NEWS AND COMMENT

By The Editor

The Chancellor Issue Again

Dragged out of the closet again last month was higher education's troublesome skeleton—the chancellorship. The calendar of events in this new outburst against the present incumbent and the circumstances surrounding his prolonged stay in the position reads like a stenographic report of a good cat and dog fight. Charges and counter charges, in some cases carefully camouflaged and in others subtly distorted, have served to bring before the public eye once again the cankerous source of higher education's struggle to definitely establish a workable system of higher education in Oregon.

Events in higher education, some of them linked directly to the new efforts to replace Dr. Kerr, and others less directly, are as follows:

April 13—E. C. Sammons, chairman of the board finance committee and a member since the board's inception, was reappointed by Governor Martin for another term (9 years).

May 1—Mrs. Walter M. Pierce was removed from the state body by the Governor and E. C. Pease of The Dalles, a former member of the board, was appointed to succeed her. Cause for Mrs. Pierce's removal was the fact that in her capacity as secretary to her congressman husband, her continued absence from the state rendered her unable to conscientiously serve the state as a member of the board of higher education. In reply to the Governor's original request for her resignation, Mrs. Pierce roundly flayed her remover for attempting to manipulate the policies of higher education and expressed fear that changes in the personnel of the board might result in the selection of "a reactionary, dictatorial chancellor who will put Oregon education in a straightjacket."

Office Under Fire

May 11—The Oregon Mothers adopted a resolution at their annual campus mass meeting calling on the board of higher education to abolish the office of chancellor in the interests of economy and efficiency. This action was made public in conjunction with a similar resolution passed by the executive committee of the Oregon Dads. Authorization was made for the presentation of these resolutions to the board at its next meeting.

May 23—In a joint resolution the executive boards of the Portland chapters of both the University and State College Alumni Associations went on record as opposing the abolition of the chancellorship, stating that "due to the agitation to abolish the position of chancellor" the groups "wish to go on record as favoring the continuation of the present system until it has been given a thorough and further test." Merle R. Chessman, president of the state association, immediately made clear that the action of the Portland group did not necessarily reflect the attitude of the entire alumni and that that body had taken no action nor made any expression on the subject of the chancellorship.

May 27—Dr. Frederick Maurice Hunter, chancellor of the University of Denver, arrived in the state on the invitation of the chancellor selection committee of the board to "look over things in connection with the chancellorship." On the same day the board met and heard the pleas of the parents groups. Earle Wellington, president of the Oregon Dads and acting as spokesman for both groups, stated: "These resolutions were passed before there was an intimation that a change was in mind, and there is nothing I can do except present them, lacking any other authority. But I have talked with officials of the various clubs over Sunday and I feel sure that you will find us cooperative in whatever setup the board thinks best, provided we can have some assurance of action on these changes which we believe are vital." Previously Wellington had stated that had the groups known of the invitation extended Dr. Hunter that perhaps the resolutions would never have been presented; that the situation was obviously embarrassing; but that the groups were irrevocably committed toward the restoration of pure science at the University and an administrative setup that would give the presidents of the institutions real power for educational leadership. Later the board announced its intention of retaining the chancellorship system and proffered "careful attention" to the demands for greater freedom for the presidents and the re-establishment of pure science at the University.

Hunter Stays Over

May 28—Postponing his scheduled return to Denver, Dr. F. M. Hunter, visited the campuses at Corvallis, Monmouth and Eugene accompanied by E. C. Sammons, chairman of the chancellor selection committee. Although no commitments were made, it is believed that Dr. Hunter had been asked to reply as to whether he would consider the chancellorship of Oregon's system, and that in case he would, that the position would be formally offered to him.

May 29—The report of the special committee of the American Association of University Professors which investigated the chancellorship situation more than a year ago following the Nelson episode was released. In the main, after a lengthy discussion of contributing factors to the unhappy situation, the report concluded that "the election of Dr. Kerr as chancellor was a stupendous blunder" and that "the University cannot have a healthy and normal life until the chancellor retires." The report went into detail as to the committee's procedure and its reasons for believing that "the early retirement of the chancellor is imperative." In an addenda to the original report the committee reiterated its stand and explained that its purpose in withholding the original report was due to the hope that the speedy cooperation of the chancellor and the state board would not make necessary the issuance of the report to the public, but that since that time, except for the announced intention (more than a year ago) of the chancellor to retire "as soon as a suitable successor could be chosen," little or no indication had been given that any progress toward the hoped for change had been made.

May 31—Declaring that the board "has consistently refused to be stamped into hasty, ill-considered action" on the selection of a new chancellor,

Willard Marks, president of the board, defended the board's policy in this matter by stating: "that the selection of a chancellor is a highly important matter, one vitally affecting the whole future of higher education in Oregon. The board felt it important enough to want to survey fully the field of available educators and check thoroughly the ability, personality, experience and record of achievement of men under consideration." He further stated that the uncertainty of board finances until recently made it impossible to do more than continue its investigation of possible successors to Dr. Kerr.

