Students of the University of Oregon at Eugene

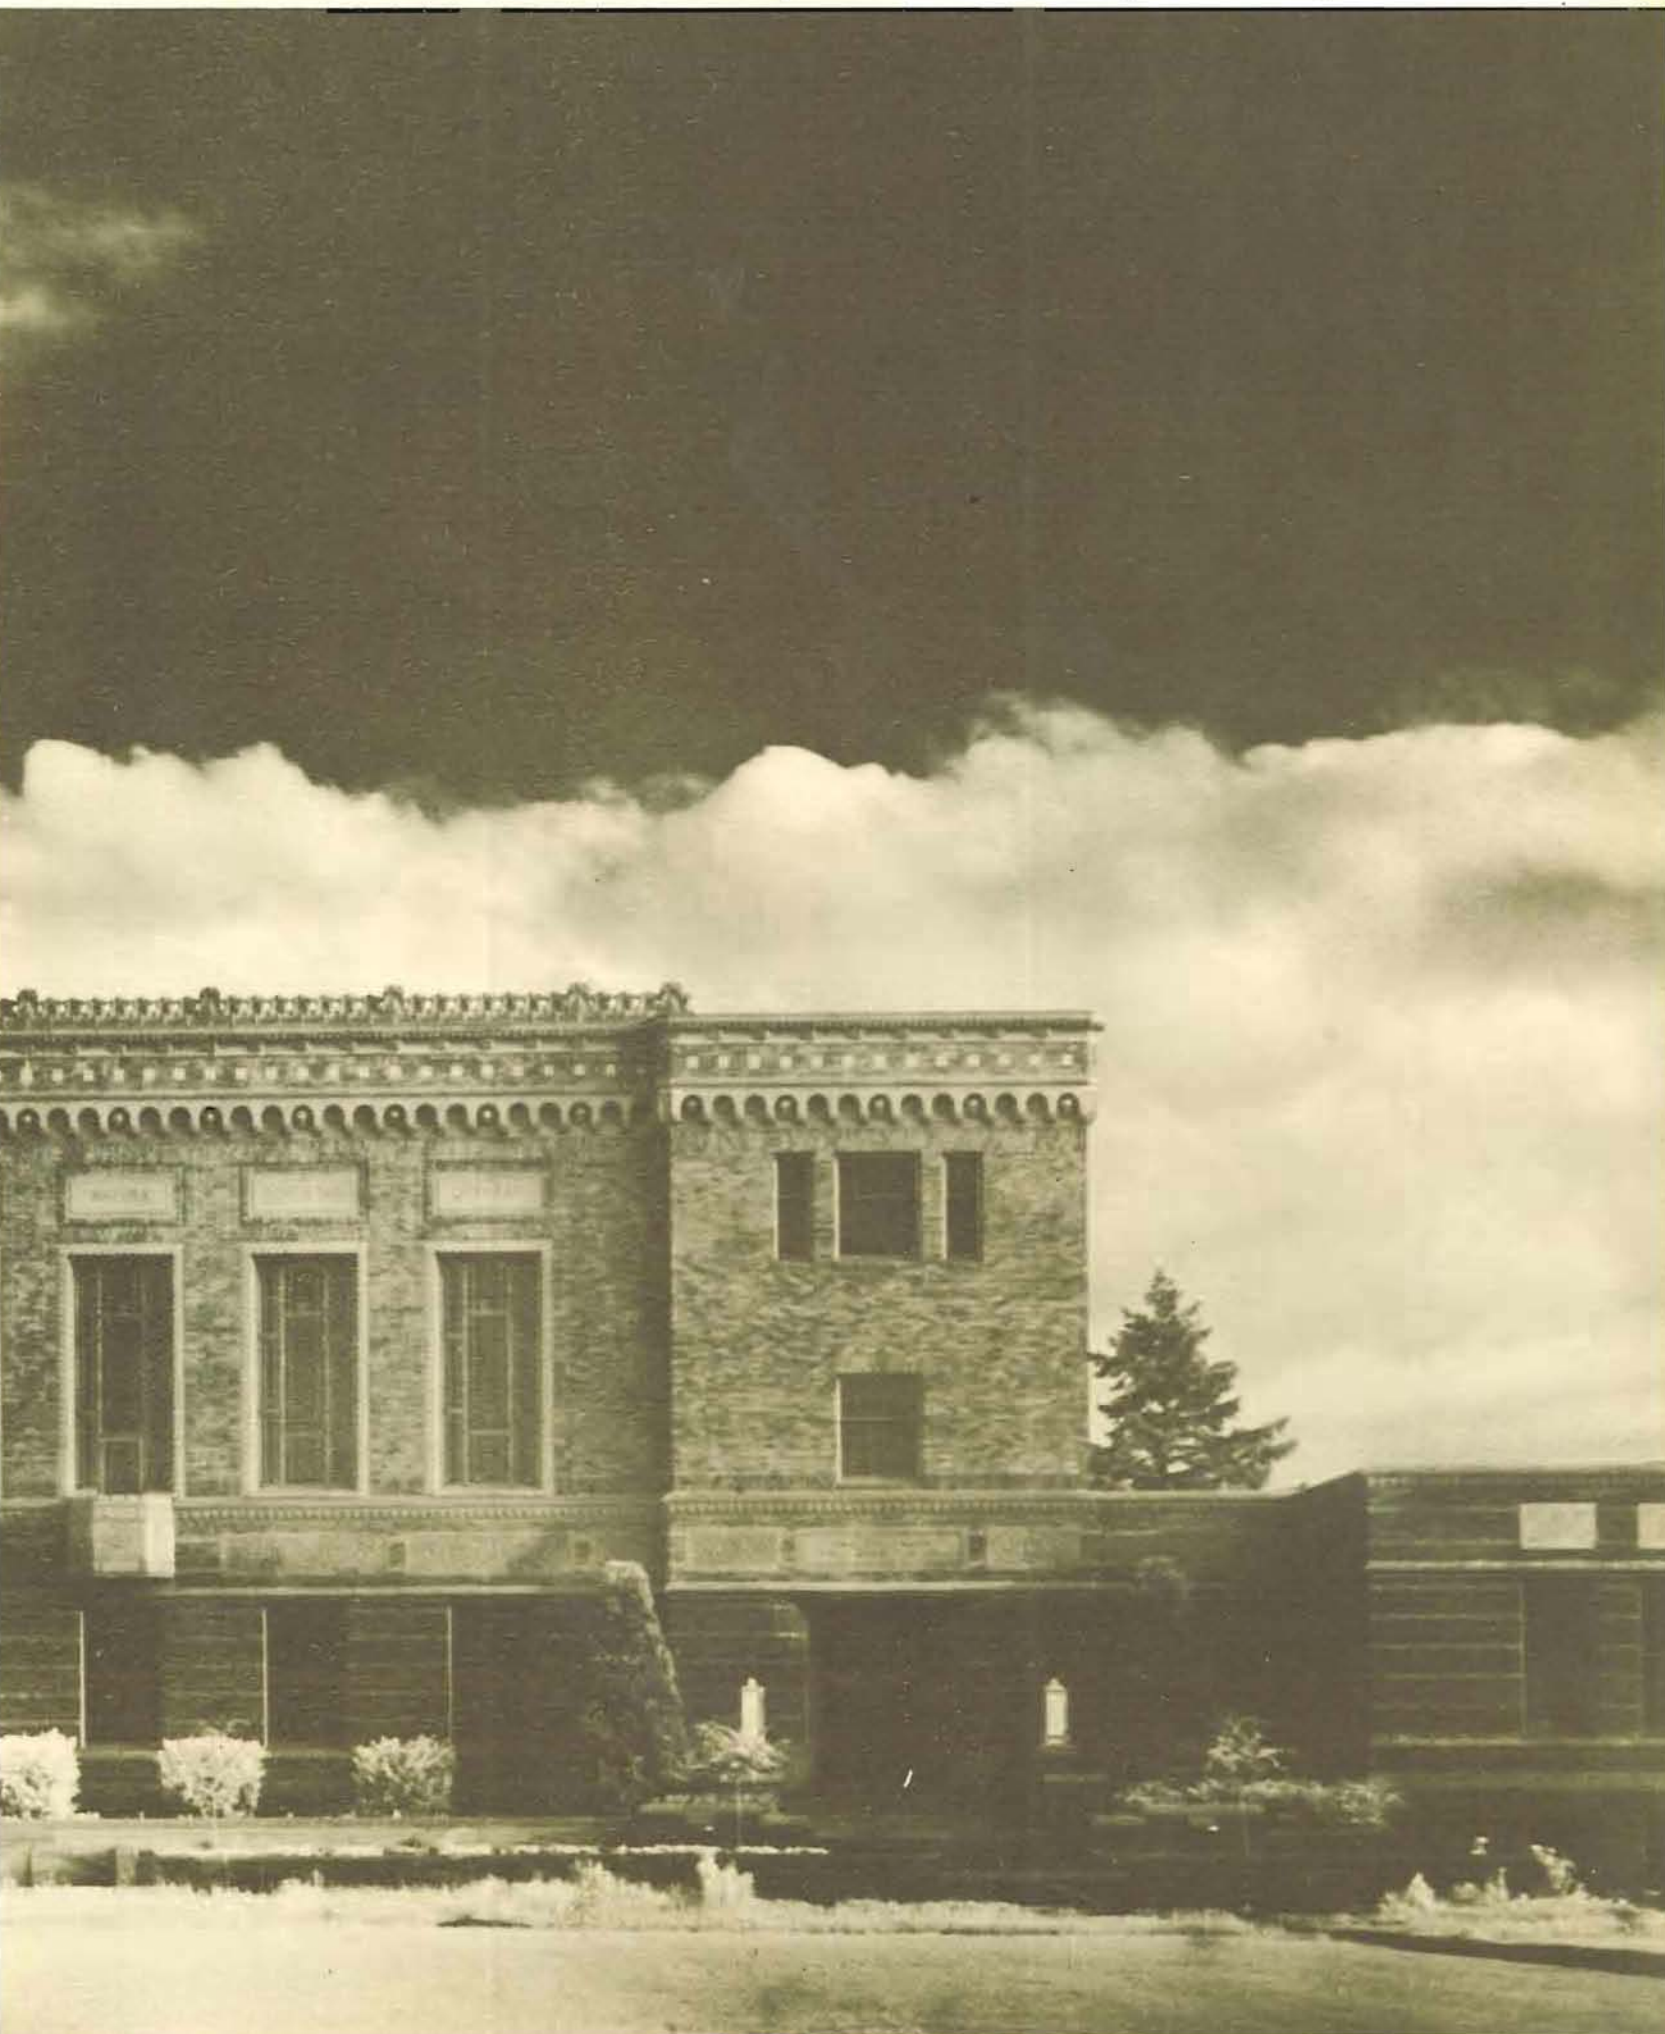

Brightly-clothed coeds pause in the sunshine of the women's quadrangle, set off from the lower campus by a winding wall of brick.

Oregon's University is proud of its new and strikingly modern library.

Within its walls thousands press their search for learning.

A study in architecture and sky from behind shaded columns in the memorial court.

Three shadowed figures hurry over the new campus as sundown brings Oregon's mist.

Oregon's millrace is famed. Here a student couple is being raked by trailing branches of a weeping willow as they paddle their way up stream.

PROFESSOR OF SOCIAL SCIENCE AND DEAN OF SOCIOLOGY
1895-1928

A coed pauses on a staircase in the library, seeking inspiration from words of a scholar.

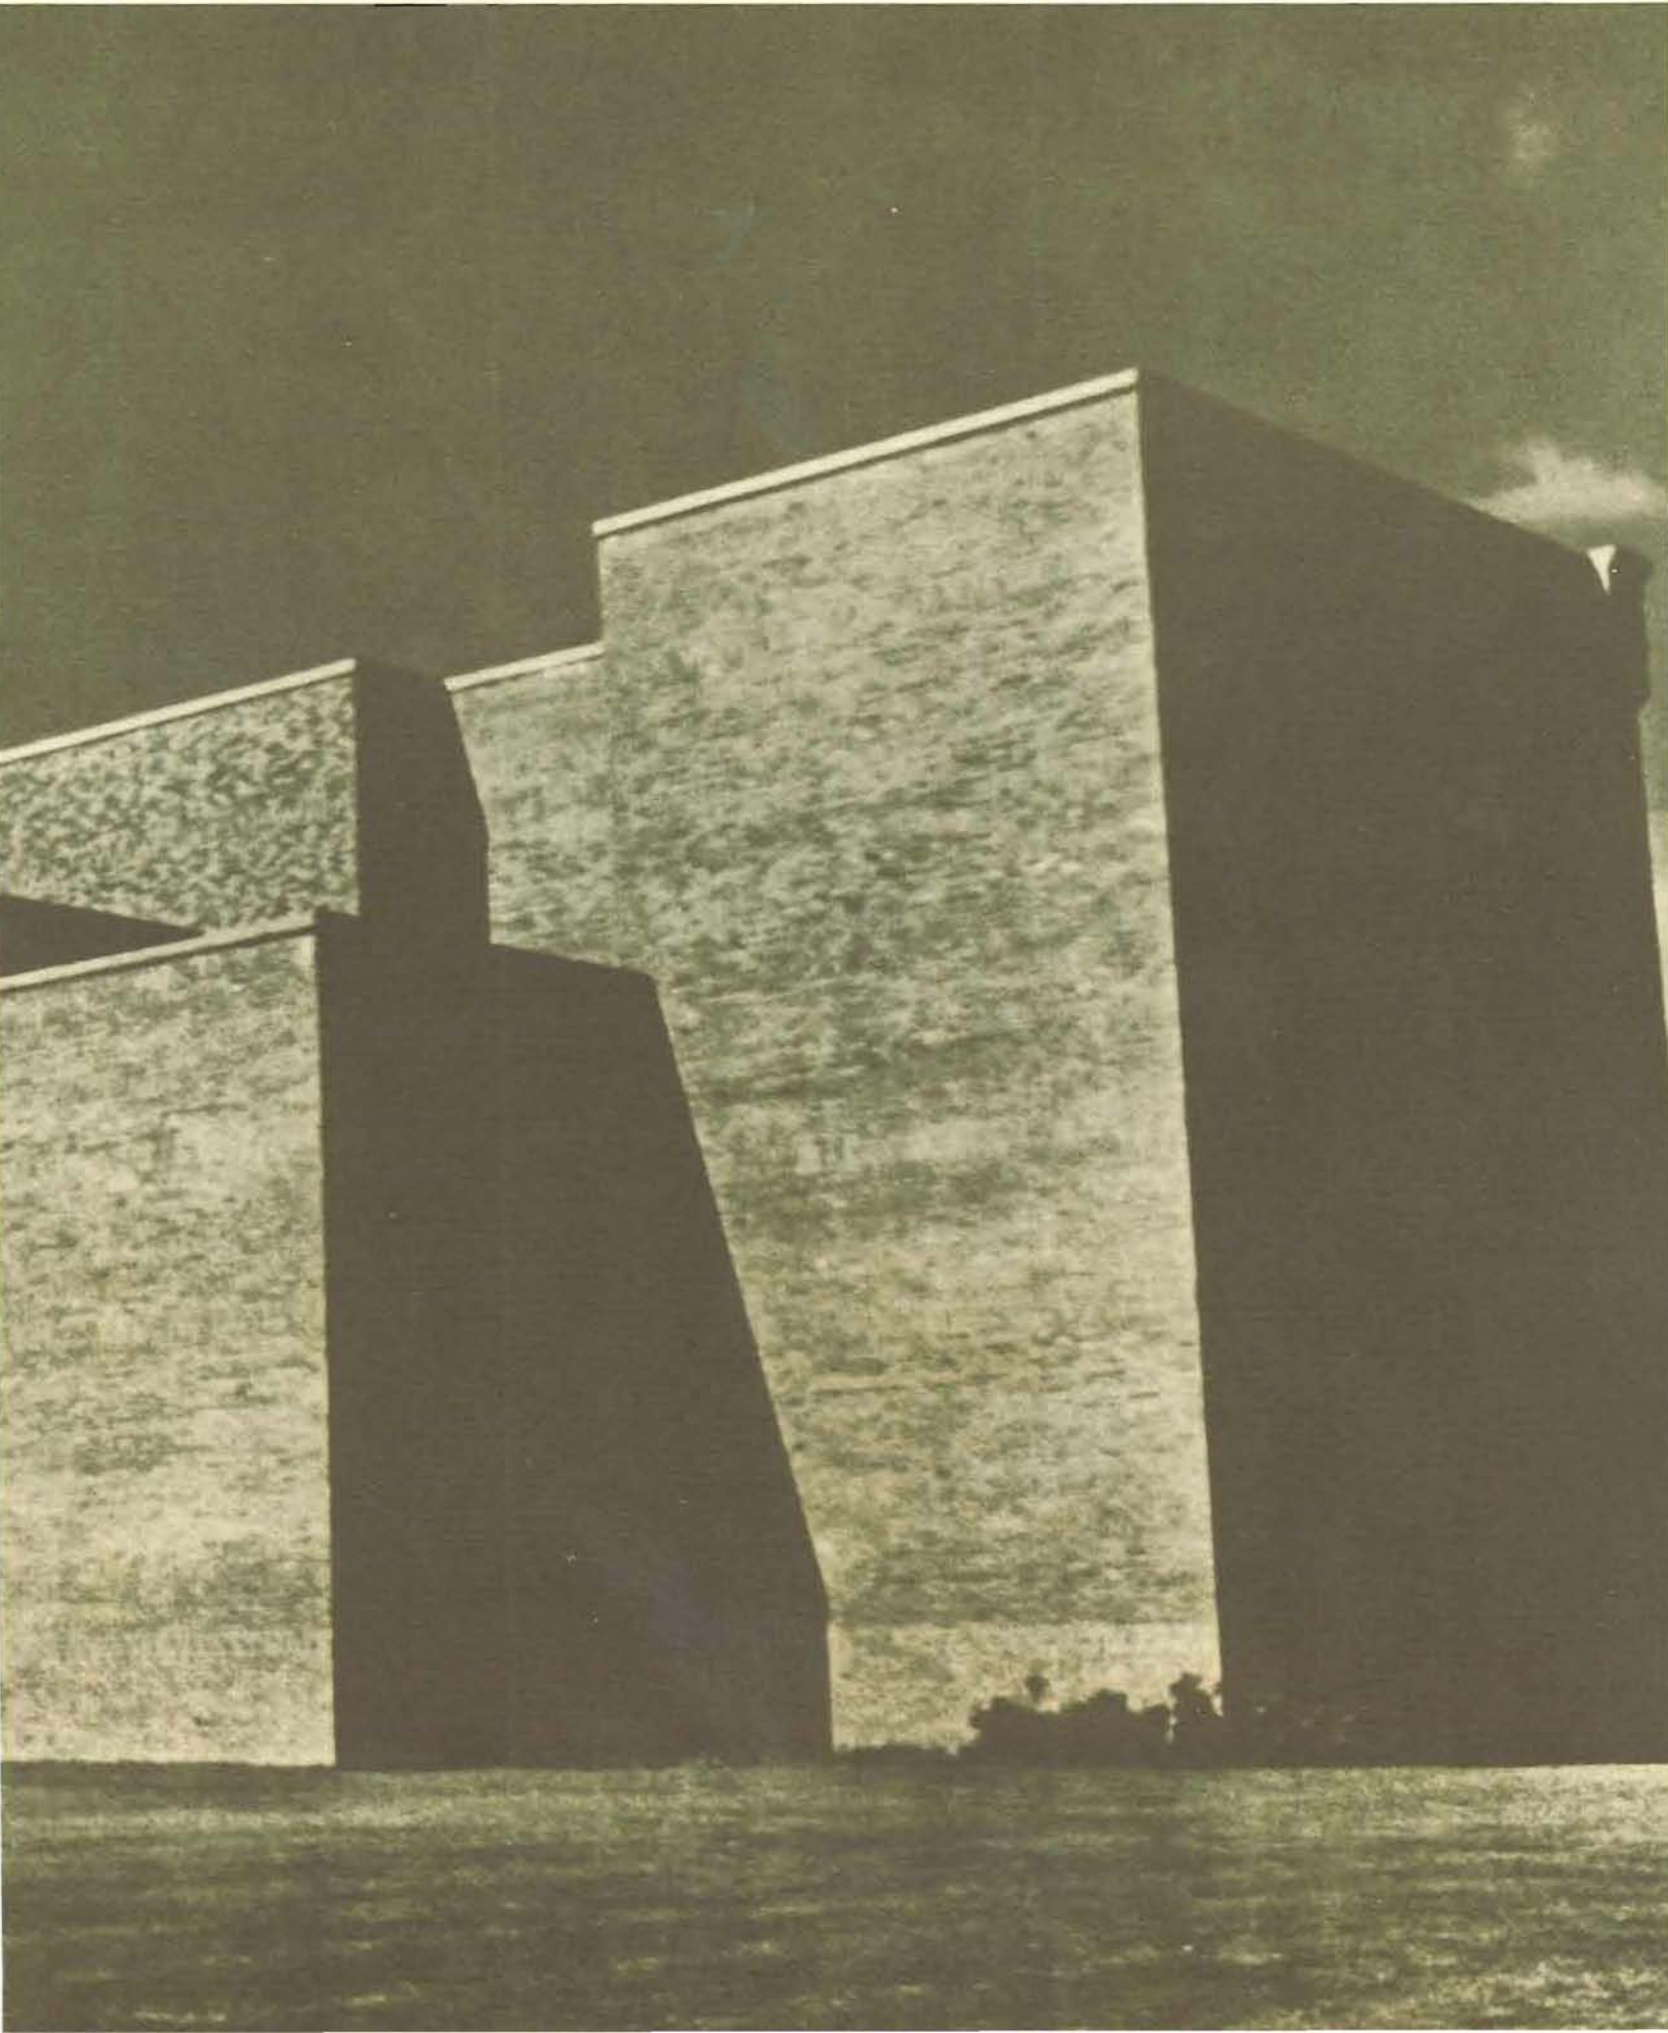

Dr. Donald Erb came back to Oregon in 1938 to become its youngest and seventh president.

A symphony of lines and shadows found in the art building, combined with clouds of Western Oregon sky, suggests a structure from another age of an ancient race along the Nile.

A 'poor beaver' on the way to the millrace after the riot.

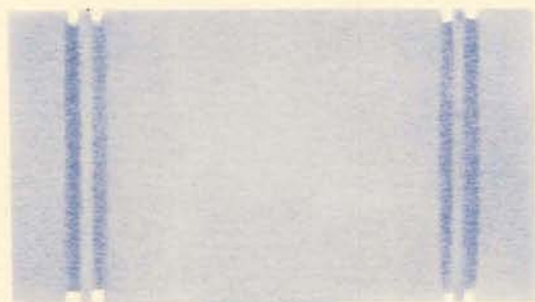

Here is a quieter scene. A coed is outlined against the waters of the summer millrace.

Two coeds pause between classes under this spire at the entrance of the art museum.

