22 to 43% LESS ENGINE WEAR WITH TRITON MOTOR OIL

Above chart shows comparative rates of engine wear with high grade Eastern and Western oils, and with TRITON—as indicated by extensive engine wear tests.

UNDER identical conditions of speed and temperature an automobile engine was run in a series of 1,000 mile tests with high-grade "Eastern" and "Western" oils, and Triton.

After each 1,000 mile period, the oil was drained from the crankcase and scientifically analyzed to determine its iron content.

The analyses of the various oils showed that Triton reduced engine wear from 22 to 43%—depending on the oil used—22% in the case of the Eastern oil and 43% in the case of the Western oil.

The results of these wear tests were backed up by cylinder measurements of a stock car driven 60,183 miles in 60 days with Triton motor oil. These measurements, made by Prof. R. L. Daugherty, California Institute of Technology, before and after the run showed less than one-half the normal wear for that distance!

Other Ways You Benefit From Triton!

Over 250,000 miles of stock car road and speedway runs have shown that:

Triton outlasts Eastern or Western oils... forms less carbon and less sludge... is more stable in service... is less affected by temperature... assures easier starting... saves the battery, and reduces cold motor wear.

Made by Propane Solvent Process

Triton is refined by Union's patented PROPANE solvent process, which eliminates all undesirable low-gravity, low-grade materials from the finished oil.

NEWS AND COMMENT

By The Editor

Enrollment Holds Up

More than 2,200 students have registered at the University for spring term, according to figures released by Clifford L. Constance, assistant registrar. This is an increase of more than 200 over spring term a year ago, and indicates only the normal decline from winter term totals.

However, in the enrollment figures in the student body under the enforced optional payment plan, similar satisfactory results can not be pointed out. As compared to the 2,200 students, student body officers could show only 900 who had seen fit to pay the extra $5 entitling them to the privileges of participating in activities. This response was prior to the drive for additional members which is now in progress.

Activity Fees Trouble

The week before at Corvallis the Oregon State student body experienced even more difficulty along this line with an approximate 400 out of an even slightly larger enrollment than Oregon's making payments. An intensive drive brought this figure well above 1,000 and saved a threatened downfall of the student body at that institution. Although the situation is serious at the University, it was decided to continue the spring term activities even if it be found necessary to use up the small reserves and possibly borrow. This action was taken awaiting the final outcome of the recent legislative bill empowering the state board to collect a mandatory fee once again.

Farewell to Bill

Bill Reinhart is to leave the University of Oregon and the Pacific Coast conference! (See story under "Sports").

The fact that he is accepting a job that offers greater opportunity is in itself a tribute to his coaching ability and recognition of the fine record he has hung up at the University during the twelve years he has served as head coach for basketball and baseball.

But even more important and a fact that makes his decision to leave a hard one to accept, is that during his dozen years at Oregon his leadership has been a vital and contributing factor to the upbuilding of Oregon sports and "Oregon spirit."

Bill's teams, win or lose, have been hard-fighting, ambitious aggregations, well schooled in the fundamentals of their sport, spirited and always a threat to any opponent. To lose a man of Bill's calibre from the coaching staff is to leave a gap of both coaching strength and leadership that will be difficult to fill. Certainly whoever is chosen to fill the vacancy will have a fine precedent to follow, however.

Heretofore basketball and baseball at Oregon have inevitably been tied up with the name of Bill Reinhart. Also, many are unaware of the amount of credit due Reinhart for success in other sports as well. Modesty, ability and sportsmanship have marked his distinguished career at Oregon. Alumni and sports fans of Oregon regret his leaving, but at the same time wish him all success in his new position and the greater opportunities that it offers.

Rumors Unfounded

Old Oregon takes this opportunity to explain to alumni who might have been exposed to the rumors concerning a shakeup in the football coaching situation, that no such action has been taken or is contemplated.

Just how or from where these rumors first originated is difficult to trace, although it is believed that an unrelated series of events and circumstances contributed to the unfounded conclusions that trouble was stirring in the coaching situation.

