ACTING PRESIDENT C. V. BOYER

Sixth president of the University and first direct head of institution since 1932.

THIS MONTH WE HONOR

WALTER L. WHITTLESEY, '01

WHO is professor of politics at Princeton University where his researches have distinguished him as an authority on political history of the formative period of American government. His research-writings display a gift for expression that appeals to the lay reader—a knack that has placed many of his writings in popular general-circulation magazines as well as in the more academic periodicals. While on the campus he distinguished himself as a brilliant debator and writer, and after receiving his degree became a popular instructor in economics for two years. Later, at Princeton he completed work for his Ph.D. degree under Woodrow Wilson, but before his orals lost his notes and never received his degree. Dean James H. Gilbert, under whom economics is now taught at the University, took his first classes in economics from Whittlesey.

NEWS AND COMMENT

By the Editor

Decorous Sessions

MEMBERS of the state board of higher education, in two smooth and decorous sessions, seem to have gone a long way in proving their fitness to deal justly and decisively with higher educational problems.

After an indecisive and somewhat delayed attack on the problems arising from the Kerr-Nelson-Morse embroglio, the board members seem at last to have found their stride. Aided materially by a clarification of issues and abetted by suggestions evolved from the investigation made by the special committee of the American Association of University Professors, the state board has, within the last three weeks, worked speedily and judiciously and has accomplished the following:

Named Dr. C. V. Boyer, dean of arts and letters at the University, and Dr. George W. Peavy, dean of forestry at the College as acting presidents of their respective institutions and endowed them with full responsibility for the administration and educational policies affecting their campus domains. Their actions are subject only to the chancellor and the board.

Rescinded the original resolution condemning Dean Wayne L. Morse and calling for an investigation of his activities, feeling that under the circumstances such investigation would only serve to revive the bitterness growing out of the recent flare-up.

Elected Willard L. Marks (acting chairman since the resignation of Roscoe C. Nelson) as president of the board and named Charles A. Brand as vice-president.

Fine Spirit

ALL of the credit for this wholesome turn toward peace and understanding cannot be showered on the board alone, however. No little credit is due Chancellor Kerr, Dr. Peavy, Dr. Boyer, the faculties, and the visiting committee of professors who outlined a suggested plan of action which has now become to a large extent actual fact. A spirit of confidence in the board is having a very beneficial reaction among the faculties, and true cooperation seems to be an accomplished fact between the new acting presidents and the chancellor.

It cannot be denied that in presenting the plan giving the new officers their broad powers, Chancellor Kerr himself relinquished much authority. However, it was authority over institutional problems that he turned over to the new men. He now becomes in fact, the chancellor of the state system of education—the board's executive officer—and not the multi-job man that he was, attempting to carry the burden of being two presidents and a chancellor all in one. His job should be a happier one. He is now relieved of the infinite detail of budget making, of student and faculty counseling, and of the thousand and one other minor problems that call for executive decisions and action. As a matter of fact, Dr. Kerr can now, for the first time, give his whole self to the chancellorship and Oregon's yet young and groping system of higher education.

Marks Key Man

THE board, under the leadership of its new president, seems to have grasped the educational viewpoint of administration as compared to the political autocracy that was threatening. True enough, the schools are public tax-supported institutions, yet the administration of a university or college or educational system must not and cannot be run like a state department without serious sacrifice of educational and social values. The board is the connecting link between the public on one hand and the educators on the other. To Willard Marks goes much credit for recognizing this situation, and in him the state schools have found a man thoroughly grounded in practical politics and yet a man who sees the need of harmonizing the demands of the public with the subtler demands of sound educational practices.

Action, Not Words

There yet remain many adjustments to be made. The inter-institutional functions of many departments is a conspicuous example. The board has laid down a 12-point program which it feels will form a basis on which these adjustments may be worked out. But even more important than that is the continuation of the cooperative and generous efforts of the now three administrators, for success or failure is not dependent upon the wording of a set of rules, but upon the spirit displayed by those who must define and direct in harmony.

No Option

IT WAS with considerable relief that officers of the A. S. U. O. and Graduate Manager Hugh Rosson learned last week that the state board of higher education had denied a petition of a group of students seeking to have payment of A.S.U.O. membership dues made optional with the student. Argued the petitioners: That the student body could conduct its activities with only a small decrease in income from optional plan; that enforced payment of dues was hardship on hard pressed students; that some students had jobs that denied them privileges of membership, i.e., games, concerts, activity participation, etc. Rebutted student body officials: That optional payment plan would hinder debt retirement program, impair credit; that football income is at best a very variable source of income and student fees only sure source for budgeting; that A.S.U.O.'s varied activities are a necessary adjunct to a rounded University training; that A.S.U.O. is now getting out of debt as fast as it was once going into debt. Seemingly the board concurred with the latter.

* * *

Another docket item of interest to student body officers was the request by the executive council that Football Coach Prince Callison be awarded a $1000 bonus for fine showing of 1933 team. The matter was held over for later consideration pending negotiations with Callison for next year's contract.

An Explanation

OLD OREGON manager is expecting protest from some alumni this month for accepting advertising from a liquor distributor. To bolster his courage against these expected protests, however, is the fact that many other college and university alumni publications are now running such advertising, among them: Yale, Vanderbilt, U. C. L. A., Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, New York University, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania and Princeton. Perhaps, if alumni memberships were more easily obtained, the financial urgency for accepting the liquor advertising would not be so great.

Honor Hoopsters

PORTLAND alumni of the University held their most enthusiastic luncheon in years January 25 at the Heathman hotel with more than 150 in attendance. Bill Reinhart and his basketball players were guests, along with senior basketball players and their coaches of all the Portland high schools.

Jack W. Benefiel, '21, former graduate manager at the University, was chairman of the day.

Coach Reinhart and Dean Walker, '13, coach of the Oregon team in 1919 when it won the Pacific coast conference hoop title, were principal speakers. Walker told of the progress the sport had made since it was first taken up at Oregon some 20 years ago. He particularly stressed the advantages of basketball players going to Oregon, where is located one of the finest hoop pavilions in the whole United States. Walker is now representative from Linn county at the state legislature.

Reinhart stressed the necessity of building up the defensive teams. He said that the days when a player's value was measured purely by the number of baskets he could shoot is at an end. He advised the high school lads to spend as much time in learning to check as in learning to shoot baskets.