People and Personality

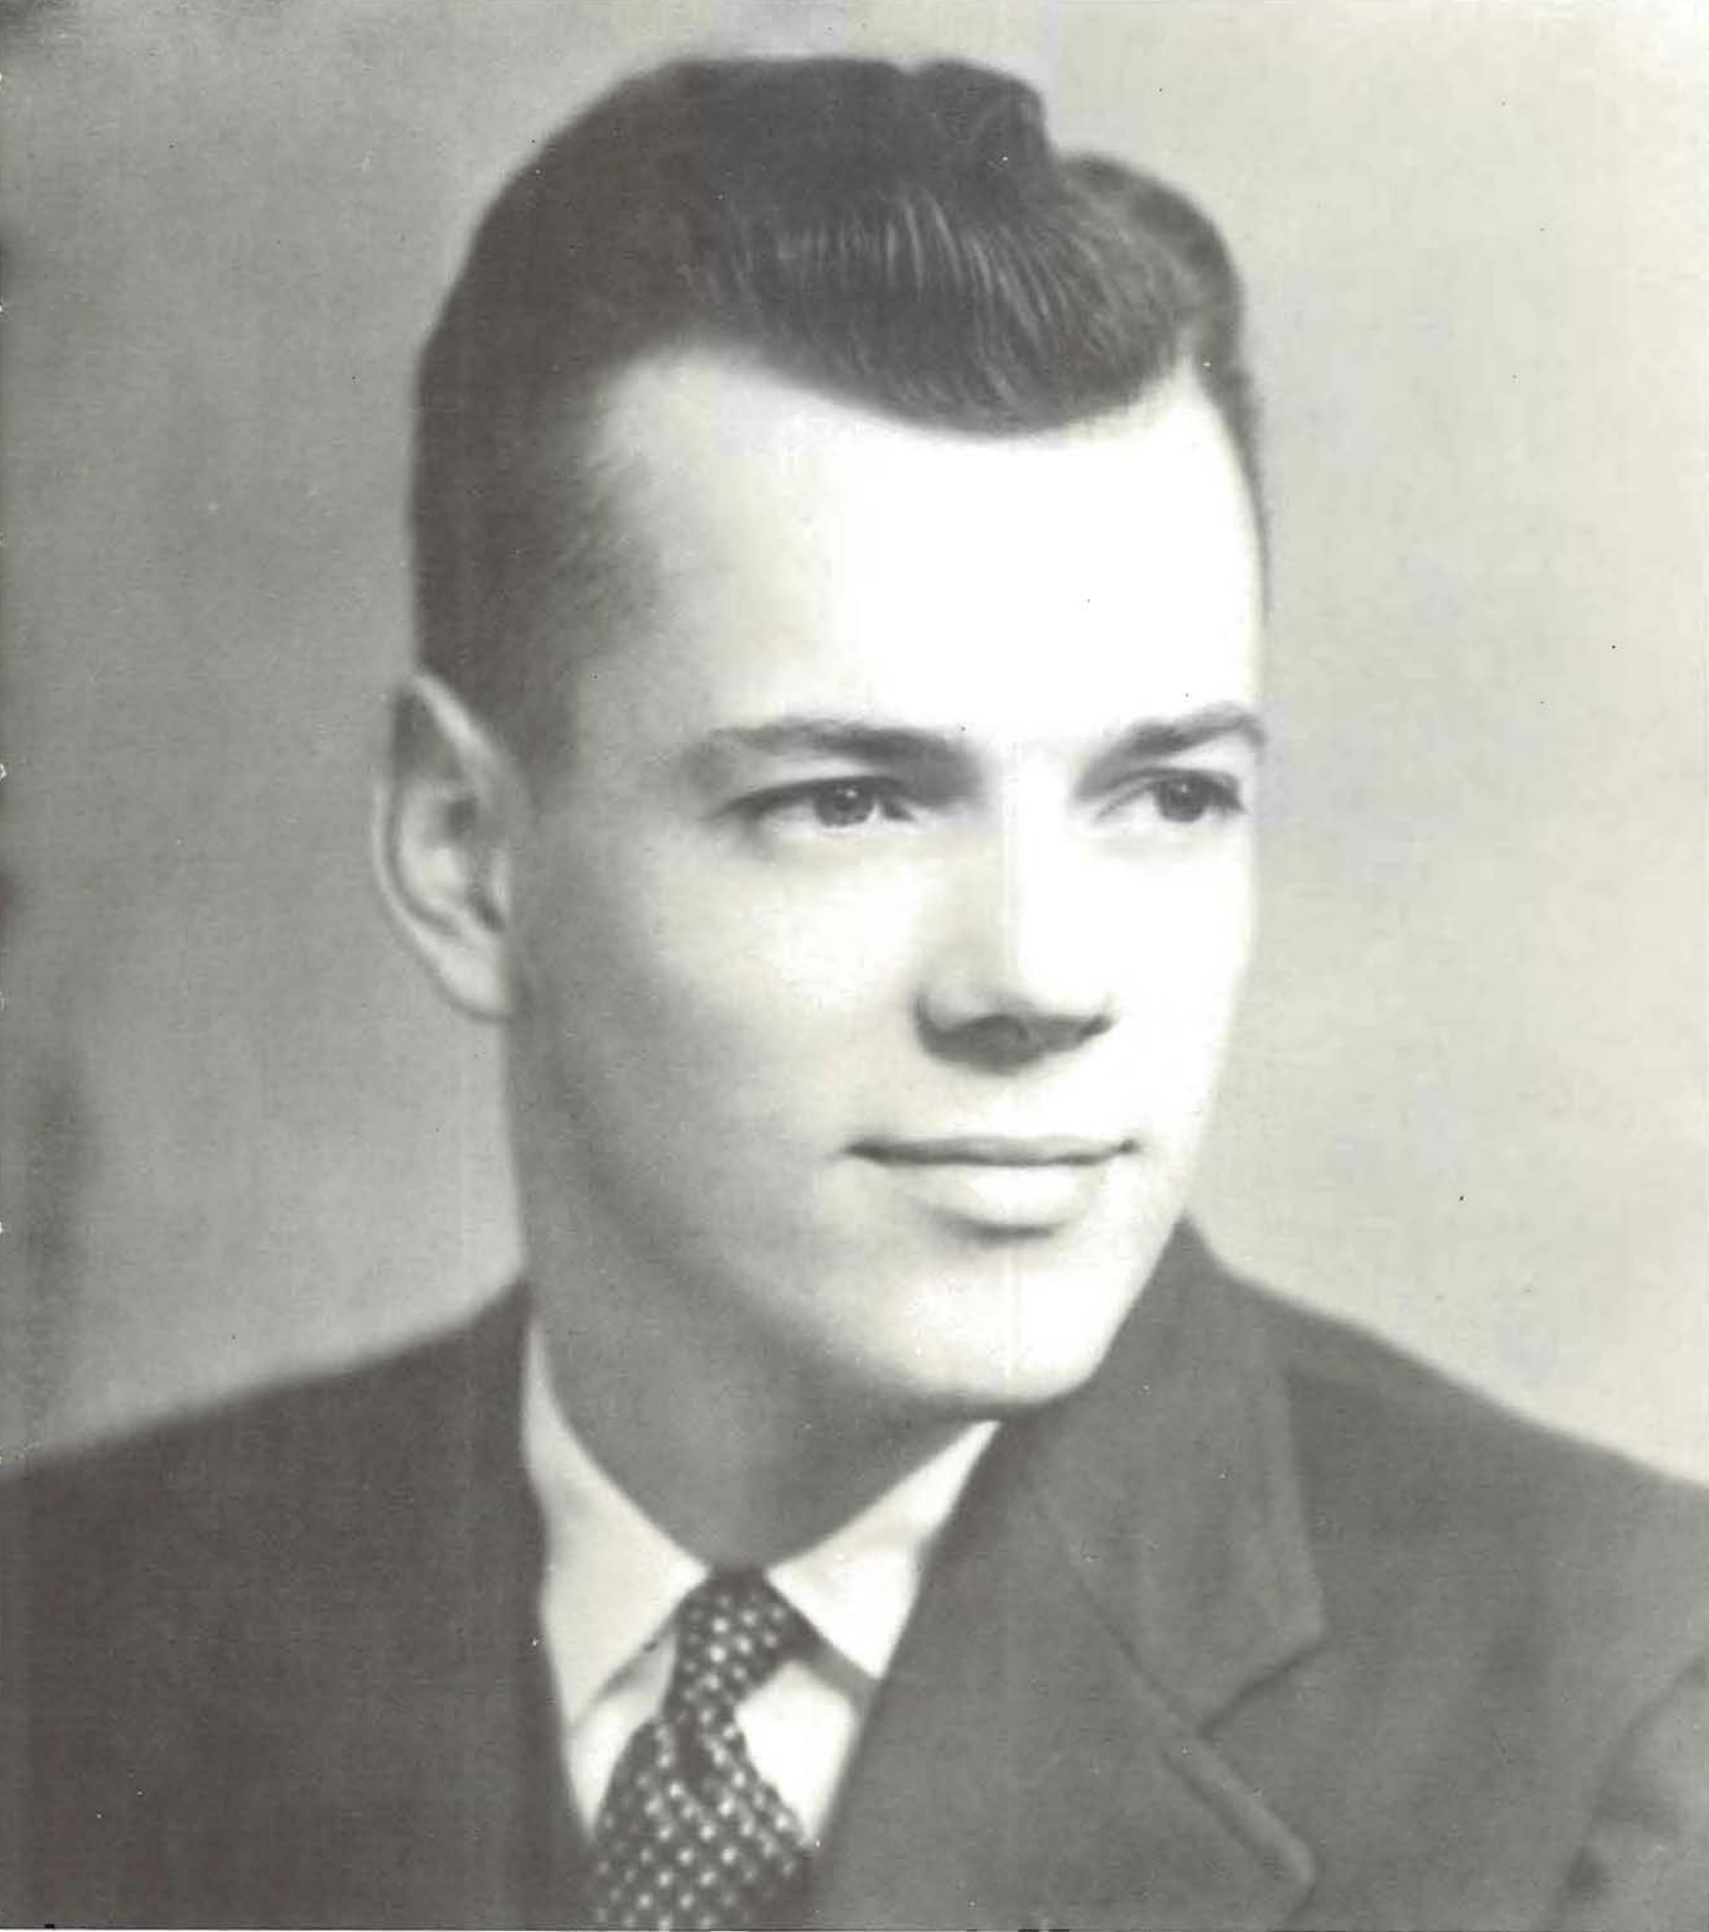

Oregon's Ideal Coed: Marjorie Bates of Kappa Kappa Gamma

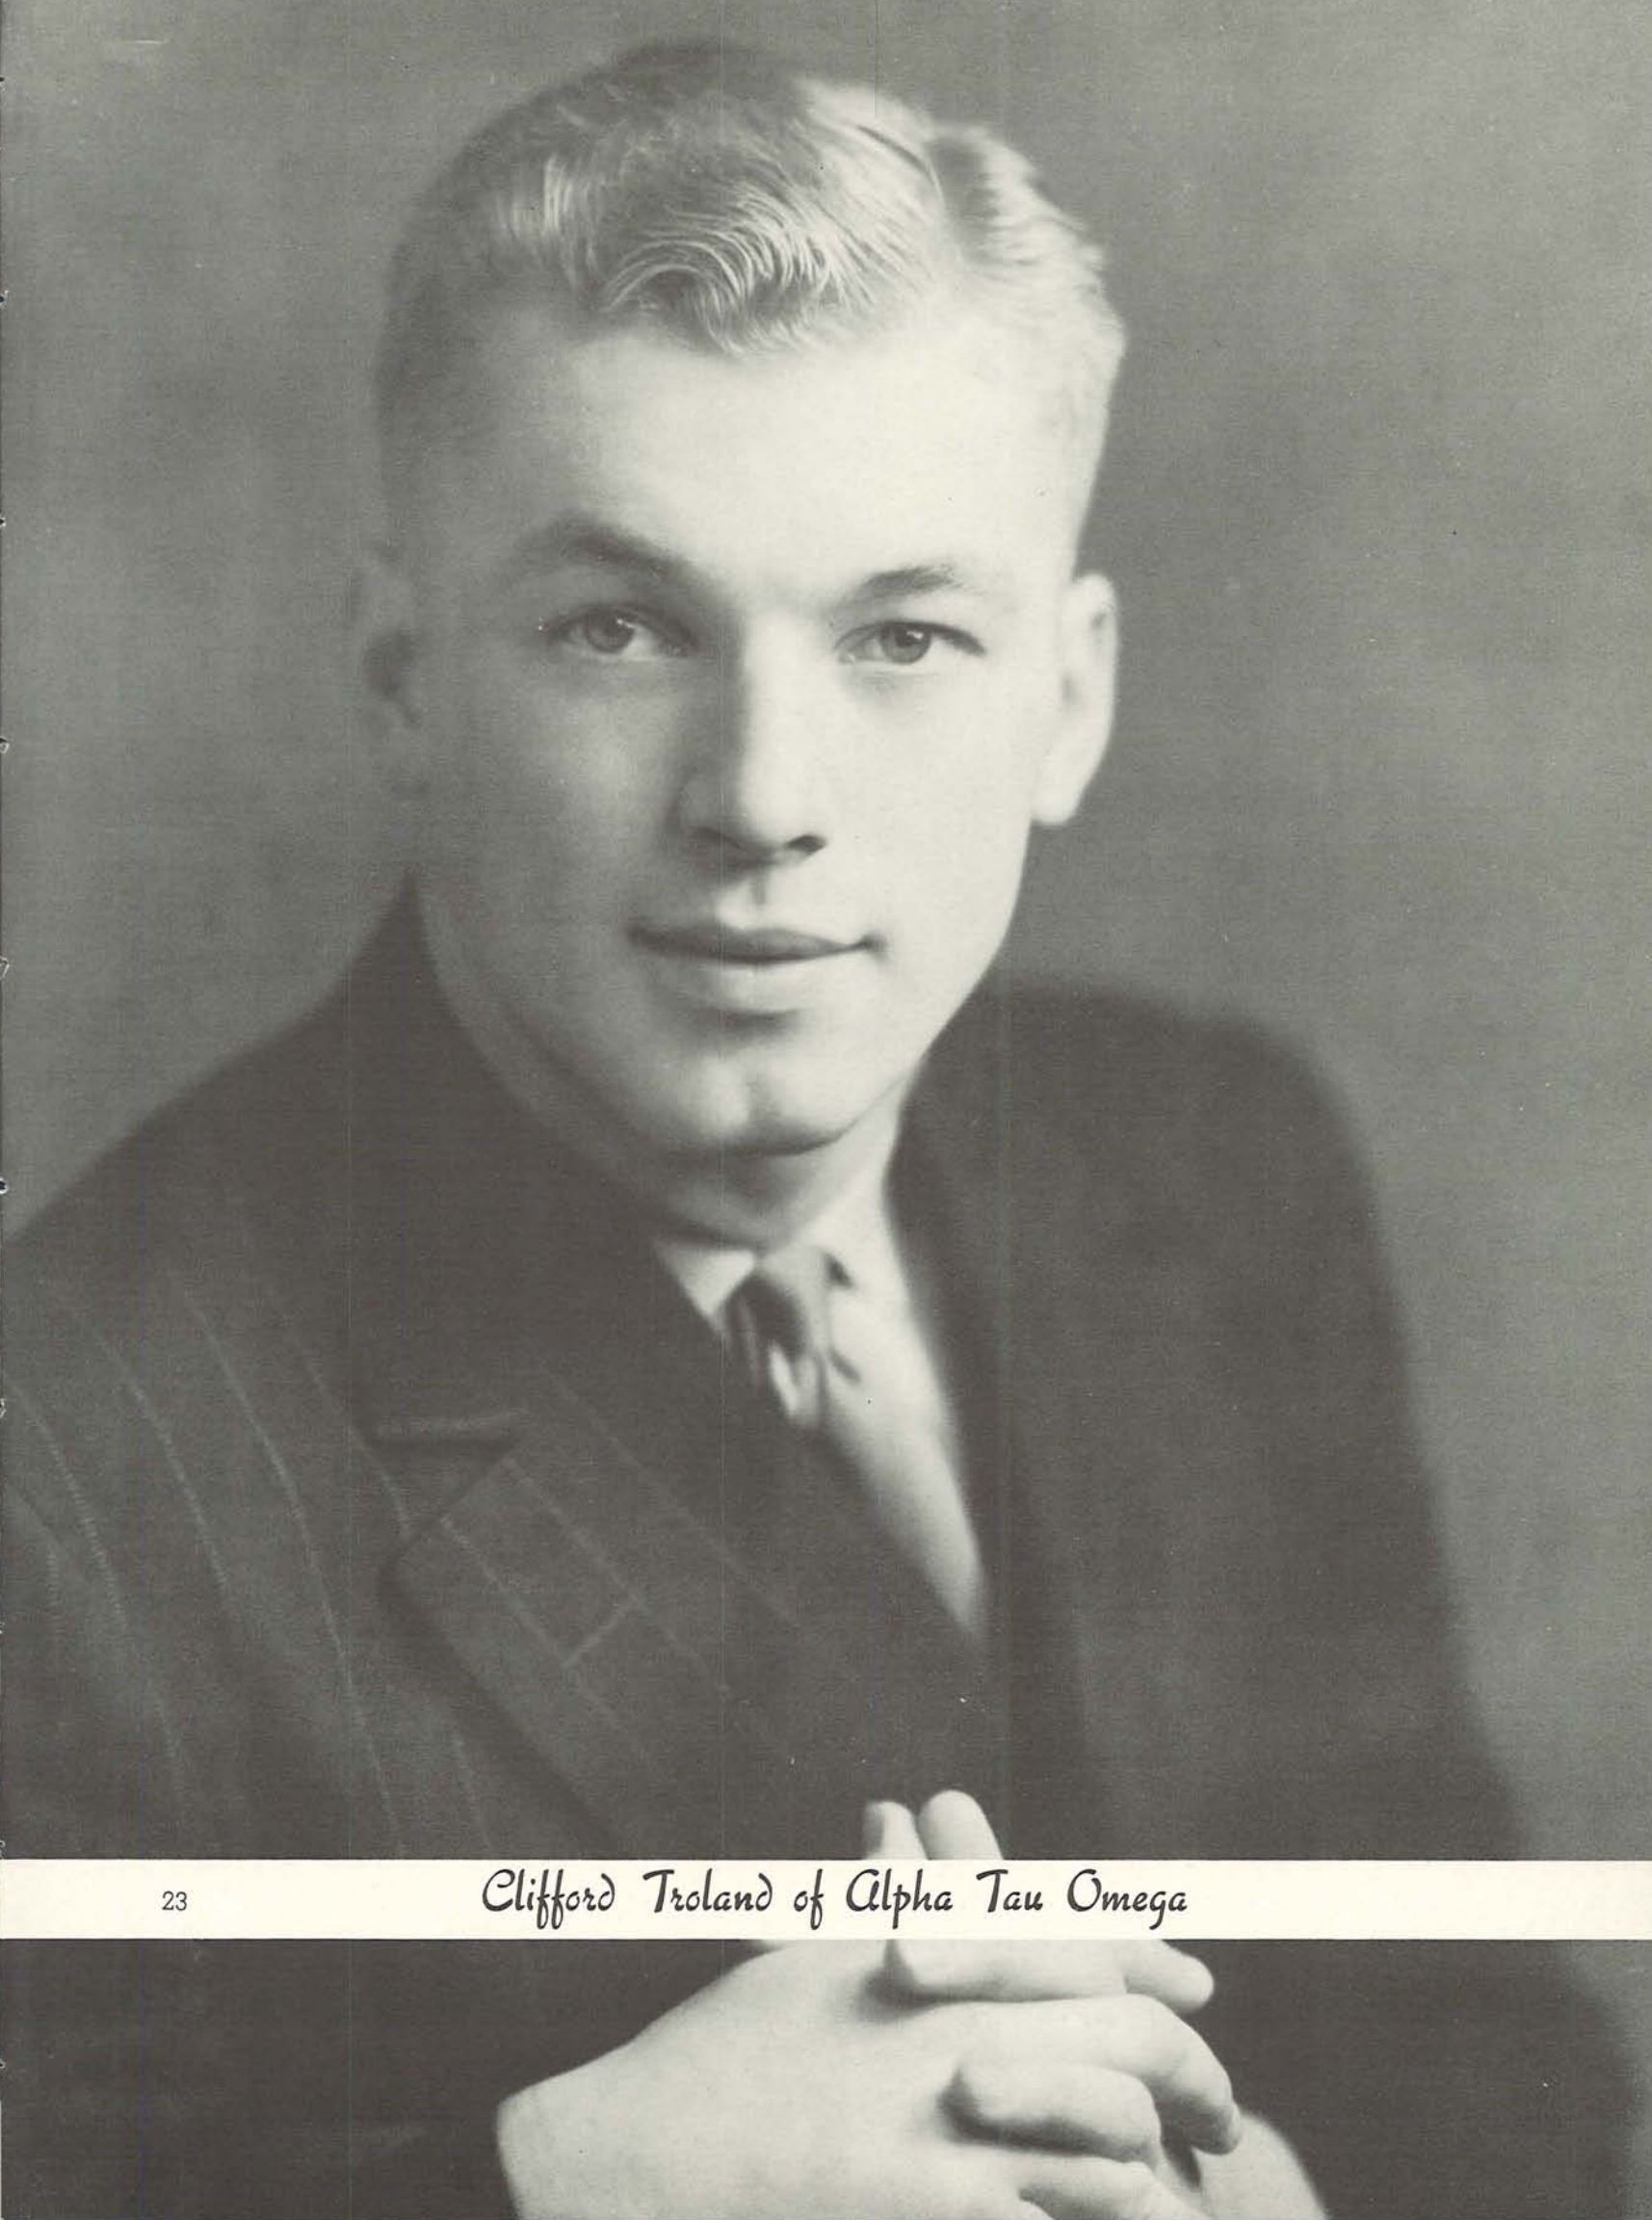

Rhoda Armstrong of Chi Omega

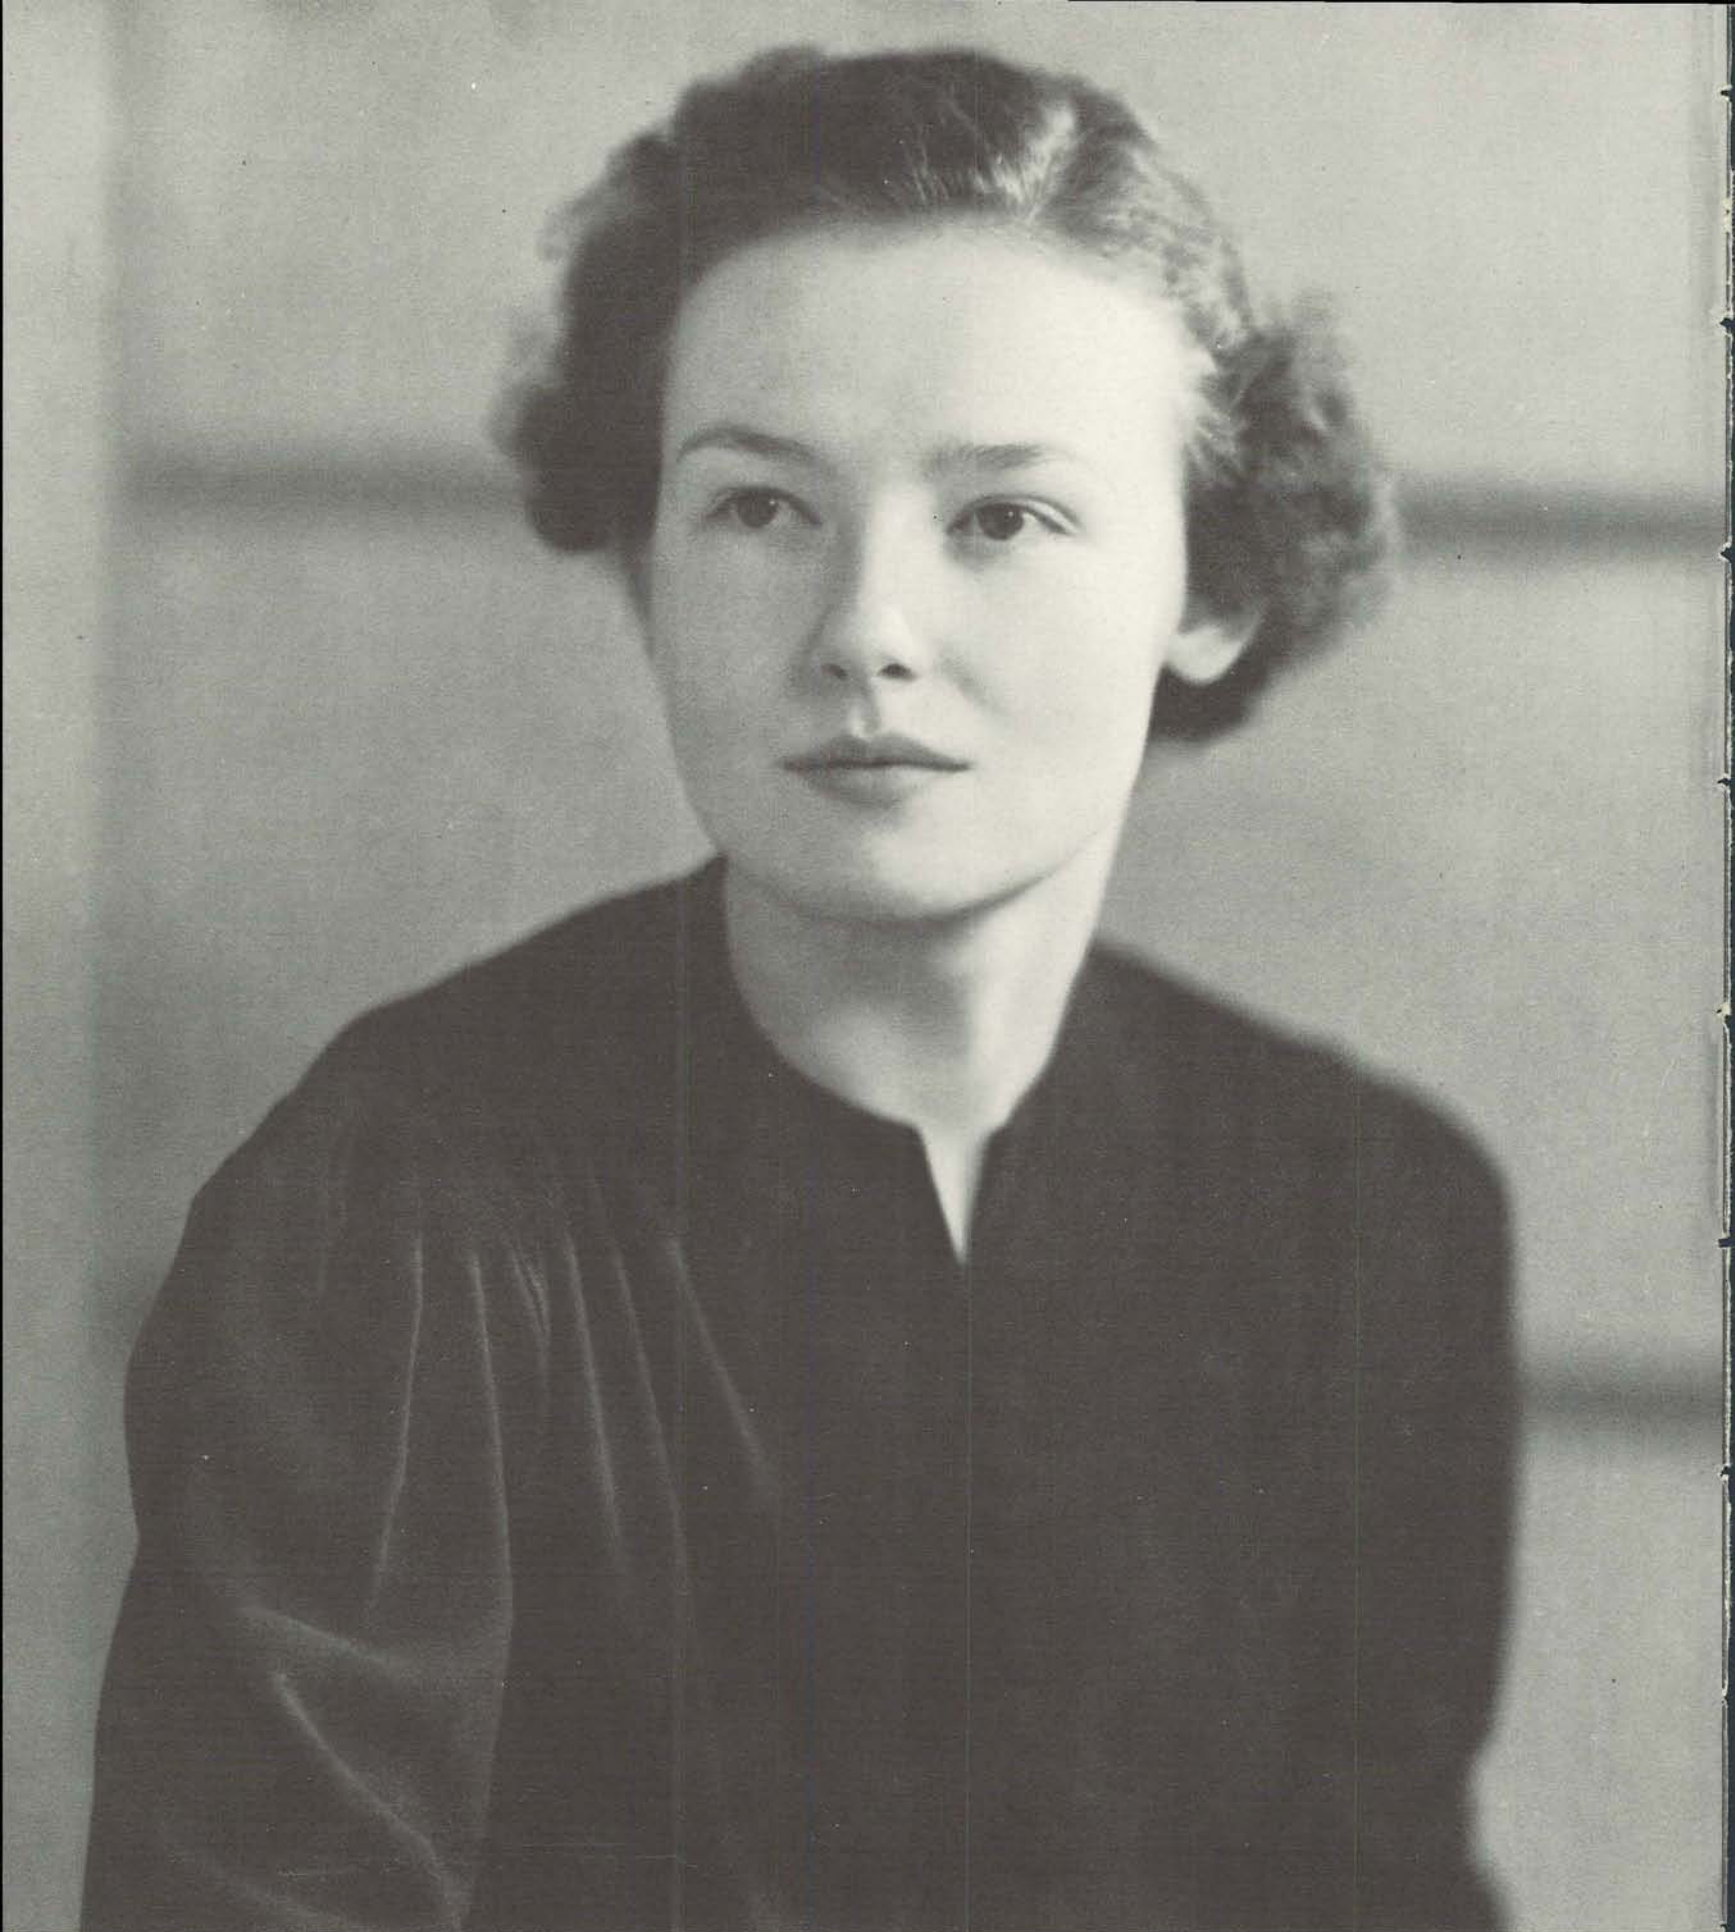

Gladys Battleson of Alpha Omicron Pi

Clifford Troland of Alpha Tau Omega

Isabelle Miller of Alpha Phi

Bill Vermillion of Theta Chi

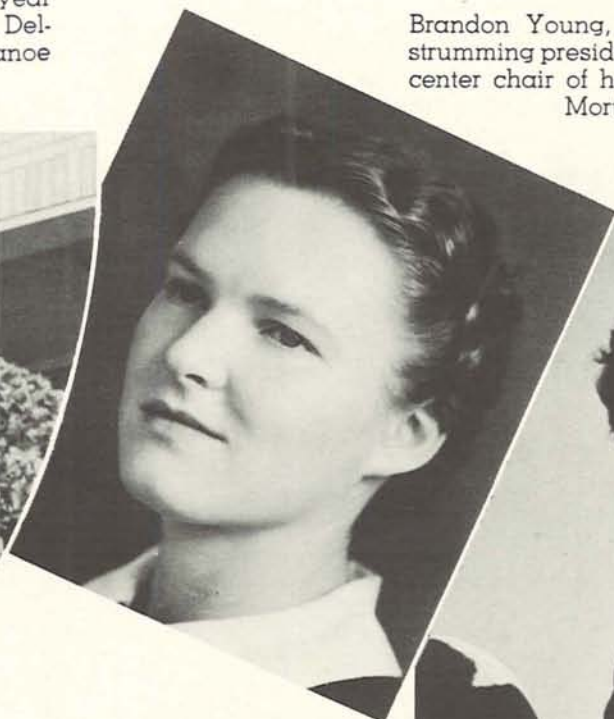

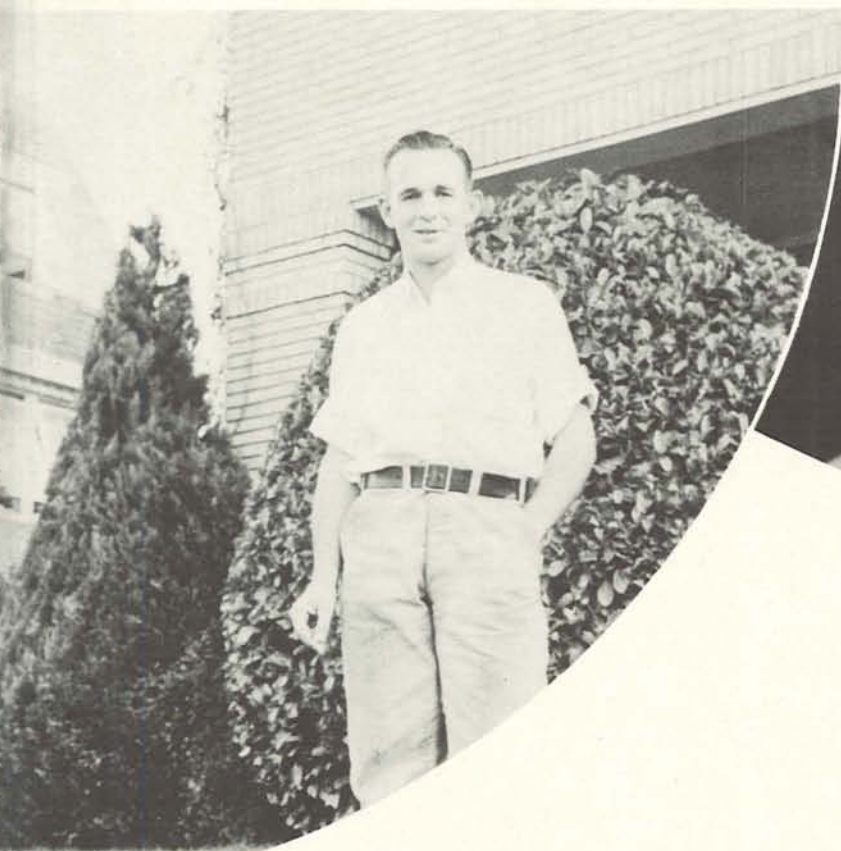

From such ranks as these, student leaders have risen

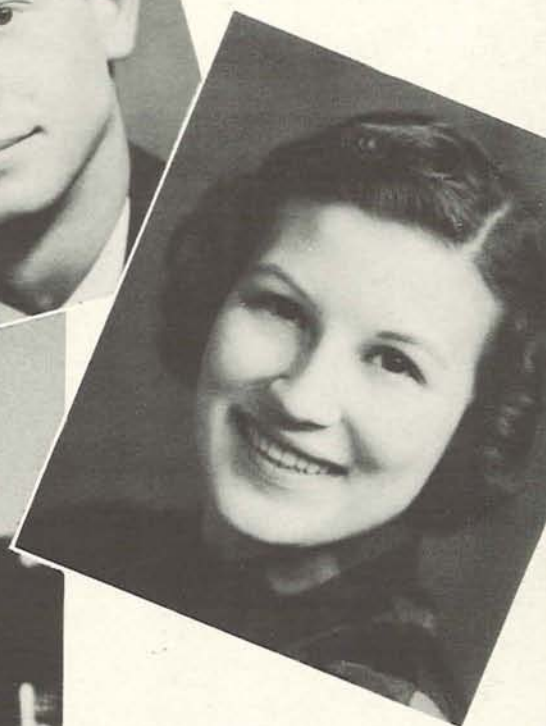

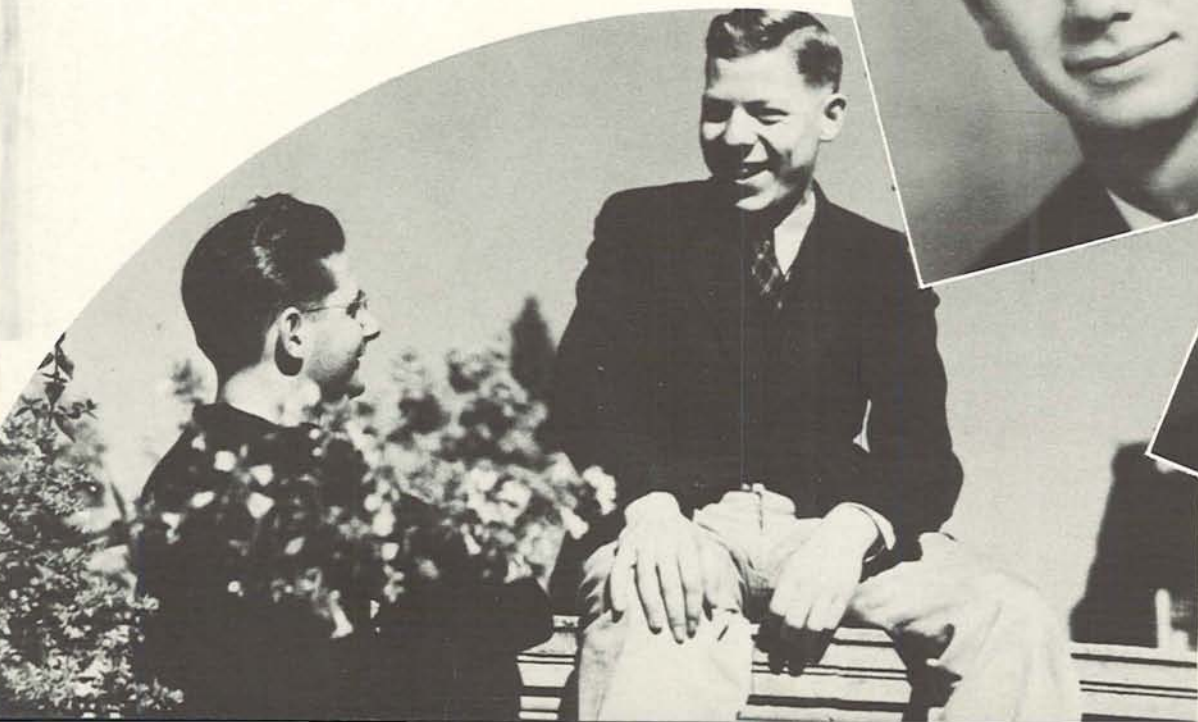

They're Known by Their Names

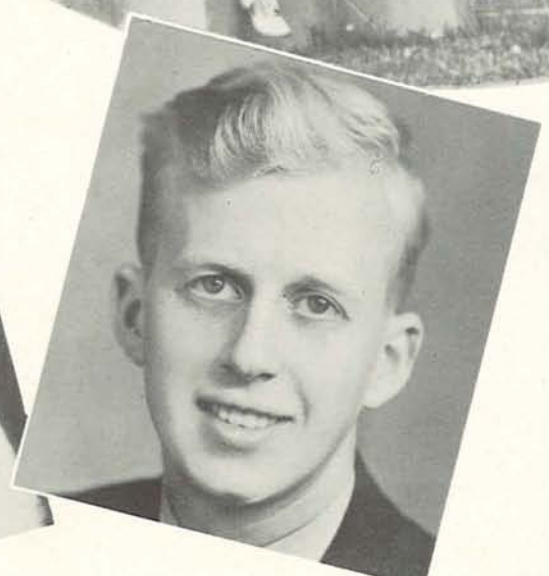

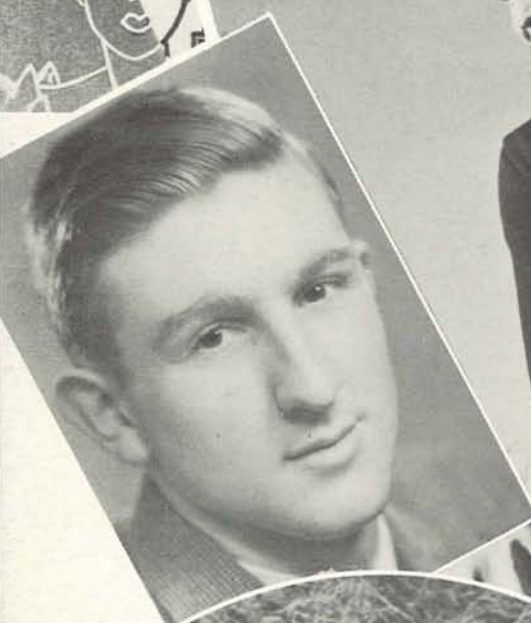

Leland Terry, left, Theta Chi's two year yell-man; Constance Kletzer, center, Delta Gamma's originator of two canoe fete themes.

Brandon Young, below, Theta's harp-strumming president, found herself in the center chair of heads of houses and a Mortar Board.

Dave Silver started out playing basketball. Then the coeds elected him "King of Hearts". From there it was easy to become a student body officer. He wears the octagon of Sigma Alpha Mu. Below him is Wayne Harbert, another Theta Chi who made good in publications. He worked his way up via the publicity committee route on The Emerald to Oregoniana editor.

Freed Bales, above, Alpha hall's Phi Beta Kappa. Above him is Frances Schaupp, who campaigned from the Alpha Phi presidency to vice-president of the student body. And besides, she was a Junior Weekend princess. Bill Dalton, below her, stops under the name-plate of his fraternity to think over plans for the canoe fete.

In the circle is LeRoy Mattingly, Phi Sigma Kappa's Emerald editor, Phi Beta Kappa, Friar and baseball man. Below him is Betty Brown, whose work and patience was largely responsible for the growth of the Co-operative houses on the Oregon campus.

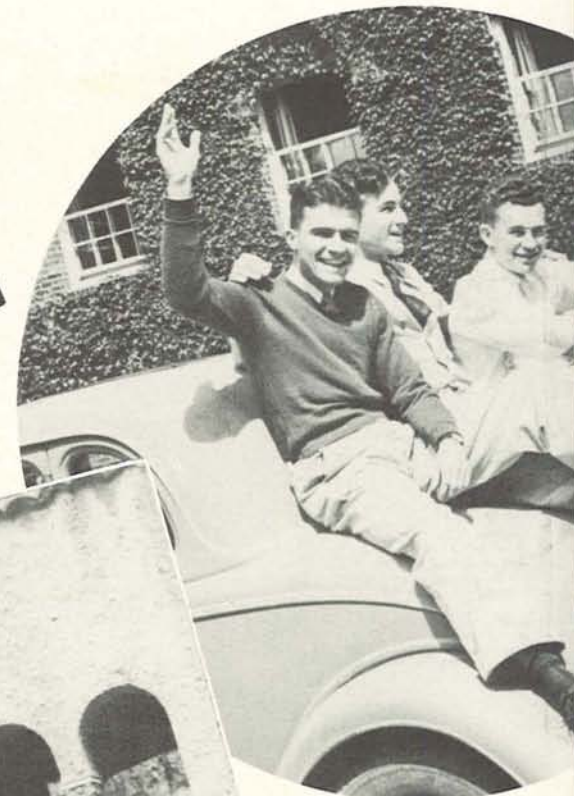

Standing on this brick wall is Isabelle Miller, another Alpha Phi politician. At her feet are Sigma Kappa's president Genevieve McNiece and Beta's footballer Vernon Moore.

Waving from the car below is Barney Hall, who, like his older brother, remained an Independent by choice, and played his cards to become student body president. Below him is Sammie's President Zollie Volchock and campus publicity man. In the circle below him is Caroline Hand, the friendliest coed of the friendliest sorority, Pi Beta Phi, who was an all-around activity girl but squared on publications.

Gretchen Smith, Alpha Delta Pi's and WAA's president. In the circle is Phi Delt's Noel Benson, first vice-president of the student body. Above him is Peggy Vermillion who transferred from Reed college, pledged Delta Gamma and became a Junior Weekend princess and a politician.