The fact that Callison's one-year contract with the A.S.U.O. was up for renewal; that the student executive council was meeting to consider applicants for the vacancy in basketball and baseball; that newspapers had erroneously stated that certain known football coaches were being considered for the "basketball" berth; and the fact that consideration was being given to a reorganization in the coaching staff to allow for a full-time freshman coach were undoubtedly all misunderstood to mean that the executive council was attempting to make a change in the football situation.

However, in answer to these rumors, the executive council announced that Graduate Manager Rosson had been instructed to negotiate with Callison for re-appointment for another year. Decision on the basketball and baseball job and the freshman mentor awaits upon further deliberation by the executive council.

COACH BILL REINHART

Who has resigned as Webfoot basketball and baseball coach to take over similar duties at George Washington university. He will leave the campus this summer after coaching Oregon teams for 12 years, during which he won five northern division titles.

A L U M N I

In the meantime Coach Callison and his aides were working at spring practice with the nucleus for next year's football squad. Thus the last lingering doubts as to the intent of the executive council were dispelled.

Stray Bits

Newspaper talk has stated with some show of authenticity that Governor Martin is contemplating certain changes in the personnel of the state board of higher education. Indications are that Mrs. Walter M. Pierce and F. E. Callister have both had it suggested to them that due to their prolonged absences from the state, that they resign. Releases from Washington, D. C., indicate Mrs. Pierce's unwillingness to do so. It has also been stated on seemingly good authority that E. C. Sammons, whose term has expired, will be re-appointed. Citizens whose names have been mentioned by the press as possible successors should Mrs. Pierce and Mr. Callister both leave the board are: Robert Ruhl, Medford newspaper publisher; Raymond Wilcox of Portland; E. C. Pease of The Dalles, former board member, and Judge Robert W. Sawyer of Bend.

The Lane county court has authorized District Attorney Brooke to proceed with an appeal of the Miner Building tax case, which involves the authority of the county to tax the eight story business block which was deeded over to the University to support a chair in real estate and insurance. The county court previously handed down a decision against the county and the legislature at its last session refused to pass a bill placing the building on the tax rolls.

One of the most controversial of measures to come before the recent session of the legislature was the bill authorizing school districts of certain populations and assessed valuations to inaugurate two years of junior college work for high school graduates. After some revisions and amendments, the bill passed both houses but was vetoed by the governor. Most important of Governor Martin's objections to the bill was the fact that it authorized a tax levy of two mills on real and personal property in the district to defray the expenses of the junior college.

A bill authorizing the state board of higher education to extend the benefits of the child guidance clinic of the University medical school to counties outside of Multnomah and providing a $10,000 appropriation for the purpose received the governor's veto.

COACHES

Championship Teams

Sixteen of the best high school basketball teams participated in a state-wide tournament at Salem late in March, and Astoria's fast-breaking Fishermen won the title by a top-heavy score against Jefferson high school of Portland. The lower Columbia river city has taken four hoop championships since the annual playoffs were begun 16 years ago, all under the coaching of "Honest John" Warren, who graduated from Oregon in 1928.

Equaling Astoria's record, but perhaps in less spectacular manner, is that of Salem high school, coached by Hollis Huntington, ex-'17, and which has likewise won four state titles. For the past six years these two schools have been consistent title contenders. Astoria's team this year, however, won all of its games by decisive margins, whereas Salem has been more evenly matched by teams of its own upper Willamette valley district.

The most surprising team of the 1935 tourney was the B league entry from Oakridge, coached by Gilbert Sprague, '31, who is also principal of the school where more than half of the 50 boys enrolled turn out for basketball. Though placing sixth among the winners, the Ridgers earned two positions on the all-star quintet, along with two from Astoria and one from Jefferson high, Portland.

Other contenders coached by University alumni were La Grande, coached by Ira C. Woodie, '29; The Dalles, by Beryl Hodgen, '28, and McMinnville, by George Allison, '27.

Bush Leaguers

The 16 tournament teams, 12 from cities and four from smaller towns, are only those who emerge successfully from the winter-long "bush league" competition waged in every part of the state. In about 50 of Oregon's high schools, teams are coached by graduates of the University of Oregon.

