CHAMPIONS FROM THE STATE OF OREGON No. 4 of A Series

His time tied the winner's in the 5,000 meters, and they called him "Hero of the Olympics" for his sportsmanship. A champion of champions ... Oregon's RALPH HILL.

Twelve wins out of 16 games for Northern Division honors ... 2 out of 3 in the playoff against U. S. C. for the Pacific Coast Conference title ... that's how Oregon State's '32-'33 Varsity Beavers became undisputed basketball champions.

"On account of my horse, I'm personally interested in both Oregon schools," says Chief ED WYNN. "My horse, you know, eats like a Beaver and walks like a Duck."

A Beaver and a Duck are about the only animals the Chief doesn't have in his collection of pets. In common with some of the Conference members, he's found they're pretty hard to tame. • Greater Fire-Chief Gasoline, however, has completely tamed the knock in automobile engines. It's maximum anti-knock at regular price. • It develops championship tendencies for speed, power, pickup, quick-starting and mileage in anybody's car. If you haven't tried the new champion of gasolines, pull up at the next red Texaco pump. Find out for yourself why Greater Fire-Chief has literally taken all forty-eight states by storm.

Tune In! • "Fire Chief" ED WYNN

Enthusiastic

To the Editor:

Silent for some time because of considerable pressure of work here, but enthusiastic this morning am I over the November issue of OLD OREGON. The lead article on the difficulties surrounding the chancellorship is mighty helpful in giving a picture of the embroglio. I have been trying to follow it from various issues of the Oregonian, but knew that I could rely most on the statement which the alumni publication would make, and please accept my congratulations for it, and also for the new format which you have adopted with acknowledgment to Time. So much of an interesting nature is going on in Portland, Eugene, and elsewhere that I have developed a recent acute nostalgia to be out there again and adding my nickel's worth to the goings on.

Great to hear of the football developments and my fedora is off to Prink for coming through so brilliantly without the fanfare and trumpet of the ballyhoo surrounding a "big time" coach. Tom Stoddard's reported crack at the Alumni luncheon must have been amusing. Poor Tom. Such naiveté must be deserved. If it were only true!

Regards and best wishes.

Oregon Hymn?

To the Editor:

I have just concluded perusing the November OLD OREGON. It is very good. The nominations interested me. So many outstanding "alums" are named. I was surprised, however, at the lack of women's names. Do they (the whole association) feel the women are not equal to the present situation?

Will you give the following idea a bit of publicity if you feel it worth while?

Why not an Oregon hymn that the old as well as new students know yet one that is distinctly our own song? I would like to suggest "In the Harbor of Our Mountains." It is very beautiful and easy to sing. I never hear the Pledge Song any more. The old grads never knew it. We seem rather starved with just our football song—dear as it is to our hearts. Has anyone else an opinion?

Ouch & Thanks

To the Editor:

I've been meaning to do this for some time, and since you asked for it in the November OLD OREGON, here it is.

Borrowing Time's makeup and style is all right, but the backward style of English I don't even like in the original. Also, why separate alumni news by marriages, births and deaths? It takes three times as long to read, looking up your class numbers over and over. Also, why all the deaths of alumni relatives? It's bad enough when alumni pass out.

I've been connected with publications ever since I left the University, here and in New York, and I know what a tough time you have financially. I think your covers have been lousy. So having been pretty mean so far, I'll try to continue on a more constructive basis.

Just say the word and I'll design you a front cover that looks like 1934. The one you have would do credit to the "Gay 90's." I'm going on the supposition that you have very little money to spend for cuts and none for art work.

Your cover photos have been pretty dead. OLD OREGON is a news magazine. Why not some campus activity of the moment. If you want to borrow some more, look at the cover of News Week

If you want me to design a new cover let's hear all about the limitations that have to be met, and I'll try and meet them.

Yours for a better OLD OREGON.

Ray Bethers, ex-'25
1329 Clay Street,
San Francisco, California.

P.S.—I really like OLD OREGON. Don't think I'm riding you too hard.

To professional artist Bethers we concede OLD OREGON cover is not modern, but nevertheless feel that present cover harmonizes, perhaps none to successfully, with modern cover technique, and the name of the magazine. As for his dislike of Time's style he is decidedly in minority—his being only objection so far out of numerous complimentary remarks. His suggestion for a newsy cover photo is good; suggestion of combining all News of the Classes under single class heads is being seriously considered. We include deaths of alumni relatives because many would never otherwise hear of such tragedy befalling their classmates. We accept Alumnus Bethers' offer of designing a new cover, however cannot afford to have cuts made until many, many more alumni pay dues. Would nevertheless like to have sketch. Thanks to Mr. Bethers for his interest and proffered help.—EDITOR.

Loyal Alumnus

To the Editor:

Inclosed is a money order for $5 to pay my alumni dues for three years. How many times has not each of us typed: "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country." Change that to "Now if ever is the time for all loyal alumni to come to the aid of their alma mater," and you will see why I am sending the money order even though it is only five days till Christmas. May I add my best wishes for a Merry Christmas to all my friends in your office and on the campus, and every wish for a bright, prosperous New Year for higher education in the state of Oregon.

The new year will be a busy one for most of us. My time will be spent as follows: Practicing law all day; teaching in Northwestern College of Law two nights a week; teaching public speaking one night a week each for the University extension center and for a group of business men in Camas, Washington; and being official coach for the Royal Rosarians. I have not yet decided what I shall do with my spare time.