Staggered on down the page are, top to bottom, Clare Igoe, who remained Independent but became the number one junior coed and associate editor of The Emerald; Douglas Milne, Phi Delta's popular politician and president; Howard Overback, twice Oregon's business manager and an Independent; Frank Drew, Phi Kappa Psi's Junior Prom chairman; Charles Erwin, Alpha Tau Omega's senior class president; Dick Pierce, another president-politician combination. He's a Sigma Chi.

Barney and Gayle, leaders of a student body

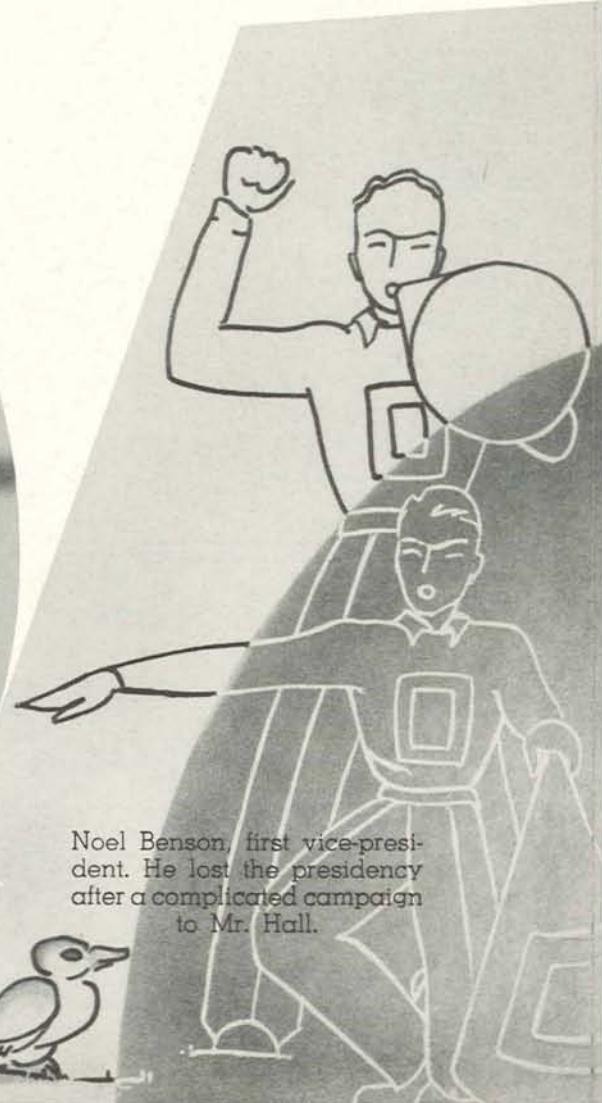

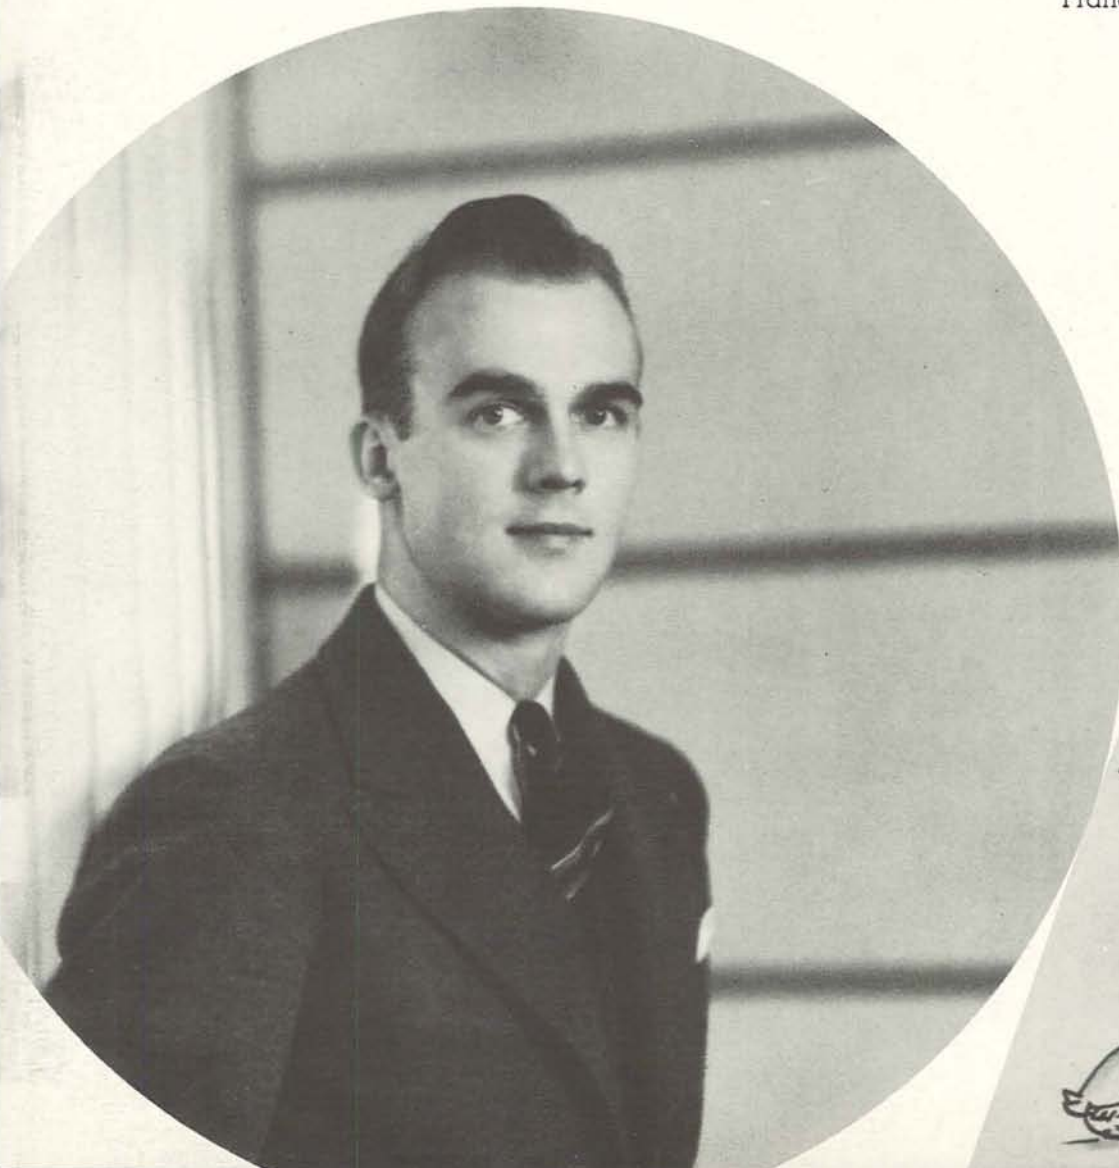

Barney Hall, Oregon's student president

Noel Benson, first vice-president. He lost the presidency after a complicated campaign to Mr. Hall.

Frances Schaupp, the coeds' choice for one of the highest student offices, second vice-president.

'Barney' Won

The proportional representation system of conducting student elections put a dent in the campus political machine. The Phi Delt-ATO politicians almost succeeded in putting the whole campus behind a single man for student body president, but when a sample poll of house representatives showed that man was Barney Hall and not Phi Delt's Noel Benson, the plan was ditched. The announcement of the intention of Independent Clare Igoe and Theta Chi's Bill Pease that they would seek offices hastened the break-up. From then on party alignments were adhered to. The way for "Barney" was paved by withdrawal from the race by Kappa Sigma's Bill Dalton and Pease, in spite of a similar action on the part of ATO's Sam Fort. Barney won by a convincing margin. Benson received the next highest number of votes, went in as vice-president. Dave Silver and Frances Schaupp also won positions on the varsity office panel.

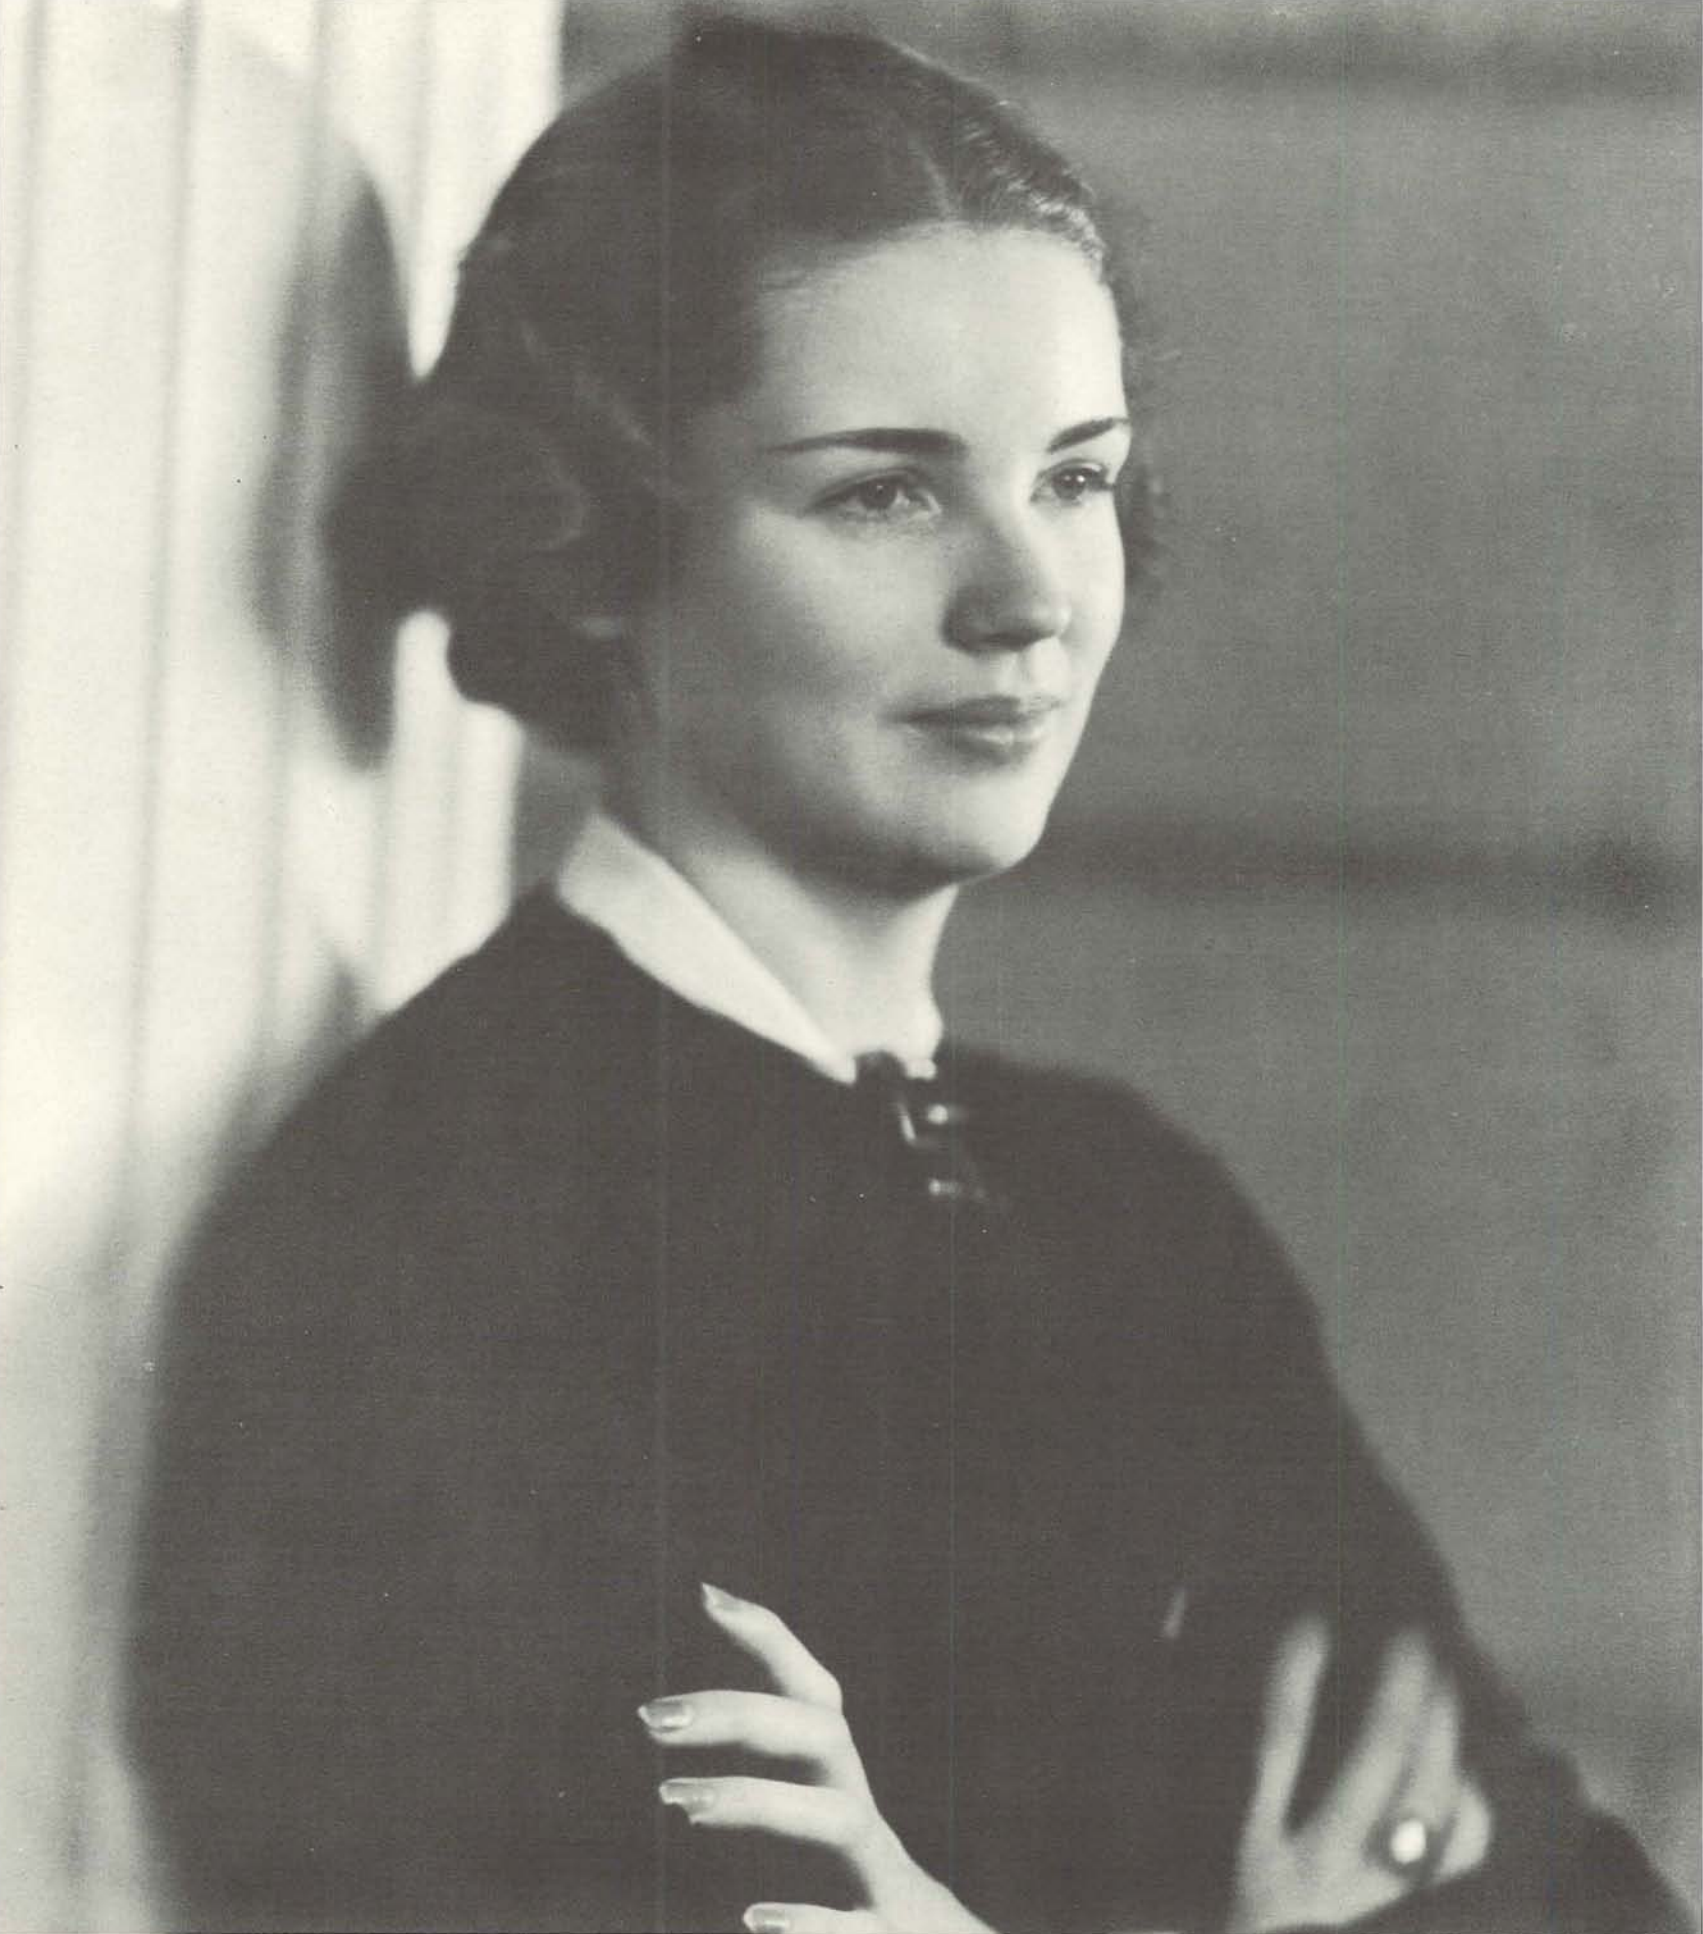

Dave Silver, who took time out from law school and varsity basketball to serve as secretary-treasurer.

A pause at the Junior Prom finds Gilbert Schultz, student body president for last year, in the center with Ellen Hill, and Barney Hall, his successor, to the right in white coat with Blanche Chaney.

These two students, Clare Igoe and Tony Amato, were named the most outstanding members of the junior class. Miss Igoe received the Gerlinger cup and Amato the Koyl cup.

Cup-winner Clare Igoe graciously receives the Gerlinger award from Dean of Women Hazel Schwering at intermission at the prom.

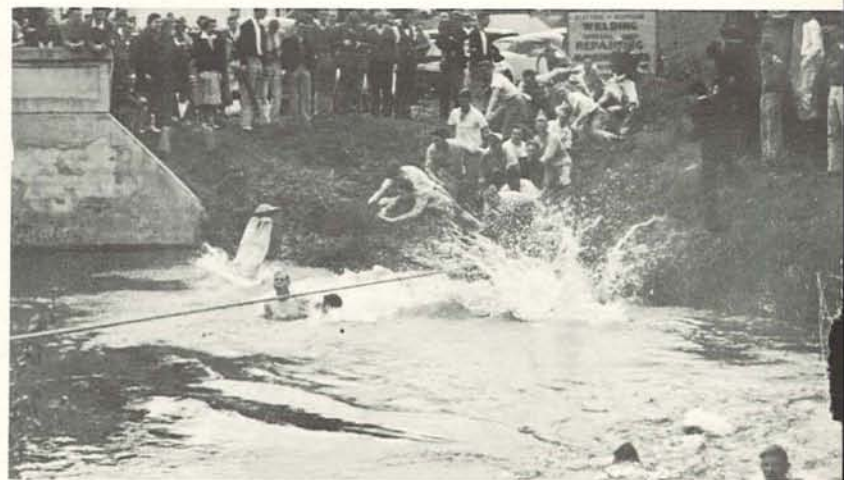

"Moleskins into the millrace" was the chant of these frosh at last spring's tug-of-war aftermath. A moment later this high-flying lad was climbing from the flood on the downstream side of the bridge.

Hansel and Gretel, complete with their pastry house, came down the millrace under the auspices of Alpha Tau Omega and Chi Omega.

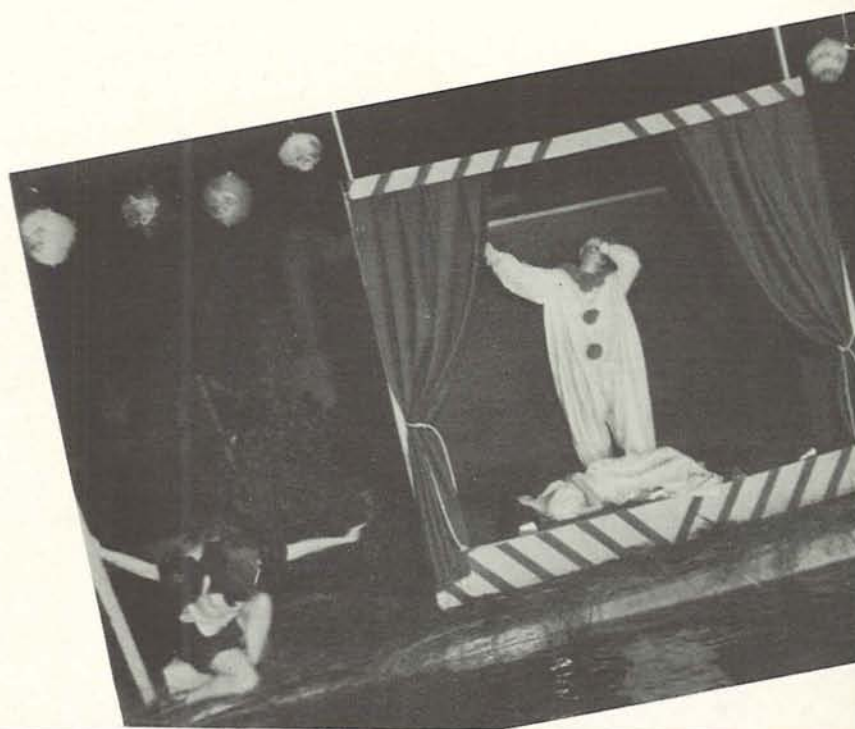

Millrace Melodies

Queen Betty, center, and her princesses stand the stare of the mobs at the campus luncheon. A few minutes later a rain storm chased them indoors.