The list, compiled by the school of physical education, is as follows:

George Allison, '27, McMinnville; Paul Angstead, '29, Paisley; Orville Bailey, '33, Dallas; M. H. Beal, '31, Stayton; Walter Beck, '31, Airline; Myron Blackwell, '32, Drain; Ernest Calc, '34, Pedee; Robert Chatterton, '33, Springfield; LaSelle Coles, '29, Prineville; A. B. Collett, '33, Williams; Jean Eberhart, '31, University high, Eugene; Elmer Halstead, '28, Santa Clara; Marion Hall, '32, Springfield; Ray W. Hardman, '32, Pine City; Don Hartung, '34 (M.A.), Molalla; Harold Hatton, '31, Hermiston; Robert Henagin, '28 Coburg; Beryl Hodgen, '28, The Dalles; Frank Hoover, '33, Crow; John C. Johnson, '22, Lapine; Fred W. Jones, '23, Gates; Arthur Kiesz, '33, Ontario; Glenn Kimberling, '31, Canyon City; Charles (Chappie) King, '32, Franklin high, Portland; Jerome Lillie, '31, St. Helens; John Londahl, '32, Redmond; A. R. Marsh, '27, Yoncalla; A. M. Mason, '31, Oakland; Norville May, '30, Milwaukie; Leonard Mayfield, '29, Oregon City; Wallace McCrae, '33, Vernonia; T. L. McCraw, '24, Parkrose; Elmo Olnscheid, '34, Leaburg; W. R. Padrick, '29, Hood River; Harry E. Palmer, '33, Sweet Home; Roland Parks, '32, Malin; Melvin Ray, '34, Perrydale; E. F. Richmond, '27, Oswego-West Linn; Wayne Robinson, '30, Lostine; Frank Smith, '31, Upper Mohawk; Gilbert Sprague, '31, Oakridge; Mark Temple, '33, Pendleton; Edward Warren, '29, Beaverton; John Warren, '28, Astoria; Victor Wetzel, '29, Reedsport; Earl Whittaker, '33, Florence; Laurence Winter, '32, Heppner; Charles Wishard, '34, Prairie City; Ira C. Woodie, '29, La Grande; A. H. Wright, '30, Long Creek.

All-University Dance

Students and alumni of the University were hosts to approximately 200 high school student guests during the spring holidays in Portland at an all-University "Spring Frolic" dance held Friday evening, March 29, at the Multnomah hotel.

The affair was the first of its kind to be staged by the Alumni Association and the Affiliated Living Groups of the University. Because of its success, plans are already under way for another such affair to be held prior to the opening of school next fall.

Gilbert Wellington, president of the Affiliated Living Groups, was student chairman of the dance. University and student administrative officers and officers of the Alumni Association served as patrons and patronesses.

Hill Anniversary

President and Mrs. Claiborne Milton Hill, '81, (Anna Pengra, '83), of the Berkeley Baptist Divinity school, were recently honored by the Berkeley Women's City club with a doubly significant anniversary dinner. The event marked the half-century year since their marriage, which followed an Oregon campus romance, and of President Hill's ordination to the Christian ministry. The year is in addition the thirtieth since his becoming head of the California school.

Nearly 200 guests attended the complimentary dinner. City Manager Hollis R. Thompson of Berkeley, representatives from California and Stanford universities and from other educational institutions, as well as a number of pastors from the Bay region were among those who extended anniversary greetings to President and Mrs. Hill.

President Hill received his master's degree on the campus in 1884, and then attended eastern institutions. From 1884 to 1889 he served as pastor of the First Baptist church in Eugene. Mrs. Hill was the daughter of a leading pioneer family of Oregon.

Campus Life for Alums

An "alumni summer session" may be held for the first time on the Oregon campus this year, if a committee of faculty members, headed by Dr. Victor P. Morris, now working on the proposal, find sufficient interest among University alumni. Plans for the session will depend also upon the approval of the state board of higher education, it was stated by Dr. C. V. Boyer, president.

The project, if carried out, will be held during the week between commencement and regular summer session, June 17 to 22. Alumni from all parts of the Pacific coast will be invited to return to the campus for the event.

