Ordinance No. 10-658-O
ORDINANCE NO. 10-661-O

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE COMPREHENSIVE PLAN FOR THE CITY OF COLUMBIA CITY, OREGON, AS ADOPTED BY ORDINANCE NO. 03-585-O, EXPANDING THE URBAN GROWTH BOUNDARY AND AMENDING THE COLUMBIA CITY COMPREHENSIVE PLAN AND ZONING MAP.

THE CITY OF COLUMBIA CITY HEREBY ORDAINS AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. For reference purposes, the City hereby amends Appendix F of the adopted Comprehensive Plan to include Section II. H. Housing as adopted June 10, 2003.

Section 2. The City hereby adopts the following as Section II. H. Housing:

   H. HOUSING [State Goal No. 10 - To provide for the housing needs of citizens of the State.]

1. Population:  The population of Columbia City grew slowly for many of the last forty years. From 1950 to 1985, the City increased by an average rate of 17 people per year. After 1985, the City experienced a much faster growth rate.

   Factors contributing to this increased growth included improvements to the Columbia River Highway and the installation of the city-wide sewer system. Further improvements to the Highway occurred in the late 1990's and population continued to grow.

   In 2003, the City updated its Comprehensive Plan population projection based on the historical 4% annual growth rate and the 2000 census. At that time, the City projected a total of 2,871 persons in 2020.

   In 2009, Columbia County updated the Columbia County population forecast based on population forecasts provided by Portland State University. In accordance with OAR 660-024-0030, which states “Cities must adopt a 20 year population forecast for the urban area consistent with the coordinated county forecast”, the City has adopted the relevant portions of the Columbia County Population Forecast.

   The forecast projects that the growth rate will slow from 4.6% in 2000 to 1.0% in 2030 resulting in a total population of 2,532 by 2030. Further, a reduction in average household size is projected from 2.55 persons per dwelling unit in 2010 to 2.43 persons per dwelling unit in 2030.

1 Population Forecasts for Columbia County Oregon, its Cities & Unincorporated Area 2010 to 2030, prepared by Portland State University, February 2008.

In updating the projected housing needs, the City has averaged the reduction in persons per dwelling unit and is basing its current analysis on 2.5 persons per dwelling unit, the average of the household sizes projected for 2010 and 2020.

2. Housing Needs

Existing population in 2000 ........................................1571
Projected population in 2030 ......................................2,532
Estimated average household size .................................2.5 persons/du
Total dwelling units needed .....................................1013 units
Dwelling units in 2000 .............................................611 units
New housing units needed ........................................402 units

In 2003, the City analyzed historic growth patterns, increased the average density for multi family and manufactured homes in parks and projected that average density for single family dwellings would decrease slightly as the existing in-fill lots were developed. Based on the 2003 projection of needed housing, current housing types have been updated as follows:

4 Appendix F, Columbia City Comprehensive Plan

Ordinance No. 10-661-O
3. 2003 Urban Growth Boundary expansion

The Columbia City Buildable Lands Inventory and Needs Analysis\(^5\) indicated there were 56.0884 acres available in the urban growth boundary for residential development. Of this 56.0884 acres, 4.164 acres were zoned non-residential and 2.996 acres, projected to provide 12 dwelling units\(^6\), was located west of McBride Creek on land containing slopes exceeding 25% and having no existing access or public services. This acreage was subtracted from the available acreage. The remaining 48.9284 acres was projected to provide 212 dwelling units including 202 single family and 10 multi family dwelling units.

In 2003, the urban growth boundary was expanded to include adequate acreage to provide 99 single family dwelling units in a manner that addressed the needs identified in the Columbia City Transportation System Plan and the Columbia City Parks Master Plan and the constraints imposed by the topography adjacent to the City’s existing urban growth boundary. While the 2003 expansion addressed the need for additional single family/duplex units, the City was unable to include properties that would be appropriate for multi-family development and for manufactured home parks because of the topographical constraints on all properties surrounding the City. Those constraints remain.

4. 2009 Urban Growth Boundary Expansion

In 2003, the City analyzed all properties surrounding the urban growth boundary. Based on that analysis, the City expanded the urban growth boundary to include what was believed to be all of the remaining properties adjacent to the existing urban growth boundary where the topography and natural features would permit efficient and economic provision of municipal services.