William Prendergast, ex-'28, Portland attorney, and former northern conference champion sprinter, urged former lettermen to take a more active part in alumni work. He said he would make a personal effort to get in touch with every letterman living in Portland to encourage his interest in work the school is attempting to accomplish. Lynn Jones, ex-'27, all-coast fullback in 1924, was in charge of a committee that got in touch with the high school boys and their coaches and the 40 or 50 high school students attending the luncheon.

A nominating committee, headed by Dave Pickett, '13, made its report, and that was followed by the election of officers for 1934. It included: Bert Gooding, ex-'26, president; Mrs. Marie S. Tooze, ex-'18, vice-president; Henryetta Lawrence, '24, secretary, and Paul Hunt, '30, treasurer. A board of directors will be appointed later by President Gooding.

"Publicity Job"

IN Oregon for several years there has been an organization known as "On-to-Oregon," the purpose of which has been to bring to the attention of the world at large the climatic, economic, scenic and cultural privileges of life in the state of Oregon. Vast sums have been spent in advertising in national periodicals and on publicity stunts in furthering the cause of this worthy organization.

But it remained for a former University of Oregon student, Amos Burg, ex-'28, to do single-handed a job of publicising the state of Oregon in a manner that almost exceeded the dreams of the founders of "On-to-Oregon."

For Amos Burg this feat was just another assignment in his role of contributor to the National Geographic

WRITER, EXPLORER, LECTURER

Amos Burg, ex-'28, whose lengthy article on Oregon appears in February issue of National Geographic Magazine.

Magazine, internationally famous pictorial magazine of foreign and national life and lands. But to the Oregonian who has read the February issue of the magazine (of which there are approximately 1,000,000 subscribers and probably four times that many readers) Amos Burg's 61-page article entitled "A Native Son's Rambles in Oregon" (illustrated with sixteen full-color and 45 black and white photographs) is a charming and accurate and satisfying story of the true Oregon, described as those who live in the state have learned to know it.

Amos Burg, who is only 28 years old, has already established himself as a writer, explorer, photographer, and lecturer of national fame. The Oregon article is the third that he has had published in the Geographic, the other two being the stories of his travels by canoe in the northern wilds of the Mackenzie and Yukon rivers. He has lectured and shown his pictures to large audiences in most of the large cities of the country, and has twice lectured before the National Geographic Society in Washington, D.C. A revealing point in Burg's article on his native state is that he chose a scene of the Pioneer statue with the "Old Libe" in the background to reproduce in full-color as the one picture concerning Oregon educational institutions; for it was at Oregon where his formal journalistic training was received and it is back to the "Old Libe" and the Journalism building that he often returns to do his writing and make his historical researches that lend background to his charming travel accounts.

At present Burg is exploring among the islands and people off the southern tip of South America, doing his traveling in a 26-foot sailboat outfitted by himself in Portland last summer.

Stone Cutter

IN the Black Hills of South Dakota near the little town of Keystone, one of the most unique projects in the history of sculpture is being carried on under the direction of Gutzon Borglum, nationally famous sculptor.

Out of a granite mountain, rising 600 feet above the surrounding countryside, are being carved the heads of four former presidents of the United States: Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. The completed project will be known as the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial. First assistant and right hand man to sculptor Borglum is Ivan Houser, a student in fine arts at the University during 1922-23-24.

Unlike ordinary sculpturing where hand chisels and mallets are used, sculptors Borglum and Houser must use miner's drills, dynamite, levels, tape lines, and plumb bobs, for each of the four presidential visages are to appear in heroic relief, 60 feet from top of head to chin. Also unlike the studio sculptor, these carvers of a mountain side cannot cast aside a piece of work that does not suit them; they must make no mistakes, for granite mountains 600 feet high cannot be cast aside, nor can new ones be easily found.

Houser's chief job is known technically as "pointing up," which, described in the language of the layman means sitting in the "studio" located a mile across the valley and connected with the actual scene of operation by telephone wires. Then, by means of sighting devices and telephone instructions, he locates in the right position on the mountainside the features as laid out on a 60-inch model located at the "studio."

The Mt. Rushmore Memorial is partially financed by private subscription, which money is matched dollar for dollar by the U. S. government. The significance of the memorial is: Washington, the founder of the nation; Jefferson, the writer of the declaration of independence; Roosevelt, perpetuator of the ideals of the founders of the nation; and Lincoln, preserver of the Union. The memorial will also include a 100 word history of the United States, written especially for this project by former president Calvin Coolidge. Five years, so far, have been spent in working on this mammoth project; the head of Washington is the only one as yet completed.

After leaving the University Houser spent four years of practical work in designing and modelling ornaments for buildings on the Pacific coast and in Canada. Then he studied under Arthur Lee in New York City, and from there he went to Borglum as an assistant. Beside the work on the mountain memorial, Houser has assisted Borglum on the "Trail Drivers" memorial in San Antonio, Texas; the Sacco Vanzetti memorial; the Harvey Scott memorial in Mt. Tabor park, Portland; and the William Jennings Bryan statue in Washington, D.C.

Houser has exhibited his work in New York, Washington, D. C. and Portland. A small bronze masque is held on permanent display at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

Awarded Fellowship

FROM a list of 18 applicants, Margaret Elaine Williams, '32, was selected last week as winner of the $1,200 fellowship awarded once every three years to a woman graduate of an Oregon institution of higher learning by the Oregon division of the American Association of University Women.

Each candidate is required to state the exact type of research she wishes to follow under the scholarship. Miss Williams, who transferred to Oregon State College when sciences were moved to that campus to study for her master's degree, stated that she wished to study under Dr. Meyer of the George William Cooper foundation of medical research in San Francisco and will attempt to discover an antitoxin for botulism.

Miss Williams, whose home is in Wallowa, Oregon, graduated from the University with the highest scholastic honors in her class, a member of the coveted "senior six" of Phi Beta Kappa that year, and a member of Sigma Xi, scientific honorary.

PERSONALS

Four in Row

Fourth Rhodes scholar to be selected from the University in as many years is Robert Hayter, who received his degree in psychology last June. Hayter will attend Oxford University next year with three other former Oregon students: Robert Jackson, '29, M.A. '31; Dave Williams, '32; and Don Stuurman, M.A. '33. Hayter, who has been attending medical school this year, was selected by the northwest regional examination board with three others from the six states comprising the district. The scholarship includes $2,000 and two years study at Oxford and a third year at any approved European university.