Faculty members, many of them veterans and favorites with students for many years, will be asked to give short courses and conduct discussion groups during the session. Since the school will be an attempt to crowd many features of college life into the week, a program of social events that will include dances, picnics and even "mill-race parties" will be planned.

Exhibit in Portland

Sketches, prints, oils, watercolors, sculpture, and ceramics comprise the first annual exhibition of the University Alumni Art league, which opened at the Portland Art museum April 1. The artists are all alumni of the department of architecture and allied arts.

Three large watercolors are displayed by Harold Wagner, '33, who has been working on murals with Faville in San Francisco. Edgar Bohman, '26, internationally known for his stage and costume designs, is showing photographs of his latest sketches made in Morocco where he is at present conducting a sketching trip. A group of etchings by the well-known artist, Louis Rosenberg, former faculty member, are included in the exhibit.

Drawings of the Long Beach earthquake are featured among those displayed by Carl Heilborn, ex-'29, who is noted for his prints and drawings. Ray Kermit Thompson, '29, Arthur Riehl, '32, and Edward Hicks, '34, have submitted pencil sketches. Woodcuts of North Dakota scenes by Germany Klemm, '21; watercolors and prints by Hope Nash; woodcuts by Ray Bethers, ex-'25; and paintings by Nellie Best, '29, and Mary Kirkwood, '30, are among the exhibited works. Other artists in this division are Gretta Cocking, '33, and Virginia Keeney Smith, '27.

Among the Portland architects exhibiting are A. Glen Stanton, '18; Walter Church, '16; Abbott Lawrence, '28; Frank Roehr, '27; George Wardner, Jr., '29, and Margaret Fritsch, '23. New pieces of sculpture have been submitted by Lydia Herrick Hodge, '27; Dorothy York, ex-'34; Harriet Meyer,

'31; Saverina Graziano, '31; and Rex Sorensen, '32.

University faculty members exhibiting oils, etchings and watercolors are Eyer Brown, '16; Maude Kerns, '99; Wallace Hayden, '28; and Andrew Vincent, Lance Hart, and David McCosh.

Medical Alumni Meet

Two hundred graduates of the University of Oregon Medical School attended the twenty-second annual meeting and post-graduate session of the alumni association of that institution, March 4, 5 and 6. Outstanding Pacific coast medical authorities presented papers and lectures in special fields during the three-day session.

Officers elected for the coming year are: President, Earl DuBois, M.D., Portland; first vice-president, Arthur C. Jones, M.D., Portland; second vice-president, Harvey Woods, M.D., Ashland; third vice-president, Webster K. Ross, M.D., La Grande; fourth vice-president, Christian Quevli, M.D., Tacoma, Washington; treasurer, Harry Irvine, M.D., Portland; secretary, B. A. Van Loan, M.D., Portland.

A leading guest speaker was Dr. Harold Brunn, author of several surgical books, clinical professor of surgery at Berkeley, and surgeon-in-chief at San Francisco and Mt. Zion hospitals, who gave two addresses as well as conducted a clinic during the meet. More than a score of other medical experts discussed specialized phases of medical practice.

Outgoing officers were: President, Leo Lucas, M.D., Portland; first vice-president, Earl DuBois, M.D., Portland; second vice-president, Albert J. Bowles, M.D., Seattle, Washington; third vice-president, Charles W. Lemery, M.D., Medford; fourth vice-president, William E. Grieve, M.D., Spokane, Washington; treasurer, Arthur C. Jones, M.D., Portland. Dr. Van Loan was retained as secretary.

Book by Winther

Another book by an Oregon alum, Eugene O'Neil, a Critical Study, written by Sophus K. Winther, '18, has been added to the University library.

Dr. Winther received his B.A. in 1918 and his M.A. in 1922 from Oregon, and his Ph.D. from the University of Washington in 1926.

CONFERENCES

Six Organizations Meet

A planned future for Oregon was visioned by more than 500 civic leaders from all sections of the state who gathered on the campus on March 25 for the three-day session of the annual Commonwealth conference. Nationally known experts from the east as well as the Pacific coast assisted with an extensive program.