Below are several other floats which drew applause from an estimated 5,000 at the canoe fete.

Natural Color Comes to Oregon

Editor Wayne Harbert brought natural color pictures of campus scenes and students to The 1938 Oregonian. Combined with other features, the yearbook is radically different in many respects from all others. Foremost among these unusual policies is the cover picture, the 52 full-page photographs, many of a single student, and the utilization of circles to help swing the reader from page to page. And the cutting of copy to a minimum which was formerly never visioned by even the most revolutionary editor was a bold step. But the editor followed the trend for more, larger and better pictures. The 1938 Oregonian will be "hard to take" by the more conservatives. But it is hoped it will become an inspiration to other yearbook editors.

The Staff Posted a Record

Confident that The 1938 Oregana sales would post a record, Howard Overback, starting his second year as business manager of the yearbook, opened an unrelenting drive to stimulate enthusiasm and increase sales. With the goal never dimmed, pre-depression figures were surmounted and this year's Oregana business staff set a new high of more than 2000 copies.

Registration day found an unprecedented demand for the yearbooks. The "partial-payment" plan and the use of the student's reserve fund eased the payments and promoted an increase far ahead of previous years sales.

A New Type Face Won Acclaim

Three new type faces were an important innovation to the paper and brought The Oregon Daily Emerald outstanding acclaim for make-up and content.

Today's news today, accurately mirrored and with the zest of youth was the policy of The Emerald. Editor LeRoy Mattingly, "the intelligentsia" of the journalism school, has widened the scope of the editorial policy with bold stands on campus, national and international affairs.

Membership to the Associated College Press is another step in the year's progress, and will enable The Emerald to compete with other college newspapers for Pacemaker and All-American rating.

"Matt's" staff of "Troupers" whose punching copy won for them Emerald "O" awards include: Lloyd Tupling, Paul Deutschmann, Margaret Ray and Pat Frizzell. These awards were made at the annual spring term banquet.

The Emerald Made Profits

Hard driving and determined was the spirit of The Oregon Daily Emerald's business staff under the direction of two-year veteran Walt Vernstrom, manager.

Finances looked a bit gloomy at the first of the year, but the organization of a daily one hour conference of the staff with Frank Short, advertising instructor, proved a great help.

About 30 students took part in production of copy and selling of advertising. They were organized under five daily managers who were in complete charge of the days' ads.

Emerald "O's" were awarded to Bill Lubersky and Eleanor Anderson for outstanding achievement on the staff.

Publicity for a University is Their Business

Bruce Hamby, head of the athletic news bureau.

George Godfrey, head of the University news bureau.

Les Miller, editor and manager of the student directory.

No piece of news from the most trivial incident of student activity to the selection of the University president escapes the alert attention of the University division of the news bureau, whose important service is the communication of news to newspapers and Oregon students' home town weeklies.

George Godfrey, associate in the news bureau is responsible for the direction of this department of the board of higher education.

Miss Marge Olson, has for several years worked with Mr. Godfrey as general secretary and filing clerk.

Robert Lee is campus correspondent for The Oregonian and Mr. Godfrey handles all copy for The Oregon Journal.

Athletics are one of the main campus interests, and Bruce Hamby, of the sports department of the University news bureau, handles news and publicity of the sports world.

Oregon's teams in every sport are always "good copy" and Bruce Hamby grinds out news and pictures carrying information and "dope" on the Webfoot athletes and athletics.

Publicity is necessary for the success of any athletic team, and besides the daily stories a weekly report of the Oregon sports situation is dispatched to almost every daily and weekly in the state, and to representative papers over the coast and nation.

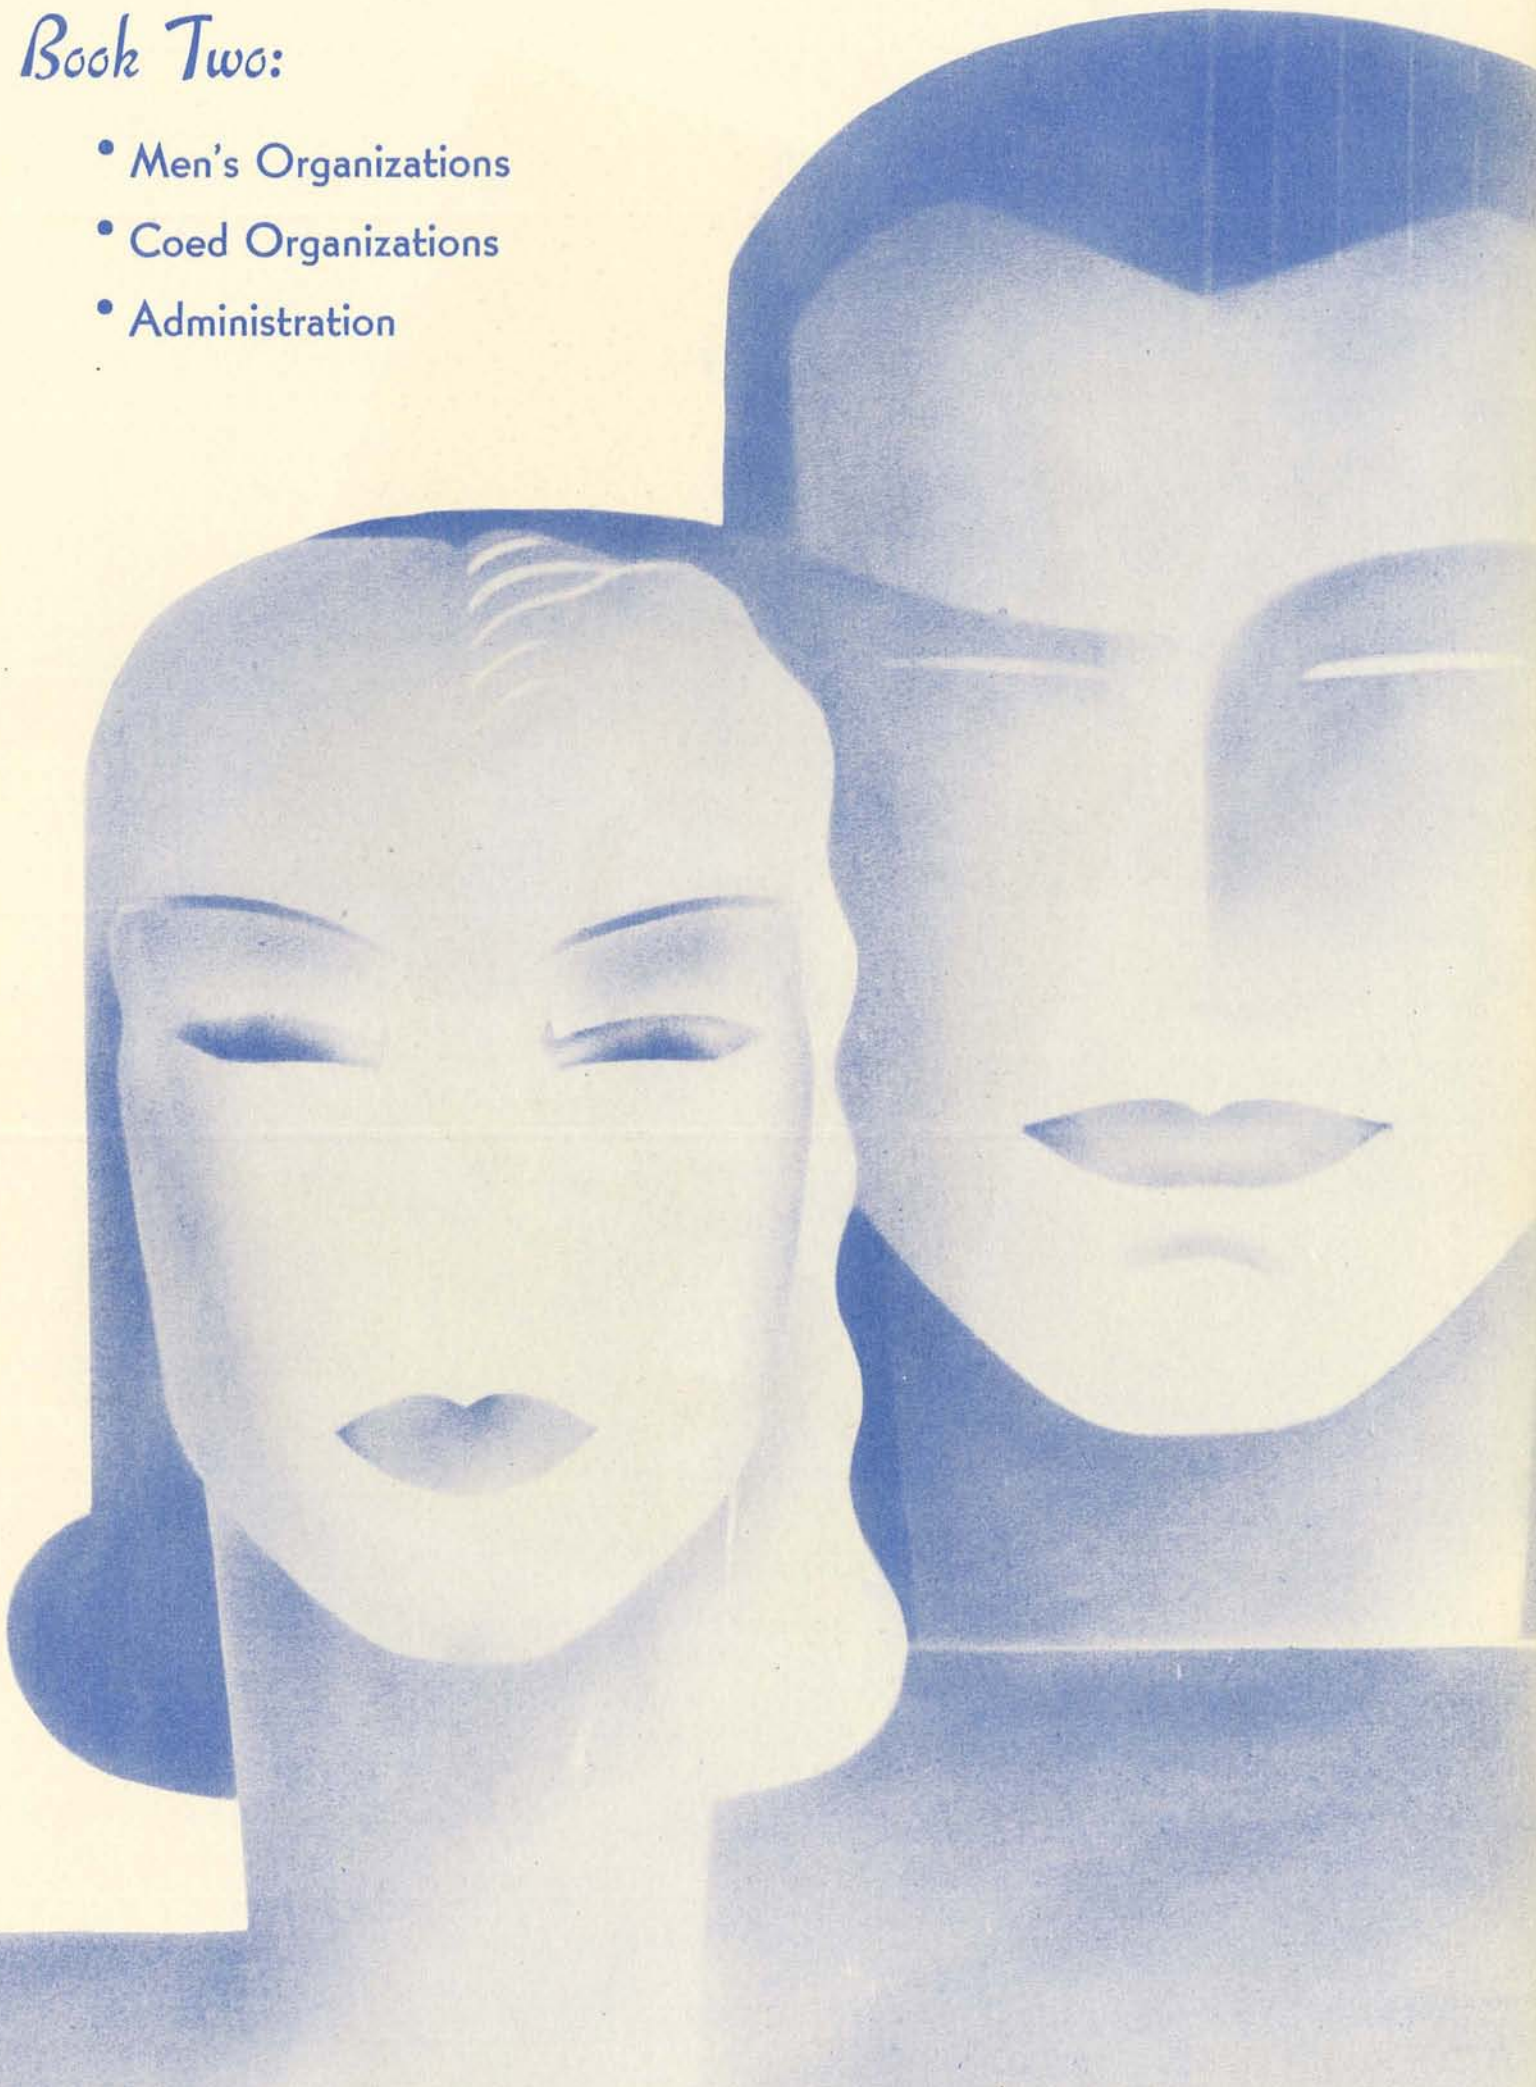

News of each individual varsity or freshman player is sent to his home town papers, keeping folks interested and informed.

A.S.U.O. concert publicity is also sent from this office.

Names, addresses, phone numbers and other handy information of Oregon students and faculty is found in the 1938 Piggers Guide. Lester Miller, editor, systematically comprised this helpful campus directory.

Men's Organizations

Donald Johnson, interfraternity council president.

Greek Presidents

The interfraternity council meets twice each month at dinner sessions at the various fraternities on the campus to talk over problems which are common to all Greek men.

Occasionally men from the faculty and downtown Eugene are invited to address the group on appropriate subjects.

Dean of Men Virgil D. Earl and Dean of Personnel Karl W. Onthank are advisors.

The continuous aim of the council is to improve the rushing rules so as to remove all the less desirable elements of that busy period.

Don Johnson, council president, attended the national interfraternity council convention in the East during the Christmas holidays. Other officers are: John Keyes, vice-president; Kenneth Battleson, secretary-treasurer.

Last spring term the council, assisted by Panhellenic, published a fraternity-sorority handbook. The 48-page booklet was designed by Editor Vic Rosenfeld to be used by the freshmen and their parents. It contained accurate information concerning the fraternities and sororities on the campus and was intended to help newcomers choose a living organization to their liking.

Rosenfeld's staff included: Virginia Regan, Ed Reames, Jane Lagassee, Abe Weiner, Phyllis Adams and Dick Litfin.

An introductory section contained pictures and articles of advice written by Dr. Boyer, then University president, Virgil D. Earl, dean of men, Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, and Hazel P. Schwering, dean of women.

They Survived Greek Handshakes

Rush week is probably the busiest period of the student year for the most people at Oregon. Summer rushing is followed on the campus by a frantic week of activity on the part of the fraternity men who need new pledges to replace graduated seniors.

For seven days the freshmen are feted and led to believe the old rumor about college being peachy is really true. But after being entertained at theatres, parties, picnics, golf, tennis, bowling and stag parties, they are finally induced to pledge "the best fraternity on the campus".

Donald Johnson, president of the interfraternity council, was in charge of rush week administration for the group.

The day of unregulated rushing has passed at the University. In other days rushees were "kidnapped", kept out all night, and had to undergo other undesirable practices on the part of the fraternities.

At present, thanks to cooperation among the fraternities with the administration, rush week ills have been minimized. The new student, naturally confused at finding himself in a strange and busy life, is considered first in the rushing program. He is free at all times to seek advice from men on the faculty.

This typical rush week scene was snapped by the cameramen from behind closed curtains at the SAE house. The rushee was so involved he hardly blinked his eyes when the flash of light interrupted the discussion.

This action photo of rush week will bring memories to most any man who has rushed or been rushed by Greek lettermen. The Phi Psi men posed for this.

The inter-dormitory council is composed of the president of each of the halls, Susan Campbell, Hendricks, Alpha, Gamma, Zeta, Sigma, Omega and Sherry Ross.

These student-elected representatives meet weekly to determine policies of the independents.

Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of the dormitories, is the advisor to the council. Dean of Men Virgil D. Earl is a second consul to the organization.

Walter Vernstrom served two terms as president of the dormitory council, then pledged a fraternity. He was succeeded by a coed, Leah Puppo.

As individual students see problems which should be discussed and perhaps corrected, they go to the presidents of their respective groups. The president, in turn, goes to the regular meetings of the dormitory council where the topic is discussed. The work of the council makes it possible for the dormitories to work together and present a united front during such times as political campaigns. For the first times in several years, a dorm man was student body president this year.

Student committees chosen from the various units are responsible each term for the unusual dances held in the Memorial hall.

Walter Vernstrom, president of the dorm council until he pledged Delt at the close of fall term.

Coeds' Organizations

Many coeds live in such striking sorority houses as this

Brandon Young, president of heads of houses.

Stopped Walkouts

Heads of houses is a self-governing body composed of the presidents of women's living organizations, with Dean of Women Hazel P. Schwering acting as advisor. The group meets twice a month to talk over mutual problems and to promote the best interests on the Oregon campus.

The most far-reaching move the group made this year was to "punish" freshman coeds who chose to go on traditional walkouts. These women were denied the privilege of dating for a set period, making it impossible for many to attend their organization's "pledge" dance.

Heads of houses cooperates with the University in maintaining general campus regulations. House presidents are encouraged to take any problems to the council.

Brandon Young is president and Bernadine Bowman is secretary-treasurer. Frances Schaupp is vice-president.

Four standing committees worked under the direction of Miss Young during the past year: social, program, library and discipline.

Chairman of the social committee was Frances Schaupp. Assisting her: Betty Jane Casey, Jean Palmer and Betty Brown. The group's task was to plan teas and other events.

Gretchen Smith was in charge of planning entertainment at meetings. Her helpers: Florence Bercovich, Elizabeth Turner, Kay Philp and Vivian Emery.

Louise Van Cleve headed the library committee: Helen Gorrell, Dorothy Burgess, Margaret Carmen. Assisting Genevieve McNiece, chairman of the discipline group were: Bertha Shepard, Frances Johnston, Vivian Runte, Gladys Battleson and Gretchen Smith.

Above is a rush week scene before dinner at Alpha Delta Pi. Below it are seen two mothers who waited nervously outside the Alpha Phi house the night of pledging to see if their daughters made the grade. They did!

Even Coeds Scramble for Pledge Pins

While the men are dashing about to or from fraternities they don't notice the less spectacular activities which occupy the coeds during rush week.

Although they don't have to be entertaining some frosh from 8 in the morning until 10:30 or 11 o'clock at night, they make the most of their round of luncheons and dinners for the rushees. A feature the coeds include in their rush week which is absent in the men's is the formal dress requirement for dinners the latter part of the week. It is then that the sororities careen on their foundations as coeds find their friends have made decisions "to be or not to be".

Virginia Regan, president of Panhellenic.

Panhellenic is composed only of representatives of the national sororities on the Oregon campus. It's position may be likened to that of the interfraternity council to the fraternities. Like that group, Panhellenic attempts to minimize rush week ills.

Such problems as expenses, changes in rushing rules, initiation regulations, summer rushing and clothing are passed upon by Panhellenic.

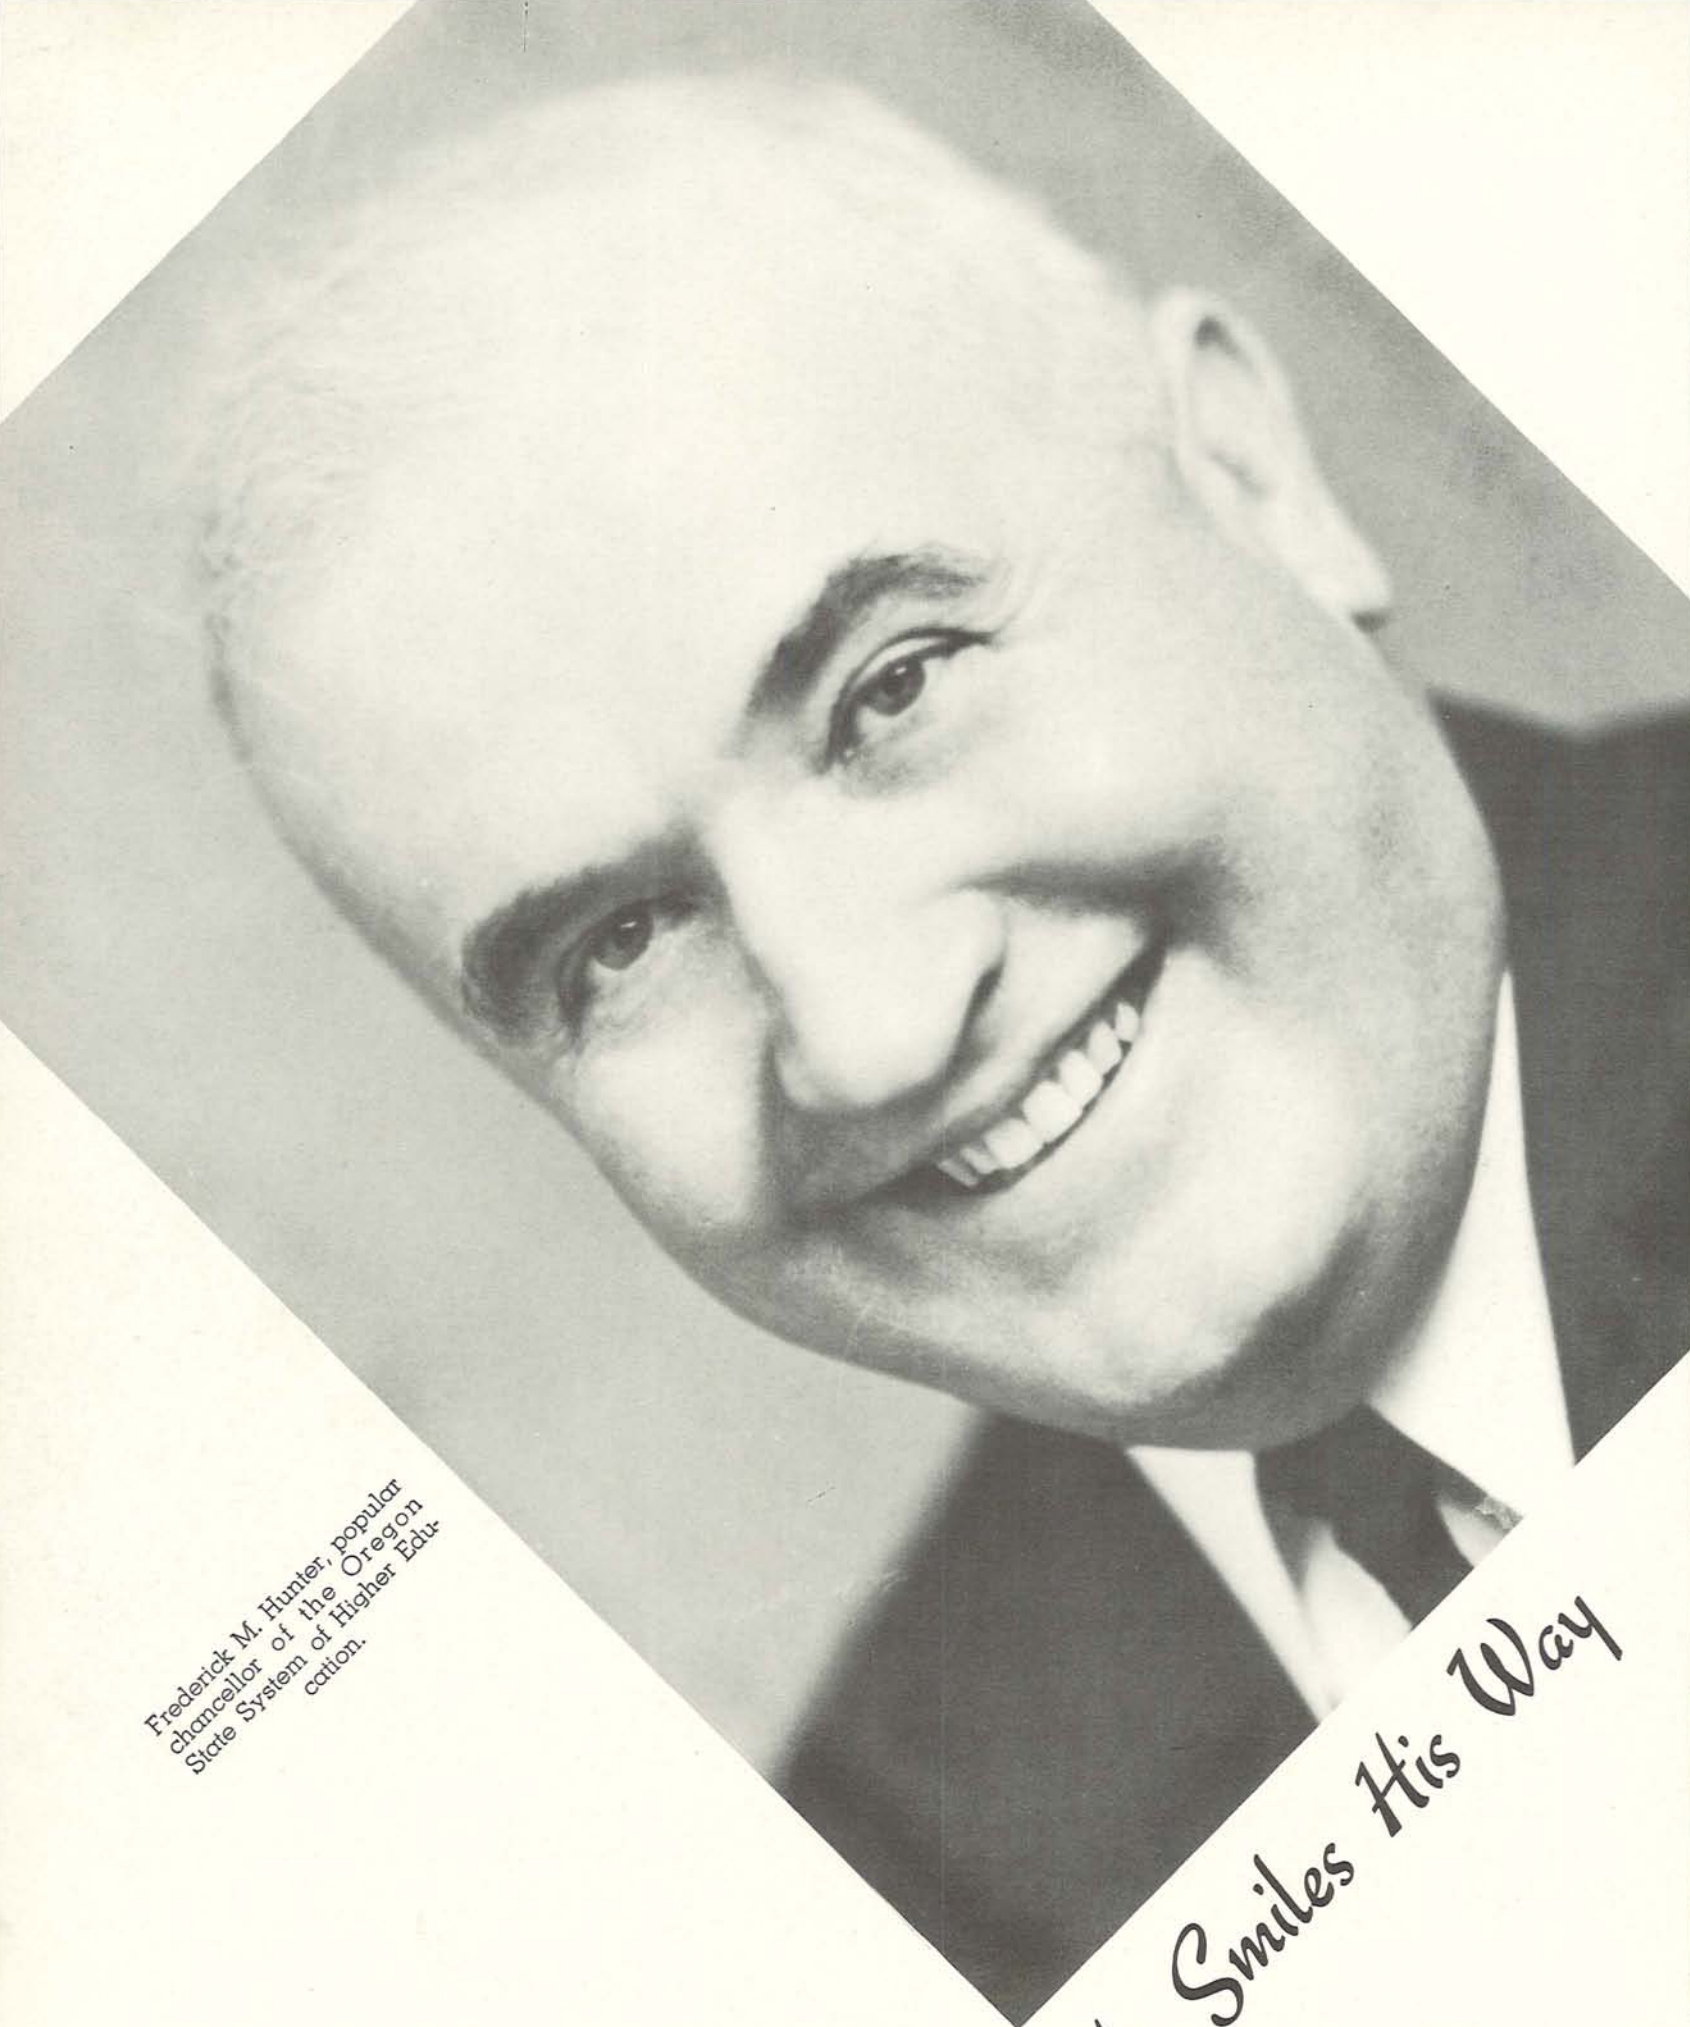

Virginia Regan is president, Patsy Taylor secretary and Aurelia Wolcott, treasurer.