Kerr Makes Rejoinder

June 1—Dr. Kerr, himself the focal point of the entire controversy which has continued intermittently since his election in September of 1932, made reply to the published A.A.U.P. report. Said Dr. Kerr: "My responsibilities are to the board of higher education, to all of the institutions in the state system and to the people of the entire state." He pointed out that his resignation had been in the hands of the state board for more than a year and that he had been giving every assistance possible toward the selection of his successor. He amplified these remarks in a lengthy statement in which he criticized the method by which the report had been released and made personal reply to some of the statements (no definite "charges" were made by the committee) contained in the discussions and opinions which formed the bulk of the report. Dr. Kerr's statement was made to "acquaint the public with issues involved in the report and to reassure the people as to the fundamental soundness of higher education in the state . . ."

June 1—The Oregon State Alumni Association, at its annual Commencement meeting, passed a resolution denouncing the A.A.U.P. report as an "unwarranted attack on the state board of higher education."

Only One Issue

In the present situation there is only one outstanding and important fact, and that is: As long as Dr. Kerr is retained or as long as he remains as chancellor there is faint hope that Oregon's higher educational institutions, can function with distinction or efficiency.

It is regrettable that the present turmoil has involved the subterfuge of an attack on the office of chancellor (although anyone who knows of the despair with which the Dads and Mothers organizations view the continuance of present circumstances, their search for some "out" is entirely understandable).

GRADUATES OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Members of the class of 1885, who will hold their fiftieth reunion on June 15. They are, left to right: Royal F. Reasoner, deceased; Henry F. McClure, deceased; Daniel W. Bass, Seattle; and Anna Patterson Potter, Eugene. Pictures of the members of the normal school graduates of 1885 will be printed next month. This picture was loaned to Old Oregon by Mrs. Potter, and will be on display during Commencement.

Likewise it is regrettable that the one and only actual conclusion of the A.A.U.P. report (namely, that the University cannot have a healthy and normal life until the Chancellor retires) has been lost sight of in the scramble to justify and overemphasize and camouflage the discussions leading up to this conclusion. Also, it is regrettable that both the appearance of the Dads and Mothers before the board and the publication of the report had to come at a time when a candidate for the position was visiting the state for the purpose of looking over the chancellorship.

Situation Still Unaltered

Up to the arrival of Dr. Hunter no indication of tangible effort to obtain a new chancellor had appeared. In the long months intervening between the chancellor's announced desire to retire and the arrival of Dr. Hunter, University friends and friends of higher education had been growing increasingly suspicious, as had also the highly impartial A.A.U.P. investigating committee. Unfortunate though it may have been that patience broke coincident with the board's first open move toward a new chancellor, the situation has not altered in the least.

Attacks on the A.A.U.P. report only add to the preponderant evidence that there is a most unhealthy situation prevalent in higher education and that the cure can only be found in the removal of the basic cause.

To attack or defend Dr. Kerr, to argue technicalities of a report, to propose or condemn the abolition of his office, to condemn or defend the state board of higher education—all of these activities together with their multitudinous ramifications serve no real purpose other than to define more clearly and convincingly than ever the need for immediate and forthright action toward bringing to Oregon a new chancellor of sound educational background, capable and energetic, and one above suspicion of partiality or susceptible to political influence.

That accomplished—then Oregon is ready to proceed with its admirable experiment of unification. Until then no real progress can be hoped for and millions of dollars in human values to the state are being lost through inaction, bickering and political manipulation.

COMMENCEMENT

Classes Plan Reunions

Ten major events, including Alumni Day and the scheduled Class Reunions on Saturday, June 15, and Baccalaureate and Commencement on the following Sunday and Monday have been arranged for the fifty-eighth annual Commencement weekend honoring the graduating class and former students. Classes to hold reunions are 1885, 1905, 1910, 1915 and 1925.

Members of both the regular and normal department class of 1885 have signified their intention of returning to the campus for the activities of the weekend. Mrs. L. H. Potter, Eugene, and Daniel Waldo Bass, Seattle, are the surviving members of the former group. Ada Osie Walton, Seattle; Bessie Day, Eugene; Albert S. Mulligan, Salem; and Catherine Powell Wootton, Brooklyn, New York, are the surviving members of the normal class. All of these 50-year graduates except Mrs. Wootton are expected to be present at the events scheduled in their honor.

Committees in charge of the other reunions are: 1905—Albert R. Tiffany, chairman; Mae D. Kinsey and Mrs. Mabel Eaton McClain. 1910—Mrs. Edith Prescott Siefert, chairman; Isolene Shaver Gilbert and Wilshire Bristow. 1915—Bertrand Jerard, chairman; Dr. Victor P. Morris, Ben F. Dorris and Mrs. Arnold Koepke. 1925—T. R. Gillenwaters and Marie M. Bosworth.