Representatives of six state groups, the Oregon state planning board, the Oregon planning council, League of Oregon Cities, secretaries of chambers of commerce, recreational leaders and the Oregon roadside council, held separate sessions as well as attending the general meetings.

Governor Charles H. Martin, heading a large group of Oregon officials who gave addresses, opened the conference with his views on "The Future of Oregon." He declared that the 1935 legislative session, "a remarkably fine assemblage of citizens," had sent the state well on its way toward revising "an archaic form of government."

TVA Man Speaks

Most eminent among out-of-state speakers was Earle S. Draper, director of land planning for the Tennessee Valley authority, who gave three addresses on the general subject, "Regional Planning for the Development of Land and Water Resources." He described the work being carried out on the Tennessee project, and stressed its significance to Oregon where the Bonneville power and Willamette drainage projects may necessitate similar "authorities."

Other speakers included: Gordon Whitnall, co-ordinator on governmental simplification for Los Angeles county; Earl Thomas, ex-Portlander and now mayor of Palo Alto, California, recent president of the California League of Cities; Winslow Uptegraff, Los Angeles, editor of Western City magazine; C. W. Ham, director of field service for the American Municipal association; A. S. Burrier, land planning consultant for the Oregon national resource board; S. W. Starr, supervisor of the division of audits for the state of Oregon, and Eugene Kely, of the state liquor commission.

Three Oregon alumni were listed among those figuring in the annual election of officers of the League of Oregon Cities: J. W. McArthur, '08, superintendent of the Eugene water board, elected treasurer; Charles H. Huggins, ex-'22, mayor of Marshfield, elected to the executive committee, and Ormond R. Bean, '09, commissioner of public works of Portland, retiring as president.

Violinist Wins Honors

Many times acclaimed by Oregon music lovers as a violinist with the talents of near-genius, Frances Brockman, University senior in music, will be among the finest young artists of the nation to compete in Philadelphia, April 23. Miss Brockman will represent the Pacific northwest in a contest sponsored by the Federated Music Clubs of America.

At the invitation of Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, the Oregon girl violinist will appear in recital in Washington, D. C., on April 22, the day before the national contest. Among noted guests invited will be Hans Kindler, director of the National Symphony orchestra in Washington.

The young artists' contest finals will be broadcast April 26 over a nationwide network. Winners in the four classes—piano, violin, voice and opera voice—will be awarded $1000 prizes, while Schubert Memorial, Inc., has offerred a major orchestral appearance in New York for the winners in piano and violin.

Miss Brockman has appeared twice as soloist with the Portland Symphony orchestra this year, as well as many times in recital in Eugene. She is an honor student and a former president of the campus chapter of Phi Beta. national music and drama group. She is a student of Rex Underwood, head of the campus violin department.

S. H. Friendly Hall

Friendly hall, the University's third oldest building, will henceforth be known officially as the "S. H. Friendly Hall." The change was made at the request of the heirs of Sampson H. Friendly, member of the board of regents from 1895 to 1915, for whom the building was named.

Erected in 1893, the structure served as men's dormitory until completion of John Straub Memorial hall in 1929, and since that year has been transformed into a classroom and office building. A second wing was added in 1914, and in January, 1915, it was officially named for Mr. Friendly.

The three-story structure of red brick was once the center of campus social life. Its large living room with dominating fireplace has survived the extensive interior remodeling of recent years, and is used as a faculty room.

New Fraternity House

spring term. It is located on the mill-race just off Hilyard street, where the fraternity formerly made its home.

The building is of white cement plaster with deep blue trimmings. The roof is of hard split slate blue shingles. Wrought iron balconies complete the exterior.

The new building is designed to house 28 men, and is complete with library, lounge, living room, a Georgian style dining room, and a recreation room in the basement. An especially attractive feature is the dark paneled fireplace with a large carved panel above.

Open house was held Sunday, April 8, at which time hundreds of students, faculty members and alumni visited the newest campus fraternity house. Richard Sundleaf of Portland was the architect.

Forensics Rejuvenated

Public speaking symposiums, Oregon's new system of forensics, have just been concluded for the year, the second since their inception. Under the direction of W. A. Dahlberg and James A. Carrell, men and women speakers have appeared before many community clubs, granges, schools and other civic groups in both Washington and Oregon.