EDISON MARSHALL, ex-'17

WRITER, traveler, explorer, who started his literary career while at the University studying short story under Professor W. F. G. Thacher. Two years after leaving school he had built up a national reputation and has been a constant contributor to the nation's leading periodicals ever since. His fiction, short stories and novels, are vivid, replete with local color, full of action, usually based on his experiences in foreign lands and out-of-the-way corners of the world. His latest: "Masks Off" in September issue of Good Housekeeping was story of his recent eight-day air journey across Asia and the plateau of Loas and his visit with King Sisavang Vong at Luang-Prabang. Has two serials scheduled to appear in Good Housekeeping and American in early spring and summer. Home: "Seven Gables," Augusta, Georgia. Two children: Edison Jr., 10; Nancy, 6. NEWS AND COMMENT

By the Editor

Truce for Embroglio

CREEPING out from unofficial information centers during the past month have come rumors of a so-called truce in higher educational affairs. First public hint of such a tacit understanding came from a signed article by Sheldon F. Sackett, astute managing editor of the Salem Statesman, who outlined the supposed terms of "truce." His and others' opinions summarize somewhat as follows:

¶ That the forced retirement of Chancellor Kerr during the school year is neither practical from point of view of securing a successor to take the helm at once nor fair to a man who has spent 25 years of his life in the interests of higher education in the state.

¶ That further public charges and counter charges (made via press or platform) are harmful to the institutions which sorely need the public's confidence and support. This point of view is considered especially important if enrollment decreases are to be stopped next year and if Oregon high school graduates are to cease looking outside the state for their college educations.

¶ Irrespective of stated dissatisfaction on the part of University faculty and friends with the regime of Dr. Kerr is the fact that Dr. Kerr has never resigned from the presidency of Oregon State College, and yet in accepting the chancellorship presumed to deny the University a president as distinguished from the system under which the University operates as a unit. It would be quite as awkward a situation should Mr. Rosson attempt to add to his duties the coaching of Oregon's football team, thus dispensing with the services of Mr. Callison.

¶ That no investigation of the actions of Dean Wayne L. Morse of the law school will be made. Recently there has been pretty general acceptance of the theory that his method of bringing forcefully to the board's attention the faculty's dissatisfaction with Dr. Kerr was the only one open, since the board had previously provided that Dr. Kerr should be the only channel through which the board could be reached officially.

¶ And, that immediate steps would be taken to give the University a president through whom the University faculty could be represented and who would act as a liaison officer between the board, the faculty and the chancellor. The inclusion of such an officer in the higher educational setup was approved by the board previous to Dr. Kerr's appointment. By such appointment the board would be providing a more amicable means for the registration of a complaint and thus more zealously safeguarding its entrusted authority.

¶ And lastly, that in the meantime a quiet quest for a man to take the permanent chancellorship should be carried on, that all parties should concentrate on improving the outlook for the schools next year, and open strife and criticism should be withheld.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Portland Alumni Association will hold a luncheon meeting on January 25 at noon at the Old Heathman hotel. All alumni are invited to attend, whether they are Portland residents or visitors.

The Oregon basketball squad, its coach, Bill Reinhart, and high school seniors of the Portland Interscholastic league will be guests of the Portland alumni at this meeting according to Bert S. Gooding, president of the club. Dean H. Walker, '13, former varsity basketball star and member of the state legislature, will be the principal speaker.

The appointment by the governor of a man to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Roscoe C. Nelson is not considered likely until definite assurance is given that higher educational affairs are on the mend.

Such a program is, as near as can be determined, in line with the recommendations of the investigative committee of the American Association of University Professors, which spent the better part of ten days visiting with administrative officials, faculty members and board members comprising the entire system of higher education.

Horizon?

IT is tragic that the "situation" has been allowed to fester for as long as it has. Between the two institutions, the College and the University, there is without doubt a growing feeling of common interest and mutual endeavor. However, from this writer's point of view, there have been obstacles in the pathway of what might have been a much more speedy growth of this growing inter-institutional good-fellowship. With assurance, such as adoption of a "truce" similar to that outlined above which provides for concessions on all sides for the good of all, there could be little reason for anything but a faster crystallization of common purpose within the entire system. There would be a definite "horizon" toward which all would be looking with hope and relief, and a reestablishment of confidence in the state board's ability to deal effectively and authoritatively with higher educational problems.

On Own Feet

THE editor of OLD OREGON would like to state here, in order that misunderstanding may not arise in the future, that all editorial opinions expressed in this magazine are his personal opinions and in no way represent the opinions of the alumni association or necessarily any portion of the alumni membership. OLD OREGON is the official publication of the Alumni Association and in that respect the editor attempts to provide reading material of interest to the greatest number of alumni. However, it is beyond the realm of journalistic possibility that the editor could give assurance that he was uttering the "official" opinion of the alumni membership. As in any publication, editorial comment can represent the expression of the editor only. The "Letters" column is always open for the expression of varying opinions, either by alumni or by others on matters of interest to the alumni.

BULLETIN

Board Acts

Just as Old Oregon goes to press word is received that the state board of higher education has, in effect, signed the "truce of harmony" for Oregon higher education, and at the same time unanimously asserted its authority and fully accepted its responsibility for the institutions under its charge.

Dr. C. V. Boyer, dean of arts and letters at the University and Dr. George W. Peavy, dean of forestry at the College have been appointed acting presidents of their respective institutions.

The investigation of the activities of Dean Wayne L. Morse of the Oregon law school has been officially dropped with, however, the stipulation that further outbreaks of a similar nature will be dealt with swiftly and forcefully.

Willard L. Marks, who has been serving as vice-president of the board, was named to fill out the uncompleted term of Roscoe C. Nelson, resigned. (Recent graduates who have not yet received diplomas for lack of signature of a board president will now receive their long awaited diplomas very shortly.) Charles A. Brand has been elected vice-president of the board to succeed Marks.

Boyer's appointment was received by the University faculty with unqualified approval, and the faculty and all University friends now look to the future with new hope and determination to achieve harmony and progress for higher education in Oregon.