Economic Adviser

Named to the economics advisory staff of U. S. department of state last month was Roy N. Veatch, '22. Mr. Veatch is the recent author of a booklet published by Editorial Research Reports of Washington D.C. discussing "Buying Power Under the New Deal." He is a former professor of economics at Princeton University. Both Mr. Veatch and his wife, Elizabeth Webb, who is a former professor of medieval history at Vassar, received Ph.D. degrees from the Robert Brookings Graduate School of Government and Economics in 1929.

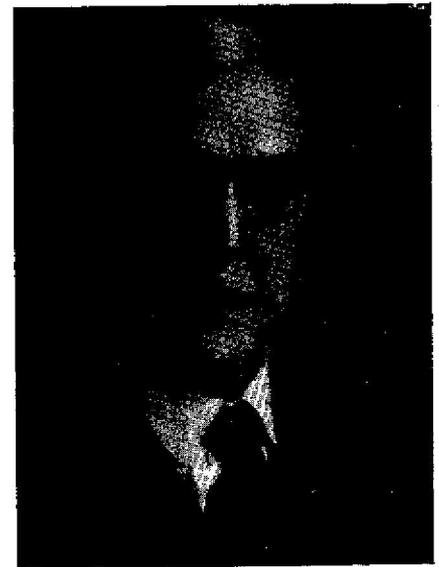

HOLC Attorney

John C. Veatch, '07, LL.B. '11, who is associated in the law business with George W. Joseph, '26, J.D. '28, and Bert E. Haney, LL.B. '03 in Portland, was this month named Oregon attorney for the Home Owners Loan corporation. Haney is chairman of the public works advisory board for Oregon, and Veatch is chairman of the Oregon fish commission. Veatch led the legal battle against the Oregon compulsory education bill which was vanquished in the state supreme court several years ago.

Honored Alumni Dead

THE ranks of the old and honored alumni were sadly thinned this month by the death of two graduates of early University days. Earliest of the two deceased alumni was Dr. Edward Payson Geary, who received his B.S. degree from the University in 1880, later receiving an M.D. from Jefferson Medical college of Philadelphia. After completing his medical schooling he returned to his native state becoming assistant physician for the railroad then being constructed between Oregon and California. He was elected and served as the second mayor of Medford, Oregon. He is accredited by his colleagues as being the man who introduced aseptic surgery into the southern Oregon area. In 1898 Dr. Geary moved to Portland and entered private practice, later becoming county physician, a position which he held for 14 years. He was one of the most widely known doctors in the northwest at the turn of the century. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Agnes McCornack Geary, '80; and three sons, Arthur M. Geary, '10, Portland; Roland W. Geary, '17, Portland; and Edward A. Geary, ex-'15, Klamath Falls. Dr. Geary died January 14 in Portland after an illness of two years.

ANOTHER native of Oregon and an early University graduate was A. C. Woodcock, '83, M.A. '91, who died at the Masonic home at Forest Grove on January 20. Mr. Woodcock, after graduation from the University, became one of the most widely known attorneys in the Willamette valley, and was at various times associated with four other Oregon graduates in his profession: George S. Washburne, '78 (deceased); Judge Lawrence T. Harris, '93, M.A. '96; Judge E. O. Potter, '87, LL.B. '90; and Richard Shore Smith, '01. In 1894 he was elected a member of the state board of equalization. For three years, while practicing law in Eugene, he taught at the University. His former associates state that Woodcock was one of the most brilliant lawyers ever to have graduated from the University.

BEND ALUMNI

Increasing Numbers

SURVEY of alumni records reveals the number of former University of Oregon students residing in Bend as surprisingly large when comparative youth of city is considered. Allotted space for Bend coverage is consequently barely enough, or quite insufficient.

Older graduates here consist largely of men and women who came to Central Oregon after attending state University from other localities. More recent years, however, have seen increasing number of registrations direct from Bend due to railway and highway development, shortening journey from Bend to Eugene.

Listings which follow may not be complete, but rather imposing at that:

Oregon pioneer and pioneer of the University is John J. Blew, ex-'79, who sold his farm near Eugene and entered the prep department the year the University was established, entering University proper the year following.

However, alumni records did not show John J. as an alum until year before Dean John Straub's death, when venerable Dean "discovered" his former student residing in Bend and made a special trip to visit with him after forty years separation. The reason for his name not being on records: Because after first regular year at University John J. decided to go places and do things, never received a degree.

Blew had an eventful life as a railroader, later becoming interested in lumbering. For many years now he has held responsible position with Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company, Bend. Blew recalls a chance meeting once with Professor Thomas Condon, who mistakenly believing Blew to be in hard circumstances, emptied his pockets and offered resulting two dollars to younger man. This occurred during Blew's railroading days. Blew has never been to a University homecoming, but plans to start attending this year.

Mrs. Alice C. Adams Foley, '05, is mother of Mary Ellen Foley, '32, now in relief work in Portland, of Robert Foley, campus undergraduate, and of William Foley, who is taking remaining seven hours for graduation by correspondence. Bill handles office work, accounting, credits for Bend Furniture company.

Ronald C. Sellers, '33, office employe of Associated Oil company, married and has baby boy.

Sylvia A. Veatch, '25, member high school faculty.

Violet Katherine Walters, '33, was high school girl again this winter. Maintained decorative dignity while earning swell grades in shorthand and typing.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Neal, (Jennie Lilly) both '10. Husband supervisor of Deschutes National Forest; wife member Bend school board. Two daughters, one in college, one in grades.

George W. Ager, ex-'18, also ex-superintendent of Bend city schools, father of three Oregon graduates: Paul, '26, former comptroller of University of Oregon, now of TVA; Orpha Jane, '31, La Pine; and Beth, '29, now Mrs. Thorson Bennett of Bear Creek, Montana.

Marriage of Priscilla Webb, ex-'29, of Prineville, to Loyde Blakley, of Bend, last year, was symbolic, or something. Blakley was king of Central Oregon Ags, and the wedding, solemnized at Vancouver, Washington, was variously interpreted, by some as an union of two institutions under two heads, by others as a lasting pax.

Marion Bowen, '20. Alumni register gives address as court house. Miss Bowen eats and sleeps elsewhere. Mostly she doesn't sleep. Running relief program for county, state, Red Cross, and United States—in Deschutes county—not sporadic. At time of writing, relief executive recovering from contusions suffered when horse deposited her on rockpile.

Philip Francis Brogan, '19-23, finds sermons in bones (but they must be agatized if Phil gives 'em a second look) and news in stones. Recognized as authority on Central Oregon geology. Helped upset theory of Thorn lake prehistoric city publicized in last decade. Married, has son, earns living by gathering and writing news for Bend Bulletin.