The "symposium," which has replaced the old competitive style of debate, was demonstrated by Oregon men at the annual Pacific Coast Forensic League meeting in Walla Walla in March, and has attracted comment from other institutions, particularly the University of Washington, where the new plan was tried this season.

University of Oregon teams have presented symposiums before 55 groups, ranging from Ashland to Milton-Freewater in Oregon and to Seattle in Washington. Sixteen men and eight women took part in the season's work.

Under the plan, students are given topics of wide current interest on which they prepare talks for community audiences. Arbitrary "affirmative" and "negative" sides are no longer used, the speakers presenting explanatory and factual material instead, after which the audience joins in forum discussion.

This year's subjects included county government reorganization, state old-age pensions, and movie regulation.

Prep Bands to Vie

About 30 high school bands, drawn from all sections of Oregon, will compete in the annual high school band contest scheduled for the campus on April 12 and 13. Hundreds of instrumentalists will be housed and entertained under the direction of John Stehn, University band director and chairman of the event.

Bands will compete in four classifications, and soloists will be rated for nine different instruments. Three outstanding band musicians of the Pacific coast who will act as judges are Harry S. Evans, Tacoma director; W. C. Welke, band director at the University of Washington, and Jean Shanis, former cornetist of the San Francisco symphony orchestra.

Peace Vote Large

Nearly 700 University of Oregon students, in marking their ballots for the Literary Digest college peace poll, indicated only slight variance from the opinions of 90,000 students in every part of the nation who have answered the questions with regard to war and peace.

Six queries were included in the ballots which were sent to the students of 118 leading universities. Complete results were published in early February.

Four hundred Oregon students believed the United States can keep out of war. More than four-fifths indicated they would fight in event the United States were invaded, and, on the other hand, one-fourth of the Oregon ballot-markers would fight on foreign soil.

A navy and air force second to none as a sound peace measure was denied more strongly by Oregon students, 524 to 164. Government control of armament and munitions industries was approved by more than 98 per cent. Universal conscription of all resources of capital and labor for the control of profits during time of war passed by a substantial margin.

Entrance to the league of nations was favored by a significant margin of 146 on the Oregon campus, the nation's colleges as a whole vetoing the suggestion by a small margin.

Mr. Hopkins completed in early April a concert tour which took him to Los Angeles, Pomona, Claremont, Stockton, and other cities of California, as well as Ashland and Klamath Falls in southern Oregon. His appearance this season with the Portland Symphony orchestra as soloist won him high acclaim for his "definite and individual musical message," his "vigorous, yet sensitive playing."

First Mortar Board

"The first mortar-board ever worn in Oregon was worn at Willamette and I wore it," Dr. Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University declared in a talk in Salem last month.

Inspired with college spirit and an idea from eastern exchanges of "College Caps," he decided every student should have one and in 1892 ordered what he thought was a rooster's cap. What he got was a mortar-board, the first ever imported into Oregon.

He wore it, created a riot, was rebuked by the Willamette faculty, and gave to that school the honor of having the first academic hat.

McCosh Exhibits

Vigorous, colorful landscapes by David J. McCosh, Chicago artist who has recently been added to the staff of the department of painting, comprise the one-man exhibition opened on April 1 at the University's architecture and allied arts gallery. The display will be open for two weeks.

Subjects chosen from the Willamette valley, the Oregon coast and the arid hills of New Mexico, executed in the mediums of oils, water colors and tempera, have been placed on display. Visitors have recognized in several of the more recent paintings familiar landscape features of the environs bordering the northern limits of the campus.

BASEBALL

Defending Champions

With a half-dozen valuable sophomore prospects and the loss of but one regular, the Webfoot baseball nine is anticipating the defense of last year's northern division crown in one of the greatest campaigns of Oregon history.

A fiery sophomore club brought the title to the Oregon campus last year by winning 10 of its 15 conference games, breaking the six-year supremacy of the Washington Huskies. Skipper Reinhart will close his career as a Webfoot mentor with a squad composed mostly of juniors, but strengthened in every department by competent recruits. Six practice games, with Linfield, Willamette and Portland universities, during the first weeks of April should indicate this year's conference possibilities.