This year six scholarships were awarded deserving coeds by panhellenic. The money was raised by a rushing fee. The organization aided the interfraternity council in publishing a handbook containing information concerning Oregon sororities and fraternities.

Oregon's Leaders

Charles H. Martin, straight-speaking governor of the state of Oregon.

Two Guardians of a Student Community

Personnel work at universities and colleges has been changing in recent years from a program largely concerned with discipline to one of guidance and supervision of student activities and interests. The University of Oregon stands as one of the leaders in this change. Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, is the head of the organization, and in the departments come the dean of women, Mrs. Hazel P. Schwering; the dean of men, Virgil D. Earl; the employment secretary, Janet Smith; and the housing committee, of which Mrs. Alice B. MacDuff, assistant dean of women, is chairman.

Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, assistant to the dean of women.

Hazel P. Schwering, Oregon's dean of women.

It's been rumored about Mrs. Schwering likes to roller skate. Here's proof!

Virgil D. Earl, dean of men. He knows student problems and solutions like nobody else.

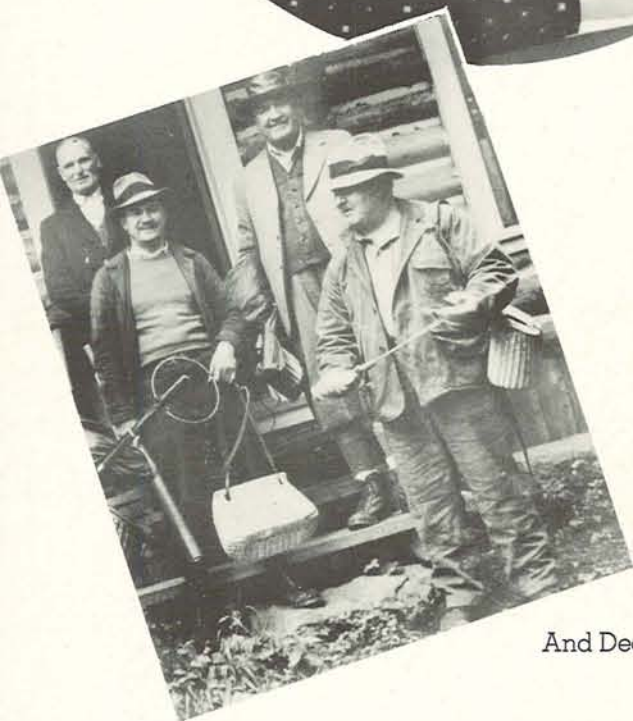

Mrs. Nellie J. Bernhardt, secretary to the dean of men, the friend of every student.

Did a Job Well

The duties of the dean of men and the dean of women are varied. They offer vocational guidance to students through lectures, conferences and forum discussions; plan and teach constructive courses for student leaders, scholarship chairmen, and pledge trainers; help advise students in regard to courses, activities, finances, etc.; and arrange financial assistance through loans, scholarships, or Y.W.C.A. work when that is needed. An outstanding feature of their work is the placement service through which students may secure part time work during the school year and full time work during vacations or upon graduation.

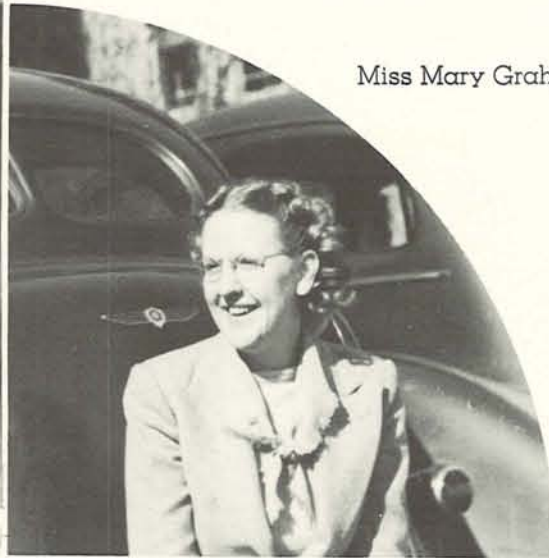

And Dean Earl likes to fish!

Activity Masters

George Root, a graduate of the University in 1936, took over the post of manager of educational activities in the summer of 1937. He succeeded Ralph S. Schomp, '35. Under his direction are all student extra-curricular activities except athletics.

Miss Mary Graham, his secretary

Secretary Ruth Travis

Anson B. Cornell, an older grad of Oregon, completed his second year as manager of athletic activities. His keen mind and personality makes his department a smooth-running one. He was especially business when it became necessary to find a new football coach to succeed Prince G. Callison.

Among Friendly Profs

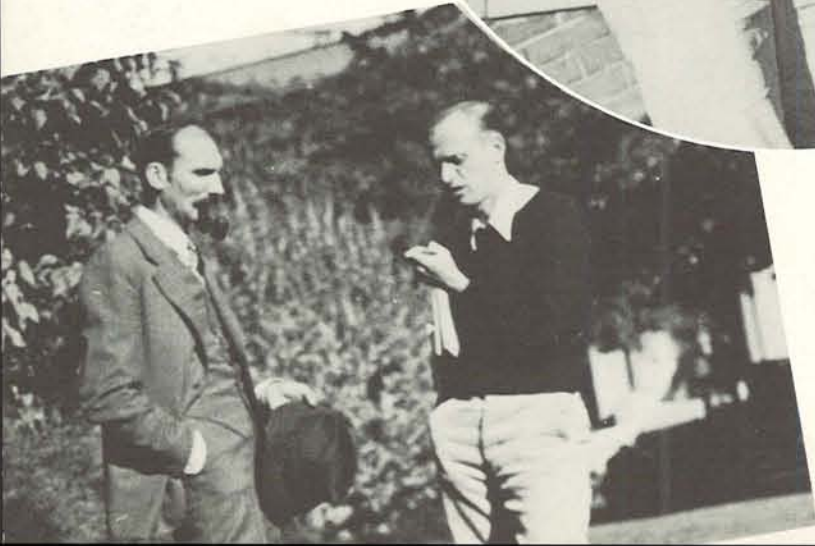

A. M. Vincent instructs a pupil in outdoor sketching on the mill-race to the right.

E. G. Moll, associate professor of English explains his literature to a questioning student, below.

Dr. Carl Johnson, below, talks to Charles Miccaud, the flurry of the French classes.

In the circle at the top of the page is George Turnbull, kind professor of journalism. His mind is a walking encyclopedia. Ask any student at the "shack". Below him is Samuel H. Jameson, the favorite of the sociology department. His sense of humor is rare, oh so rare!

Janet Smith, left, is hardly a professor. She is even more. Her position as employment secretary just couldn't be filled by anyone else. If a student needs a job, nine times out of eleven it is Miss Smith he contacts.

Hal Young, above, is caught at the piano engaging in voice gymnastics. Where there's song, there's Mr. Young.

Harvey Blythe, below in circle, is the favorite of the ROTC shack. And his pride, in turn, is the coed rifle team. He's coached the men's squad to several national championships.

Charles M. Hulten, right is young and popular in the journalism school. Students can't quite determine whether his or Mr. Turnbull's sections are the toughest. Result: they're both good.

1938's Seniors

Coed Graduate, Clare Igoe

Charles Erwin, below, president of the senior class.

They'll Soon be Gone

The handful of class members who gathered to nominate officers had been embroiled in the political messes for so long that spirit was very low. Politicians which had steered the class of '38's two parties were absent. Most of them had quit school.

Without excitement, nominations were made.

Election day found ATO's Charles Erwin winning the presidency from Fiji's Larry Crane. Bill Vermillion coasted into the vice-presidency, Frances Johnston became secretary and Abe Weiner went into the treasurer's chair unopposed.

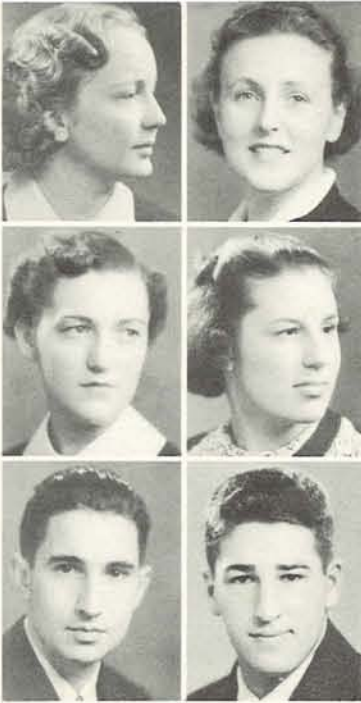

Bill Vermillion, vice-president.

Frances Johnston, secretary.

Abe Weiner, treasurer.

Zane Kemler, president of the class of 1939.

Who'll Buy My Proxy Votes?

Politics in junior class elections of 1937 had a "slightly" rotten odor. It seems that the blocs bought class cards and voting privileges in wholesale lots at the ASUO office upon presentation of the required cash. Votes were then cast by proxy.

The final result found Denton Burdick's Phi-Delt-Beta block down to defeat before the Sigma Nu-SAE-DU ticket of Zane Kemler, Virginia Regan and Kay Coleman.

Chi Psi Brock Miller defeated Willie Frager by one vote.

Vivian Runte, top, president of Orides, Mary Elizabeth Norvel, Alpha Phi politico, Jack Lochridge, the same for Fiji and Theta Chi's committeeman, Bob Bailey.

They'll Soon be in Cords

The Phi-Delt-ATO-Beta bloc, minus the support of the Sigma Chi's, supported ATO Bob Hochuli, Aida Macchi, Patsy Warren and Fred Beardsley.

Sigma Nu's basketballer-politician, John Dick, is immediately below. On down the page are: ATO's scrappy passer, Jay Graybeal; Betty Lou Kurtz, Chi O politician; and Phi Delt's likeable boy, Scott Corbett.

With the duck is Alpha Phi's "all-around activity girl" Rita Wright. Theta Chi's hope is Phil Lowry, next in line. Below him is Aida Macchi, Hendricks hall activity coed.

To the right is Delta Tau Delta's politician, Clayton Ellis.

Switched Horses Midstream

Serious splits in both parties capsized campus politician's hopes several times before the freshmen had their officers elected.

At first the Beta-ATO-Phi Delt block thought it would run a Beta. The party lined up, only to finally back a Sigma Chi, Bob Hendershott. The Kappa Sig-DU-SAE-Sigma Nu faction chose Harrison Bergtholdt who they found among the Theta Chi pledges. The party split. Politicians went crazy. At midnight before elections, it was recognized that the Fiji's and Sigma Nu's had been successful in their attempt to oust Bergtholdt and run his campaign manager, Sigma Nu's Gleeson "Tiger" Payne. He and his ticket won the election in a walk.

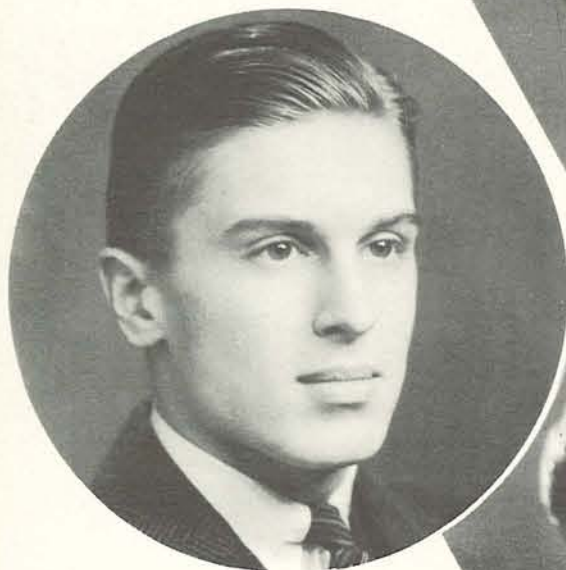

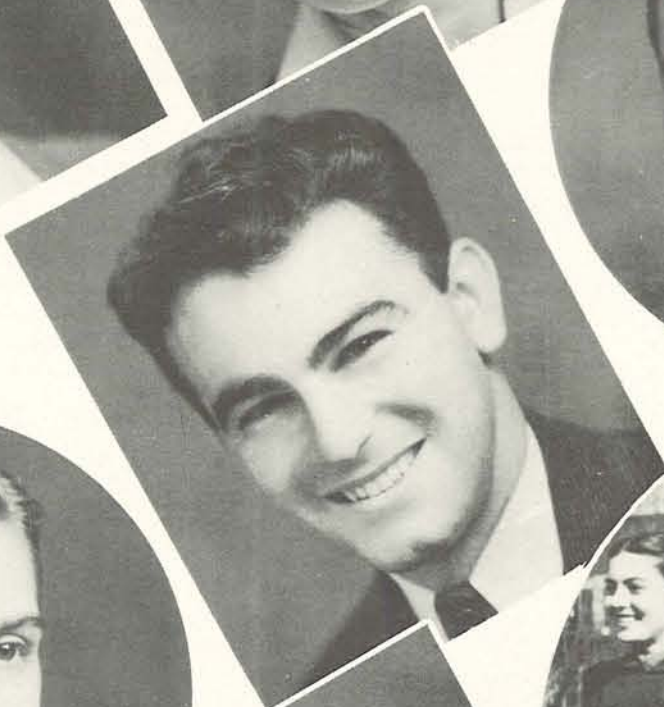

The above squad is only the freshman class officers: President Gleeson Payne, Vice-president Alice Lyle, Secretary Ann Stevenson and Treasurer Ken Erickson.

In the group to the right: Gamma Phi's Eleanor Swift, Kappa's Anne Wahc, Theta Chi's Harrison Bergtholdt.

Coaches, Managers, Yell Kings

Manager Marlantes takes his eyes from the game

Coaching Chiefs

Heading the coaching staff last year were Prince G. Callison and Howard Hobson, head football and basketball coaches. Hobson also coached baseball.

Coach Callison resigned his position shortly after the football season was concluded because of the howling of various "wolves". He was succeeded by Gerald Oliver, who came to Oregon from the University of Arizona whose team was the last to trounce the Webfoots.

Prince L. Callison, head football coach.

Howard Hobson, varsity basketball coach.

Assisting Callison was "Mike" Mikulak, recent Oregon All-American, as backfield coach, Gene Shields, line coach, and Dick Reed, end coach.

John Warren coached the freshman football, basketball, and baseball squads. "Mike" Hoyman continued last year as coach of both freshman and varsity swimming teams. Bill Hayward earned another stripe by completing another year as track and field coach. He will conclude his official career this spring when he retires.

Paul Washke coached freshman and varsity tennis. Sid Milligan, a law school student, coached varsity golf.

They Stirred and Rallied Student Spirit

Wolves watched every move of the rally committee this year. Daily blasts came in The Emerald's columns, "gripes" of dissatisfied student game-goers appeared in the letter writers' section. Editor Mattingly wrote some of his famed editorials on the inactivity of the committee.

The trouble all came from those people who saw no need of 20 of the school's supposedly more politically ambitious youngsters dressing in white and standing on the sidelines at the game. They criticized their vote-seeking grins, their camera conscious capers.

The peak of complaint came at a Portland game when they greased a pig, sent it squealing into the stadium, proceeded to chase it about and shock the humane society by making crazy passes at it. The pig was supposed to be Gerald Graybeal, Oregon's slippery runner and passer and the people who could not catch it were supposed to be California, the rally people explained. The irony was that Cal booped Oregon plenty hard in the first half, made it worse in the final period.

In spite of all this trouble, Rally Committee Chairman Sam Fort spent plenty of hours working over the group's plans.

Paul Cushing rose from assistant to chief yell king. His helpers were Leland Terry, a two year vet, and Bob Elliott, who came up from the frosh.

This trouble occurred at the Oregon-Oregon State game on Eugene's Hayward field turf. Homecoming crowds were disappointed as the Webfoots bit defeat for the second consecutive year from State, this time 14 to 0.

Graybeal has the ball in the action picture from the Washington game at the left. But the whole Washington team is after him. The final result: Huskies, 14; Webfoots, 0.

Here's Jackrabbit Graybeal again. This time he just missed getting a pass and yardage from the Washington State Cougars. The game was a thriller with Oregon stopping the college on the goal line in the final seconds. Result: Oregon 10 WSC, 6.

Anxious eyes are strained, to the left, at the Stanford game. They were awarded with the first Oregon win over the Indians in all history.

To the right, across the page, is Anderson of Oregon being tackled by a Gonzaga man, Haberman. Haug of Gonzaga, number 1, is waiting, just in case. But it wasn't much use as Oregon walloped the Bulldogs 40 to 6, surprising the entire Pacific Northwest.

Court Champions

Oregon outfought scrappy conference competition to win the Northwest's basketball championship this year. It was not until the Webfoots went into California to meet Stanford university that they were forced to concede to a better team.

The first of the Pacific coast championship series went to Stanford and "Hank" Luisetti by the score of 52 to 39. In the second game the Oregons led throughout most of the first half but were finally outclassed in the second, 59 to 51.

Idaho was the only other team to take two games from Oregon. The Webfoots dropped one game to each of the other members of the Northwest conference, however.

After running up 617 points in winning 11 non-conference games before the season opened, Oregon whipped Washington State in both Eugene games, 54 to 33 and 50 to 46. Oregon State was beaten next, 38 to 32. The Staters reversed tricks the next night, slowed the Ducks down with a four-point win, 36 to 32 in Corvallis.

Montana was the next to fall in McArthur court, 69 to 43 and 54 to 42. At Seattle, Washington took the first game, 40 to 37 but Oregon overwhelmed them the second night, 51 to 31. At Missoula, Montana whipped the Webfoots, 58 to 52 who in turn were waxed 63 to 49 the next night.

Washington then came to Eugene to be defeated 59 to 43 and 56 to 53. The latter game was the season's thriller as Oregon surged from way behind to win in the final minutes. At Moscow, Idaho took two from Oregon, 33 to 28 and 35 to 34, the latter game won with a foul shot the final second of the tilt. Oregon took Washington State in stride at Pullman, 44 to 34 but was outclassed in the second game, 44 to 37.

Idaho then came to Eugene where it was bounced in two successive games, 68 to 41, and 41 to 24. The conference season ended with two victories over Oregon State, 40 to 22 in Eugene, and 38 to 33 at Corvallis.

Baseball

After nine innings on the diamond of Howe field

Champions of the Northwest

Starting the baseball season with a bang, the Ducks walked over Oregon State 7 to 1 and 14 to 0 in two opening games, and continued on to their third pennant in four years with scrappy play and a fighting spirit.

After beating the Idaho Vandals 9 to 0 and 6 to 3 on the University's Howe field, the squad lost stride and dropped two games to the Washington State college Cougars.

In the first game the Cougars nicked Sayles for 9 hits, three of which were home runs, and knocked the league leading Oregon club off the top of the ladder. In the second game Washington State got 7 hits off Johnny Lewis and took advantage of 6 Oregon errors to roll up 12 points against Oregon's 2.

The first game with Washington lasted 14 innings before Hurney, Sayles, Coleman and McLean found the apple and brought in four runs.

The second game of this series was won 8 to 6 by Oregon.

The ducks journeyed to Pullman and in a 10 inning contest managed to get an 8 to 6 win from the Cougars that knocked the Fullmanites from the league top and placed the Webfoots there with a fraction of a game lead over their victims.

But Washington State tightened up and in the second game of the series fought stubbornly with the Oregonians in a two to two tie for 14 innings. Sayles was again holding the Cougars in check, and again in the 14th the boys from Eugene rallied with four runs, one of them a homer by Andy Hurney to win a two-game margin over the other teams in league standings.

Hardy and Lewis were then credited with two wins from Idaho, 13 to 4 and 10 to 7, to finish the strenuous road trip with the record of having won six games in seven days!

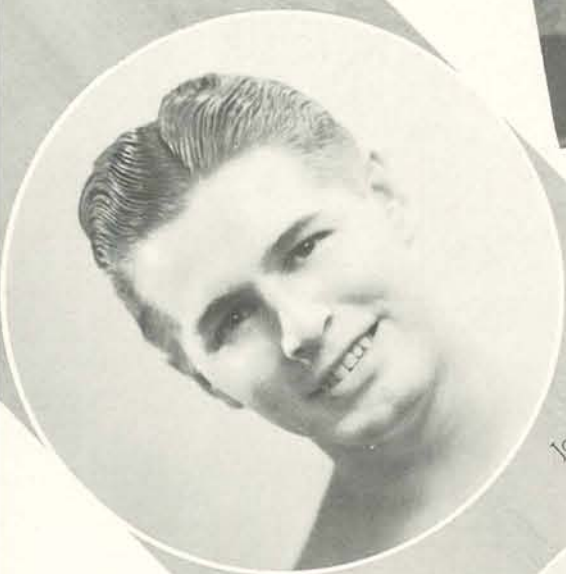

Oregon had but one more game to win to clinch the title. But she won two—from Oregon State. In the first game Bill Sayles threw some of the fastest sizzlers that ever zipped over a conference plate to quiet the Beavers 8 to 0 and consequently to definitely clinch the Northern division pennant.

In the next game, the last one of the season, Captain Johnny Lewis took the mound as his final bit of competition under Oregon colors. It was a big day for the seniors. Lewis pitched a good game and Hurney, Amato, and Courtney hit home runs.

The only blight in the latter part of the season was when the Webfoots played for 19 innings with Willamette University and lost 10 to 9.

"Busher" Smith takes one on first in the circle to the left. Washington State's clown-coach, "Buck" Bailey, goes serious long enough in the next picture to dump some stale water on the turf. Below is Bill Sayles, ace pitcher, in a wind-up pose.

Track

Oregon's varsity track and field squad, spring, 1937.

Colonel Bill's Boys

Injuries spoiled what might have been a very successful varsity track season this spring. Three of Bill Hayward's main spark plugs were not able to compete to the full extent of their ability because of injuries.

George Varoff nursed a pulled muscle all season, "Squeak" Lloyd sprained his ankle while broad jumping in the Washington meet, and Elmer Koskella, who had thrown the javelin over 200 feet early in the spring, nursed a bad arm.

In the Oregon-Oregon State relays, the Webfoots came from behind to tie the meet by winning first places in the last two events, the distance medley and the mile relay.

In dual meet competition, Washington beat Oregon 88 to 46, and Washington State took Oregon 90 to 41. But the Ducks defeated their traditional rivals, the Beavers, 69 to 62, and this meet was won in the last event, the mile relay. Varoff made a new northwest record in the pole vault, by clearing the bar at 14 feet.

In the Northwest conference meet in Seattle, Oregon placed third. Varoff, Foskett, and Holland won first places in the pole vault, shot put, and the discus.

Out of the five man team that went to Los Angeles to the Pacific Coast conference meet, Holland won first place with a toss of 155 feet 7 1-8 inches in the discus, Crawford Lyle, up and coming distance man, placed third in the two mile and Bill Foskett placed fourth in the shot put with a heave of 48 feet 3 1/2 inches.

Chick Hardisty leads the way around the cinder circle. Below is the finish of the mile relay in the Oregon-Oregon State meet which ended in a tie.

Oregon's proud Ducks, for many seasons winging over all waters of competition in the Northwest and even in California, were finally forced to tread this season, ending in third place.

In the Northwest meet, held at Corvallis March 26, the Beaver hosts churned the home pool for 57 points, a four point margin over Washington. Oregon trailed third with 44 and Idaho and Washington State scored 10 and 8 points, respectively.

In season meets, Oregon outswam Idaho, Washington State, and British Columbia. Washington eked a triumph and two meets were lost to Oregon State College.

The Webfoots averaged 78 $\frac{3}{4}$ strokes per man for 17 holes to register their victory. During the season itself the Ducks were defeated only once, by Oregon State, only to take the Beavers' measure the following weekend. Oregon defeated the College of Puget Sound twice, Washington, University of British Columbia and Washington State college.

Their Aspiration: A Varsity First String

"It's the best team I've coached in years", was Coach Warren's post-season statement concerning the prowess of his Frosh basketball men.

The Ducklings took all but one of their pre-season encounters, and all four games played with the Oregon State college Rooks.

The scores of the State series favored the Frosh by the following margins, 51 to 31; 46 to 41; 55 to 40; and 55 to 35.

Twenty Frosh won their numerals during the season.

The Frosh baseballers split their four game series with Oregon State's Rooks. In the first game Oregon's John Linde earned a 7 to 1 slide over the College team, but later in a double-billed affair the Rooks measured the Frosh 9 to 8 and 9 to 6. In the final meeting, with Paul Thunemann in the box, the Frosh out-classed the "down river" team, 12 to 5. A portion of the team is shown in the picture above: Left to right: John Linde, Matt Pavalunas, Wimpy Quinn, John Dick, Gale Smith, Maury Kelly.

To promote understanding of problems connected with the three business administrative fields, banking, commerce, and accounting, is the purpose of Alpha Kappa Psi, commerce honorary consisting of 26 members chosen from upper-division business administrative students.

Luncheon meetings are held throughout the year with prominent business men as principal speakers explaining current business topics. These gatherings are handled by Harry Hodes, president; assisted by Frank Drew, vice-president; and secretary-treasurer, Harold Strawn.

Asklepiads

The surprised student finding bones trimmed with ribbons tied to his lapel suddenly during Junior Weekend finds himself a member of Asklepiads, local pre-medical honorary, founded on the campus in 1929.

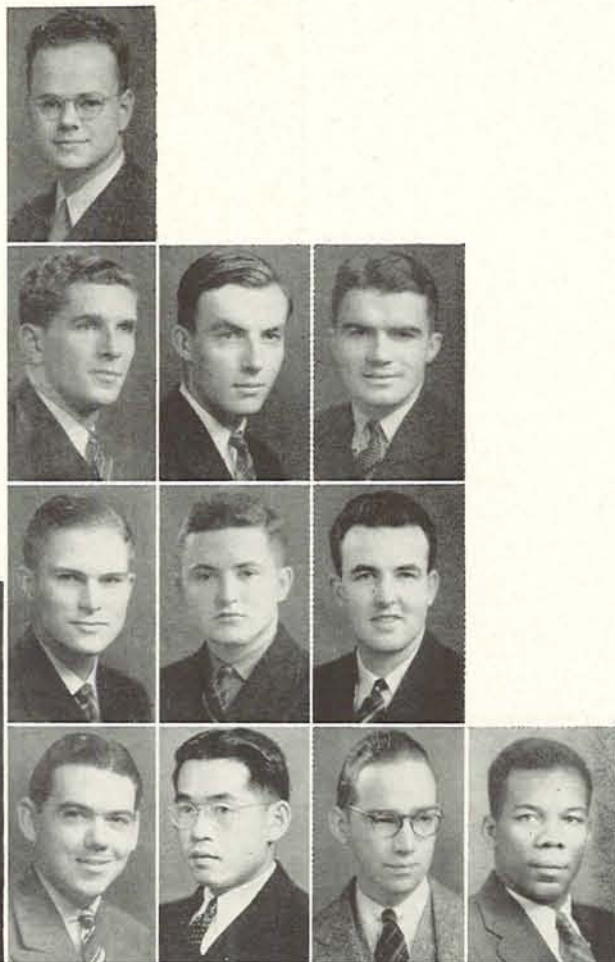

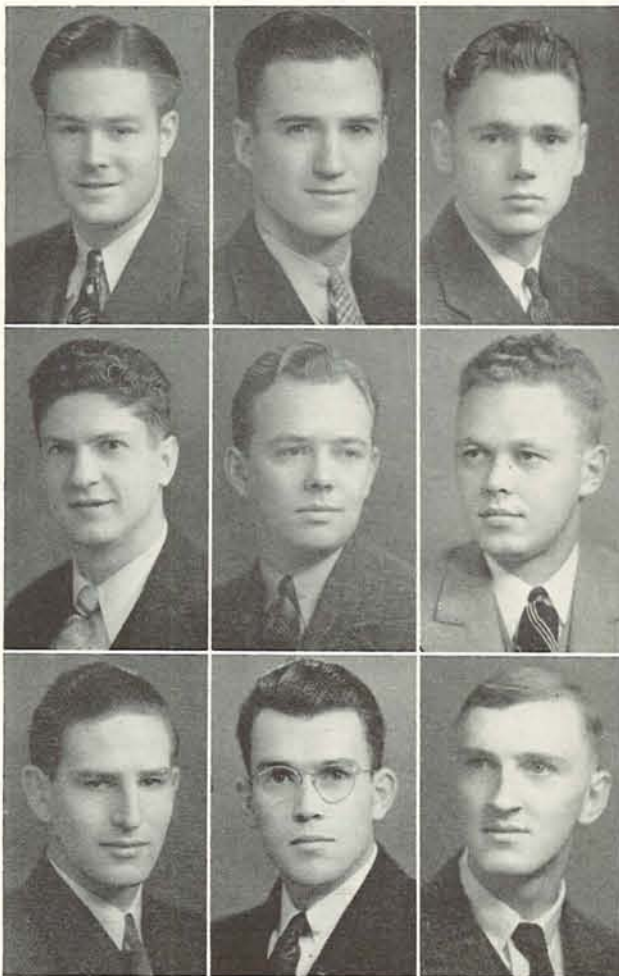

To provide students with an incentive, Asklepiads encourages interest in medicine by encouraging scholarship and presenting scientific subjects to pre-medical student. Prominent members of medical and scientific professions are presented speakers at regular meetings throughout the year.

Kenneth Gillanders

Beta Alpha Psi

Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting fraternity, was chartered in February, 1919. Its purpose is to further the study of accounting, to encourage better scholarship, and to bind more closely together all those interested in the vocation.

Oregon's Beta chapter was admitted into the national honorary in May, 1921, and since that time has been active in furthering the profession.

An interesting series of meetings were held during the year under the leadership of Kenneth D. Gillanders, president; Jack L. Medlar, vice-president; and Kenneth W. Cole, secretary-treasurer.

Beta Gamma Sigma

Beta Gamma Sigma is primarily an honor roll of the top ten per cent of the graduates from forty-two of the best collegiate schools of business in America. It interests itself in encouraging higher education for business, in fostering honesty and integrity in business, and in developing friendliness among business men toward graduates of collegiate schools of business.

Gamma Alpha Chi

Frances Johnston

Sponsoring the Gamma Alpha Chi Fashion Dance this spring term, coeds from campus living organizations formed the program for the evening, by modeling "Chumley" clothes furnished by Charles F. Berg's store, Portland.