Remy M. Cox, ex-'22. Bosses Bend Bulletin news desk. Amateur gardener of parts. Married, and has son in early grades.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Brosterhaus, (Gladys Sather, ex-'25). One son, one daughter.

Mrs. Hazel Lorence Hosmer, wife of Paul Hosmer who writes logging stories and does magazine articles for the Oregonian about Klondike Kate. Two sons.

Mrs. Mabel Lorence Peoples, '13, lives next door to her sister, Mrs. Hazel Lorence Hosmer, on Riverside drive. Husband executive in local office of the Shevlin-Hixon company, and ranking southpaw golfer of city. Three sons.

Dr. E. E. Gray, ex-'18. Dentist, member of school board, past president of Kiwanis club, plant wizard. Married.

Dr. R. W. Hendershott, M.D. '17. Physician and surgeon and football analyst. County physician.

Dr. J. F. Hosch, M.D. '05. Physician and surgeon. Father of Marilouise Hosch, ex-'30, illustrator. Dr. Hosch practiced in Redmond, played unusual game of tennis, served as mayor. Moved to Bend, learned golf, dropped tennis, became mayor of Bend. Is yet. Was a democrat before Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected. Still is. Raises lovely flowers, encourages growing trees, reads omnivorously.

Dr. Fred A. Lieuallen, M.D. '05. Physician and surgeon, eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist. Commander of Percy A. Stevens Post No. 4, American Legion. Has trunk full of medals for valor and conspicuous gallantry as mementos of overseas service, but they stay in trunk. Also is father of Barbara Lieuallen, '32, attending Southern Oregon Normal and Frederick Lieuallen, campus undergraduate.

Frank Loggan, '26. Advertising manager of Bend Bulletin. Married and has daughter.

J. F. Jones, '14, formerly manager of Medo-land creamery here, recently promoted to better position with same organization in Klamath Falls. Married.

Chalmers Nooe, '29. Advertising solicitor, Bend Bulletin. Golfs, bowls, skis, and plays low bridge. Wife, (Nellie Johns, '28). Shares non-vocational activities mentioned in foregoing paragraph. For purposes of this summary, a son is regarded as an activity.

Myrtel I. Pelker, ex-'25, went to Tientsin to teach after Bend school districts went on warrant basis.

Mrs. Eva Roche Moore, '13. Husband is R. D. Moore, executive of the Shevlin-Hixon company. Two daughters and one son.

Mrs. Bert B. Moore (Myrtle Rice), ex-'25. Husband is locomotive engineer for the Shevlin-Hixon company.

Arthur J. Moore, LL.B., '13, lawyer. Former district attorney of Deschutes county. Specializes in mining law, but not overlooking general practice.

H. J. Overturf, ex-'08. Works for state game commission; son H. J. Overturf, Jr., attending University of Oregon.

Tedford Sather, ex-'30. Brother of Mrs. Edward B. Brosterhaus, (Gladys Sather, ex-'25).

George M. Simerville, '28. Member of high school faculty, and helps with football coaching. Mrs. Simerville (Clara L. Jasper, M.A.) '30 encourages him.

Mrs. Laura Rand Terril, '21, mothers two engaging youngsters, teaches vocal music, and keeps house for an attorney husband.

Jay H. Upton, LL.B., '02, will seek republican nomination for U. S. representative in congress. Is attorney and legislator with long service in upper house at Salem. President of state senate not so long ago. Married. Has one of best general libraries in Bend—and uses it.

J. C. Vandeventer, M.D., '14. Physician and surgeon. Serving first term as member of state game commission. Ardent sportsman. Small son also ardent sportsman.

Mary Donegan Williamson, ex-'25. Enthusiastic school teacher until anti-marriage clause in contract ended duties as instructor. Now enthusiastic housewife.

Henry N. Fowler, '14. Associate editor of Bend Bulletin. Married. Two sons and a daughter, all of pre-school age.

John L. Chute, ex-'23. Instructor in city schools and does mean job of coaching junior high school athletes. Married. Daughter named Jacqueline after her father.

Ross Farnham, LL.B. '12. Democrat and dry. Former district attorney. Now attorney. Married. One son in college, one son and one daughter in local schools.

Gerald Leroy Jensen, M.A. '30. High school instructor. Gives searching quizzes. Married.

R. Ewart Jewell, G.S. '29-30. High school instructor.

Jessie L. Puckett, '31. Comes of family of famous ski runners, which may be why she picked on Bend, situated on eastern edge of lofty Cascades (see chamber of commerce folder) when she started high school teaching.

Berdna Reeder, ex-'29. Saleswoman at large. Headquarters, Bend.

Edward Oscar Stadter, LL.B. '06. City attorney, with successful general practice, and runs ranch on the side. Has two sons, both in business.

Steven L. Steidl, ex-'16, is electrician for Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company; married; has two children—one of each kind—and spends other leisure time hunting, fishing, and bowling.

Mrs. Katherine Kirkpatrick Reeves, '15.

Wife of assistant manager for J. C. Penney company. Two children, a boy and a girl, help to keep her mighty, mighty busy.

Myra E. Symons, ex-'34. Working in photography department of Symons Bros. Jewelry and Art store.

Mrs. Marjorie Baird Hughes, ex-'25. With husband, Lieutenant Harry Hughes, helping to run C.C.C. camp in Idaho.

Edward P. Valitchka, ex-'24. Married. Has small son and more recent daughter.

Gordon Wilson, '25, and Mrs. Gordon Wilson (Ruth Corey, ex-'28). Gordon centers abilities on managing Central Oregon interests of Shell Oil company. Referees football games now and then by way of diversion. Mrs. Wilson even busier with two fine babies. One, by the way, will be another varsity center; the other almost certain to be coed.

Mrs. Cecil Goodfellow (Allison Wilder, '28), successful housewife. One son.

Mrs. H. E. Herrling (Phyllis Fischer, ex-'21). Husband member of Pacific Power and Light company organization. One daughter in grade school.

—Henry N. Fowler, '14.