RAMBLING REPORTER

EDUCATION-MINDED

Albany in Limelight

To Albany, Oregon of late has come considerable attention from those interested in higher education. Closely is Albany connected with the higher educational system both through the fact that two of its citizens hold positions on the state board of higher education and because an unusually large number of its residents and civic leaders are graduates of the state University and College.

Both of Albany's board members are products of higher educational institutions, both have sons in attendance at the University. Willard L. Marks, acting chairman of the board, is a member of the legal firm of Marks and McMahan; his son Robert is studying pre-law at the University. Fred E. Callister is president of the Albany branch of the First National Bank of Portland; his son Hague is taking a business course at Eugene.

BENEFITS received through education at the University of Oregon are being passed on to young Oregonians by 15 graduates and former students who are members of Albany public school instruction staffs and of the Albany college faculty. Eight are teaching in local high and junior high schools and seven at Albany college. Rex Putnam, '15 and M.A. '29, is city school superintendent.

Teaching high school courses are Fanny D. Chase, M.A. '17; Ruth Bryant, '31; Philip A. Lehman, M.A. '29; Ruth Ellen Porter, M.A. '29; Gladys McKnight, '17; Veronica Tracy, '21; Mrs. Mary E. Vandel, extension student and Lucile Murphy, '32. Members of the Albany college faculty include Margaret Ramsey, M.A. '29; William N. Shearer, M.S. '33; Victoria Case, '21; Elisabeth Karpenstein, B.A. '27, M.A. '30; Daniel Freeman, G.S. 24-26; Dr. Abram A. Groening, M.A. '21 and Olga Jackson, '27.

PROXIMITY of Albany to Corvallis has influenced a majority of Albany high school graduates to attend Oregon State college. Nevertheless a creditably large list of Oregon graduates has been built up at Albany and many Oregon graduates are leaders in community enterprises.

Edwin Fortmiller, ex-'12, is one of the proprietors of the Fortmiller Furniture company here and is active in local American Legion work, has three children, Julianne, Billy and Marion.

Mrs. and Mrs. Carroll E. Akers, (Frances Hinkle) both ex-'23, have three children, Joe Glenn, Carol Lee and Joan Frances. Carroll is local manager for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

Mrs. Harriet Van Tassel Arbuthnot, '20, has two children, Beverly and Jean. Her husband is local manager for the J. C. Penney company.

Catherine Bain, ex-'24 is employed in the office of the Mountain States Power company here and her sister, Else ex-'15, is in the office of Dr. B. R. Wallace, local physician and surgeon. Their brother, Lyle, '20, is attending University of Oregon Medical School at Portland.

Dr. Olive K. Beers, M.D., '90 has retired from the foreign mission field and is living at her residence at 620 West Fourth street in Albany.

Herbert N. Cockerline, LL.B., '91, is conducting an insurance business here.

Charles Franklin Cooper, ex-'07, is employed as a surveyor by Linn county. He lives on a farm near Albany.

Lauffin M. Curl, ex-'89 has been for many years and still is practicing law at Albany.

Rev. and Mrs. Rex Dallas, both ex-'20, are residing here, where Rex is Pastor of the First Christian church.

Mrs. Loretta J. Stuart Davis, ex-'01, widow of Dr. W. H. Davis, retains her residence here.

Raymond Fisher, ex-'23, who is in the insurance business here, has two children, Betty and Loren.

Dr. G. Earl Fortmiller, '14, is practicing medicine here. His son, George Earl, is in high school.

Prof. Albert H. Gillett is now living on a farm near Albany. He was a special student in 1928.

Wallace C. Eakin, '16, and Ianthe Smith, ex-'24, are both employed with the Democrat-Herald local newspaper. The Eakin's have four children, Patricia, Wallace Baird, James David and Stewart Bates.

R. R. Cronise, ex-'11, is one of the proprietors of the Democrat-Herald.

* * *

Dr. George L. Jordan, ex-'25, is with the Albany Osteopathic clinic. He was recently married.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Knodell (Emelia Burrell) both '25, have two children, Nadine and Barbara. Clifford is local representative for an oil company.

Francis Lamberty, ex-'19, is employed by his brother in one of Albany's largest grocery stores.

* * *

Mrs. Katherine Livingood Andersen, '21, has two children, Junior and Norma.

Carl S. Nygren, '21, and his brother, Victor, ex-'24, are now operating their father's dairy near Albany. Carl was recently married.

Ira A. McDowell, ex-'03, is proprietor of a shoe store here.

Rockey E. Mason, ex-'04, is engaged in the wholesale drug business with headquarters at Albany.

Franklin J. Miller, Jr., '22 is managing the Albany Iron works, formerly managed by his father. Mrs. Miller (Marie Andresen) was graduated in '24.

Rolla E. Ralston, ex-'15, is engaged in the automobile sales business at Albany.

Edward V. Fortmiller, B.A. '28, and M.D. '31, is practicing medicine in Salem.

Stewart William Ralston, '30, is employed near Albany and still makes his headquarters here.

Ira Lloyd Templeton, ex-'11, is agent for an automobile company here and his brother, William C., ex-'96, is Linn county assessor.

* * *

James K. Weatherford, Jr., ex-'30, is Linn county's representative in the state legislature.

* * *

John Russell Wyatt, ex-'85, is recovering at a local hospital from a severe bullet wound in the shoulder, which he suffered accidentally while hunting last fall. He is a pioneer Albany attorney.

* * *

Dr. M. M. Woodworth, M.D. '23, is practicing medicine in Albany.

* * *

Mrs. Avis Marie Langmack Scott, ex-'26, has a son, Thomas.

Rev. Melville Thomas Wire, ex-'98, is pastor of the First Methodist church at Albany.

Clarence R. Veal, '30 has succeeded his father, the late Fred Veal, as manager of the R. Veal & Son chair factory at Albany.