Under the leadership of Frances Johnston, this women's professional fraternity seeks to promote and maintain interest in advertising among all women. Jane Lagasee is vice-president of the group; Lois Strong, secretary-treasurer; and Caroline Hand, reporter. Professor W. F. G. Thacher of the journalism school, is faculty adviser to the group. Mrs. Spencer Collins is chapter alumnae adviser.

Friars

To be tapped by the black band which winds solemnly about the green campus one day Junior Weekend—or to be quietly tapped by the same band winding around a formal dance floor fall term—is quite the highest honor senior activity men can achieve.

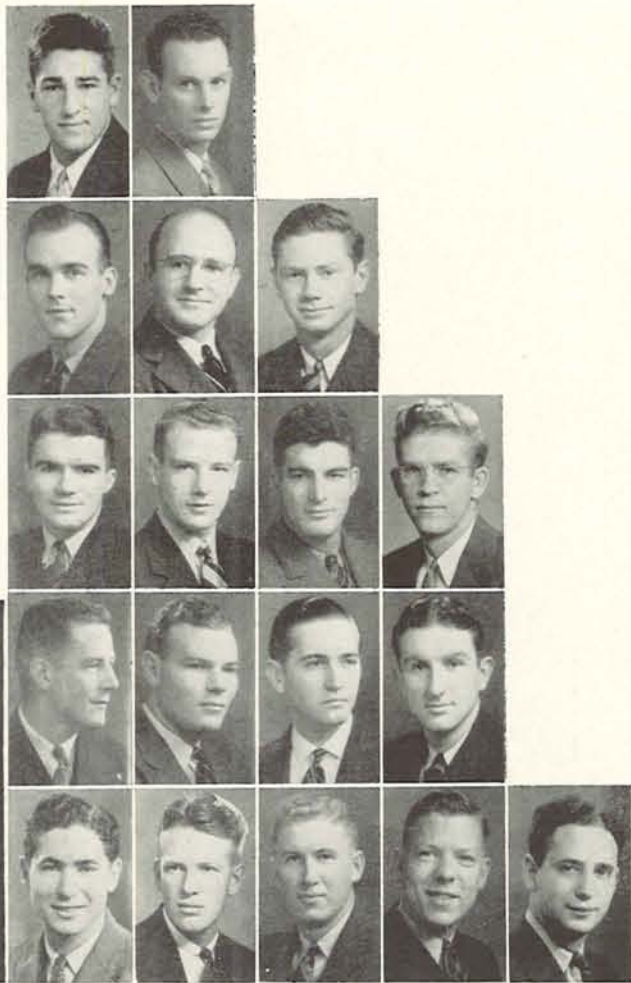

Activities of Friars consist of improving organization and spirit in University groups. These outstanding members of the senior class take an active part in all campus affairs.

All activities of the organization are clothed in darkest secrecy. Although the president's name is unknown, the student body president always leads the pledge procession.

Librarians

Betty Lou Kurtz

The House Librarian's group was organized to create and further interest in good books in the various campus living organizations. Each house librarian, an elective position in each fraternity and sorority, is responsible for his house library, keeping it supplied with books which members will read and enjoy.

For the benefit of the browsing room in the new library, the house librarians gave an informal campus dance last spring and this fall term the group sold stickers, the proceeds of both going towards furnishing the room.

Betty Lou Kurtz is president of the organization; Jack Gavin, vice-president; LaVern Littleton, secretary; and Bob Emerson, publicity manager. Miss Ethel R. Sawyer is the adviser.

Hui-O-Kamoaina

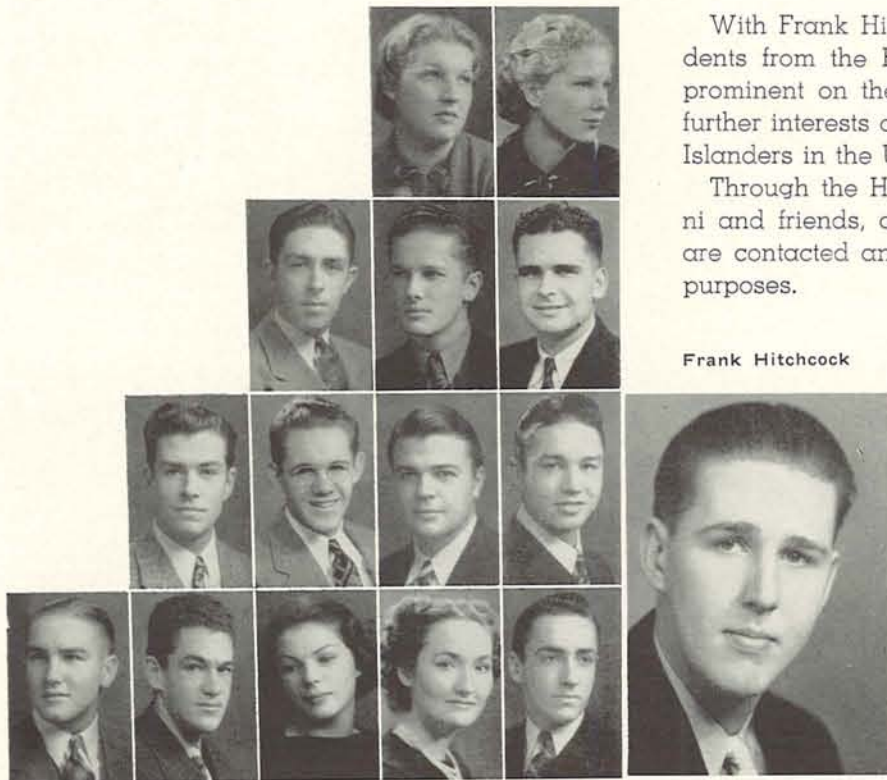

With Frank Hitchcock as president, this group of students from the Hawaiian Islands is rapidly becoming prominent on the Oregon campus. Their purpose is to further interests of Oregonians in the Islands, and of the Islanders in the University.

Through the Hawaiian Tourist Bureau, Oregon Alumni and friends, as well as Island high school students are contacted and informed of the organization and its purposes.

Hui-O-Kamoaina meets socially twice a month. Beautiful Hawaiian serenades are heard at regular intervals by University students.

This spring term, the Islanders entertained personal guests at a "Luan" (feast). A quartette from the group entertains at various living organization dances during the year.

Order of the O

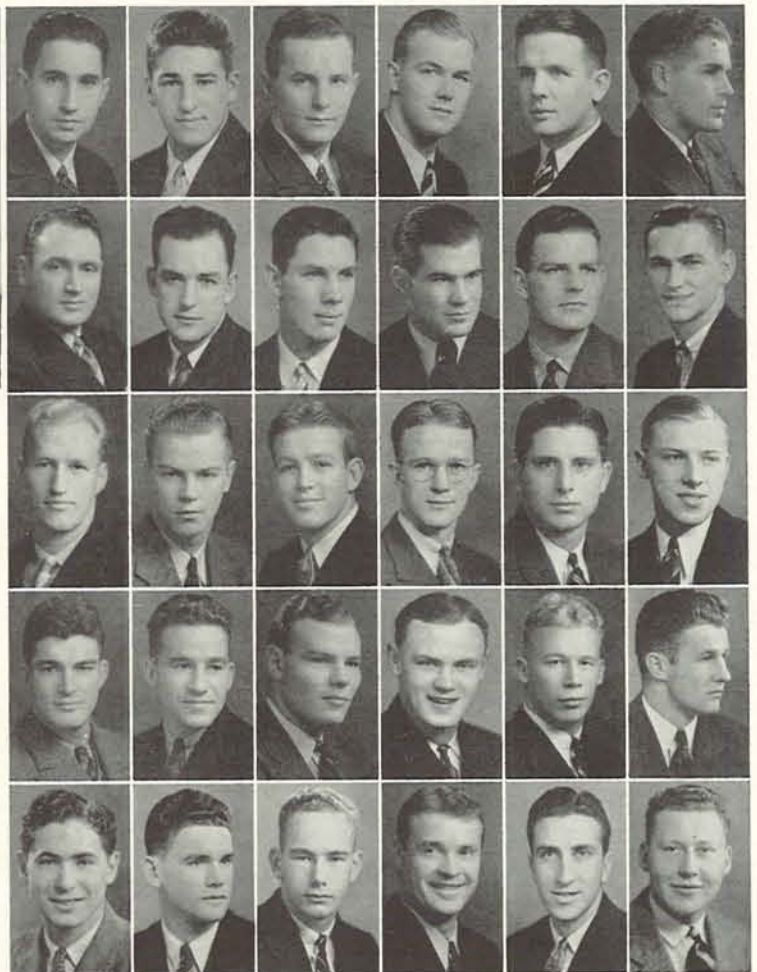

Tony Amato

Order of the O, Oregon's athletic fraternity, consists of lettermen in intercollegiate sports, of those who have won awards in the major sports and of the senior managers in the same sports, football, basketball, baseball, and track. Those men who have distinguished themselves in swimming, tennis, golf, and cross-country are also eligible for membership in the organization.

The members strive to maintain Oregon's athletics on a high plane of activity and to foster a spirit of sportsmanship in those participating athletes.

Vernon Moore is vice-president of the group; Don Kennedy, secretary; Henry Nilsen, treasurer; and John Yerby, sergeant-at-arms. Dr. R. R. Huestis is faculty adviser.

Kwama

Nineteen freshmen coeds are chosen each spring term at the Mortar Board ball to become pledges of Kwama, sophomore service honorary for women. These coeds are chosen on a basis of scholarship, democracy, and cooperation in school service.

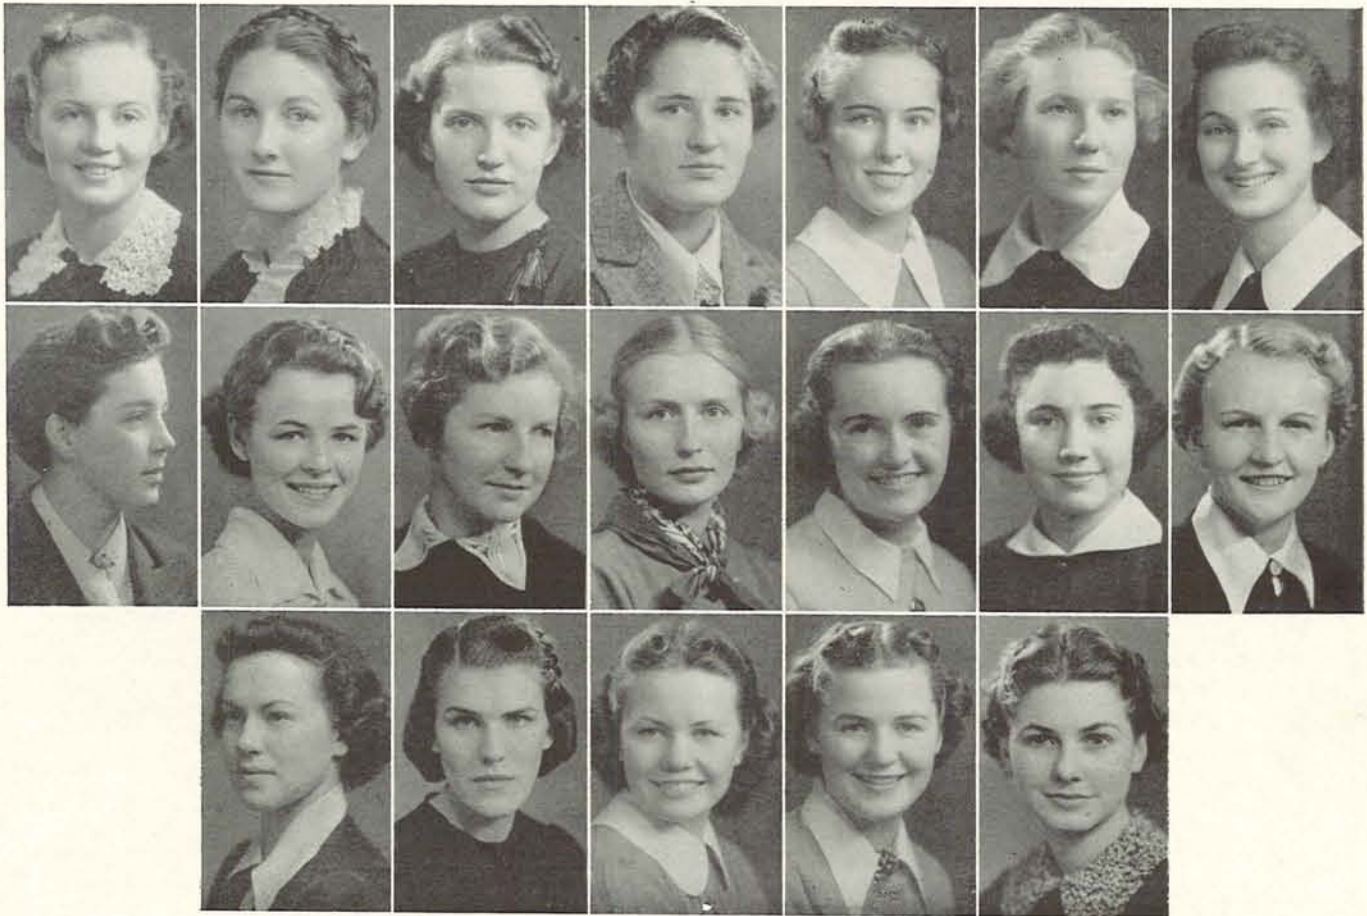

This year Kwama took charge of the Christmas Seal Sale, contacting each house, taking donations for the prevention of tuberculosis, thus surpassing the percentages attained in any past yearly sales.

With their purpose being to serve the University, Kwama's act as advisers for new girls during freshman week, helping them at registration, and directing them about the campus.

Under the advisorship of Marionbeth Wolfenden, officers of this active group for the year 1937-38 have been: Patricia Brugman, president; Betty Lou Swart, vice-president; and Joliene Woodruff, secretary-treasurer.

Phi Beta

Pi chapter of Phi Beta, installed at the University of Oregon on January 4, 1929, a national professional fraternity of music and drama, is organized to give interested women students the opportunity for the development of musical and dramatic ability.

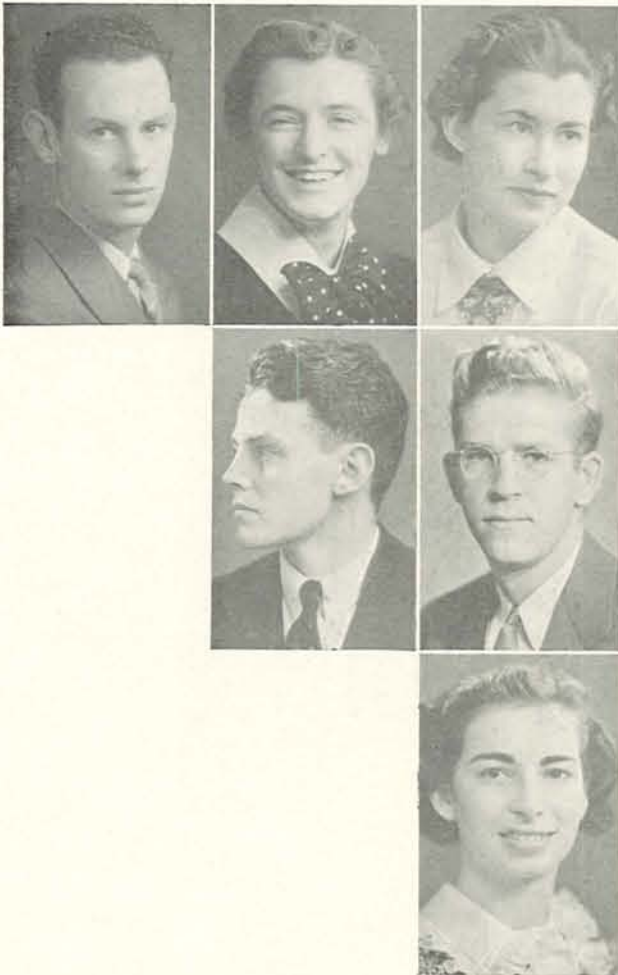

Four Phi Beta musical tuition scholarships were granted this year: Dorothy Louise Johnson, violinist; Barbara Ward, vocalist; Barbara Barnell Tripp, pianist; and Charlotte Cherry, cellist.

Officers for Phi Beta for 1937-1938 have been Theresa Kelly, president; Jean Ramsden, vice-president; Evelyn Erickson, secretary; and Janet Felt, reporter. Advisors to the group are music, Mrs. R. D. Horn; drama, Mrs. Edna Brockman, and alumna adviser, Mrs. Frank Carll.

Phi Beta Kappa

Phi Beta Kappa, founded in 1776, at the College of William and Mary, is the oldest Greek Letter society in the United States. Membership qualifications include sound moral character and high scholastic rating. The Oregon charter of Phi Beta Kappa was founded in 1923. A national magazine, Phi Beta Kappa Key, is published by the organization.

Six students at the beginning of their senior year, fall term, are elected into membership, being the highest honor they can attain while attending the University. An indefinite number are elected again the following spring term, depending on their class standing which must be at the top.

Books valued up to $25 are awarded each spring term on a basis of personality, scholarship and promise, to a student completing lower division work that term. Last spring term's award went to Beulah Chapman.

Phi Chi Theta

To foster high ideals for women in business careers and to encourage fraternity and cooperation among women preparing for such careers is the aim of Phi Chi Theta, national business honorary for women.

A fall term highlight was a banquet featuring Irwin S. Adams of the Jantzen Knitting Mills of Portland, to which students and faculty were invited.

Officers for the year were: Vivian Runte, president; Cherie Brown, vice-president; Peggy Real, secretary; Ruth Ketchum, treasurer; Lois Strong, chaplain; and Dorothea Davidson, historian. Professor Daniel R. Gage and Miss Ruth May Chilcote are faculty advisers to the group.

Phi Delta Phi

Ed Wheelock

Phi Delta Phi, men's law honorary, founded at the University of Michigan School of Law in 1869, is international in scope, furthering a better understanding of problems and achievements in all departments of the law profession. It seeks to bring to its members something of that culture and depth which is too often left out of consideration in the modern professional fields.

Presenting speakers from the professional field before the law school student body during the year is the main activity of Phi Delta Phi.

Magister for the 1937-38 term has been Ed Wheelock; Charles H. McGirr, Exchequer; Frank Nash, Clerk; and Historian, Andy Newhouse. Faculty advisers are Orlando John Hollis and Carleton D. Spencer.

Phi Theta Upsilon

Sponsoring the Philomelete hobby groups is the main activity of Phi Theta Upsilon, local junior women's service honorary. These groups consist of art, music, recreation, charm, prose, poetry, travel, and drama. Leaders are chosen from Phi Theta and regular meetings are held at various sorority houses.

During fall term rush week, members entertained girls not pledging houses with a buffet dinner. Also, the same term, members gave a campus dance in conjunction with the Yeomen.

Elisabeth Stetson has been president for the past year, assisted by: Maude Edmunds, secretary; and Dorothy Magnuson, treasurer.

Jack Lew

Scabbard and Blade

"Esprit de corps" among college cadets is the purpose of Scabbard and Blade, national men's military honorary, while efficiency in military tactics is its requisite for members chosen every spring term. Interest in advanced military training is promoted through lectures by faculty members.

Five medals will be awarded to the five outstanding freshmen in R. O. T. C. spring term.

Captain of Scabbard and Blade during the past school year has been Jack Lew; First Lieutenant, Robert Goodfellow; Second Lieutenant, Douglas Milne; and First Sergeant, Charles Miller. Faculty advisers of the group are Major W. A. Wappenstein and Major A. L. Morris.

Skull and Dagger

Skull and Dagger, men's sophomore service honorary, gives freshmen a goal to work for in the field of campus activities. Having attained this goal, the active members become a working part of the machinery of student body activities during their sophomore year. Freshmen are pledged at the annual Frosh Glee, spring term, on the basis of activities, class service, and for general character.

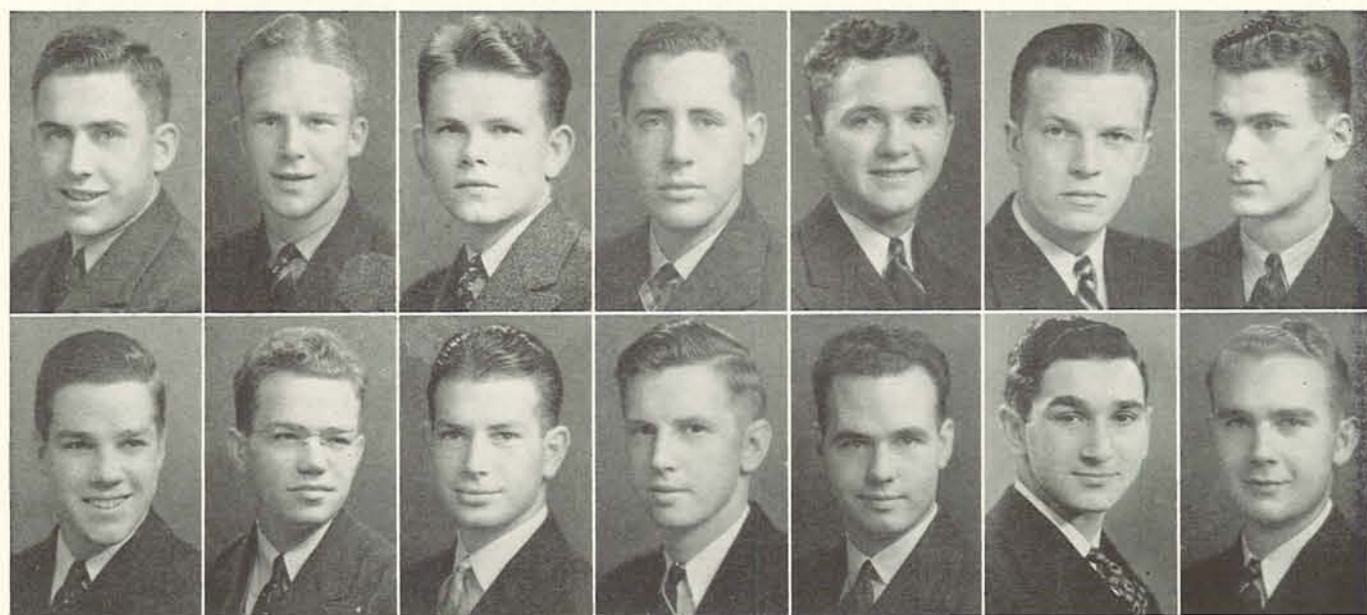

During the year, members usher at AS-UO concerts, football and basketball games; assist with campus open house held each year; work with ASUO in conjunction with current problems and functions; help in greeting campus visitors and showing them about the campus.

Lloyd Hoffman has been the outstanding leader of the Skull and Dagger group through the year, assisted by Phil Lowry, vice-president; Clayton Ellis, secretary; Gilbert Schnitzer; and Sergeant-at-arms, John Dick. Dean Karl W. Onthank is faculty adviser to the group.

Dean Allen started journalism instruction in the University in 1912, and the Oregon chapter was organized the next year. Members of Sigma Delta Chi presented Dean Allen with a gold watch and chain and a Sigma Delta Chi pin.

Darrell Ellis

Sigma Delta Chi, national professional honorary for men interested in journalism, chooses its members from upperclassmen majors in the school of journalism, outstanding for their service, scholarship and interest.

Officers for the past year have been: President, Darrell Ellis; vice-president, Paul Deutschmann; secretary, Stanley Hobson; treasurer, Hubard Kuokka; and historian, Lloyd Tupling.

Bill Pease was the chapter's delegate to the national convention held during fall term in Topeka, Kansas.

A. R. Moore

Sigma Xi

Sigma Xi was founded in 1886 at Cornell university to encourage original research in pure and applied science and to recognize high scholarship of students in science and technology.

Oregon's officers for 1937-38 have been: President, Dr. A. R. Moore; vice-president, Dr. E. S. West; secretary, Dr. A. H. Kunz; and treasurer, Dr. A. F. Moursund.

Active members connected with the University are: Dr. A. L. Alderman, Dr. L. F. Beck, Dr. Elizabeth Bradway, Miss Louise Bradway, Mrs. J. N. Carls, Dr. A. E. Caswell, Dr. L. S. Cressman, Dr. H. R. Theta Sigma Phi

Clare Igoe

Members of Theta Sigma Phi and Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary, were host committees to those attending the annual Press Conference held in January. Theta Sigs entertained the wives of publishers at a dessert.

Clare Igoe has been the president of Theta Sigs throughout the year 1937-38. Other officers have been: Ellamae Woodworth, vice-president; Betty Wagner, secretary; Margaret Ray, treasurer; Martha Stewart, reporter; and Beaulah Chapman, keeper of the archives. Faculty adviser of the group is George Turnbull. Alumnae advisers are Mrs. Eric W. Allen and Mrs. George Turnbull.

Coeds Who Found Political Top Spots

Under the inspiration of President Gayle Buchanan's friendly smile, the associated women students have just completed an activity-packed year. During spring term last year the annual A.W.S. carnival and the Dime Crawl, a second bunion derby, were held.

With the beginning of Freshman week this fall frosh counsellors again helped entering women learn the "who's, what's, and when's" about activities on the Oregon campus. Especially important in this year's schedule were the firesides and teas for women who did not plan to pledge sororities.

Two interesting events marked the winter term's program—the annual Coed Capers, a party at which women frolic with no fear of masculine eyes, was held in January with a circus theme. The Alpha Omicron Pi girls walked off with the prize with their acrobat costumes. Near the end of the term Miss Elizabeth Osborne, a national personality expert from New York, was on the campus for three days holding conferences with small groups of girls and advising them on matters of dress, posture, and personality.

For the first time this year the A.W.S. presented scholarships to Oregon women; ten $20 gifts were given. Other officers of the association this year were Vivian Emery, vice-president; Phyllis Gardner, secretary; Aida Macchi, sergeant-at-arms and Rita Wright, reporter.

Oregon's Ambitious Coeds Found Plenty

Here is the Phi Sigma Kappa-Zeta Hall-Alpha Omicron Pi booth which won first place at the annual spring term carnival of the women students. Patrons sent telegrams and bought nosegays.

These coeds are Philomelite presidents in charge of the various hobby groups. Left to right: Jean Rawson, Patsy Taylor, Lavelle Walstrom, Mary Staton and Jean Mills.

Of Action in Various AWS Activities

The governing body of the coeds' organization is the A.W.S. council in which the following leaders of women's activities hold positions; all A.W.S. officers; Brandon Young, president of Heads of Houses; Virginia Regan, president of Pan Hellenic; Laura Bryant, freshman orientation; Marionbeth Wolfenden, Kwama advisor; Kay Coleman, activities chairman; Anne Fredericksen, social chairman; Harriet Sarazin, head of the speakers' committee; Vivian Runte, Orides president; Elisabeth Stetson, frosh councillors; Harriett Thomsen, Y.W.C.A. president; and Gretchen Smith, president of W.A.A.

Two pleasant rooms on the third floor of Gerlinger hall have been furnished by the A.W.S. and are available for women's activities or for a place where students may read, study, or visit. One room is an assembly room or dance floor and the other more comfortable with a fireplace, lamps and large, cozy upholstered chairs.

One feature of the A.W.S. program which makes it possible for every girl to find some activity which interests her is the Philomelete hobby groups. There are six such groups: the charm school, travel group, art and music, recreation, drama, and prose and poetry. The members of each meet regularly to share their hobbies.

And the 'Y' Continued to Give Diversion

"Here Comes the Bride" was the familiar tune which echoed from the Music Building, February 27, as the Y.W.C.A. presented its Wedding Bells pageant. Three weddings, one of colonial style; a modern one with a military theme; and a futuristic "trucking" ceremony provided the theme for the program.

Outstanding "Y" activities this year included the doughnut and yarn doll sales on Homecoming and Junior Weekends; the Girl Reserves' Northwest regional conference; buffet dinners held with members of the Y.M.C.A.; dessert parties held following installations of frosh and sophomore commission members; and breakfasts of the cabinet members held at the home of Mrs. John Stark Evans, the executive secretary. Virginia McCorkle was president of the group.

Oregon's Athletic Maidens Turn to Sports

Volleyball games, sponsored by the Women's Athletic association, took on new color and spirit this year as mixed teams from the different campus living organizations took the floor for several evenings of exciting play-offs. Four men and four girls comprised each team; the Kappas and Phi Delt's emerged as victors.

For campus women interested in athletics and competitive sports, the W.A.A. presents a program which goes around the season with sports. In the sunny days of spring term the sawdust field provides shooting ranges for the feminine Robin Hoods and baseball diamonds for the lovers of the bat and ball; on crisp fall days when most eyes turn to the football gridiron, the intramural teams concentrate on volleyball and badminton; and during the winter months, basketball, swimming, and hockey dominate the scene.

Winners in this year's contests were: Kappa Kappa Gamma in volleyball; the Cooperative house in basketball; Alpha Phi, swimming; and Anne Fredericksen, champion of the badminton singles. The Coop house was also the winner of the all-sports plaque, awarded to the group whose members are the most outstanding in all sports.

The organization, founded on the University of Oregon campus in 1913, has now over 120 voting members as well as many associate members. Participation in intramural and interclass tournaments is the requirement for membership. It is affiliated with the national W. A. A. Athletic Federation of College Women, and the Field Hockey association.

Outstanding features of the W. A. A. spring program are a conference at which representatives of the association from numerous western colleges and universities are entertained; and a women's sports day, when coed sport enthusiasts from Oregon State college, Reed college, and Willamette university gather for a full day of baseball, tennis, golf, track, swimming and archery.

Officers of the W. A. A. for the past year were: Gretchen Smith, president; Betty Riesch, vic-president; Carolyn Dudley, secretary; Jennie Misley, treasurer; and Anne Fredericksen, sergeant-at-arms.

Master Dance's outstanding activity of the year is a dance recital presented during spring term. The theme of last year's recital centered about a three-part costume dance called "Evolution of the Idea." Other solo and group numbers were also presented. Mrs. Faye Knox, faculty advisor, was in charge. Master Dancers have also given demonstrations at the Girl Reserves' and W.A.A. conferences this year.