CAMPUS

Dorms Atop

Dormitories, both men's and women's, stole the show from fraternal living groups on the campus last term, it is revealed in recent release of the fall term ratings. Sigma Hall topped the entire list for the second time in succession, and Hendricks Hall and Susan Campbell Hall rated second and third respectively on the list. Kappa Delta led the sororities by taking fourth place and Delta Upsilon headed the fraternities in ninth place. The list, arranged in order, follows:

Sigma Hall, Hendricks Hall, Susan Campbell Hall, Kappa Delta, Sigma Kappa, Phi Mu, Kappa Alpha Theta, Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Upsilon, Alpha Omicron Pi, Sherry Ross Hall, Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Alpha Delta Pi, Pi Beta Phi, Chi Omega, Omega Hall, Beta Phi Alpha, Chi Psi, Alpha Phi, Gamma Phi Beta, Theta Chi, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Gamma Delta, Sigma Alpha Mu, Alpha Tau-Omega, Zeta Tau Alpha, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Gamma, Delta Zeta, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Nu, Zeta Hall, Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Extension Star

An innovation in the program of the general extension division is the issuance of a small newspaper known as The Extension Star to be sent to all participants in the division's wide and varied activities. The purpose of the little newspaper, as explained in the first issue, is to afford a medium in which the varied activities of extension work may be linked together into a complete picture of what is being done in this field of educational endeavor. Among the activities outlined in the initial issue are the C.W.A. classes being offered to unemployed for the benefit of unemployed teachers in Portland and several other communities under the direction of the extension division; the free-time reading courses; the general extension and correspondence work for credit; the social welfare work; and the municipal, visual and radio educational activities. The general extension division has also arranged complete and interesting programs for broadcast over radio station KOAC at Corvallis, which is under the division's supervision.

C.W.A. Repairs

Remodelling and repair work on U. of O. campus, long deferred due to lack of funds, went forward rapidly during January, made possible through grant of C.W.A. funds. Work includes: painting and refinishing rooms in journalism building; remodelling third floor of Friendly Hall for use as office space; minor repair work in architecture, law, physical education, social science headquarters, drainage and sprinkler system for campus. Total expenditure, $26,101, of which $21,075.70 came from C.W.A. funds.

Former Dean Dies

First dean of Oregon's law school after its removal from Portland to Eugene in 1913 was Edward W. Hope, who died in Chicago last month while attending the convention of American Association of Law Schools. Hope was with the Oregon school from 1913 to 1920; since then he had taught law at the University of Illinois and the University of South Dakota, where he was professor of law at the time of his death.

Mothers

Real insight into the everyday life of students was accorded a group of Oregon Mothers recently when a number of officers and prominent members of the organization spent a day on the campus. Included in the party: Mrs. A. M. Dibble, Portland, president; Mrs. Jacob Kanzler, Mrs. George Brice, Mrs. W. M. Cook, Mrs. Willard Bond, Mrs. Jack Spence, Mrs. Frank New, Mrs. Burt Brown Barker, Mrs. W. M. Kletzer, Mrs. Walter Norblad, Mrs. Roy Bishop, Mrs. W. H. Thomas. Students entertained the party, escorted members to various affairs, even to some classes.

Jubilee Sketches

Short historical articles on the history of the state, written by students in the school of journalism, are being printed in many of the newspapers of the state this month in commemoration of the state's 75th year of statehood. The articles deal with phases of Oregon's life and activity at the time of Oregon's admittance to the Union, and were written by the students as special projects in advanced classes.

D.A.R.

University of Oregon, on March 28, will become the third higher educational institution in United States to have its own chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution. February 1 the national board of management in Washington, D.C. approved granting of the charter. Only other institutions maintaining chapters: Oregon State College at Corvallis, University of Washington at Seattle.

Lawyeresses

Interesting was the fact revealed last month when Oregon's first law school honor roll was released showing two co-ed law students leading their male contemporaries in grades for last term. Dorothy Kliks of McMinnville topped the first year law class in grades for the term, and Miss Josephine Rice of Portland led the entire school in grade point average.

New Alumni

Alumni ranks were swelled by 31 at the January faculty meeting, when degrees for this number of students were approved. Four students given advanced degrees: George F. Barron, M.S.; Earl E. Boushey, M.S.; William M. Campbell, M.E.; Sister Bernadette Eberle, M.A.

¶ Enrollment at U. of O. (Eugene campus) has climbed for this term to 2053, only a few behind last year at this time, and smaller than usual decrease from fall term. Cumulative enrollment for year now stands at 2270.

SPORTS

BASKETBALL

Leaving Cellar?

SHOULD Oregon not take another basketball game this season, last year's record of two victories is already tied. This year's victories, however, were both registered against powerful teams—Oregon State, last year's champs, and Washington State. To date the varsity has dropped a game to Oregon State and Washington State, lost four to Washington. While defeats predominate to date, no game could have been called a set-up for opposition. Washington state's victory was by an eight point margin run up in final minutes of play, 38 to 30; O.S.C.'s victory was by the queer score of 16 to 9, after Oregon led 6 to 3 at halftime; Washington's victories were: 33 to 28, 34 to 25, 34 to 32, 36 to 30.

Oregon still has eight games left; two each with O.S.C. and Washington State; four with Idaho. Some campus sportscribes predict Oregon will divide with O.S.C., take two from Washington State, take at least three of four from Idaho. If this comes to pass, Oregon will have won 8, lost 8; should place third, topped by Washington, probably O.S.C.

High point man has been sharp-eyed, speedy Robertson, who had 45 points for his first six games; second, Willie Jones, center, with 33.

Washington, with first eight victories, no defeats, seems headed for certain championship; O.S.C., last year's champion, should come in second.

Optimistic note: Sophomore Jones boys are developing fast, should be great for next year, while oncoming freshman squad is most promising crop in years.

Fluke for Frosh

JUST as the whistle blew to start second half in first Frosh-Rook game of season, excited Rook player, forgetting basketball change at half time, neatly dropped a field goal into wrong hoop. Game ended 32 to 30 for Frosh. Rook revenge came in second game, when Oregon State won 22 to 19, however. Not needed were any gift baskets for Frosh to win 7 other games, from Longview, Eugene, Franklin, University High, Wendling twice.

Players on Frosh team hold many hopes for next year. Not since famed "pro" Joe Lillard electrified spectators has a player so caught popular fancy as has Sam Liebowitz, who comes out from Brooklyn, New York. An extraordinarily fine guard, he has an uncanny eye for the basket, is a "natural" on the floor. Other promising men: Roy Williamson, high scoring forward from Seattle; John Lewis, forward, also Seattle; Joe Murray, another Seattle boy; Harry Helmken, Sixes, Oregon; Dale Hardisty, Wendling, a guard; Roy Northam, Eugene, and Louis Rotenberg, Portland, both guards.

Frosh also have a new coach, Gene Shields, who in the fall and spring assists Prince Callison with football. Following the Reinhart system, Shields works his men hard, and they like it.