Each class will hold a separate reunion dinner on Saturday evening. The committees are making the arrangements for these functions.

Oswald Garrison Villard, contributing editor and former publisher of the Nation and a noted liberal, and Dr. Raymond C. Brooks, professor of religion at Pomona college, will speak to the approximately 500 graduates of the university at commencement services.

Villard, son of Henry Villard, benefactor of the university in its infancy, and himself a long friend of the school, will deliver the commencement address June 17 at McArthur court. He has announced his topic as "Youth and the Republic."

Dr. Brooks will give the baccalaureate sermon June 16 at McArthur court. Dr. Brooks, who started his ministerial career at the First Congregational church in Eugene, will speak on "The Challenge of the Present World Situation."

Alumni Events Listed

Of particular interest to alumni will be the annual breakfast and dinner of the State Association of University of Oregon Women to be held at the Osburn Hotel at 8:15 Saturday morning. All women graduates of the University and senior girls are especially invited. The semi-annual meeting of the entire Alumni Association will be held in Guild Hall at 10:30 with President Merle Chessman presiding. Following this meeting will be the annual University luncheon, at which reunion classes will be seated together and at which a representative from each class will extend a word of greeting to the new graduates, to be followed by a response from a member of the senior class.

Complete Program Given

Other events listed on the program include a benefit tea for the Pauline Homer Potter Collection of Beautiful Books, to be held Friday afternoon in Gerlinger Hall; the Failing and Beekman Orations, scheduled for Friday evening at the Music auditorium; the President's-Chancellor's reception, Saturday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock in Gerlinger Hall; class reunion dinners, arranged by the class reunion committees; and the traditional Flower and Fern procession and Twilight Concert Saturday evening at the site of the Pioneer Mother statue.

CHAMPIONS

Three Firsts, Two Seconds

Spring term, 1935, will undoubtedly go down in Webfoot sports history as one of the most successful of all times. After reasonably successful seasons in both football and basketball, Oregon athletes opened up on the northwest sports world and proceeded to display an imposing array of championship teams and champions.

Following close on the heels of the national champion rifle squad came the northwest championship in swimming, then golf and finally the second successive year as northwest champions in baseball, which shares the spring spotlight for popularity with track.

Nosed out by only one point in the conference track meet, Oregon is rated along with W.S.C., her conqueror in the meet, as one of the nation's strongest track squads. In tennis Oregon took the mythical Oregon championship and placed second in the northwest.

Victors in Baseball

The path to the 1935 baseball championship was beset with trouble for the Webfoots, and until the last game with O.S.C. the outcome of the coast conference standings was in doubt, with the performance of four of the five teams in the league as factors in the possible final standings. One of the closest races in conference annals saw leads held at one time or another by Washington, W.S.C., O.S.C., and Oregon.

Numerous possibilities arose out of the tangle as the conference moved into its final week of competition. The Ducks had but to defeat the Beavers twice to assure themselves their second consecutive crown, and could lose one encounter without losing the title if the northern teams divided their contests — which they did not, Washington winning both.

Saturday, June 1, was the date of the final deciding game. Also it was "Reinhart Day," honoring the last game of the last Oregon team to be coached by Bill Reinhart, who goes to George Washington University next fall. The previous day at Corvallis, the Webfoots had slugged out a wild 15 to 6 win over Slat's Gill's Orangemen. Don McFadden, Oregon's ace hurler and by all odds the greatest factor in winning the 1935 pennant, wasn't up to form due to a wrenched back, but except for erratic spurges of poor backing from the infield and because of two circuit clouts netting six runs by Gordon and McFadden, the game's outcome appeared reasonably certain after the fourth inning.

So coming into the final game Oregon had but to win to cinch the pennant race. Reinhart placed Herb Foulk, sophomore righthander on the mound. Foulk came through in the pinches, striking out ten Beavers and scattering nine hits to win the game and hand the championship over to his departing coach, 6 to 3.

Huskies Lose Three

Washington's title ambitions received their sharpest setback in the four-game series against the Webfoots. The Oregon nine took both games at Eugene and split a double-header at Seattle.

With three major league scouts in the stands to observe their efforts, Ray Koch and Joe Gordon juggled the ball all over the infield during the first encounter, but McFadden upheld his pitching record, 6 to 5. Gordon and Hurney each poled out a homer in the first two innings.

Playing confidence returned the next day and the Ducks hit two Washington pitchers with merciless intent to pile up 14 runs and win the second game, 14 to 1. Cece Inman, letterman right-hander, allowed the Huskies only three hits while on the mound. Van Vliet and Lewis contributed home runs to the winning score.