Tryout for new members are held each term. The candidates are required to present an original dance which is judged on the basis of technique, skill, rhythm, and improvisation. Members of the junior master dance group frequently become senior members at these tryouts. Claudia Sevier is secretary-treasurer, and Pirkko Paasikivi is faculty advisor.

Inter-class swimming meets and contests between the different living organizations are sponsored by the Amphibians, as well as the social swims for men and women which have been held in the Gerlinger pool several times this year.

Perfection in creative dancing is the aim of the members of Master Dance, campus honorary sponsored by W.A.A. Activities this year included the regular spring recital, and the entertainment of Charles Weidman, Doris Humphrey and their troupe at the Northwest Dance Symposium held here March 4 and 5. Ellamae Woodworth was president and Pirkko Paasikivi the adviser.

Assistant Dean's Career Closed

Dr. Harold B. Myers, assistant dean of the medical school until his death last spring, was praised in the 1397 Annual Meeting and Directory of the medical school alumni association in an article by Dr. George Burget, head of the physiology department.

Quoted in part: "As professor of pharmacology he soon won the respect and admiration of his students. But his duties did not cease here for he was soon given important committee appointments where no end of time was consumed. . . . For twenty years now Dr. Myers has faithfully fulfilled the functions of this office. It is probably safe to say that he has perused the entrance transcripts of every University of Oregon medical student in this period and thousands of transcripts of those who were not granted admission. This alone evidences a record of devotion to the institution, its welfare and its educational standards that is outstanding.

Students in Soldierdom Find Splendor

Colonel E. V. D. Murphy's last year at the University of Oregon climaxes his seventeen years in the executive department of the American Army. His service includes work on the general staff at Washington in the war department from 1927 to 1931. Prior to coming to the University in 1934, he was commanding officer of the 27th infantry, stationed at Schofield barracks, Honolulu, Hawaii. He will be replaced by Colonel M. Lyon, who comes from the 19th infantry. Other changes will be the addition of Major Henry L. Barrett.

Last year saw three of the graduated advanced military students go into the regular army, and Willis Paddock received a permanent commission after one year of work as second lieutenant at Vancouver barracks.

The high point of this year will be reached in the military department when Oregon and Oregon State vie for the new Governor Martin trophy. This competition will be in May and will find unit pitted against unit in all of the various drill maneuvers.

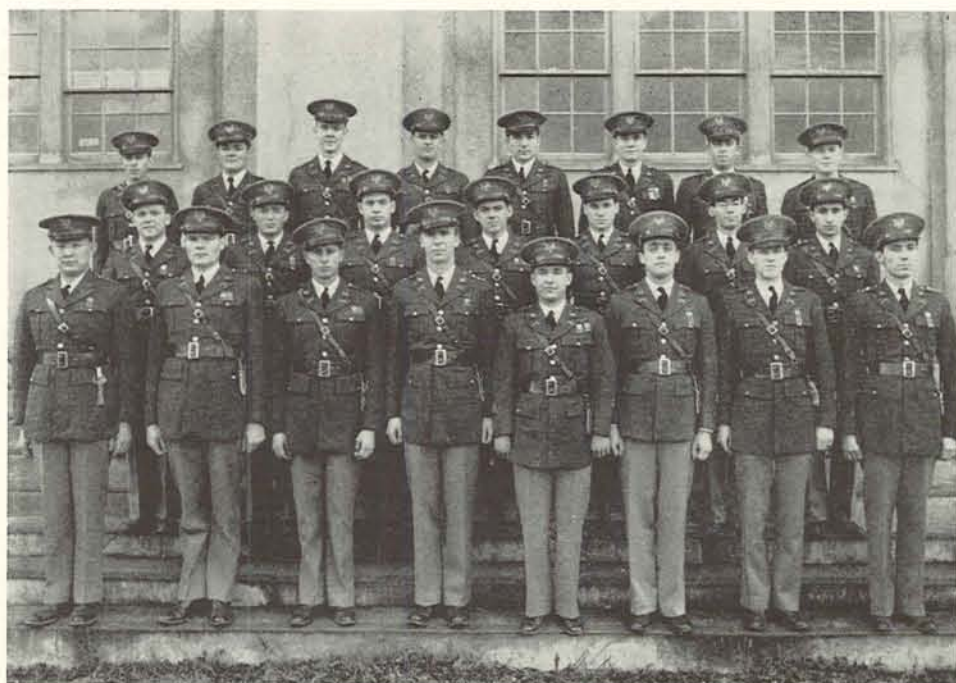

Another of Oregon's regular customers for honors is its nationally famed rifle team. This team is selected during fall term with all the freshmen taking a rifle marksmanship test. From this full number 25 survive the winter and make up the team. This year's team finds two seniors, Bill Gieseke and Jack Lew, being the co-captains and each having a four year record behind them. Joe Sallee, also a graduating senior, has two years of service behind him, while other outstanding performances were turned in by Stanley Warren, freshman; Donald Boyd, and Harold Wayne. Four of these men, Gieseke, Lew, Warren, and Boyd, were members of last year's national five man team, being tops over all ROTC units in the United States.

The junior class also gained distinction at camp last summer by attaining the highest average of any school in the country with the 30 caliber rifle. This year in the postal matches 12 wins and 5 losses are on the records against the best teams in the country, and already the ninth corps area championship is theirs.

The remaining unit of ROTC is the University band which is led by John Stehn. Filling engagements as pep band and concert group has kept them very active and prominent throughout the year's activities.

Student body card holders were richly rewarded this year with the appearance of eight feature attractions on the associated students' concert program. Entertainment ranged from negro spirituals by the Hall Johnson choir to the weird Oriental music and dancing of the Shan-Kar Hindu ballet. Other artists appearing during the season were Angna Enters, dance mime; Galli Curci, soloist; Frances Brockman and Nathan Milstein, violinists; Lanny Ross, popular tenor soloist; the Eugene Gleemen; Paul Whiteman, jazzdom's king, and Helen Jepson, soloist.

This beautiful scene was photographed during the summer school session on a warm August night. The large audience was the first to use the new outdoor theatre behind the school of music. Harpist Brandon Young and Electric Organist Robert Gould are the artists on the turf stage. The event was arranged by Louis Artau, piano professor, who was acting dean of the school of music last summer.

On a Summer Night in Music's Garden

Dean John Landsbury's statement that "two out of every three students who graduate from the University have been enrolled in some course offered by the music school" is truly indicative of the place which this school fills on the Oregon campus.

With its 65 piece symphony orchestra, its polyphonic choir of over 100 voices, and its band, there is ample opportunity for every student interested in music to find a chance for study and pleasure. This year the school of music has sponsored three appearances of the orchestra: with Frances Brockman, violinist on December 5; with George Hopkins, Jane Thacher, and Aurora Underwood, pianists on January 27; and with George Hopkins and Mollie Bob Small, violinist, over national broadcast March 13. Rex Underwood is conductor of the orchestra. The polyphonic choir, under the leadership of Paul Petri presented a program of Christmas carols and music December 12. The band, led by John Stehn has played at all athletic events and many student assemblies.

Last summer, under the guidance of Louis P. Artau, acting music dean, the first recital on the outdoor stage of the school, Brandon Young, harpist, and Robert Gould, organist, were featured.

In the circle to the left is Gayle Buchanan who was foremost this year among student actresses.

In Mrs. Seybolt's Student Studio of Drama

Student interest continued to increase during the past season with the showing of ever popular plays such as The Shining Hour, Ethan Frome, Pygmalion, Roadside, and Ah Wilderness. Those responsible for the brunt of the directing were Mrs. Seybolt and Mr. Robinson, and their assistant Mr. Walden Boyle.

The Shining Hour, written by Keith Winter, was directed by Mrs. Seybolt with Gerald Smith, Pat Neal, and Eleanor Pitts taking the leads. The story—a domestic drama—was set in an English country house, and dealt with the love of two women for one man.

Ethan Frome, from the famous novel by Edith Wharton, is centered also around the plot of two women and one man—Wally Boyle, Pat Neal, and Margie Tucker had the prominent parts. The theme is that of a modern tragedy of a sensitive imaginative man in an ice-bound New England environment. Mr. Robinson was the director and also contributed beautifully designed settings of both exterior and interior views.

Pygmalion, by George Bernard Shaw, was the next of the season's hits. Under the direction of Mrs. Seybolt, Gerry Smith and Helen Roberts turned in superb performances. This play was based by Shaw on an ancient Greek story—a story of a Phoenician who took this lady out of the gutter and made a great woman out of her.

Roadside, by Lynn Riggs, finds a shiftless old vagabond character and his father with their actions all taking place at the side of the road. It is an earthy robustuous comedy with Texas, who is the main character, carrying on in sort of a colorful exaggerated vein.

And winding up their successful year was the presentation of the domestic comedy of the early 1900's, Ah Wilderness, directed by Mrs. Seybolt. It is really a story of adolescent youth during its first fling. Jack Lewis, playing the boy, and Roy Schwartz, the father, carry the load of the show. Hilarious comedy was furnished by Ethan Newman taking the part of the drunken uncle. Janet Felt was the maiden aunt, Eleanor Pitts the mother, Gayle Buchanan the boy's sweetheart, and Iris Franzen the younger sister.

Camped by this country thoroughfare are the following who had parts in "Roadside": Gayle Buchanan, Gerald T. Smith, Walden Boyle, Jack Lewis, Eddie Hearn, John Kirigan, Tom Robertson and Roy Schwartz.

"Shining Hour" found in its cast: Pat Neal, Eleanor Pitts, Ernest Savage, George Bikman, Gerald T. Smith, Margie Tucker. The sets, as usual, were by Mr. Robinson who also directs several shows each year.

After a Few Terms in Speech Classes

The campus speech department where future silvery-tongued senators and radio announcers receive their training, engages in three major activities during the year—symposium work, radio programs, and the W. F. Jewett contests.

The radio work, in which 30 to 40 students have participated, is divided into two parts—dramatics, under the direction of Paul Kiepe, and forum discussions and program building under the direction of D. E. Hargis.

The W. F. Jewett contests, in which over $300 is awarded in prizes each year, is made possible by a gift from Mrs. Mary Jewett in honor of her husband, the late W. F. Jewett. Contests are held, chiefly for underclassmen, in every phase of speech work: extempore, public discussion, radio, and poetry reading.

The Art School Again Won Carnegie's Grant

Beneath the vine-covered and mural spotted walls students sit and chat, exhibiting the free spirit typical of the University art school. Striking frescos, pale design motifs, formful sculpture, and ceramic pieces adorn the halls, while bright oil compositions fill the studios, and masterfully-designed architectural structures cover the drafting room. Other scholars may scoff at the Parisian attitude of the art school students which is so essential to creative endeavor. Nevertheless, it is prevalent here, and results are shown on that higher, unbiased plane which is beyond the scope of just earthly practicality; the justification comes in the surpassing of the stereotyped ordinary thing and striving for a greater means of expression after conquering the common field.

Oregon's school of architecture is still ranked as of the best in the West; the painting school is the proud possessor of some of the most sought after and leading painters on the coast; and equally the rest of the school measures up, placing the school on a respective high level. As a result, Oregon is again chosen for the Carnegie grant which offers training of the best to a select group of teachers in summer session. Heading this successful place is Dean Lawrence, a man of practicability yet very progressive, and under his guidance a bright future is insured.

Jeanne Sherrard, left, is caught putting finishing strokes on a student project. The bulk of undergraduate sculptoring is done from native stone quarried at Brownsville, a few miles from the campus.

Commencement

The Somber Pageantry of Commencement

Two hundred and fifty black-robed seniors filed solemnly into McArthur Court last May 30 and 31 for the baccalaureate and commencement exercises which marked the end of four busy and happy years at the University of Oregon. Dr. J. Hudson Ballard, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Portland, spoke on "Interpretation" at the Sunday services; and Clyde Aitchison, an Oregon alumnus and member of the interstate commerce commission, was the commencement speaker. His topic was "Statescraft and Scholarship".

The commencement weekend began with the senior picnic Friday afternoon and with a benefit tea in the library for the Pauline Potter Homer collection of browsing room books. Oregon alumni, 500 of them, began to arrive Friday night for their two days of class reunions and meetings. Classes of 1887, '97, '07, '12, '17, '27, and '37 were represented by Judge E. O. Potter, Judge Fred Fisk, Francis V. Galloway, Chester A. Moores, Nicholas Jaureguy, Robert C. Thurston, and Walter Eschebeck. The high points of the alumni program were the meeting Saturday morning and the luncheon with the seniors at John Straub Memorial building Saturday noon.

Took 1937's Seniors Into Life's Reality

Friday evening the annual Failing and Beekman orations were given at the Music building with Walter Eschebeck and Frances Mays winning first and second prizes. The Albert cup, awarded to the outstanding senior, was won by Delbert Bjork of Astoria, the winner of the Koyl cup as a junior, and captain of the Oregon varsity football team.

David Lowry was elected permanent class secretary.

Saturday evening was marked by the most beautiful and symbolic feature of the entire commencement weekend—the flower and fern procession. With arms laden with summer flowers the senior women, in caps and gowns, passed through an aisle formed by the graduate women, circled the Pioneer Mother statue in the women's quadrangle, placed their flowers in a huge "O" around the statue and then sang "As I Sit and Dream at Evening" accompanied by the University symphony orchestra to close the ceremony. Following the procession a twilight concert was sung by the Eugene Women's Choral group. Senior women were also entertained Saturday morning at a breakfast at the Osburn hotel sponsored by the State Association of University Women.

For Them Carnation's Red Was Worn

Oregon dads may have the excitement of a football game and rally, a banquet, and perhaps a concert when they come visiting, but the "moms" have Junior Weekend. This highlight of the spring term's activities has always been held in connection with Mother's Day, and so each year the Oregon mothers are guests at the campus luncheon, the Junior Prom, and the canoe fete.

The purpose of the Mothers' organization which although an all-state group, has branches in every town of any size, is to provide a group of people interested in the University who will support its interests and work to put across its program. The most active work of the clubs is the raising of $300 each year with which to grant scholarships to outstanding high school students who would otherwise be unable to attend the University. This money is given to one, two, or three students, depending upon the cases.

Officers of the state-wide organization are: Mrs. A. C. Greenwood, Portland, president; vice-presidents, Mrs. W. C. Schaefer, Eugene; Mrs. C. E. Ash, Astoria; Mrs. Minor Corman, Hood River; Mrs. Hugh Rosson, Salem; Mrs. Andrew M. Collier, Klamath Falls; Mrs. Dolph Phipps, Medford; and Mrs. Joseph F. Riesch, Portland, treasurer; Mrs. I. Lubersky, Portland, secretary; and Karl W. Onthank, executive secretary.

Those Fathers Who Pay--and Smile

Oregon dads are behind the University one hundred per cent; not only on Dads' Weekend but all the year around. For nine months each school year the postoffices over the state dispense thousands of letters to student fathers. In most of them, "demands" are made for cold-earned cash with which to continue an education. The "pops" dig deep, usually cheerfully. Most often they'll even sacrifice at home to help Junior or Betty along at school. And then they come to the campus at Dadsday—all smiles! Under the leadership of Loyal H. McCarthy, president; I. D. Winslow, vice-president, and Walter W. R. May, secretary, all from Portland; the Dads' organization is now in the midst of a busy year.

The high point of this year's program, outlined at the annual meeting December 4, has been an investigation of present pledging systems among the fraternities, and a suggestion that a "deferred pledging plan" would be advisable as soon as conditions are favorable. The dads have also endorsed the extension of KOAC facilities to the University by setting up a remote control station; and have set $1000 as their contribution to the library browsing room fund. After the meeting, sons and daughters took charge of their dads—took them on a campus tour in the afternoon, to a banquet and basketball game in the evening, and to dinner and a concert Sunday afternoon—to mark finis to another busy and happy Dads' Weekend.

Sunshine season on the millrace

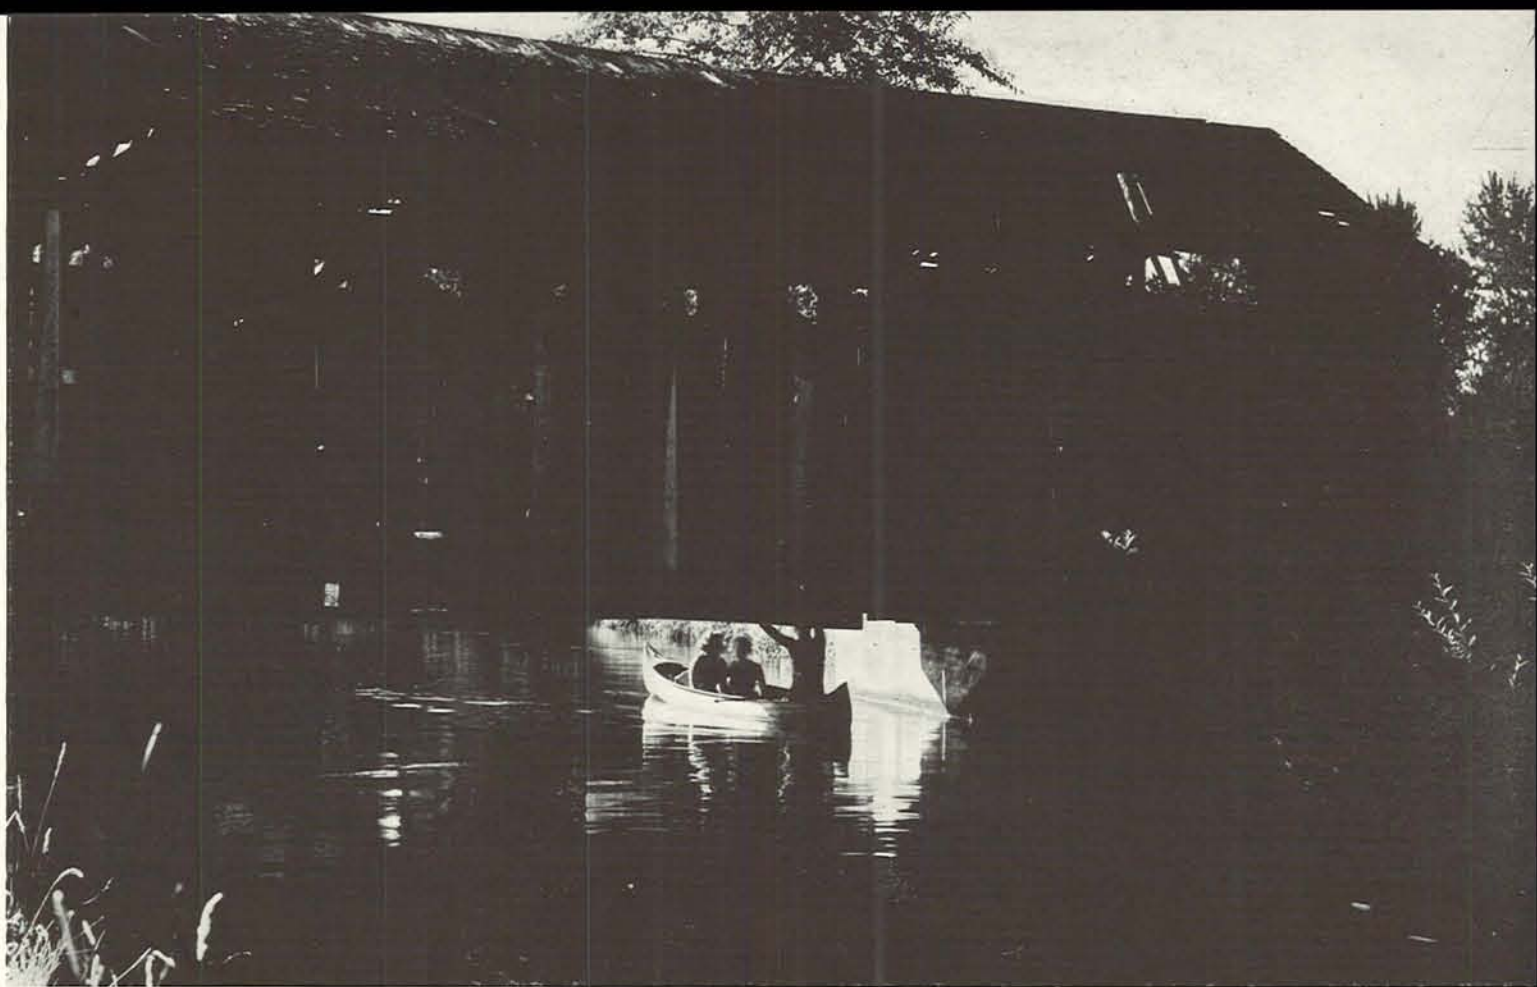

By An Old Millstream

A famed millstream cuts through the lower edge of the Oregon campus. In the spring its warm waters are cut with paddles of hundreds of student canoeists. Along its banks others hike and picnic. Some swim and lie in the sun, acquiring health-radiating tans.

The pictures on these two pages are typical ones taken along the millrace on a summer's day. To the left a group of students talk over plans for an outing on the race to help "kill" an afternoon. Below them, two coeds recline on a high diving board where they are certain not to get their feet wet! The next picture shows a canoe party about to disappear around the bend above The Anchorage. The lower picture to the left shows a student couple paddling swiftly up stream. In the next photograph the cameraman snapped the first step in romance from behind banks of grass and reeds.

On up the millrace are to be found weeping willow trees, old bridges, like those on the opposite page. Purple grapes and blackberries hang from bushy banks. Yellow water iris bloom along the edge of the stream. It's little wonder so many fraternity pins are "planted" on this raceway of romance.

Students Go in Springtime for Pleasure

In the winter time this swiftly rolling stream is greyed to a ribbon of murky water. For weeks the rains beat upon its surface. Once in every four or five years the temperature shoots low enough to halt the surface waters and allow skaters to frisk about. When the millrace freezes, however, it's very unusual weather.

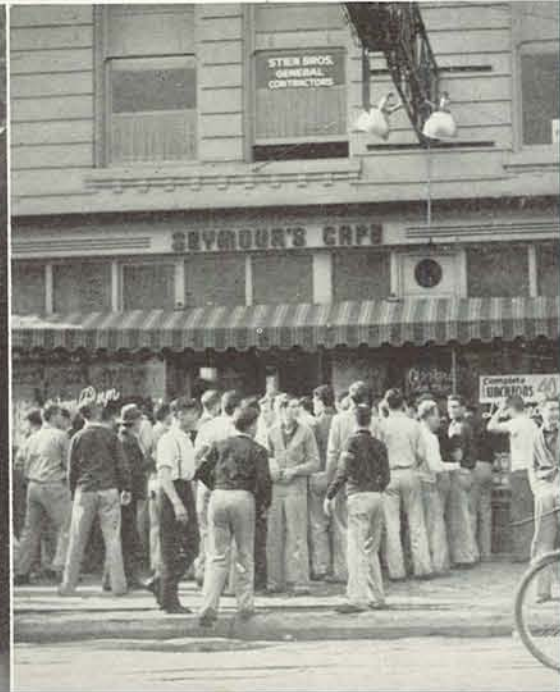

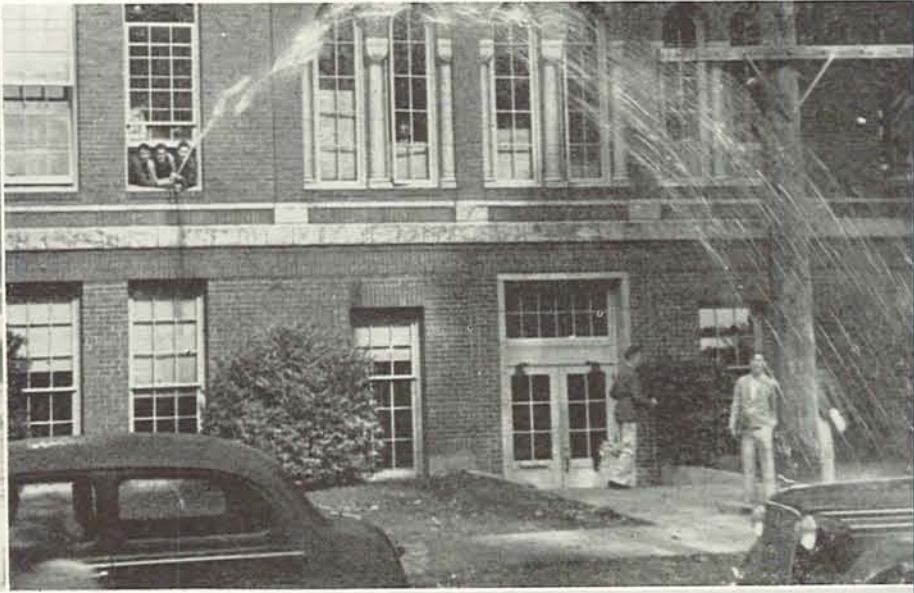

With the break-up of winter, spring comes quickly along the race. The water clears, the banks grow greener. It grows warmer. It's then that various fraternal organizations whisk breakers of house or campus traditions to various bridges for diving purposes—involuntarily.

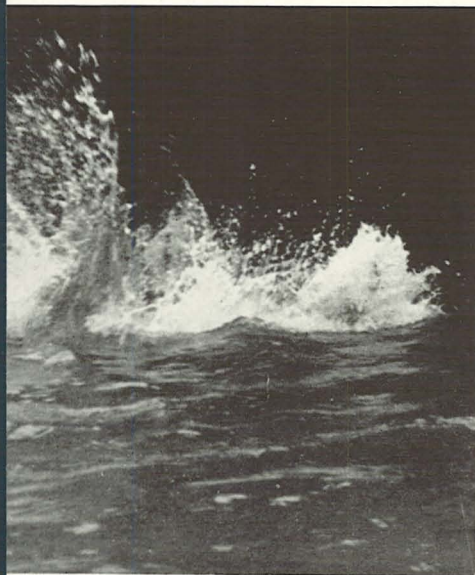

Beavers Millraced

Oregon State beat Oregon in football last fall, 14 to 0. This happened on a Saturday. On Monday, 2000 Beavers, perched as many as 15 deep on cars drove the 40 miles to the Oregon campus and arrived about 11 o'clock and began waving cornstalks at class-bound students in typical Stater fashion. They yelled something about "duck soup" and threw some of their corn about. Oregon students put tacks in the paths of the "poor beavers", pelted the visitors with tomatoes, mud and water bags. "Back to the farm" was the suggestion of the Oregons.

They then were wetted down by law students with a fire hose while Campus Cop Rhinesmith frisked about and Dean of Men Earl worried a bit. Then the siege at a downtown cafe trapped some of the visitors who got hungry and locked the door. Oregon students had a sitdown strike, paraded banners, blocked down-town traffic. A policeman lost his head, fearing violence. Finally the Staters gave up, surrendered. They were taken to the millrace and thrown off bridges into the stream, making nice splashes. From there they had to paint the "O" yellow again, slide down it, which tore their underwear. Oregon had gotten even.

The Ideal Dates

Marjorie Bates and Peter Mitchell were chosen Oregon's ideal student couple in a campus contest conducted by The 1938 Oregonian.

The Oregon coeds and men get acquainted while walking on the campus most usually. After a stroll or two between class he then takes her to the College Side.

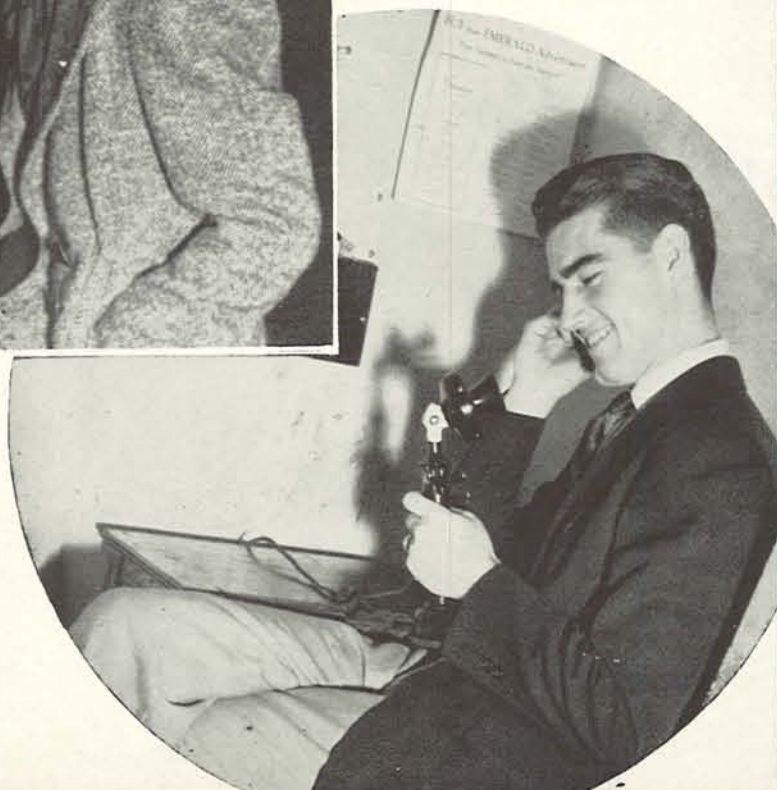

The boy goes home, thinks over possibilities of getting a date, inquiries about the girl from fraternity brothers. Then he calls her on the telephone, asks for and gets a date for the house dance. Most Oregon dating is done over the phone.

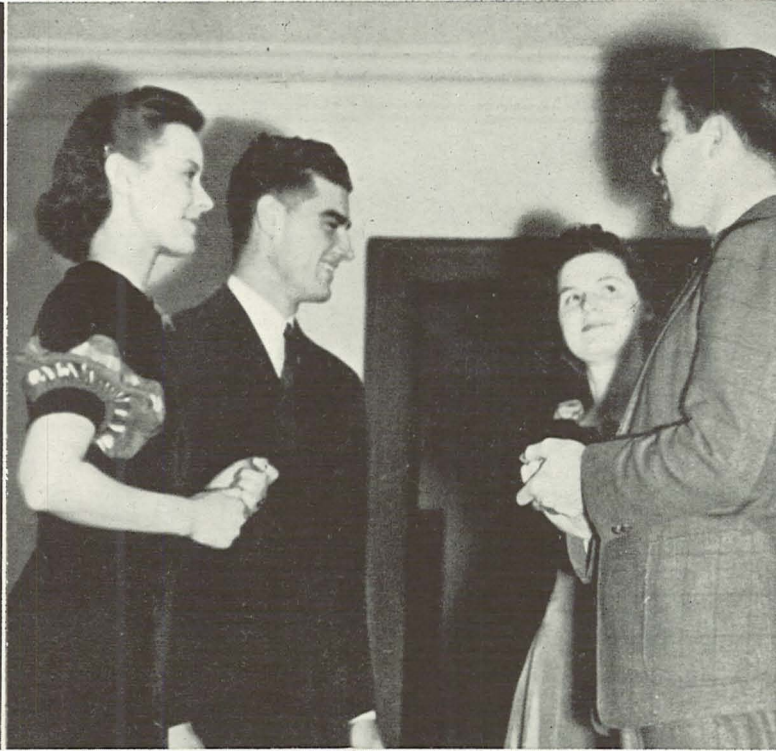

If the dance requires that the girl wears a long dress, the boy sends a corsage. Gardenias are the usual flowers chosen. Roses rank next.

