An Index and Summary of Oregon Building Information in the Portland Daily Abstract (1906-1910)

INDEX/SUMMARY FOUR - BUILDINGS SORTED BY NAMES OF CONTRACTORS AND OTHER NAMES

Instructions:

This index/summary is sorted alphabetically by names of contractors and some other categories of names. Only partial data about each building is listed in this index/summary, so you must refer to Index/Summary Two (A) or (B) by looking up the building's name for more complete information and references. The term "contractor" is used broadly to identify any person or company who manufactured or built some portion of the building, including off-site work. Additional categories which were recorded in the database include: "bidder" (a contractor who bid for a contract and did not receive it, or had not yet been selected for the contract), "engineer", "lessee", "consultant" (usually a consultant to the architect), "superintendent" of construction, or "owner or occupant". The owner or occupant's name often appears in the building's name and was not repeated here. Engineers, superintendents, and consultants were rarely reported by name. Spelling of contractor's names was verified in contemporary directories and used consistently for all entries in the database to eliminate the variations and errors reported in the original references. Index/Summary Four includes a one-line summary of the reference which describes the contractor's role in this format: "(1-general)," "(2-plumbing)," etc., meaning that the contractor whose name is identified as #1 is the general contractor, and that contractor #2 is the plumbing contractor. The contractor's historic address is recorded as it was reported; to convert this address to a current address, see Appendix A. If only one contractor is listed for a house or other small building and his role is not described, it is likely that he was the general contractor. Provision was made for recording only two names of contractors or others on each form in the database. A building which was described in two or more references was recorded on more than one form, so additional names may be listed, and previously listed names may be repeated. Large projects may include many names. If more names were reported than could be included, the more significant contractors (general, masonry, structural frame, mechanical, an artist, etc.) were listed, and less significant contractors (plastering, painting, plumbing, etc.) were omitted. A field was included on each form for indicating whether additional unlisted contractors and bidders were named in the reference. Choices for this field, which is included on Index/Summary Two (A) and (B), were "one", "two", "some", and "many".