A double-header played at Seattle was divided, the Huskies taking the first game, 2 to 1, and the Ducks winning the second, 7 to 6. Stellar pitching by McFadden and Washington's Daly were features.

Cougar Series Even

Two wins and two losses was the outcome of the Washington State series. Opening the series at Eugene, McFadden fanned 11 men and allowed but five hits while his teammates wielded heavy bats to ring up seven runs as compared with a blank for the Cougars. In the second game Oregon outthit the Pullman nine, but lost on the momentary wildness of Herb Foulk in the pitcher's box, 8 to 7.

Foulk again failed to hold the Cougars in the third contest at Pullman and lost, 8 to 5, on two home runs by Schoening, WSC third sacker. McFadden held the Cougars to two hits in the final game, and the Webfoots won, 5 to 2.

Vandals Vanquished

Closest scores of the season marked the series between Oregon and the Idaho Vandals, as shown by totals of 28 runs for the Ducks and 25 for the Vandals, but Reinhart's crew emerged victors in three of the four games.

Heads-up playing by Joe Gordon at shortstop gave Oregon the opening encounter at Eugene, 5 to 4. He dashed in with the winning run from second base after an infield mixup over Lewis' perfect bunt. McFadden was credited with the victory. The Vandals retaliated on a wierd collection of errors, bases on balls, and well bunched hits to win the second against Pitcher Foulk, 6 to 5.

Both games of the Moscow series went to the Webfoots. A siege of heavy hitting worried both teams in the opener, Unquestionably the most valuable player on the 1935 championship baseball squad was this ace hurler, who pitched more than half the games and lost but one.

but masterful relief hurling in the ninth inning by McFadden gave Oregon an 11 to 9 victory. Three preceding pitchers had failed to tame the Vandal batsmen. In the final contest, McFadden pitched Oregon into the conference lead with a 7-to-6 victory.

Surprise at Seattle

An unexpected heartbreaker was the northwest track and field meet held at Seattle on June 1. With Washington practically conceded first place and Oregon allowed a fighting chance against W.S.C. for second, the dope failed and W.S.C. took the meet from Oregon by one small point. Hoped for firsts from Wagner in the two-mile or Lindgren in the broad jump would have cinched the title for Oregon, as would a first in the relay. Even a second in this final would have given the Webfoots a tie. Final scores of the three leading teams were: W.S.C., 50¾;

Oregon, 49¾; and Washington 42½.

Bud Shoemake, sensational Webfoot sprinter, was the toast of the afternoon with two new northwest marks in the 100 and 220 dashes. His times were 9.5 in the century and 21.2 in the furlong dash. Janak and Stolp tied for first in the high jump and Janak tied with three others for first in the pole vault. Demaris and Parke shared first place honors in the javelin at 203 feet 11 inches and 203 feet 7¼ inches respectively.

Ducks Outpoint Beavers

A record-breaking broadjump by Arne Lindgren led the way for Oregon's cinder burners to accumulate a point total of 87 1-3 against 43 2-3 in this season's dual meet against Oregon State. Oregon's 17th victory in the 27 years of the meet was marked by 11 first places for the winners against four.

Colonel Bill Hayward, now completing his 33d year as Webfoot track coach, was honored before the start of the meet when the Order of the O presented the University with his likeness done in bronze by Rex Sorensen, '32.

Lindgren's leap set a new meet record of 23 feet six inches. Least expected performance, however, was a record-threatening javelin toss by Jim Daneri, Beaver football star, who bested both Demaris, 1933 northwest champion, and Bob Parke, national intercollegiate title holder. In the sprints Oregon won without the use of Bud Shoemake, northwest sprint king. Miller of Oregon won individual honors with 11 points, including first in the 220 and seconds in the 100 and broad jump.

Huskies, Cougars Win

By the narrow margin of one-fifth point Washington State college overcame an ominous Webfoot challenge to win their dual meet 65 3-5 to 65 2-5 points. The Cougars came from behind in the final event, the mile relay, to prevent their first dual meet defeat in three years.

George Scharpf ran a sensational half-mile against the Cougar's captain, Ken Leendertsen to break the tape in 1 minute, 54.8 seconds. Oregon showed a fine display of first-place power by taking eight of the 14 events.

Lightning record-paces in the sprints by Carson Shoemake failed to stem a Washington tide in the dual meet at Seattle, and the Huskies romped off with a 76½ to 54½ point victory. Washington took seven of the 15 events, the most surprising of them in the shot put, rated an Oregon strong hold.

When the finest collegiate track stars of the nation gather at Berkeley in June for the annual N.C.A.A. competition, Oregon hopes to be represented by at least the half-dozen performers who have already qualified in their events.