Sometimes the boy has a car. If so he helps the miss into it, drives the few blocks to the dance.

There they dance with each other almost the entire evening. Perhaps they trade two or three, usually with fraternity brothers of the boy. This year swing music was "in".

At about 11:45 the typical couple leaves the dance because the girl must be in by 12:15. Worried house mothers have to work swiftly to meet the deadline by flicking lights.

PENDLETON SHIRTS FOR CASTING CHAMP

Tony Accetta won the world's pre-all-around bait and fly casting championship at the Portland, Oregon tournament. Like all good outdoors men, he's extremely particular about his equipment, and Tony Accetta's equipment always includes Pendleton Shirts. Pendletons are made from long-fibre, virgin fleece wools. They're full cut, pre-shrunk, and have reinforced stitching and two big pockets. The super wool insulates the body—there's nothing better for outdoors comfort in warm weather and cool.

The sturdy Western wools combine comfort with unusually long wear. Exclusive patterns, superior styling. At finer stores, $5.50 to $10.00. Pendleton Woolen Mills, Portland, Oregon.

AT LAST

She loved him with a fierce longing. He loved her with a wild desire. She was single, but could think of no greater fulfillment than to marry him. He was single, but had no other thought in life but to marry her.

He stood on the right-hand side of the room. She stood on the left-hand side of the room. He took off his coat and vest with one gesture and flung them carelessly on a nearby chair. She slipped neatly out of her red dress and proceeded to hang it carefully in the closet. His shirt and necktie were promptly dispensed with and soon lay on the same chair. Her slip followed in the wake of her dress and soon lay fastidiously on the back of a chair. His pants were soon to be hung on a hook on the back of the door.

She sat on the left side of the bed and diligently peeled off shoes and stockings. He sat on the right hand side of the bed and removed his shoes and socks. He stood up and took off his shirt and undershirt. She stood up and removed the remaining parts of her attire.

There he stood, a striking picture of masculine symmetry and power. There she stood, a poignant etching of feminine grace and beauty. He put on pajamas of blue and white design. She put on her pink silk nightie.

She got into bed on the left hand side. He reached up and put out the light in the middle of the room and got into bed on the right side. She turned out the reading light at the head of the bed. She faced toward the right. He faced toward the left. He was in Woods hall. She was in Tutwiler dormitory. So they both turned over and went to sleep.

Jack got up the morning after the big dance in a very cheerful mood. He sang and whistled but suddenly at breakfast his sister noticed a sudden change. He appeared to be thinking very hard and frowned with clenched teeth. So she inquired, "What's the matter, Jack? Didn't you have a good time at the dance?"

"Well," he answered slowly, "I was just thinking. In the rumble seat last night the girl I was with said she was cold. So I put the auto robe over her. She was still cold and I lent her my coat. She didn't say anything after that but I just happened to think . . ."

THIS FUNNY BUSINESS

HERE'S HOW it all happened. You see, I never did intend to be editor of this thing in the first place, but first thing you know I am. Just like that. Well, I think, maybe it'll be fun at that. Fun? If I'd only known then I wouldn't have them holding a room for me up at Salem now, would I? Some kind of an establishment they run up there for editors of humor magazines and other people. The state runs it, I think. Kind of an exclusive joint, too. But don't worry about that. Just let them know you're editing a humor magazine and they're sure to hold a room for you.

But getting back to this funny business, it's serious, let me tell you. It's not like class work. You get an assignment . . . so much copy due on such a date and you get that copy in on that date . . . no two weeks later. Well, as I says, I get the assignment. Right off I starts looking for humorists. That is, guys that can write humor. Lord knows they're enough of the other kind. Well, even the calls for help I put in the campus daily gem bring no results.

Well, I starts thinking. Was an awful racket, let me tell you. And about this time I'm getting a little uneasy, like a guy driving a car with his gal in the back seat being chaperoned by his roomie.

So I begins to worry. But that does no good. Then I gets hysterical and that does no good either. So I sit down on the curb and begin to reason the whole thing out, something like this: Oh, boy! I'm going crazy! Oh boy! I'm going crazy! Some fun, some fun! You think that's funny? Oh boy, you're crazy, too. Oh boy! And I do mean you!

You get the general idea. I was slowly losing my mind . . . not so slowly at that. Then I thinks, well, there'll be one good joke in the magazine, anyway . . . on the title page. I'll put in big bold letters CONTRIBUTORS (that's a hot one!) You get some idea of the condition I was in.

And then they start rubbing it in over the radio, telling me black is white and white is black all the time I'm seeing red and then . . . then they start singing to me . . . yes, morning, noon and night it comes, "I'm in the Dog House Now, Bow Wow!" That was what did it. That, "I'm in the Dog House Now, Bow Wow!". It was the "bow wow" that got me. First thing you know I was going "bow". Then, "bow wow" and finally, "bow wow wow . . . isn't that a wow!" Well, about that time one of my brothers picked up a floor lamp and gently wound its cast iron stem around my neck.

By the way, if your'e ever up Salem way, drop in. Any time.

—the editor.

But I like the gal . . .
She's got a car.

Slips at night pass off all right
Slips in the day give gals away.

Jane just has curves . . .
Yet knocks them cold.

THE BRUTE

SHE CAME skipping down the steps of the BA building wondering just what she was going to tell Jack. He'd probably be madder than all get out when she told him but . . . oh, why worry!

Jack caught up with her half way to the Side.

"Hi, kid. You're looking good!"

She smiled briefly, not daring look him in the face. She could just feel he was going to be mad and . . . might as well get it over with.

"Jack," she started.

"Yes? Look at it rain, would you. Hope it lets up by Saturday. I'd like to get up the McKenzie with Bill but if this rain keeps up . . . I don't know."

This was going to be difficult. "Jack," she began again "I a . . . I . . . that is . . ."

"What?"

"I can't go to the dance with you Saturday night."

"Well of all the . . . Why not?"

"I took Jim's pin last night." She kept her eyes on the sidewalk. Could just feel he was getting mad. He should be.

"Well, that's . . . that's swell," Jack managed. "I mean, congratulations." Nuts, what did you say to a girl under such circumstances. He tried smiling, might as well be cheerful.

Betty's mouth fell open. Swell was it? He didn't care any more than that? And he was actually smiling! Why of all the . . .

And Jack was continuing. "It would have been fun taking you but . . ."

Oh, it would have been fun, Betty thought furiously. He had his nerve! So nice of him to say that . . . the . . .

". . . but . . . but well," and he was eyeing the pin on her sweater, "well, nice looking pin. See you, Betty." And he'd sauntered across the street to where a group of the fellows stood talking, trying his best to appear nonchalant.

So . . . so! Betty clenched her fist. He thought it was swell . . .

wouldn't have to take HER to the dance now . . . perhaps could get someone else . . . yes, nice looking pin and all that . . . it was swell, was it! She bit her lip. Jack could be so mean when he wanted to.

PENELOPE MY GOD AND OTHERS

FRIENDS, MY COLLABORATOR has just dug up some hitherto undiscovered stuff written by the great James Jerce, long since dead to the literary world, to his wife, and to his creditors. I have taken the liberty to reproduce it here with explanatory notes inserted in the text. Jerce—like the Bible—has used italics here, omissions there, anything to bring out the absoluteness of the absolute and the nothingness of nothing. I could go on and on describing the life of this great man and his literary products and by-products. He is the author of that epic, "Penelope, My God!". Words fail me. They always do.

Some friends of mine the other day were saying, "And have you read Jerce's latest. My dear, it'll wow you. Why the descriptions he packs into a mere 3500 words; it's marvelous. And the 'bon mots'—oh, you must get those 'bon mots'."

The other replied, "I've heard a hell of a lot about Jerce. They say he's a hell of a good author, but I have a hell of a time finding time to read."

And there you have it. They're talking about Jerce all the time. Even on the street corners and under the bridges, in the cups and out of the cups, always Jerce. Perhaps it's best to give the man to you now, to let you ferret out the power of the man—the depth—the insight, the outside, the whole individual. I shall give him to you piece meal as it were, with copious explanations; for Jerce needs nothing so much as explanation.

Quote: And there he sat picking his nose, rollicking raucishly picking his nose. He stood up. He looked east and west. He suddenly slithered his way to a slimy sheep shed. He remembered his mother and tried to count to ten.

Suddenly:

Ickle, Bickle, I'se a muggin'
La de ah, La de ah.

He looked at the wall and wondered what time of day it was and why Meriam had voluptuously slid into the water. He had by this time slid his finger up to the second joint into his nose. Suddenly he felt an impulse to sneeze. He did so, "Achoooooee—plop." His finger was suddenly forced from its fierce unnatural hiding place. Tears came to his eyes. He wiped them on the sleeve of his leather coat. The coldness was good.

Suddenly: "One, two." He stopped to suck his finger. "Three, four." "Five, six." "Yeah, yeah." "Eight, nine".

This is me again. I admit that this passage is almost self explanatory—but you just wait. Obviously Jerce had a shepherd in mind or possibly a Hindoo Yogi. At any rate the main character was clever with his fingers. He could count, and knew a few of the words to "I'se a Muggin'." But do we leave Jerce there? We do not. Notice that most of the words are "S" words. That gives a slithery sensation. I'm ready to vote for the Hindoo by now. What shepherd is slithery. But then the man had on a leather sleeve. So these you are. Words fail me.

Words have failed me before, but not for long. My literary efforts must go on. I will translate Jerce or bust. The next passage is not nearly so easy. My constant readers will not so easily guess its content.

Quote: waspishly wasting and drearily drooping insistently slashing and dreamily drifting in corners and lifelessly basking in griped gyrations Unquote.

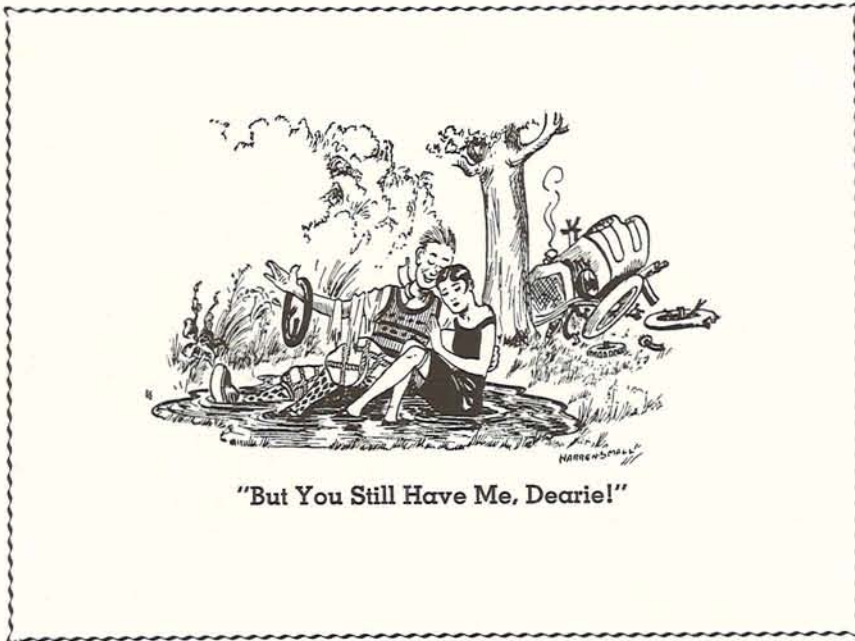

We may form several definite conclusions from this piece: 1: It has no subject. 2: It has no predicate. 3: It has no capitals. 4: It has no periods. It is difficult in view of the foregoing to translate such an offering. But the true modern reader will not be fooled by forms. He will strike at the heart of the matter.

"First," he will think, "what would I be thinking of to write such stuff." He will run a list over in his mind—"Bananas, grapes, codfish, old shoes, the Polish corridor, etc." It is usually the et cetera that has it. Our reader has not hit upon the solution yet. Usually this is as far as he cares to go. Jerce shows great art in putting these passages towards the end of the book. Jerce was thinking of a—of a—words fail me. Such grasp. Such depth. Such power. So simple as to be understood by the ordinary imbecile yet so profound as to fool a professor.

My colleague has decided that

WIMMEN

(Or Maybe God Went Too Far)

By Bob Pollock

BEFORE GETTING ANY deeper into my subject, I should like to say that I am completely in accord with Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini in their widely-advertised belief: To wit—Woman's place is in the home.

All this, of course, has nothing to do with this discussion. What I am about to talk about is wimmen, their purposes—that's a bit too delicate for a family magazine, so we'll let it slide—and their types.

There are two general types of university women and this essay will be limited to a discussion of them alone.

Type No. 1 may be labeled "Shapely, But So Simple." (The "simple," it must be understood, is meant merely in the woman's reaction to academic pursuits. When it comes to men, the word "pursuit" degenerates into "chase" and the wench is quite able to take care of herself.)

This Type No. 1, as I have indicated, has a great fondness—amounting almost to an obsession in some cases—for men, per se and per quod. Anything that wears pants—I beg your pardon, trousers, is fair game and may the Lord help those who go down in the scramble.

The babe who exemplifies this type has come to college with but one idea in her alleged brain. Stating it simply, it is merely to get her man and stake him out as quickly as possible.

To do this it is often necessary that she do things which she instinctively abhors—that is, occasionally she must study. This is made desirable by the University's unfeeling rules and by the fact that sometimes—not often, but once in awhile—men like to be talked to in an intelligent manner. The gal knows that the genuine intelligent manner is beyond her, but with the aid of a little book-cracking and reading of the reviews she can shadow-box rather successfully until she can get the sap talking her own lingo.

Having arrived in college, the man-hunter immediately signs her name and half her old man's salary on the line in order to be taken in—I use the term advisedly and with malice aforethought—to a sorority.

Having established herself in her Greek boarding house, the feminine Frank Buck girds up her loins for the chase. One of the first openings she has is a dessert to which the interesting side of college life—the men—is invited.

If she dresses well, shows her teeth and her legs with delightful impartiality, and can contort the skeleton God gave her into all the latest movements which the college boy calls dancing, her chances of picking up some sort of a male are very good. And if, in addition, she can parlay the current idiom she is as manna in the desert.

Probably, because of lack of experience, the wench will not land the first fish she hooks. Some older skirt-wearing pirate will probably gaff and flip into her own boat the sucker the novice has tired.

But this need not discourage her. The same bait will get another fish. This one she probably lands—that is, she gets his pin. (To my readers who do not know what a "pin" in the college sense is, let me explain: It is an object, made of gold and sundry precious metals, which hangs from the dirty sweater of practically any fraternity lad. It is ardently desired by the women as proof of their powers of conquest and it is never given up unless the donor intends to go out with the donee at least twice more. Some of the unsophisticated consider the pin as good as an engagement ring. But I personally doubt this.)

To conclude our discussion of Type No. 1. She has her man. She is well content. If she is smart, she grabbed a senior whose old gent has a lot of gelt and who is dying to take the kid into the business.

This means that she can blush at the altar almost immediately. It also means that she is freed of lumpy sorority house mattresses, pirating sisters, and food which does not set so well on her delicate stummick.

So she departs the institution, apparently a civilized young woman, but at heart only a tigress who has made her kill.

Comes now Type No. 2. (Incidentally, aside from an occasional maverick, there are, as I have stated, only two types of university women.)

This baby is a holy terror. She is, first of all, an intellectual: that is, she has Phi Bete keys and honorary gadgets all over her like scales on a gold fish. She can knock the ears off Einstein or Dr. Marder in an argument. She has brains.

But she is also an athlete. She can play tennis in a way that would turn the carrot top of Donald Budge snow white in three love sets. She golfs like the newspapers say Montague can and busting hell out of par is so common to her that she doesn't even enjoy it.

She's a wizard on the polished barrel staves and Sonja Heinie

GRADUATE STUDENT SEEKS MATES FOR STOOGES!!

(Editor's note: Mr. K., a missionary at heart, has made a comprehensive study of the male specie on this campus. Here the Startling Truth is told at last . . . about the various types that go to make up those mystic brotherhoods known as fraternities. Girls, it's yours for the reading!)

FOR ALL THEIR unmatured ways, frats do have a strange assortment of individuals. This study is an attempt to distinguish some of the outstanding neurotic types with the possible hope of finding satisfactory mates for the two Kappa stooges. I realize at the outset the impossible task I have undertaken in even attempting to find satisfactory mates for the aforementioned . . . coeds (names furnished on request) but to continue:

Probably the most permanent fixture to be found in the frat is the upper-classman, that classic . . . I mean, classy, pill who spends the day sitting around in the biggest and softest overstuffed chair, continually blowing about the freshman's lack of activities. This type of dime-sitter is usually a plenty cagey guy who once made a soph honorary because someone in his house is given a bid every year anyway as a political (that's a hot one!) move. Again, maybe he was once assistant night-editor on the Emerald, or possibly he held an important political appointment, such as clean-up chairman for the class hop. At any rate, he has illusions of something or other (don't ask which) and can't quite figure why the boys don't suggest him for house president.

Then there is the large group who, for want of a better term, are called "politicians." This class can be found around any corridor, whispering with other adolescents about how Joe Blow was seen coming out of the Dorms, and so "something plenty tricky is in the offing." Important, furtive meetings are held every half hour for weeks previous to an election, and many rocks are extracted from credit-poor house treasuries for purposes of defacing the community. The same group regularly licks the pants off the opposition, but the losers will evidently keep battering their collective heads in an attempt to win, until a real politician shows up (God forbid!)

The most uproarious thing about the campus political "machines"; these perceiving, discerning, revealing, exposing, unearthing vote-grabbers; these mysterious, intricate, tangled, confidential, all-important appointment seekers; is the trusting manner in which both blocks (derived from "block-head") promise the women's organizations certain desirable gravy in exchange for support. Th' gals accept all stipulations with becoming grace (and they've been doing it for years—ever since Pi Phi, Theta and Kappa each founded the first sorority), and then they proceed to vote individually for whoever they think is cute anyway. After the election the coeds accept the plighted "palms" most demurely. It may well behoove us to ask, "who are the real politicos on the campus?" But back to this mating business—

There are the play-boys who are down for a good time. This prominent bunch can be considered along with another cluster—those who are admitted to the U. on the basis of a certificate of completion from Elk Wallow Union High, but who haven't the mentality to get through "creative arts 1A" (much less to get through registration!) These two collections are the ones that keep the genial study chairmen's paddles wagging, and cause a house embarrassment no end when only about 25 per cent of the pledge class make their grades.

The main trouble with these boys is a bad start by pledging a house, but worse is the influence of "men-about-the-campus" upper-classmen who have bluffed their way through anywhere from two to five years of college. The examples set by these "ideals" is closely followed even to spending enough hours in making microscopic crib-notes to practically memorize a text.

Another distinct specie is the athlete. No house can get along without these tough citizens, except the house which can't pledge any, and these houses are most vitriolic in their denunciation of "tramp-athletes." These men are usually somewhat older than their bros, and tolerate, somewhat sarcastically, the typical adolescent fraternity group. This type exists in a more or less egotistical sphere, most of the time "just being around" (especially during rush-week). After his eligibility is used up, the "has been" athlete finds a nice cave in the Sierras, becomes a hermit, and spends the rest of his days brooding about the exploitation of athletes.

who comes down from East Teacup where he was student president, star athlete, debater, editor, and held the second male lead in the senior play (in a fine manner indeed!). By the end of the first week "this" has decided on a year's program for the house, taken over the president's various duties, and is vociferously bemoaning the fact that his name hasn't yet appeared in the school paper. Can't figure just why because it was always in the daily blab at good ol' E.T.H.S.

If none of the above groups appeal to th' gals I probably could discuss others, such as the all-important house manager (in name, anyway); the cynical, sarcastic debunker; the ever present swish; the damned average raiser; or the guy who will argue about anything, lack of knowledge of a subject notwithstanding.

The "Blimp" and "Inky," though, probably wouldn't go for any of these various types (or visa versa). They say they're not interested in the average psychopathic case—too, too conventional, don't cha know (a-la-Hepburn) . . . However, as Baron said when I asked him if he wanted another drink, "hell no!", but just the same, you could hear him lapping it up two blocks away.

PENELOPE MY GOD

this work is too much for me. He has dug up some simpler stuff. He says, "You really shouldn't work so hard at translation. Give 'em the thought, the kernel, the whole nut, if need be, but don't translate word for word. You know how those foreign languages are." I promised in view of weekend's health that I would conserve. I will here after give people the kernel of the matter. It'll be the nuts (colloquially). With this in mind we turn to Gertrude Steam.

Gertrude Steam has written a number of classics of the new writing. We often suspect that she confuses reader and author alike. We asked her about this aspect. She replied with her characteristic honesty, "Why there's really nothing to it." We returned that we had suspected as much for a long time. We stepped outside just in time to miss a marble clock thrown with precision and accuracy. We didn't stop running till we made a street car. Oh, these geniuses. They are eccentric, but we writers understand them. They are the colonels of our business, the captains of our industry, the new Napoleons, in fact, the nuts.

We must get on. Below we give you Gertrude Steam.

Quote: It was just an oil painting. There were no bees there, there were no trees there, there were no knees there. It was just an oil painting. The air was not there, neither were the bees, the trees, the knees, the knees, the knees. Look at a travel poster. A rosy, posy poster roaster booster. Where are the bees, the knees, the trees. Go to France. Unquote.

I am forced to conclude that this is a smutty sort of propaganda for which Miss Steam must have been paid a good price by the sellers of French post cards. Miss Steam has evidently been looking at a French oil painting, the original of a printed poster. All she sees is an oil painting, and she says so. There's directness for you. She notes the lack of trees and bees, and, especially, knees. It bothers her. She must have asked the painter where the knees were. Then she remarks that it is getting stuffy in here and puts a finger in her collar. She notes that there seems to be no air. Then she looks at a poster struck from the oil painting. Again, says Miss Steam plaintively, where are the knees. Then she thinks and puts two and two together. Go to France for knees. The painter has conveyed the idea that in France you will find knees and that if you are not coming to France, you have no right to see French knees. What a triumph for the post card sellers. But for shame, Miss Steam.

I am afraid that my papers on this matter must come to an end. The keeper said just the other day with a note of reproach in his voice, "We would never have given you all that paper if we had thought you weren't going to tear it into little pieces." Guess I'll have to humor the old boy.

looks like I do on ice skates compared to her.

The Achilles heel of the wench is the fact that she looks like most Great Danes and Saint Bernards are commonly supposed to. Her figure bulges with Babe Didrickson muscles and her curves just ain't.

Occasionally—very occasionally—she inhabits a sorority house. More often she may be found in a dormitory, a cooperative or a private roominghouse. She wears no man's collar, subsequently she wears no man's pin. She is a lone wolf, but she says she doesn't care and once in a while she goes to the independent dances and rassles some of the boys around.

But she doesn't get any fun out of it.

So she says the hell with it and plays 36 holes of sub-par golf every Saturday and studies until midnight Saturday night.

Later, when she has graduated summa cum laude and is suffering from athletic heart and a spare tire around the midriff, she digs out her honorary brass, gazes at the expensive trinkets and wishes they were dance programs and letters written in a masculine hand. Here she is forty and all she has is a five thousand dollar a year job. Romance has went.

Meanwhile Type No. 1's husband's old man has gone broke and the whole family—including Type No. 1—is on relief. And the wench, gazing at her dance programs, which are intermingled with plenty of bills, wishes they were Phi Bete keys and stuff so she could get a job.

Maybe wimmen are a mistake.

(We cannot speak for the advertising department, but the editorial staff of this publication is deeply shocked by the pernicious propaganda carried forth in this poem by some unknown poet)

The horse and mule live thirty years
And nothing know of wines and beers;
The goat and sheep at twenty die
And never taste of Scotch or Rye,
The cow drinks water by the ton
And at eighteen is mostly done;
The dog at fifteen cashes in
Without the aid of rum or gin;
The cat in milk and water soaks
And then in twelve short years it croaks;
The modest, sober bone-dry hen
Lays eggs for noggs and dies at ten;
All ANIMALS are strictly dry,
The sinless live and swiftly die;
But sinful, ginful, rum-soaked men
Survive for three score years and ten.

SHOTS IN THE DARK!

There is something wrong with the Dudley Field store clock. We glanced up at it yesterday afternoon in passing and it showed the hour to be ten minutes to five. And it was ten minutes to five.

Someone tells us God was undoubtedly the first practical joker, ribbing man as he did. Yes, and we Esquires add, perhaps He carried a good thing too far! Women, bah!

Credited to Col. Wheatley: "Information is the most valuable thing in the world . . . even a fence is well posted."

At the close of each term, when finals are in the air (and in our hair) we hear mention of the 'honor system', still used by some professors. Quite apropos a student remarks, "The honor system is where the professors have the honor and the students have the system."

For the Bible students we give little Oscar's definition of Christianity. Says little Oscar, "Christianity is when a man can have only one wife. This is also called monotony."

Hearing someone bumping against the front door of the Chi Psi lodge at an early hour one night winter term, one of the brothers called out:

"Who's there?"

Came the reply: "Is this where I'm at?"

We are reminded that sit-down strikes are nothing new. They date back to the time of Mary, Queen of Scots.

They tell us conspicuously sane thought produces indecision. Wondered why I rambled so in that Psych exam.

TRUE LOVE IN ONE ACT

(Seen: between classes on the campus.)

Joe, d'you love me?

Of course, Anne. You've got a crate, haven't you?

Yes, but Joey, would you love me even if I didn't have a new Miracle eight?

Why sure, I guess so, hon, but (anxious) you . . . you didn't lose the crate did you?

No, silly. I just wanted to be sure.

Gosh, you shouldn't scare me that way. (an afterthought). Your dad hasn't cut your allowance or anything, has he?

Of course not. You do love me, don't you, Joey?

Of course I do. Well, how's everything going?

Not so good. I couldn't sleep at all last period with Tucker talking so loud. He's a pain. Why they ever got a prof like him . . .

He is sort of a boob. But then, don't suppose they have to pay much for his kind.

No, don't suppose.

You're looking good today.

Thanks, Joey. Cost me six bucks for this permanent.

Still, you lood good.

You're awful sweet, Joey.

You're not so bad yourself. Say, got a cigarette on you. Thanks.

Wish you wouldn't smoke so much, Joe.

What's the matter? Keeping you broke?

No, silly, just that . . . well smoking seems so silly.

A fellow's gotta do something to forget.

Forget what?

Oh, school . . . it's so damned boring.

You're crazy . . . but I like you. Kiss me.

Mmmmm . . . say! What kind of lipstick you got on?

The same as usual. Oh, we had boiled cabbage this noon.

Why didn't you tell me.

Gee, it's swell out, isn't it. Let's take a walk.

O.K. by me. Got the crate, haven't you?

Why, no. I left it at the house this noon.

Hmmm . . . say, I just remembered . . . I've got to see a guy . . .

But I thought we were going for a walk?

Later, sweet. You understand, don't you? I'd really like to, honest. You know I love walking. It's just that . . .

Yes . . . bye, Joe . . . I understand. Yes. w. b.

A SIGNIFICANT PHRASE--- "IT'S FROM OLDS & KING'S"

A label may seem like a small matter . . . it isn't prominently displayed . . . it's hidden away on the inside, not worn on the sleeve.

But the Olds & King's label has a real meaning. It stands for something . . . it's an indication of quality and fashion rightness . . . quality and smartness that is recognized without seeing the label.

Acknowledgments

Whatever distinction The 1938 Oregana may gain will be due, largely, to the cooperation which various individuals have given the editor during the process of publication.

Especially helpful was the quality of assistance and cooperation given by the staffs of Shelton-Turnbull-Fuller, Eugene, printers; Bushong and Company, Portland, lithographers; Wiltshire's Engraving Company, Eugene; and Kennell-Ellis Studios, Eugene, photographers. The men at the head of these organizations gave many hours of their own time in that they might give to Oregon the best possible in an Oregana. Foremost: J. E. Turnbull, Manley Fuller, printers; Arthur Markewitz, lithographer; Herbert Wiltshire, engraver; E. W. Ellis and Merton Ferebee, photographers.

In the rank of photographers, who submitted thousands of pictures, from which to choose the best for publication, George Corley, Portland, is foremost. The six natural color photographs are from his lens. His camera also covered Junior Weekend, Commencement and Homecoming. George Godfrey, head of the University news bureau, took the cover picture and several full-page feature photographs. Thanks are due him and Carl R. Baker, Eugene commercial photographer, for snapping last-minute shots.

To George Root, manager of the activities department, probably more than any other one individual, credit goes for helping to shape the policies and style of The Oregana. His secretary, Mary Graham, was responsible for many suggestions. Earl M. Pallett, chairman of the activities board, and Orlando J. Hollis, advisor to The Oregana, also deserve much credit, especially for standing behind the editor in several crises.

Appreciation is due The Anchorage for the loan of canoes for several photography expeditions; the Scherer Motor Company for use of a Buick car; The Portland Oregonian, The Oregon Journal, and The San Francisco Chronicle for pictures of athletic contests.

Among the students it is difficult to single aside a few for distinction. To Wen Brooks, special appreciation is due for taking over the editorship of Lemon Punch in an emergency change and doing a job well. Assistant Oregana Editor Margaret Ray was capable. Constance Kletzer's art work speaks for itself. Student photographers George Knight, Maurice Manning and Jim Griffith were of invaluable aid. Other staff members who "came through" with excellent work were: Laurita Christofferson, Pat McCarthy, Donald Root, J. W. Reese, Al Dickhart, Alyce Rogers and Caroline Hand.

To the many others who must go unmentioned, thank you.

WAYNE HARBERT, Editor
The 1938 Oregana.