In 2009, the City was made aware that those two small parcels adjacent to the northwest corner of the urban growth boundary appropriate for a limited number of single family dwellings and for a significant extension of the McBride Creek Recreational Trail. The first parcel, identified on Columbia County Tax Map 5121 at Tax Lot 200, contains approximately 4.4 acres and is currently zoned Surface Mining (SM). The second parcel, identified on Columbia County Tax Map 5121 as Tax Lot 417, contains approximately 1.6 acres and is currently zoned Forest Agriculture (FA-19).

The SM parcel is not identified as a resource in the Columbia County surface mining inventory and is too small to be economically useful in accordance with the zone. The FA-19 parcel is too small to be economically useful in accordance with the zone. Further, both properties are located between McBride Creek and the existing urban growth boundary. Neither of the properties are separated from the urban growth boundary by steep slopes. Two City streets provide direct, existing access to the properties. Municipal water service had previously been provided to a mobile home located on the SM property.

Columbia County and the City of Columbia City adopted the revised population forecast and the City determined that a need existed for additional single family dwelling units. The City finds that the addition of these properties to the urban growth boundary addresses the need for single family dwelling units. Further, the addition of this property provides 1,800 feet of the McBride Creek Recreational Trail and approximately 4 acres of park and open space benefitting the citizens of Columbia City.

There are 12 acres of non-resource land adjacent to the Columbia City UGB. They are located west of the existing UGB and west of Ninth Street and they continue to be unsatisfactory for development at urban densities due to the slopes greater than 25%, visual indications of previous earth movements, and cost prohibitions and technical limitations to the provision of municipal services. Further, the GIS overview map of potential rapidly moving landslide hazards in Western Oregon appears to include these properties. There are no other non-resource lands adjacent to the Columbia City UGB. Therefore, it is necessary to consider resource lands in this expansion of the urban growth boundary.
The properties surrounding the existing urban growth boundary were identified and reviewed for possible inclusion in the urban growth boundary. The analysis, which includes a two page table and two maps, follows. The only properties that were determined to be suitable for urban development were Tax Lots 5121-00-00200 and 5121-00-00417.

The City finds that, with the expansion of the urban growth boundary to include Tax Lot 5121-00-00200 and 5121-00-00417, there will be no other properties adjacent to the Columbia City urban growth boundary where the topography and natural features permit efficient and economic provision of municipal services. On the north side, the Columbia City urban growth boundary abuts Columbia County properties with existing mining and industrial uses. The south urban growth boundary line is separated from the City of St. Helens by a marshy wetland. The east urban growth boundary is formed by the Columbia River. On the west, there are significant topographical constraints. The USDA soil conservation service map, sheet 31, indicates a band of soil type 70 E. According to the soil legend, 70 E is Xerochrepts, steep. This band runs parallel with Columbia City on the west side of McBride Creek. Xerochrepts are very deep, somewhat poorly drained to well drained soils on short terrace escarpments. Slope is 20 to 50 percent. Further, the GIS overview map of potential rapidly moving landslide hazards in Western Oregon appears to include these properties. These properties were not suited to development at urban densities in 2003 and there has been no change.

Because there are no lands available to expand to, in the future, the City will need to update the buildable lands inventory, revisit and update projected needed housing types and address the need for higher density housing, as appropriate. Additionally, the City permits and encourages dwelling units on the second story of commercial structures in the commercial and industrial zones as a method of increasing multi family dwelling units.

Section 4. The City hereby adopts the attached Analysis of Properties Adjacent to the UGB and related maps.

Section 5. The Columbia City Comprehensive Plan and Zoning map is hereby amended by the addition of the real property owned by Wayne and Judith Weigandt described in Exhibit A and real property owned by Wayne Weigandt described in Exhibit B, attached hereto and incorporated herein. The portion identified on the applicant’s preliminary plan as buildable shall be designated, R-1, Low Density Residential. The remainder of the property shall be designated PL, Public Land.

Section 6. In support of the above, the City Council hereby adopts recommendations of the Planning Commission and the findings, conclusions and recommendations in the staff report dated April 15, 2010.
Section 7. The effective date of this ordinance shall be 30 days after the date of adoption.

First reading: May 20, 2010

Second reading: June 17, 2010