Three veterans head the list. Bob Parke won the javelin title at last year's meet held in Los Angeles; Warren Demaris placed third in the same event in 1933, and Bob Wagner crossed the two-mile finish line in fourth place. Besides this trio four others are eligible to make the trip, including George Scharpf, half-mile; John Stolp, high jump, Marvin Janak, pole vault, and Bud Shoemake, who holds a claim on the northwest 100 title at 9.5 seconds.

Mermen Win Title

Paced by Jim Reed, whose tireless strokes alone captured first places in three events, Oregon's team of natators won the northwest intercollegiate title at Seattle April 6 by taking every first place on the program.

The Webfoots amassed a sensational team total of 61 points in competition against four other teams from Washington State, Idaho, Montana and Washington. The Washington team placed second with 26 points.

With the collegiate title tucked away, four of the Webfoot mermen entered the Oregon A. A. U. swimming meet one week later, and emerged from the Multnomah club pool with enough points to win mythical team honors and with two new state records.

The only conference meet of the year, despite a heavy prospective schedule early in the year, was against Washington at Seattle. The mighty strokes of World Champion Jack Medica failed to prevent the Webfoots from scuttling the Huskies 51 to 32.

RECORD HOLDERS

The annual major sport letter awards were this year given to William Angell, Bend; Vernon Hoffman, Leonard Scroggins, Eugene; Wallace Hug, Salem; James and Charles Reed, formerly of Salem and now of Raymond, Washington; Forrest Kerby, Mapleton, and Robert Chilton, Canyon City.

Oregon's swimming coach is Howard S. "Mike" Hoyman, one of the younger members of the school of physical education faculty, who handles his coaching duties on the side.

Reed Record-holder

Oregon's outstanding swimmer of the last few years is Jim Reed. In the northwest meet he won victories in the 150-yard backstroke, the 220-yard freestyle, and the 440-yard freestyle, for a total of 15 points. He broke two state records at the A. A. U. meet in Portland, in the 220-yard freestyle and the 500-yard freestyle.

Last year Reed amassed a season total of 41 points, and set a new Pacific coast intercollegiate backstroke record in the 150-yard backstroke event. In unofficial swims he broke world marks in the half-mile backstroke and three-fourth mile backstroke distances. He has another year of competition.

Four speedy sophomores, along with Jim Reed, were this season's mainstays. In the northwest meet Bob Chilton took first place in the diving events, Hoffman took the 50-yard freestyle swim, Scroggins won the 100-yard event, and Chuck Reed the 200-yard breaststroke event, the last won by a six-inch margin.

Golfers Win Title

A decisive 12-stroke margin gave Oregon's best four-man combination the golf championship of the Conference's northern division over a field of six contestants who met on the Eugene Country club course May 25. The title is the second in a row for the Webfoots who won in 1931, the year of the last previous meet. The 1931 team went on to beat Stanford for the coast title.

The Webfoots, paced by Leonard Anderson, shot a low aggregate medal score of 606 in the 36-hole test to finish far in the lead. Anderson annexed the individual northern division title by shooting 146 to beat out two teammates, Sid Milligan and Jack Mulder. Ed Labbe held the fourth position on the Duck team entry.

Oregon State finished in second place, though Washington had been favored to take the meet after defeating the Webfoots at Seattle in a dual meet. The Beavers rated even with Oregon after splitting their pair of encounters.

Netmen Take Doubles

Supremacy in doubles and second place in total standings went to Webfoot racquet-wielders May 25 as six northern division members of the coast conference met on the Washington State college courts at Pullman. Washington took the meet with 11 points, while Oregon emerged in second place with eight.

In the finals of a two day series of matches, a pair of Webfoot stalwarts, Tom Mountain and John Economus, captured the doubles championship against Washington, but failed to garner the crown when Henry Rosenberg, brilliant Seattle star, went through his singles matches without defeat.

A string of victories, broken only by Washington early in the season and including seven clear-cut victories over other teams within the state, has occasioned a claim to the state dual meet championship. Two wins were chalked up against Oregon State, Willamette, and Linfield, while the Ducks beat the Portland Pilots in their only completed meet.

Prep Track Tourney

An array of 216 Oregon high school track and field stars visited the University campus on May 17 to compete in the eighth annual state interscholastic meet held on Hayward field. Five new state meet records were established on the quarter-mile track as 51 squads from every part of Oregon competed in the 14 events.

The two-day tourney was marked by the pageantry of Olympic games, including a parade led by a color guard from the R. O. T. C. unit. Colonel Bill Hayward, for more than 30 years builder of Oregon track teams, officiated as director, while Tom Stoddard, '30, assistant graduate manager, handled arrangements for the mammoth gathering.

A small group of eight athletes from Roosevelt high school in Portland, led by sturdy Stanley Anderson with two record-smashing performances in the weights, amassed a total of 22 points to win the meet. Benson high of Portland placed second, while Klamath Falls and Grant high of Portland followed in third and fourth places.