RESEARCH

Muscular Control

AT University of California a most important research experiment in muscular control will soon be under way under direction of the psychology department there. Of special interest to Oregonians is the fact that it will be carried on with testing apparatus designed and constructed in the laboratories at University of Oregon, under the direction of Dr. R. H. Seashore, who recently perfected not only devices to be used in California, but who designed and completed some 14 sets of a portable machine for this type of experiment. To date 14 institutions have ordered these portable sets, others have requested plans.

The California experiment will be extended over a period of 5 years, will test adolescent boys now, then later, to see if muscular control differences are stable, or affected by training. Happy are psychologists here to have others use Oregon apparatus, for experiments done elsewhere coordinate with work under way here, will make progress in this field more rapid.

Robert Holmes Seashore, son of Iowa's psychologist Carl Emil Seashore, is now an outstanding psychologist in his own right. While his father has achieved fame in music research, young Seashore has entered vigorously into field of muscular control, has invented and perfected apparatus now known and recognized throughout the country. He graduated (B.A.) from University of Iowa in 1923, hurried on to doctorate in 1925, stopping for M.A. in 1924. Taught psychology a year at his alma mater, then for two years held national research council fellowship in biological sciences, post-doctorate at Stanford, where he began his noteworthy research work. At Oregon since 1928, he has continued his experiments, has constructed and improved many testing devices, yet has found time to be an effective and popular teacher.

Penn o—Oregon 20

“AS FOR vocabulary . . . the effect of college on the word supply of the ordinary student appears to be almost negligible; in some cases positively injurious.” This from “Investigator” who tested both seniors and freshmen in six Pennsylvania colleges last year. Here at University of Oregon—net gain of 20 percent in vocabulary found in seniors, who had been tested similarly when freshmen. Deduction of Dr. Howard Taylor, who made tests here: No doubt but that students at University here do great deal of general reading, since each added word (number recognized jumped from 101 freshman year to 120 senior year) represents reading of from 50,000 to 100,000 words. Noted: this gain in knowledge in addition to specific training student receives in chosen field, i. e., law, medicine, art, etc. Pennsylvania investigation made on freshmen and seniors at same time showed better preparatory training of freshmen, or lack of attention in those schools to general education.

Dr. Howard R. Taylor, University's chief tester, has charge of psychology entrance examinations, conducts many others, finds in them much data to aid both student and teacher. He is director of the personnel bureau and professor of psychology.

Heavy Water

Until recently, fundamental sameness of water, wherever found, has been axiomatic; its supposedly constant properties have been made the basis of measurement. The centigrade thermometer is based on the freezing and boiling points of water; "specific gravity" is the density scale, by which gravity of substances has been compared to that of water.

"H₂O" is familiar to everyone. It means that water is composed of two parts of hydrogen, one part of oxygen. Now, however, scientists, ever on the alert to upset theories and formulas and start wholly new investigations, have found that water can be submitted to a process, and when it finally emerges, is still water, but actually "heavier" than when the process started. This fluid, still new and fascinating to whole field of science, is called simply "heavy water."

The "heavy" comes about because scientists have discovered that there are actually two kinds of hydrogen atom, instead of one as was long believed, that one of these is twice as heavy as the other. By submitting the original water to an electrolysis process, the single weight atom is replaced by that weighing double.

Interest in "heavy water" just before the Christmas holidays was centered here in Oregon, on a plant constructed here by University's O. F. Stafford. Other plants for production of this valuable fluid (variously estimated $150,000 to $70,000 per quart) rest on tables in laboratories; Professor Stafford's occupies a large part of a building, consists of a 10,000 gallon tank and a 50 kilowatt direct current generator that sends 25,000 amperage into the water.

In all the world there is less than a quart of this valuable water; Professor Stafford's experiment, if recovery could be complete, would produce two gallons. However, due to the large scale operation, much escapes in the form of gas, and a couple of quarts will be considered by the Oregon scientist as a good yield. Heavy water is but one part in 5,000 gallons; Professor Stafford's huge tank started with 10,000 gallons.

Such an experiment as Oregon's would be practically impossible elsewhere; fortunate circumstances make it possible here. Professor Stafford, for many years has acted as consultant for the Eugene Water board, given to them much of his time gratis. He remembered they had on hand an abandoned filter tank, and the obsolete generator, once used for direct current elevators, now no longer needed. New hydro-electric plant, recently constructed by the board, has abundance of power not needed commercially. Thus at little cost to anyone, experiment of immense value to science can be carried on here.

Experiments have already shown that "heavy water" is vastly different than ordinary H₂O. Investigation with living microbes indicate it is not at all like water in its relationship to life processes. When it is remembered that water is of vast importance in the chemistry and make-up of life, and that the fine balance of life processes depend upon it, an amazing field is opened up by this fluid that can upset this balance. New medical discoveries, methods of hastening or retarding growth, all lie in the path of possibilities.

Begun several months ago, the heavy water experiment here is only partially completed. Not yet ready to announce date of completion, nor amount of fluid is Professor Stafford, but work so far is "satisfactory" he declares.

Professor Orin F. Stafford, for many years head of the chemistry department at the University, is nationally known for his contributions in his field. Last month's account (OLD OREGON, November) of his discovery that acetamide was greatest known solvent found space in hundreds of newspapers and other periodicals.

CAMPUS

Depression has hacked away at University enrollment, pulled it down from all-time high for the campus (1930-31) of 3359 to 2511 for past year. Even with hacking, Registrar Pallett's annual report shows four times as many students here now than were registered 20 years ago, when enrollment totalled 691 for 1912-13. Other facts gleaned from report: Twice as many degrees, 659, were awarded in 1933 than were given out 10 years ago, when number was 340; students now in University represent every section of state, 18 other states, two territories and three foreign countries; only 10 per cent of undergraduates come from outside of state now; approximately one-third of students come from Portland and Multnomah county, another third now make their homes in and near Eugene.

