Reed, Chuck Reed and Francis Ogiesby shattered the Pacific coast mark in this event by seven seconds early in the meet when they covered the 300 yards in 3:11.

Kappa Alpha; "Eruption of Mt. Mazama," by Zeta Tau Alpha and Kappa Sigma.

Oregon nearly made a clean sweep of Junior week-end athletic events, winning: two baseball games from University of Washington; track meet from Washington; won from Oregon State in golf. Lost only tennis match to Oregon State.

Mothers

"Most successful week-end since organization of Oregon Mothers seven years ago," was the opinion of hundreds of mothers and students, who joined in the celebration of Mothers' Day, May 11, 12 and 13. Again this year the regular junior week-end was combined with the Mother's Day event, to the greater enjoyment of all participating.

Outstanding events: Mothers' Day banquet May 12, which more than 800 attended, in John Straub Memorial building; mass meeting of mothers Saturday, attended by nearly 300 mothers from all parts of the state, at which they listened to first hand accounts of University affairs, discussed problems, elected officers; canoe fete, where mothers were allotted a choice section; Junior prom, with mothers as special guests; special services, honoring mothers, in all Eugene churches Sunday; special dinners for mothers at all living organizations Sunday.

At executive committee meeting mothers heard President C. V. Boyer outline a plan for scholarships for worthy students, to be financed by service and community clubs in various cities, promised him fullest cooperation in carrying out the plan. At the banquet Dr. Boyer outlined his aims in higher education, pointing out the necessity for training students for a worthy use of leisure time, the need for training for leadership in a changing world. Prime aim—"to build character upon foundation laid in the home."

Mothers recognized valuable work of their president, Mrs. A. M. Dibble, Portland, by re-electing her to head the organization.

Cups for greatest attendance of mothers were won by Phi Mu (winner for past 3 years also) for women; Chi Psi (winner for third successive time) for men.

CAMPUS

Week-end Fete

Under typically sunny Oregon skies Queen Josephine (Josephine Waffle, Astoria) ruled over the annual Junior week-end held on the campus May 11, 12 and 13. Every event, from the coronation of the queen and installation of her court, to the concert by the men's choir Sunday afternoon, was successful and exactly on schedule.

At the campus luncheon, following the royal coronation, came the "tapping" of candidates for membership in the two senior honor societies, Friars and Mortar Board. Taken by Mortar Board were Nancy Archbold, Eleanor Wharton, Portland; Rosalind Gray, Eugene; Valborg Anderson, Colton; Elizabeth Bendstrup, Astoria; Alma Herman, Oregon City. Pledged by Friars were Ralph Schomp, Santa Maria, Cal.; Will Davis, George Birnie, Portland; Bill Berg, Eugene; Malcolm Bauer, Pendleton.

Junior Prom Friday evening had as its motif Oregon's diamond jubilee celebration. Features were court of honor of Queen Josephine, announcement of Koyl and Gerlinger cup winners, announcement of Burt Brown Barker scholarship awards.

Cup winners: Malcolm Bauer, active campus journalist, Koyl cup; Mari-golde Hardison, Portland, Gerlinger cup. Scholarship trophy winners: Sigma Hall, men, and Hendricks Hall, women.

The canoe fete Saturday was perhaps best in many respects of any ever held on the millrace. Again the Oregon diamond jubilee was the theme. First float depicted ancient prehistoric volcanic explosion that created Crater Lake. Subsequent floats told of coming of white man to Oregon, via ship and covered wagon, and last float was a visionary depiction of future glory. Winners for best floats: "Oregon Trail," by Sigma Kappa, Phi Sigma Kappa, first; "Captain Robert Grey's Good Ship Columbia," by Phi Mu and Pi tion of Oriental art, awards substantial cash prizes for best essays on Oriental relations. Winners this year: Jay R. Wilson, Portland, first prize of $125; James W. Brooke, Eugene, second, $75; Lois Greenwood, Eugene, third, $50; Arthur Dudley, Jr., Eugene, fourth, $25; Ray Clapp, Eugene, Howard Bobbitt, Portland, honorable mention and $25 each; Anastacio V. Bartolome, first in foreign students' section, $50; Vincente A. Espiritu, second, $25.

Prize winning essay was entitled "The Suppression of the Press in Japan." Interesting note: brother of prize winner, David G. Wilson, '33 (member Pacific Basin Debate Team) is now employed in secretarial capacity for Japanese consul in Portland.

Strong Hopes

Should any more PWA money be forthcoming, University of Oregon will get its new library. This became certain recently, when word was received on the campus that the PWA examining division had approved the application for $350,000 for this purpose. Hope for the structure is high, since a new PWA bill, calling for $35,000,000 is now before congress, may get through before adjournment.

For many years the University school of music has not only trained musicians, but has attempted, with marked success, to encourage appreciation of good music among the general student body. Recognition of this effort, and a great aid toward further work in this field has come from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, in the form of a gift of apparatus and equipment valued at $2,500. Included is a Caphart phonograph that automatically changes records, and 824 records, 251 scores, 139 volumes of literature. A special room for hearing music, another for reading literature, will be prepared at the school of music for the equipment, and every encouragement will be given students to make full use of the facilities.

Liberal Banquet

One of the first activities of the newly-organized liberal club of the University, known as "The Score," was the honoring of William S. U'Ren, father of the Oregon system of direct legislation, at a banquet meeting of the group held recently. The elderly Oregon legislator and attorney reviewed his long career as a lawmaker and citizen. Messages paying tribute to Mr. U'Ren were received from Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation; Paul R. Kelty, editor of the Oregon- ian; Ernest H. Gruening, former editor of the New York Evening Post and the Nation; and Arthur Garfield Hays, noted author on civil liberties. The Score is organized along the line of liberal clubs in eastern universities. William J. Bruce is president and Richard L. Neuberger, vice-president.

Campus Improvements

Resumption of an extensive grounds improvement project on the University campus has been recently approved by state relief officials with the grant of $31,400 for this purpose.

The project consists of excavating for steam heating pipes, water mains and underground electric conduits, re-grading the athletic fields and playgrounds, rebuilding half a mile of alleys, repairing four miles of main and side roads on the campus, working over the campus lawns, and reshingling 13 buildings on the campus.

Trophy Winners

Oregon's crack rifle team, which recently placed second out of 197 competing teams for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, added further honors to its list by taking third place in the Ninth Corps area senior R. O. T. C. gallery rifle fire match. Idaho came in first, with U. C. L. A. scoring second.

Last week the rifle team proudly displayed the second place Hearst trophy, a handsome silver shield, and their second place silver medals.

Gift for Villard

When Oswald Garrison Villard, famed editor of the Nation and nationally known liberal, visited the campus recently he told about a picture of Villard Hall, named after his father whose generosity once saved the University during its early days, that always hung in the old Villard home on the Hudson. The Hudson home burned a few years ago, and the picture was destroyed. Now once again a picture of the historic campus building will hang in the Villard home. A committee of students, headed by Richard S. Near, student body officer, obtained a large framed picture of the building, picture and frame donated by Eugene photographers, which has been sent to Villard.