TRACK

Thirtieth Year

SIGNS of spring have appeared in Eugene, and Colonel Bill Hayward's track prospects are benefitting accordingly. However, Hayward, starting his 30th season as track coach at Oregon, views these prospects with foreboding. Reason: loss of seven star performers of last year, six of them by graduation. The seventh, Warren Demaris, northwest javelin champ, is staying out this year, planning to come back next year and keep in competition until the Olympics of 1936.

With eight lettermen as a nucleus, Colonel Hayward will have something on which to build his team. Captain Sherwood Burr and Bill Bowerman will run the quarter mile, and be a valuable half mile relay team. Bob Wagner, winner of all two mile events last year, will be on hand to duplicate perhaps his feat this spring. Others from veteran ranks: Mason McCoy, Fred Nowland, hurdlers; Bob Park, Leighton Gee, javelin hurlers; Dutch Clark, Gardner Frye, discus. Nowland is also a high jumper, and Frye also tosses the shot.

Non-lettered prospects, some of whom may turn in surprise performances: Ralph Schomp, Walter Hopson, Howard Patterson, Dick Mears, Eldred Merrill, 100 and 220 yard dashes; Frank Michek, Whit Arey, quarter mile; George Scharf, Bob Ryan, half milers; Bill Paddock, Bob Luddington, Clayton Wentz, distance men; Ken Wood, pole vaulter; Arne Lindgren, Bob Parke, broadjumpers.

Consoling thought: many of the prospects are sophomores, with two more years in which to develop for future teams.

Oregon's schedule: dual meets—Washington, Oregon State, Idaho; host to Northwest division of coast conference meet.

Coach Temple

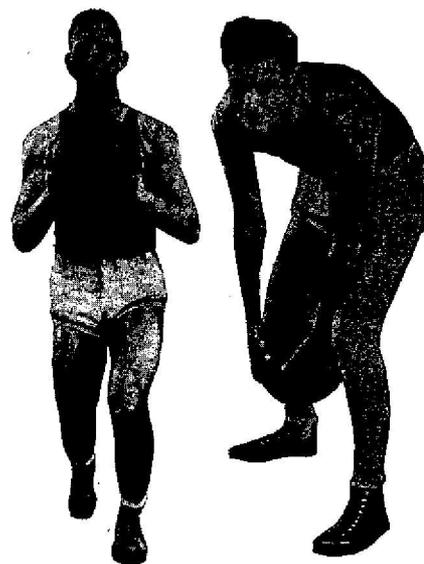

Grid coach of the Pendleton high school team next season will be Oregon's crack back, Mark Temple, native of that city. In high school Temple starred not only in football but in basketball and track. Last season Temple was co-captain of Oregon eleven, has an excellent record for his three years of competition.

Managers

HIGH MAN
Jack "Spook"
Robertson

REGULAR & RESERVE

RESEARCH

Lion's Share

Within one month, (latter part of December, early January) three times hundreds of Associated Press automatic teletype machines ticked out stories on research experiments carried on at University of Oregon. All were accorded substantial space. One was rewritten by AP's science editor Howard S. Blakeslee under his own byline. Stories included two from work of O. F. Stafford, professor of chemistry (acetemide as solvent; "heavy water" plant); third was result of muscular coordination tests on riflemen by Dr. Robert H. Seashore and Raymond D. Adams, psychologists. (See below). Statistics sharks figured that if all of U. S. colleges (600) were to release three such stories monthly, AP would have room for little else on its wires. Science Service, (Washington D.C.) also sent out stories by mail and wire on these experiments.

Research Council

FOUNDED by University of Oregon's one-time president (1926-32) Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, the Social Science Research Council has been a leader in promoting advanced study and research on Pacific coast. When Dr. Hall left Oregon, the council appointed to serve as University's representative Wayne L. Morse, dean of the school of law, whose researches in his field have already made him nationally known (survey of grand jury system with Raymond Moley, survey of crime in Oregon, etc.). To San Francisco last week went Dean Morse, to arrange with representatives from other member schools for Council's regional meeting next summer in that city. Topic selected: "Control of Social Forces." Other Oregon men in important places for session: Dr. Dan Clark, professor of history, chairman of sub-committee on history; Dr. L. S. Cressman, professor of sociology, chairman of uniform social statistics.

Psychological Marksmen

Sunday, January 14, hundreds of newspapers subscribing to Science Service and to Associated Press carried a news item dateline "Eugene, Oregon," telling of one of the most important of recent researches in muscular coordination. When Dr. Robert H. Seashore, associate professor of psychology, and Raymond D. Adams, assistant, applied muscular coordination tests (see OLD OREGON for Deember) to expert riflemen, and found them superior to others, the public showed a keen interest in this field of psychological research. Many persons, a bit hazy about such terms as "muscular coordination" know that it takes steady nerves to shoot a rifle accurately, so were interested to read that some day it may be possible to select the "crack shots" without expensive try-outs on rifle range.

Results of the tests given here by Seashore and Adams showed that but one person out of 60 examined equalled the record made by members of the rifle team in a series of five tests. Musicians, athletes, draftsmen and others selected at random were tested. Next step will be to select most steady men from group of recruits, then train them simultaneously with average group in actual rifle work. If select group maintains superiority, then tests may be of immense value to armies, schools, etc.

FACULTY

Exhibitor

The work of Miss Maude I. Kerns, assistant professor of normal arts, has been attracting considerable attention in exhibitions in many parts of the country of late. She has had water color paintings on display in Los Angeles, Seattle and Philadelphia, and prints on display in Kansas City, New York and Hartford, Connecticut.

Improving

"Progressing favorably" is the report received from Dr. H. D. Sheldon, veteran professor of education and history, who is at present recuperating at the Oregon State Tuberculosis hospital in Salem. On leave of absence for this year, Dr. Sheldon plans to be back on the campus next fall.

Archeological Atlas

From all over Oregon come contributions to the University's Anthropological Museum, started in a modest way a while back by Dr. L. S. Cressman, professor of sociology. Last week came a skeleton of an Indian, found near North Bend and sent in by Marc Seale; a small crustacean, found by the State Highway commission in Clatsop county, and some fossilized bones, as yet unclassified, sent in from Owyhee region, Malheur county. Announcement of an Archeological Atlas, to be compiled as result of his own findings and those contributed, was made this week by Dr. Cressman. This will take many years, but ultimately will be complete enough to give a history of races of man in the Oregon country.