Senior Six

Election to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary fraternity, founded in historic year of 1776, is regarded as highest honor that can come to a student. An added honor at University of Oregon is election in fall of senior year, when six students are picked from eligible list, designated as "Senior Six." Those achieving this distinction this fall: Lucy Howe, Madeline Gilbert, Martha Goodrich of Eugene; Frances Frazier, Barbara Leisz, Portland, Thomas H. Tongue, III, Hillsboro.

Press Code

NRA code for publishers, printers, newspapers, soon to be under way, remains quite a puzzle to public and those who will come under it as well. To clear up many points, almost entire program of the Sixteenth Annual Press Conference, set for January 18-20 at school of journalism, U. of O., will be given over to code discussions. Annual conference banquet, informal section meetings, etc., will still find a place, however, assuring journalists of usual good time as well as profitable three days. Entire program will be under direction of Arne G. Rae, '22, field manager, Oregon State Editorial association. President of the conference will be new alumni director Merle Chessman, ex-'09, editor, Astorian-Budget.

D. U.

Twelve years ago a group of men students of the University organized a local society, resolved to petition for a chapter of ultra-conservative Delta Upsilon, one of oldest, highest rated national fraternities. Given little encouragement at first, members nevertheless refused to change their petition to less conservative, easier to obtain nationals which were eager to become established on this campus. Saturday, January 6, the long-awaited award came, and active and former members of Sigma Pi Tau became full-fledged D. U.'s.

To install the group with proper ceremony, John D. Scott, D. U. national vice-president came out from Chicago. Members from other chapters who now make homes in Oregon, California, former Sigma Pi Taus, faculty members from other institutions, swelled the attendance at the official event to more than 150.

Installation events also made the week-end brilliant socially. Friday evening the formal dance was one of the outstanding events of the season. Saturday's formal banquet brought together many notables in and out of D. U. ranks.

Oregon chapter of Delta Upsilon now takes its place with 16 other national men's fraternities on this campus. Installation also marks the end of local fraternities on the campus.

Henceforth all "Greeks" will have national affiliations in one of following: Alpha Tau Omega, Beta Theta Pi, Chi Psi, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Psi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Mu, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Theta Chi.

last season for radio broadcasts for sum of $60,000. Pleased with his work, his ability, PCC elected him head of graduate managers for coming year.

Taking over the graduate manager's job when the A. S. U. O. was some $200,000 behind, Rosson has watched expenditures, budgets, seized on money making opportunities, until at start of this year debt was but $80,000, and profits on football and other sources of income will bring this down still further before the end of the school year.

With better times in sight, as signified by financial showing, minor sports program was largely re-established this year, with tennis, golf, swimming and cross country back. Concert series, formerly always a delight for music lovers, came back also, with Roland Hayes, world-famed tenor as headliner.

CWA Art

Keen lover of arts is Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University of Oregon, donor of the University's beloved "Pioneer Mother" statue. Delighted is he with new task, that of chairman of regional civil works art committee, which will employ 75 artists from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana during coming months.

Elephant Fights

Should any resident of Oregon want to know all about elephant fights, or anything else about these largest living mammals, a two-volume book in the University library is available. Only drawback: a knowledge of Japanese is essential. Gift of Author Etsujiro Sunamoto, Tokio, son of ivory trader, is this monumental work. Another welcome gift book donated by a countryman of Sunamoto's, Diasez Teitano Suzuki, on Zen Buddhism. . . . "in it are things that will be found helpful to Western mind, not only spiritually but psychologically and philosophically," says the author.

Home Work

Many students, prospective students, now remain at home, unable to finance college or university education, or needed to aid their families. Many other residents of the state want knowledge in various higher education fields. Students may continue their education, others gain desired information, through "group study" plans of the general extension division. Not only more fun is group plan, undoubtedly more interesting and informative, but cheaper to students. Classes have been organized and are steadily growing in Klamath Falls, Bend, Roseburg.

Men Lead!

Women students, perhaps because they don't have to do so much work toward their own support, perhaps because they enter less highly specialized fields, usually average higher in grades at the University of Oregon. But for last year all women's living organizations are topped by Sigma Hall, men's unit in the dormitory. Far above the University average of 1.343 was this group, with an average of 1.804. Hendricks Hall, girls' dormitory, placed second, averaging 1.591. First in Greek letter groups was Sigma Kappa, women's national, scoring in third position.

Many Vote

Figuratively pouring into the alumni office in every mail along with Christmas cards and December bills came nearly 600 ballots last month on which "paid-up" members of the Alumni Association had marked their choice of alumni officers for the coming year.

For three of the five positions to be filled there was no contest. Ralph Cake, '13, Portland, was unopposed for president. Joe Freck, Jr., '31, Portland, incumbent, had no opponents for vice-presidency. Merle Chessman, '09, Astoria, member of executive committee Oregon Dads, was unanimous choice for two-year position on alumni executive committee.

For the two remaining positions the race was close. Omar "Slug" Palmer, '32, Portland, won the three-year director position over Edgar Smith, ex-'09, Portland, by 35 votes, the count being 268 to 233. Carl Nelson, '19, Salem, nosed out Harold J. Warner, '13, Pendleton, state commander American Legion, by four votes. A. E. Reames, ex-'93, Medford, ran a close third.

A check with former election results indicated a revival of interest in Association affairs. Rarely have more than 500 votes been cast before.

Christmas day, President-elect Cake left Portland for the East, but is planning to swing in on his presidential term as soon as he returns.