ACE HURLER

Don McFadden, right-hander, who is in the mood to repeat last year's performance of carrying the heaviest pitching duties on a pennant-winning team.

Though lettermen are available for every position, sophomores have virtually cinched regular berths in the catching and third base positions. Dick Bishop, probably the finest non-professional backstop in the state, has crowded out Mickey Vail and Con Fury, alternate catchers from last year's nine, while Johnny Lewis, Seattle hoop and diamond star, has apparently taken third-base over last season's veteran, Mark DeLaunay.

Roster Strengthened

Last year's pitching staff, with the exception of Graduate Ike Donin, has returned, with one new recruit, Herb Foulke, lanky speed-burner from Oregon Normal. Don McFadden, ace right-hander who practically hurled the Ducks to the pennant while still a sophomore, Ron Gemmell and Cece Inman, both veteran moundsmen, and a 1934 reserve, Earl Buchnum, are ready for duty. All five pitchers are right-handers.

An air-tight infield, last season's Webfoot pride, should be a repeat feature. Joe Gordon and Ray Koch, proficient shortstop-second base combination, have begun their second year as the foundation of the Oregon infield. The first base post is a toss-up between two left-handers, Harry McCall, two-year regular, and Bun Kelsey, Oregon Normal transfer, while Lewis and DeLaunay will hold down third base.

season's club, have returned for another year, but both Clausen and Hunt have found stiff competition in three newcomers—Stan Riordan, gridiron star; Ralph Amata, sophomore transfer from Oregon Normal, and Dick Prouty, hard-hitting sophomore from the 1933 freshman squad. Van Vliet is considered one of the finest Duck centerfielders of recent years.

Hearst trophy matches. Captain Earl Thomson, sharpshooter from Heppner, took individual honors with the near-perfect score of 198 out of a possible 200.

The Webfoot team, composed of Thomson, Kenneth BeLieu, William Rice, Norris Perkins and Bernard Cross, scored a total of 965 points. The University of Washington, winners last year, placed second. Oregon had two weeks earlier won the championship of the ninth R.O.T.C. corps area.

Coached by Sergeant Harvey Blythe, diminutive R.O.T.C. officer, the team while competing in the ten-man division demolished such nationally known leaders as University of Pittsburgh, Cornell, U.C.L.A., Pennsylvania State, and Iowa university. The five-man team, in regular competition, out-scored Boston college, 1,906 to 1,696.

More than 500 teams, representing every section of the United States and possessions, competed in the national telegraphic meet, which was conducted under the supervision of army officers.

INTRAMURALS

'Donut' Sports Popular

Steady development in Oregon's intramural sports program, organized five years ago, has attracted increasing national attention, as evidenced by a wide demand for the latest yearly report published as a handbook by Paul R. Washke, intramurals director. During last year 63 per cent of the total enrollment of men students took part in "donut" sports listed for the three terms.

With the popular spring tourneys yet to be played, a total of 772 men, or 23 more than last year's complete figure, have already taken part in the fall and winter competition. Increased enrollment, however, places the two-term percentage at 53.

Basketball, volleyball and softball are the standout favorites with gymnasium frequenters. During fall term two leagues in basketball drew 478 players, while the two-ring volleyball tournament of winter term attracted 647 contestants, more than double the number of one year before. Softball was entered last year by 315 players, and this figure is expected to be nearly doubled during the 1935 spring term.

Swimming, water polo, handball, golf, ping pong and cross-country are combined with basketball on the fall term schedule. Volleyball during winter term is supplemented with handball, wrestling, boxing and ping pong. The spring season opens competition in softball, tennis, golf, horseshoes, relays, track and Sigma Delta Psi try-outs.

Houses Win Points

Competition in most of the sports has been placed on an inter-house basis, with a point system to determine the winners. No trophies or honors other than campus prestige are offered the teams, but an orderly arrangement of competition in tournament style adds to the natural players' incentive for sports participation. The system in use is the same as that used by Illinois, Ohio and Michigan, the outstanding college sponsors of intramural programs.