Record-breaking achievements were recorded in the pole vault, shot put, discus, broad jump and 440-yard dash. Carlson of Benson high, with 13 points, won the President's trophy, offered by

Boyer, Morris Speak

An intimate picture of the needs and problems of the University was described to the Oregon Mothers at their mass meeting by Dr. C. V. Boyer, University president. He discussed the progress made on campus building projects, emphasizing the recently established eligibility of the proposed infirmary for PWA funds and the expectance of an early decision from the PWA board.

The encouragement of mothers to keep the vision of a better life before students was urged by President Boyer. He told of the need for scholarships for deserving students, as well as funds for loans, and mentioned cases of students facing privation in order to gain an education at Oregon.

At the Mother's Day banquet Saturday evening, the guest speaker, Dr. Victor P. Morris, declared that "parents and faculty people need to know young people better, to have a knowledge of their abilities and their ambitions." The topic chosen by the economics professor was "Needed Knowledge for Today's World."

A check for $450, the first instalment of a fund set at $1,000, was given to Dr. Boyer by Mrs. E. C. Peets, president of the Portland Mothers club, during the mass meeting Saturday. When completed the fund will be the source of a

Gridsters Show Power

Flashes of power befitting a top-place conference contender showed through occasionally as Oregon's 1935 football team ended spring practice with a scoreless encounter against Mike Mikulak's improvised team of all-stars on May 17. The full-length practice game closed a six-weeks' "brushing up" campaign conducted by Head Coach Prink Callison and his staff.

In the practice tilt both teams showed little on the offensive except for a few ineffective passes, but the varsity demonstrated its ability to hold before the drives of more experienced old-timers, led by Mikulak, Cuppoletti, Pepelnjak, Morse, Bailey, and an ex-St. Mary's star, Bardinelli.

Among the more promising varsity gridsters were Len Holland, red-haired sophomore end prospect; Walt Back, blond-haired, 190-pound left half, and Carter at guard. Bobby King, Del Bjork, and Dale Lasselle showed up well occasionally. JUNIOR WEEK-END

Host to 500 Mothers

More than 500 Oregon mothers were honored guests on the campus during the annual Junior Weekend and Mother's day festivities which began May 10. Fair weather greeted the visitors who came from several western states to enjoy a three-day cross-section of campus life, featuring a "Melody of Spring." This year's series of events included the traditional canoe fete, junior prom, campus luncheon, water carnival, painting of the "O," and baseball games.

A crowded social program for mothers failed to prevent business sessions, as the assembled visitors elected officers, heard talks by administration and faculty leaders, and passed resolutions. The Oregon Mothers adopted a request for the abolition of the office of chancellor of higher education to be sent to the state board, and set up a scholarship fund of $1000.

Mrs. George F. Brice, Portland, was elected president for the coming year, succeeding Mrs. Arthur M. Dibble, president for the past two years. Other officers chosen were as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. Walter M. Cook, Portland; vice-president, Mrs. Robert Betts, Eugene; treasurer, Mrs. M. D. Latourette (Edna Daulton) ex-'08, Oregon City; executive secretary, Earl M. Palfett, Ph.D. '31, University of Oregon.

perpetual income for the annual scholarship for some student on the campus. "Penny banks" and benefit parties are being used to raise the fund, which it is hoped will be completed next year.

Mill Race Fantasy

Delightful fantasy, stately artistry made a memorable event of this year's canoe fete, long recognized as one of the most colorful bits of pageantry staged on any American campus. Entitled "Melody of Spring," the traditional event might better have been called a medley as eight floats drifted down the mill race, each dramatizing a popular song.

Sentiment of old Oregon captured in "Down by the Old Mill Stream" won from the judges first place for its builders, Kappa Sigma and Delta Gamma. "The Little Dutch Mill," constructed by Chi Psi and Gamma Phi Beta, was awarded second place, while "Alice in Wonderland," entered by Sigma Nu and Alpha Omicron Pi, placed third.

The parade of floats followed the ascent to her throne of review of suntanned Queen Mary Morse and her entourage who arrived on board a royal barge constructed by the Yeomen, and began with the whimsical "Good Ship Lollypop," entered by Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Alpha Chi Omega.

to the unique beauty of the fete, enjoyed by thousands who jammed the banks of the mill race. A torch dive from a 50-foot tower featured a fancy diving exhibition by Robert Chilton, northwest diving champion, and Bert Myers.

First Canoe Fete

Origins of the canoe fete tradition, though somewhat beclouded with the years, may be traced back to 1912 when the Eugene mill race was the locale for "The First Annual Inter-Scholastic Aquatic Meet" held on June 11. This second annual canoe carnival—the first actually to take place—was sponsored by the Varsity canoe club and directed by Harold Young, '14, and Wallace Benson, '14.