SAN FRANCISCO

Bay City Boosters

To San Francisco Thanksgiving day went new Alumni President Ralph Cake, '13, (who followed the Oregon team on every one of its trips this year). Also went newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mautz (Marguerite Tarbell, '33), Graduate Manager Hugh Rosson, his assistants Sam Wilderman ex-'28, and Tom Stoddard, '30, Student Body President Tom Tongue, the coaching staff, the football team and many another loyal alumnus, student and Oregon fan. All went south in the hope of seeing Oregon's mighty green-jersied Webfoots conquer at last the footballers from St. Mary's college.

Engineered by Maurice Hyde, '17, and Don Davis, '21, was a huge luncheon held in the Garden rooms of the St. Germain restaurant. Nearly 250 alumni of the Bay district turned out to honor the football retinue from their alma mater.

So enthusiastic were those attending over the prospects for a win the following day, over the joy of meeting old friends and fellow alumni, that diminutive Press Agent Wilderman, who acted as master of ceremonies, had difficulty in making himself heard, in keeping order so others could be heard.

Said Assistant Graduate Manager Stoddard to San Francisco alumni: "A spirit such as displayed here today has long been lacking in the San Francisco area. Oregon's athletic program needs your enthusiastic support both in spirit and material help to the team. I congratulate you on this gathering and hope that it's spirit can be maintained."

Said Honeymooner Mautz, "Oregon's football team this year is the best Oregon team I have ever seen." Said President Tongue, "The old Oregon Spirit that has been reborn on the campus this year seems to have found its way to every alumni gathering held this year. The spirit shown here today will likewise serve to strengthen the student spirit back home. The building of Oregon spirit is a cooperative enterprise between students and alumni." Graduate Manager Rosson talked of the spirit behind college athletics. He said, "College teams are made up of regular college students; they are not infallible; they make mistakes; don't be too critical. Play your side of amateur athletics in the same spirit that these boys play the game."

The meeting adjourned with the walls quaking to the strains of "Mighty Oregon." Alumni filed out to gather again the next day and witness one of Oregon's greatest football demonstrations of all time, winning from St. Mary's by score of 13 to 7. Won also was the unqualified praise of San Francisco sportdom.

PORTLAND

Teaching Alumni

IN THE cafeteria room of the Lincoln high school, Portland, Thursday following Christmas, nearly 75 Oregon alumni who have found their way into the teaching and school administration profession in Oregon gathered for their annual "little Homecoming" held each year in connection with the meeting of the state teachers' association.

Following the luncheon, which was presided over by Stephen W. Matthieu, '19, Portland, attending alumni heard University Vice-president Burt Brown Barker say, in response to his assigned subject, "Where is the University Headed?," that the idealism and sound foundations laid by past presidents of the institution would lead their alma mater out of the chaos of past few years. The spirit of noble devotion still lived, he declared, and was the hope of the institution.

Other speakers: Fred L. Stetson, education professor, who outlined the work and personnel of the school of education; Orrin D. Byers, '26, principal, Rainier Union high school, who believed secondary education was to play a fundamental part in rehabilitation of human standards; Rex Putnam, '15, superintendent of Albany schools, who said education was probably the key to success or failure in the "new deal."

To Dean Henry D. Sheldon, who has been temporarily forced to give up his teaching duties at the University, alumni sent a message of greetings and best wishes for a quick return to health and active teaching again in the University.

Those attending were:

Claud A. Aerhart, '25, Mrs. Alevia Stiles Alexander, '24, M.A. '28, Lloyd F. Beerman, ex-'34, Gibson Bowles, M.A. '28, Lucy B. Copenhaver, '28, A. A. Campbell, '31, M.A. '32, H. H. Rowe, '31, Milwaukie; Gerald Smith, '32, Vancouver, Washington; Eliza Stevens, ex-'23, Bonneville; Ulala Strattan, '21, Gresham; Henry E. Teitz, '25, Rufus; Mabel L. Wallace, M.S. '29, Baker; Otis J. White, '27, Sheridan; Mrs. Beatrice Young, ex-'16, La Grande.

PERSONALS

Sees Again

Last month a Salem physician took bandages from the eyes of Donald Smith, '31, and for the first time in fifteen years Smith was able to see objects, distinguish colors. In 1918

Donald Smith's eyes were blinded by an accidental explosion. His education was received at the Oregon school for the blind, Beaverton high school, and the University of Oregon, where, despite his handicap, he was awarded membership in Phi Beta Kappa. His most disappointing reaction: that automobiles were not the things of beauty he had imagined. Most striking and pleasant thing to him: the brilliant neon signs in the city. His hope: that he may become a self-supporting citizen. While on the campus Smith was active in promoting the Braille library collection for the blind; read proof for locally manufactured Braille books. He was married to Grace Farris, ex-'33, about a year ago.

Srips Political Cords

In Japan last month Yosuke Matsuoka, LL.B. '00, who, as Japan's representative to the League of Nations walked out of that body last year taking with him Japan's representation, last month turned in his resignation from the Japanese Seiyukai, majority party in the national house of representatives, declaring that he felt that political parties were a hindrance to sorely-needed national unity in Japan. Political writers saw in his move the possibility of an ambition to lead a new and youthful fascist movement in his Oriental empire.

Clubwomen's Editor

Miss Jeannette Calkins, '18, formerly secretary of the Alumni Association and editor of OLD OREGON, has been named to the editorship of the Oregon Clubwoman, official magazine of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Miss Calkins had served as manager of the magazine since last September. The offices of the publication are located in Portland.

Best in U. S.

Best educational journal in U. S. was the rating recently given to Oregon Educational Journal, result of a survey made by Dr. David A. Weaver of school of education of College of the City of New York. Editor of Oregon's journal is E. F. Carleton, ex-'00, whose rating as an educator is quite equal to that of his excellent publication.

Injured Tackle

Last year Bill Hayward devised braces for the injured wrists of Captain Bill Morgan. This year, injured while playing for professional New York Giants, Morgan was unable to find braces capable of permitting him to stay in the lineup. The injury was spinal in nature, but will not keep him from playing again next season.