High point honors have been divided between Beta Theta Pi, and the Yeomen, independent men's club, each of them having won two of the four all-year championships. This year's race finds the Yeomen again in the lead, but with the Betas and Sigma Phi Epsilon close at their heels.

The University's intramural program was established to offset the concentrated intercollegiate program and to meet an increasing need for a more general sports program. It was begun in 1930-31, with the arrival of Paul R. Washke, who had for several years been assistant director of intramural sports at the University of Michigan where he had worked under the author of the plan, E. D. Mitchell. His assistants include Earl E. Boushey, who came from U. C. L. A. to supervise the all-campus program; R. K. Cutler, whose specialty is golf, and Mike Hoyman, swimming coach.

Reinhart Resigns

William J. Reinhart, head basketball and baseball coach under the Green and Yellow since 1923, will leave the campus this summer to take over the same duties at George Washington university at the national capital. Known affectionately as "Bill," Reinhart has been at Oregon with one year's exception since his graduation in 1922, and for 12 years has guided Webfoot destinies in basketball and baseball.

No successor to Reinhart has been named, though several meetings of the executive council of the Associated Students have been held to consider coaching candidates since his resignation. Popular favorite for the vacancy, as indicated in the press of the state, is Howard Hobson, '26, whose record at Southern Oregon Normal has placed him among top-ranking coaches in the northwest.

Reinhart's basketball record numbers two northern division championship teams, in 1926 and 1927, and several runners-up. He also won three conference baseball titles, the last in 1934, and with the same line-up this season has good chances for a "blaze of glory" finish. He was backfield coach in football under McEwan and Spears and for the past three seasons has acted as chief grid scout. In 1923, following a successful year at Salem high school, he coached freshman football.

Reinhart's new position at George Washington, an institution of more than 8000 students, is considered a promotion, for in addition to his coaching duties he will be assistant director of athletics under Jim Pixley. Reinhart played freshman football under Pixley at the University of Missouri before coming to Oregon in 1918.

Tennis Outlook

With five lettermen back for practice, the University tennis squad has embarked on a spring season campaign during which they will face opposing schools in ten meets. The opening match will pit the Webfoots against Portland University in Eugene on April 11. Coach Paul R. Washke has described Oregon's chances of victory for the season as "just fair."

Last year's top-ranking star, Tom Mountain, senior whose eligibility was in question for a time, will again contribute his dependable playing to the Webfoot team.

Heavy court duties are expected to fall on Cosgrove LaBarre, Fred Fisher, George Economus, Harlan Thompson and Norman Winslow, all letter winners. The only outstanding prospect from last year's freshman squad is John Economus, younger brother of the varsity veteran.

Competition is listed as follows: Portland at Eugene, April 11; Linfield at Eugene, April 16; Portland at Portland, April 19; Washington at Eugene, May 4; Linfield at McMinnville, May 7; Oregon State at Eugene, May 11; Willamette at Eugene, May 14; Oregon State at Corvallis, May 18; Willamette at Salem, May 21. The 1935 conference meet will be held at Pullman, Washington, May 25.

from the University in 1916. "Chief Joseph: The Biography of a Great Indian" will appear in June of this year with the hallmark of The Press of the Pioneers, New York.

The book relates the life tale of Chief Joseph, tragic leader of the Nez Perce Indians who once inhabited the Wallowa country, and contributes to the growing opinion that Chief Joseph is the greatest Indian of his own or any other age. Born and reared in the Chief's own country, the writer is praised in the biography's introduction by Colonel C. E. S. Wood, a pioneer Oregon soldier, for his authenticity and his understanding of the Indian philosophy.

The result of two years of painstaking research and writing, the book contains 460 pages of historical data, and is illustrated in both water colors and drawings by the author himself, and by maps and photographs.

Author Fee is best known among his fellow alumni as one of Oregon's greatest track and field stars of a great era, climaxed in 1916. On the track he heaved the shot, javelin and discus, won points in the broad and high jumps and pole vault, took places in the high and low hurdles and then ran a lap in the relays now and then. While in the classroom Fee wrestled with a major in Greek.

He coached for a time in Oakland