"Back in 1912 the students decorated canoes simply with a few flowers or streamers and lights," reminisces Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, who was a member of the first junior class to work on a canoe fete. "During the succeeding 23 years there are two floats which stand out most vividly in my mind," he recollects; "one represented a tropical sea shell, all done in lovely pastel shades, and the other was a Chinese junk decorated with its oriental trimmings."

Witnesses of the first event recall as the main drawing card Professor Art Cavill, noted swimming instructor of the Multnomah athletic club, who gave an exhibition of his skill, particularly in lifesaving. About 20 high school athletes came from Portland to assist with the aquatic program. The climax of the meet was to have been a canoe tilting contest, which was abandoned for lack of entries.

Week-end Winners

Winners of the Gerlinger and Koyle cups, the highest honors annually accorded to one man and one woman from the junior class, were presented at the Junior Prom to Ann-Reed Burns and William O. Hall, both of Portland. Mrs. C. L. Schwering, dean of women, and Virgil D. Earl, dean of men, made the awards during the dance intermission.

To Alpha Xi Delta, national sorority, and Sigma hall, men's dormitory unit, went the two scholarship cups presented annually to the living organizations achieving the highest scholarship average during the year. These cups were awarded by Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University.

During the campus luncheon, Mortar Board, senior women's society, in cap and gown, and Friars, the men's group, in monks' robes, "tapped" new members. Mortar Board selected Ann-Reed Burns, Virginia Younie, Henriette

SUMMER SESSION

Varied Courses Offered

Well-rounded university curricula, offering subjects ranging from languages to the arts, will be available to teachers and students at the University of Oregon summer session, scheduled for six weeks starting June 24, it was announced by Dean Alfred Powers, dean and director of the general extension division. All regular academic fields will be included, and in addition nationally prominent educators from Oregon and other states will visit the campus to give courses on the fast-changing social, economic and industrial conditions.

The regular summer term, ending on August 2, will be held in Portland, and Eugene, while Eugene will have a post session lasting from August 5 to August 30. Oregon State will conduct a summer session at Corvallis, beginning June 24.

The majority of courses regularly held on the University campus will be offered in the departments of the colleges of arts and letters and social science, in the schools of art and architecture, business administration, education, law, music and physical education.

Western Art Center

For the sixth successive year the University of Oregon has been designated by the Carnegie Foundation as the western center for normal arts training. Scholarships have already been granted to 25 art teachers of the northwest for this work. Dr. Eugene Gustav Steinhof, director of the national school of decorative art in Vienna, and several leading members of the art school faculty in Eugene will direct courses.

Courses in remedial teaching, now nationally famous, which offer unusual opportunities for teachers faced with instructing handicapped or abnormal children, will again be given by Dr. B. W. DeBusk, professor of education; Mrs. Lillian Raynor, of the Los Angeles public schools, and Dr. Elizabeth Montgomery, specialist in this field.

Eight courses in practical library methods will be given, some of them by Jasmine Britton, supervising librarian of Los Angeles public schools. The annual coaching school, which alternates between the Eugene and Corvallis campus, will be held at Oregon State this year, with Lon Stiner, football coach; Ralph Coleman, intramural athletics director, and other OSC staff members directing courses.

Noted Educators Coming

Noted visiting professors will include: Portland session—Lambertus Deutschman, Art Industry School of Amsterdam; Merle Hugh Elliot, instructor in psychology at Harvard; W. C. Reusser, professor of education at Wyoming university; Walter C. Barnes, professor of history at Smith college; Ernest Sutherland Bates, well known writer and critic, and Bernard Hinshaw, head of the art department at Illinois Wesleyan.

Eugene session—Donald M. Erb, associate professor of economics at Stanford and formerly of the Eugene campus; Corvallis session—Dr. William E. Blatz of the University of Toronto, and Dr. Leston L. Love of the University of Ohio.

School for Children

The University summer school for children will begin its seventh session on June 24. Non-readers, those with partial reading disability and those who have difficulty with arithmetic and spelling will be taken for individual work. A careful diagnosis will determine for each child methods best suited to him. The average gain as shown by standard tests is about one year for the six weeks of instruction. Children from Pasadena and from Yakima attended last year.

Children with speech defects will also be offered instruction under the immediate supervision of Professor Carrell of the University speech department. Miss Raynor, Mrs. Montgomery, and Dr. DeBusk will supervise the remedial work.

Excavations Planned

Field work in eastern Oregon by a limited number of students in geology and anthropology will be carried out this summer under the direction of Dr. L. S. Cressman, professor of anthropology. Starting July 1 and continuing for four weeks, the party will make excavations at the Wikitup site, a spot of former Indian habitation south of Bend, and at the cave Scarpnent of Steen's mountain.

The research trip is a regular summer session course with credit. Any artifacts found will go to the state museum of anthropology established on the University campus by recent act of the legislature.

