INTRODUCTION

The Klamath County Planning Commission Internal Rules of Procedure are designed to encourage and promote uniform and consistent administration of county planning and zoning operations. By developing a written set of rules and procedures, the county takes a step toward consistent administration which results from having written rules and procedures concerning its operations. Such consistency is valuable to the extent that it is successful in bringing about the administration of ordinances and planning procedures in such a way that each citizen is treated equally. The Planning Commission rules are designed to assure that the Planning Commission conducts its business in an orderly manner and in conformance with duly adopted procedures. The remainder of the Internal Rules of Procedure provides procedures and guidelines for the administration of the county planning, zoning and related processes. It should be noted for emphasis for both proponents and opponents in any case that facts MUST be in the hearing record if those facts are to be considered on appeal. It is the obligation of proponents and opponents to introduce those facts at the hearing.