Diplomat

In Buenos Aires, Argentine recently, John N. Hamlin, ex-'19, who has been serving as second secretary in the American embassy there, received word of his appointment to the consulate at Naples, Italy. Hamlin's career has been one of steady progression up the diplomatic ladder, beginning his chosen work after graduation from Harvard at Tirana, Albania. From there he was sent to Madrid, where his knowledge of the Spanish peoples and language soon won him a place in the embassy at Buenos Aires. Hamlin has been unable to avail himself of a past-due furlough to the United States because of the troubled political situation in the South American republic.

Store Alumni

Nearly 30 alumni, all employees of the Meier and Frank department store of Portland, have organized an alumni club, with the purpose of becoming better acquainted with one another and to give more personal service to students and alumni of the University who patronize the store. Helen Stanton, ex-'33, has been named secretary of the group.

Staff Members

The staff of the Eugene Bible college, which this year has taken over Spokane university, lists several Oregon alumni on its staff of teachers.

Alumni who have positions with the new combined college are: S. Earl Childers, '12; Linden G. Leavitt, ex-'22; Victor E. Hoven, M.A. '19; Ross Guiley, '29; Harry Benton, ex-'03; Mrs. Louisa Flint Kellems, '18; and Mrs. Mary Ashurst Stevens, ex-'21.

FACULTY

Councilmen

Re-elected as members of the advisory council, representatives of the faculty, were Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of social science, and Wayne L. Morse, dean of the school of law, at the December meeting. Professorial members were Dr. James D. Barnett, political science, and Dr. Dan Clark, history. Holdover members: Dr. C. V. Boyer, dean of the college of arts and letters, and Dr. H. G. Townsend, professor of philosophy.

Job Expert

Obviously one of the reasons many students come to university and college is to better fit themselves for jobs. On graduation day many ask, bewildered, "Where are the jobs?" To aid these students, institutions all over the country are establishing personnel bureaus, purpose of which is to bring student and job together. A leader in this work has been University of Oregon's Dean of Personnel Karl W. Onthank. Recognition of this leadership came during the latter part of December, when Dean Onthank was selected to head an important discussion group for the Western Guidance conference, which met for a full week at the International House, University of California.

Poetry . . .

Poetry is not just for few literary or poetic minded, but appreciation can be taught to anyone interested. Mechanics of making poetry, bugaboo that drove many away, Dr. Ernest G. Moll, poet and professor, relegates to end of his new course. Equip students with definite technique of observation, help

SPORTS

BASKETBALL

Desperate Sophomores

GARBED in natty new uniforms, University of Oregon's basketball team will this season work desperately to regain its old supremacy, will at least try to climb from cellar position of last year to upper division in the conference. Hard work will be needed, for Coach William Reinhart has a small squad, largely sophomores, with which to carry on.

If auspicious start means anything, Oregon should go far. Willamette, always a hard-fighting, aggressive team, was defeated by Oregon (35 to 27) for the first time in five years. The Webfeet then had an easy victory over Linfield (43 to 27); came from behind to defeat the strong DeNeffe team (38 to 32); won from Columbia university (35 to 19). Playing against the Union Oil team of Portland, an aggregation of former stars, Oregon was barely nosed out, 30 to 27. Then beat Willamette again (29 to 12) and revengefully turned back Union Oil in second fame (27 to 20).

Much of Oregon's offensive play this year will be built around slippery, fast Jack (Spook) Robertson, two-year veteran. In five pre-season games he has run up total of 55 points, has consistently been high point man. Elusive, quick and accurate near the basket, Robertson can also play guard capably.

Olinger Is "Spark"

Dead-eye on cripple shots is Captain Gilbert Olinger, who from his position at guard often breaks down for scores. Cool during play, a good leader, Olinger has plenty of fight and spirit. Oregon supporters look to him to provide much of the "spark" for this season's play.

Three sophomores will find places in starting combinations this year. Most promising of this crop is Willard Jones, transfer from Ashland Normal school, who towers six feet four inches in height. To him will go the center position, with his height and speed putting him on a parity with other centers in the conference. Next sophomore is Bud Jones, no kin to Willard, who also comes from Ashland Normal. Tall also, (6 feet, 2 inches) is aggressive, known already as a great "ballhawk."

Needing only experience to make him a player of real worth, third sophomore is Ron Gemmell, speedy forward. In pre-season clashes he has been alternating with Bill Berg, one-year letterman, who has shown consistent improvement this year.

Reserves Look Good

Others showing up well to date include: Bob Miller, husky forward, usually a good shot; Glen Sanford, sophomore guard, ex-all star from Salem high school; Ed Kunkle, lanky forward, who can alternate at center capably; Jim Watts, veteran guard, whose entry may be delayed somewhat by an injured cheekbone.

OFF TO START
Coach Bill Reinhart who has in his charge a young but hopeful basketball team for 1934

Home fans will see Oregon players in their new uniforms: brilliant Kelly green satin pants, yellow jerseys with green bands on chest and numerals on backs; on the road white jerseys will be worn.

Local Backers

Eugene grid enthusiasts, loyal supporters of University's athletic program, have waited patiently many years for just such an opportunity as they had December 14. This was the huge community banquet, planned to celebrate Oregon's co-championship in football, first conference title won by Webfoot gridgers since 1919. Although sharing the top position with Stanford, Oregon nevertheless is coast champion by virtue of an all-victory, less defeat to U.S.C., season.