Summer Prof

Paul R. Washke, professor of physical education, will teach at the 1934 summer sessions of the University of Michigan, where Washke was a former professor. Mr. Washke is largely responsible for the progressive sports programs, both interscholastic and intramural, now in effect at the University of Oregon, and it is on these two subjects that Mr. Washke will lecture at Michigan this summer.

Money for Mice

Data on Dr. R. R. Huestis' research work on mice, recently told in OLD OREGON (November) aroused wide interest among alumni. Further developments in this field may be hastened through aid extended Dr. Huestis by National Research Council, of $450 with which to purchase materials, hire assistants. Now scampering about Dr. Huestis' laboratory are 600 mice, many of them very rare.

¶ R. C. Clark, head of the history department, has been asked to review History of the Pacific Coast, part of material for which came from Dr. Clark's own History of the Willamette Valley. Author is John Walter Caughley, University of California.

¶ Appointment of George Hopkins, professor of piano, to the staff of Ellison-White conservatory in Portland, does not mean that Eugene will lose this talented and famed musician. He will spend a day or two each week in Portland, rest of his time on the campus.

¶ Joseph E. Fontainrose, (Ph.D. University of California) formerly instructor at Cornell, has arrived on the campus to teach Greek, taking place of Dr. Clara M. Smertenko, on leave of absence due to illness.

¶ W. A. Dahlberg, instructor in speech and men's debate coach, will hear lots of pros and cons during February. As debate judge for the high school competition in Oregon and southern Washington he will spend from February 9 to 17 attending meets.

Wasted Teaching?

Dear OLD OREGON:

Since comments are requested concerning OLD OREGON as rehabilitated, I would say that to me the magazine presents an attractive appearance and I find its contents of interest and suited to its type.

I have no objection to the adoption of the style of arrangement to conform to that of Time, but I am obliged to admit that the imitation of the syncopated, staccato method of expression is a disappointment. I put up with it in Time because I feel that it fits in with the smart, chipper tone of that publication, and further, because I recognize the necessity in its case of compressing a tremendous amount of information into a reasonably small space. I do not believe these reasons apply in choosing a style of English expression for an alumni magazine for a university.

It occurs to me that an organ such as OLD OREGON should be among those who adhere to the belief that English can still be written in a pleasant, attractive manner to meet all requirements, and that it is not necessary to "jazz" it up to catch step with the supposed modern tempo. Of course, I may be all wrong about this but if so I insist there is a lot of time being wasted in the classrooms of the English professors on the campus of the old Alma Mater.

Yours amicably,

Geo. O. Goodall, '02,
345 Miner Building,
Eugene, Oregon.

Wants Every Issue

Dear OLD OREGON:

Enclosed alumni dues and subscription to OLD OREGON for the current year.

If I have missed any copies of OLD OREGON by my tardiness in remitting please see that I get them if possible. I look forward to the magazine every month, and enjoy it especially, inasmuch as I do not live in Oregon and am more or less out of contact with what is going on at my Alma Mater.

With best wishes for your continued success in this new year,

Thornton K. Shaw, '32,
c/o Shaw Supply Co.,
Tacoma, Washington.

Enjoying Greenery

Dear OLD OREGON:

Kindly change my mailing address from Albert Lea, Minnesota, to 850 E. 58, Chicago.

After five years as city manager of Albert Lea, my husband has accepted the position of field director of the American Municipal Association with headquarters in Chicago. This is the parent organization of the State Municipal Leagues and as such is concerned just now with assisting cities in their federal aid projects.

My young son Jack and I are spending a delightful two months in Portland where we formerly lived. After five years on the prairies we are surely pleased with the Pacific Coast scenery. The luxuriant vegetation of winter seems more beautiful than we had remembered and the rainy weather a real treat after many days of subzero temperatures.

OLD OREGON at our home is always read from cover to cover. We have particularly enjoyed articles and photographs of the faculty.

Mrs. Myrtle Copenhaver Ludwig, '23,
1906 S. E. 51 Street,
Portland, Oregon.

Cover to Cover

Dear OLD OREGON:

The recent copy of OLD OREGON arrived a few weeks ago. As usual I was glad to receive it. Have read it through from cover to cover, finding it quite newsy and entertaining. You are to be complimented upon the new set-up which I heartily endorse, and of your progressive trend toward making the publication an up-to-date magazine.

Before going further I wish to say a word in regards to Coach Prink Callison and his football team. They are certainly to be congratulated upon their successful season just closed. To my way of thinking, Coach Callison and his assistants can be well proud of the "boys." After all it isn't so much how many games were won, but how those games were played. So let the alumni of Oregon stand back of Coach Callison at all times, in defeat as well as in victory.

You ask for more alumni contributions a feature which I think has been sadly lacking in past numbers of OLD OREGON. Perhaps if a questionnaire properly drawn up and distributed, were sent to all alumni requesting their contributions, your problem would be somewhat solved. Let's hear from others of our good fellow classmates upon this idea. At least it would not hurt anything to start the ball rolling by sending in our contributions. I for one am perfectly willing to do my part.

I will soon be leaving St. Louis, bound for Kansas City Missouri, and eventually to the Pacific Coast. Wishing OLD OREGON a most happy and prosperous New Year, I am, George Overmeyer, Jr., '33.

More power to Alumnus Overmeyer and his plan to get alumni to contributing news items about themselves and their alumni friends and neighbors. Until more alumni pay dues, however, we will have to rely on voluntary news contributions, since mailing of questionnaires is too expensive.—THE EDITOR.

Liked Spirit

Dear OLD OREGON:

Since my return from a trip through the northwest, which carried me to Eugene and finding the October issue of OLD OREGON on my desk I want to compliment you on the fine magazine that you have been giving your alumni.

I enjoyed my three days at Oregon as much as any of the hundred campuses on which I have visited Sigma Nu chapters, and I liked the spirit of the University, which you have so well exemplified through your magazine.

This advertisement of SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORPORATION is published for your information.

We are cooperating with the President's Code for Distillers. It is our intent to follow the provisions of the code. The domestic whiskies referred to in this advertisement, bottled under OLD, FAMOUS BRAND-NAMES, are at this time blended from stocks of STRAIGHT WHISKIES with no alcohol or spirits added.

LIQUOR . . .

A heartening word about quality

AFTER these 14 years of barred distillery doors, of rusting vats and stills, of grapes rotting on neglected vines, and empty warehouses, in which fine old whiskey should have been richly mellowing—after these 14 years of such discouraging inactivity, you must be inclined to wonder how really fine wines and spirits may now be produced or bought.