Honorary Names Twenty

Twenty seniors were elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary fraternity, at the annual spring meeting of Oregon Alpha chapter. The list of students to win the highest distinction offered on the campus in the field of scholarship was headed by the law school with four nominees.

Those chosen are Jean Margaret Aiken, history, Ontario; Nancy Elizabeth Archbold, English, Portland; John Carlson, psychology, Beverly S. Caverhill, German, Margaret Davidson, business administration, Dorothea Finsson, sociology, Theodore Lundy, pre-medicine, Thomas Mountain, history, all of Eugene.

Pre-medics Seek Courses

Protesting an inadequacy of science courses offered on the Oregon campus, the student pre-medical society passed a resolution May 16 to be sent to President C. V. Boyer asking the return of numerous courses taken from the curriculum since the shifting of upper division science to Oregon State college.

The petition was referred to Dr. Earl Packard, dean of the School of Science at Oregon State, who must give his approval before it reaches the curricula committee of the state board of higher education. In an explanatory statement, President Boyer declared that financial conditions would probably prevent the desired additions to the University curriculum.

The request was not an attempt to take courses from the Corvallis campus, Max Carter, group president, explained, but merely an effort to secure courses required of pre-medical students by many medical schools. A repeated call for more varied science courses has been sounded by students since the realignment of schools in 1932.

South African Coming

Dr. C. G. S. de Villiers, dean of the faculty of sciences of the University of Stellenbosch, South Africa, will be visiting professor on the Oregon campus November 18 to December 14. The South African scholar will be sent by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and will be one of several professors from foreign countries to be brought to the campus next fall.

"The purpose of these visits," writes Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, head of the endowment and president of Columbia university, "is to multiply and strengthen the bonds of intellectual and scholarly understanding between the different countries and to perform such academic service as the authorities of the several universities may desire."

Dr. de Villiers was born near Cape

Town, attending the University of Stellenbosch, and later the University of Zurich. For the past five years he has been dean of science at Stellenbosch.

Press Imperilled

Extinction of the University Press once more became a possibility as State Printer E. C. Hobbs launched an investigation of printing plants at five state institutions with a view to consolidating all work at Salem if savings could be effected.

The University Press, under the management of Robert C. Hall, carries a heavy load of rush printing orders for all departments, in addition to the printing of the Daily Emerald, Old Oregon, Commonwealth Review, and numerous bulletins. It is used as a laboratory for typography classes and the fine printing classes which have attracted with their excellence the friendly interest of John Henry Nash, world famous printer of San Francisco.

Expansion Asked

A recommendation for the development of the University school of social science, presented to Governor Charles Martin's committee appointed to probe the use of federal relief funds in Oregon, was included as a suggestion in that committee's official report submitted late in May.

Presented to E. A. McCornack of Eugene and Grace Phelps and Verne Dusenberry of Portland, members of the committee, the recommendation read: "That more adequate means be furnished the University of Oregon for development of its school of social service so that it may be made to conform to the standards of the American Association of Schools for Social Work."

Call for Library Bids

Bids for the University of Oregon's new $350,000 library are expected to be advertised for early in June, according to M. H. Douglass, librarian.

Contracts for the building are expected to be let early in July, Mr. Douglass states. The building is being erected through a PWA grant of 30 per cent of the total.

¶ "Scholarships for high school graduates, made possible by act of the last legislature, will be extended to 147 prospective students in the Oregon higher educational system, it was announced by E. B. Lemon, chairman of the inter-institutional committee on high school contracts. The University will be given 55 of the scholarships. The amounts will range from $18 to $54 each, and will go to students from the upper third of their class who need financial assistance in taking college work.

¶ Mrs. J. E. Snyder, chaperon for the past two years at Delta Delta Delta sorority on the campus, died May 21 following a brief illness. She was born in Fairfield, Iowa, in 1866, and came to Eugene from Seattle.

QUALITY LEADER!

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE Best

In every contest there's a winner—one who by perfect coordination of mental and physical faculties excels in the task at hand. He is the best—and you can't beat the best.

PROPANE SOLVENT PROCESS GIVES TRITON DEFINITE QUALITY LEADERSHIP

IN every lubricating oil "stock," eastern or western, there is a certain portion of 100% pure parathenes—the best lubricating fractions—the true paraffin-base oil.

Union's patented PROPANE Solvent Process, by which TRITON is made rejects all undesirable, low-gravity materials from the crude "stock"—leaving only 100% pure Parathenes.

WHAT IT DOES—How You Gain!

Over 500,000 miles of road testing have proved:

1. TRITON has longer life in the crankcase.
2. TRITON greatly reduces carbon and sludge formation.
3. TRITON reduces engine wear from 22 to 43%—assuring longer engine life.
4. TRITON is more stable in use—changes viscosity less than other oils.

Try TRITON. Only 30¢ a quart—at thousands of dealers.