Packed to capacity was the banquet hall of the Osburn hotel. Thrilled were grid supporters as well as team members when following spoke thus: Hugh E. Rosson, graduate manager, "This championship means the beginning of a new era in University of Oregon football and athletics generally;" Dr. James H. Gilbert, veteran dean of social science, "Hope regarding the future is bolstered by the fine spirit the whole University has shown during past season;" Dave Graham, '05, Eugene merchant, "People of Eugene are deeply appreciative of the achievement of this great team;" William L. (Bill) Hayward, "The boys played the best game I've ever seen against St. Mary's . . . team is as good as any we have ever had."

It's an Honor

Deafening applause greeted "Iron Mike" Mikulak, Oregon's All-American fullback, when he said "I sincerely believe Prince Callison is the greatest coach in football today. It's an honor to be on a championship team, but it's just as great an honor to have played under such a coach."

Presented to the gathering were Oregon's next years captains, two of them—Raymond (Butch) Morse, and Robert (Bob) Parke.

To the Oregon team was presented the coveted "governor's trophy," gift of Oregon's Governor Meier and California's Governor Rolph, awarded annually to victorious team in Oregon - St. Mary's clash. Other awards: three-year blankets to Mark Temple, Bernie Hughes, Mike Mikulak, Irwin Nilsson, Chuck Wishard, Bud Pozzo, Leighton Gee, Howard Clark; letters on varsity sweaters to Howard Bobbitt, Roy Gagnon, Ray Morse.

Cherished Victory

Oregon's last game of the 1933 season was her most cherished victory. In it the Webfoots humbled St. Mary's, 13 to 7, after five years of futile endeavor. Spectators were still entering the arena when Cowboy Mark Temple whipped a pass to Leighton Gee for the first touchdown. Two periods later St. Mary's gained a 7-7 tie when elongated end Fred Canrinus blocked Parke's punt. Then Oregon won the game on an irresistible march, then saw Parke vindicate his punting error with a touchdown. Star of the game was long-legged Butch Morse, Webfoot end. He halted every Gael effort. St. Mary's put him on her all-opponent all-star team over famed Captain Ford Palmer of U.S.C.

Intersectional

When East met West at San Francisco New Year's Day for charity, two Oregon athletes distinguished themselves as the host team crumpled the East's All-Americans, 12 to 0. Chunky guard Bree Cuppoletti backed up the western line like a wall of masonry, repeatedly helped Oregon's Mike Mikulak halt Tennessee's famed halfback Beatie Feathers and Michigan's celebrated Herman Everhardus. Star of the game was Nebraska's truly great fullback, George H. Sauer. He bombed the line like a cavalry team, skirted the ends like a whippet, scored both touchdowns, outpunted Feathers.

While the mighty Sauer, aided by his Oregon assistants, humbled the East, Oregon grid enthusiasts listened gleefully as Stanford, which refused to play Oregon in the Rose Bowl, chose lowly Columbia instead, was levelled off in the most stunning football upset of 19 years of competition. Score: 7 to 0 for Columbia, doped to lose by from two to five touchdowns. Quarterback Captain Cliff Montgomery tossed a pass to Tony Matal for 17 yards early in the game. Then Al Barabas, 171 pounds of galloping power, raced 19 yards to goal. Center Newell Wilder converted the point that wasn't needed. From then on Stanford's famed fullback Bobby (the Boomer) Grayson, 198-pound line smasher from Portland, ran up and down the muddy field like a race-horse. But he never crossed the last line. Plucky Columbia always halted him and Bob (Bones) Hamilton short of touchdown country.

them to an understanding of what poetry is and what it has to offer. Says Dr. Moll, in his new book published by F. S. Crofts and company (New York), "The teacher having thus opened their eyes, he may expect them to enter into the life that poetry is. Entering into it with them, he may go on to teach them to discriminate and evaluate, to choose one poetic experience as more valuable than another, to feed their minds with that particular stuff which will best stimulate their intellectual growth." Part of general Carnegie sponsored project in appreciation of arts, Dr. Moll's experimental class attracted national attention, formed the basis for his well-received book.

Probe Postponed

Necessitating postponement of the board of higher education's probe into his "insubordination" Wayne L. Morse, youthful dean of the University law school, left early in the holidays for Chicago, where he not only attended the annual session of National Association of Law schools, but lead one of the forums on the program. Dean Morse, probably the youngest law dean in the country, also delivered an address to the national group.

"Edwardi Tertii"

"Naive and droll" said Latin Professor Frederic Dunn, of Robert Avesbury, from whose work "De Gestis Edwardi Tertii" he collected all applicable words, phrases and idioms for inclusion in the British Medieval Latin dictionary. This quota was assigned to Professor Dunn, as his share of the dictionary. Preparation of the work occupied Professor Dunn all last summer, and gratifying to him and to friends was notice of acceptance received recently from publishers.

Vagabond

Busy professor was Dr. Ray P. Bowen, head of Romance languages department, during Christmas holidays. January 12 he will set out aboard President Lincoln from San Francisco, bound for Japan, where he will visit Dr. A. R. Moore, on-leave professor of physiology; for Manila, Singapore, Penang, India, thence to Europe. Enthusiastic over travel at this time is Professor Bowen. "Rate war" he says, "has reduced travelling expense to minimum, made vagabond tours to any part of the world possible even for professors!"

Job Hunter's Friend

Unemployment relief and its consequences will be thoroughly investigated all over U. S. soon. Unemployment census, occupational history, occupational disintegration, chronic unemployment will be probed by a committee, of which Dr. E. B. Mittleman, associate professor of business administration here, will be a member. In line with this work, Dr. Mittleman has been named by Governor Julius L. Meier as a member of an interim unemployment insurance group to make recommendations to the 1935 legislature regarding insurance for the unemployed for the state of Oregon. The committee was authorized by the regular session of the legislature last year.

—about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Everything that money can buy and everything that Science knows about is used to make Chesterfields. The tobaccos are blended and cross-blended the right way — the cigarettes are made right — the paper is right.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder
the cigarette that tastes better