The Schenley Distillers Corporation has a cheering word for you today. Though, during those dark years, many discouraged leaders of our country's legitimate liquor industry lost their hope, and turned to other trades, yet there still were a few who never lost faith in the ultimate decision of America's millions. Never disheartened, those few, born and bred with all the treasured traditions of this great industry, have been building earnestly, soundly, confidently through those 14 years of shadow, in preparation for the dawn.

Plants and Equipment

During your long wait, this undiscouraged organization has been quietly visiting and inspecting the most famous plants throughout the country—the plants whose methods, equipment and personnel had produced the choicest liquors in the land. Year after year, when the merits of various institutions had been thoroughly weighed, we gathered together under our protection those distilleries and warehouses which measured up to our highest standard

Golden Wedding

One of the Schenley Corporation's very first victories was the acquisition of Jos. S. Finch & Company, the respected old Pennsylvania concern that had been making Golden Wedding whiskey ever since 1863, when its output was but three barrels per day. To this world-famed whiskey and its distillery on the Allegheny River is due, in a great part, the high reputation of Pennsylvania whiskies—for in the whiskey world, the cask-mellowed spirits from the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys rival the age-old brandies from the valley of Cognac.

Old Stagg, O. F. C.

Down in the Kentucky Bluegrass region, there is an equally famous old distillery—

The Geo. T. Stagg Company plant, established way back in 1837.

In the historic distillery of Geo. T. Stagg they have carried on a tradition generations old—making whiskey in little fifty-gallon tubs—mixing, fermenting, and watching each little batch with as much tender care as a mother making a birthday cake for her one and only. Such a renowned institution, with its devotion to the finer traditions of the whiskey business, is the type of institution which most attracted the interest of Schenley. It was indeed a bright spot in the darkness that day when Schenley closed a deal which added to the already impressive list of brands the two famous brands of Geo. T. Stagg . . . Old Stagg and O. F. C.

James E. Pepper

There was still another whiskey in the Bluegrass country which has always shared the demand for finer whiskey with Old Stagg and O. F. C. That whiskey is James E. Pepper—a favorite with three separate generations. James E. Pepper, "Born with the Republic"—your father and grandfather will remember that slogan—and that marvelous flavor. Founded way back in 1780 while George Washington was still alive, this grand old brand has enjoyed a reputation for upholding its original quality that has caused it to survive for 143 years, while thousands have come and gone. The Schenley Distillers Corporation—fortunate enough to add James E. Pepper to its ever-growing list—is fully mindful of the treasure it is holding in its hands—and faith will be kept with its ancient founder.

Old Quaker, Monticello, Greenbrier, Melvale, Gibson, Sam Thompson, Belle of Anderson

So on through the years—famous names, famous brands, secrets, formulae, warehouses, yes—and stocks of precious old liquor have been accumulated and guarded by Schenley for you when the day arrives. Old Quaker, Monticello, Greenbrier, Melvale, Gibson, Sam Thompson, Belle of Anderson—and scores of other matchless brands you used to enjoy—you will still enjoy, for Schenley has not been idle. It has preserved them all.

Old equipment in all these plants has been modernized. New equipment has been installed. Warehouses have been repaired, new buildings have been put up. Thousands of barrels have been made and charred. The choicest grains have been bought and binned. Preparing for this day did not begin yesterday . . . It began in 1919, and has continued year in and year out. And you will reap the harvest.

The Men Behind the Famous Brands

Those men, who have persisted through these years in preserving the integrity of the famous brands of bygone days, are whiskey men, born with all the better traditions of this ancient industry in their blood.

In charge of the Geo. T. Stagg distillery, you will find its loyal president, Albert Blanton, whose grandfather originally owned the site on which the present distillery was built—and whose father operated the little distillery which preceded the modern one standing on this spot today.

There too you will meet George Stagg's devoted son, Frank, who has never known another job than this. And if you ask who that veteran right-hand man of president Blanton may be, watching the quality of Old Stagg and O. F. C. with an eye trained through over forty years of whiskey experience, they will proudly tell you: "That's W. B. Fithian—he's been here since 1889."

Go up to the Golden Wedding plant, and you'll find the story just the same. The grandfather of the modern distilling industry, Harry Wilken, will be there to greet you. And the Dean of yeast chemistry, Dr. Alfred Lasche—for 20 years the head of one of America's most famous schools for distillers—he, too, has been there, helping safeguard Golden Wedding quality ever since 1921.

And so it goes in the Schenley organization. Men, distilleries, equipment, warehouses, formulae, secrets—and rich ripe liquor—fully matured through the years. This is no idle promise of quality to you; it is cold figures. According to the recent official estimates, there now stands under the guardianship of the Schenley Distillers Corporation at least 25% OF THE TOTAL WHISKIES NOW EXISTING

Imported Wines, Brandies and Liqueurs

In July of last year, when the strongest kind of public sentiment pointed in favor of repeal, the Schenley wheels were set in motion to secure the agency for the Old Country's choicest wines and liqueurs. Because of our faith in early repeal, we fearlessly made connections with the oldest continental establishments, securing by our prompt action what we believe to be universally acknowledged the finest list of foreign goods that will be offered to the American public.

To the Schenley Wine & Spirit Import Corporation has been awarded the sole agency for Dubonnet—an aperitif and cocktail ingredient with a unique flavor and bouquet that has made it the first choice of millions. Gonzalez Byass, one of the greatest port and sherry houses of the world, and particularly famous for its delicious Diamond Jubilee brand, likewise gave to Schenley its American representation. And Bacardi, with a matchless mellowness and delicacy that has made it the standard of the world—Bacardi, too, is on the exclusive list of Schenley importations. Barton & Guestier Sauternes, Clarets and Burgundies; Charles Heidsieck and Morlant Champagnes, Nolly Prat French Vermouth, Bardinet Liqueurs, D. Leiden Rhine and Moselle Wines, Henkes' Holland Gin, Barone Ricasoli renowned Brolio Chianti, Peter F. Heering Cherry Liqueur, Drioli Maraschino, George Roe Irish Whiskey of the Dublin Distillers Co., Bulldog Bass Ale and Bulldog Guinness Stout—these names speak for the quality and variety you may expect from Schenley far more eloquently than our mere words could ever do. When you seek a wine, brandy or cordial of rare flavor, of supreme quality beyond question, your thoughts will wander to those famous old names listed on this page—and you may rest assured that they will be delivered through your dealer in the most perfect condition, for in the cool Schenley cellars they will be guarded like the precious treasures that they are.

A couple of your minutes spent upon committing this list to memory should repay you many, many times.
