Its Quality shines brightest after 10,000 miles

People who have examined the new Master De Luxe Chevrolet marvel at its quality. Very likely you will marvel, too . . . because Chevrolet has made this car so big and sturdy—so fine in every part—that it no longer looks or acts like a low-priced car! The most pleasing result of this high quality manufacture is that the Master De Luxe will continue to give real satisfaction long after you are satisfied you have received full value for the money paid for it. This new Chevrolet has a habit of staying young. Its quality shines brightest after ten thousand miles. The most surprising thing of all is that its prices are among the lowest and that it gives the greatest operating economy in Chevrolet history. But, as we have said before, quality is remembered all the more pleasantly when price is so low.

NEWS AND COMMENT

By The Editor

New Chancellor

On September 1, Dr. Frederick Maurice Hunter, chancellor of the University of Denver, comes to Oregon as the new chancellor of the Oregon State System of Higher Education.

Thus, on that date, the beginning of a new school year, Oregon institutions of higher education embark upon a new era of administration under the guidance of a man esteemed by educators, a man of proven capabilities, a man free from the shackles of bitterness and prejudice that have marked the transition of Oregon's institutions from separate schools to an unified system.

Dr. Hunter has already demonstrated many qualities that indicate his fitness for the difficult task that he has accepted. On his recent visit to the state, Oregon educators and citizens were impressed with his tact and his understanding of educational problems but even more particularly they saw in him the personality, at once likeable but firm, that could cope with the complex problems of "putting across" the now nationally significant "Oregon experiment."

New Opportunity

With the retirement of Dr. Kerr and the ascendancy of Dr. Hunter, Oregon schools at last face the big opportunity and challenge of finally and completely submerging inter-institutional differences in the interests of all higher education in the state. Whether University friends and faculty have been subversive or not; whether Dr. Kerr has been partial or impartial—all of that is now in the past. The same "challenge" that helped persuade Dr. Hunter to accept the chancellorship is faced by every alumnus and friend of higher education. If they cannot accept that challenge, neither can Dr. Hunter. If they cannot accept and support a system composed of several distinct yet complementary institutions, Dr. Hunter's efforts will be of small avail.

Dr. Hunter has indicated that he contemplates no changes in the institutional or curricular setup until such time as he has had opportunity to study and become acquainted with the entire Oregon system.

Biographical

Dr. Hunter is 56 years of age. He was born at Savannah, Missouri, March 24, 1879. He graduated from the high school in Blue Rapids, Kan., in 1895. He took his A. B. degree from the University of Nebraska in 1905, being a football star, leader in debate and oratory and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He took his master of arts degree from Columbia in 1919 and his degree of doctor of education at the University of California in 1925.

From 1905-11 Dr. Hunter served as a superintendent of schools and from 1911-12 was professor of agriculture at the University of Nebraska school of agriculture. He was superintendent of schools in Lincoln, Neb., from 1912 to 1917, and superintendent of schools in Oakland, Cal., 1917 to 1928.

Since 1928 he has been chancellor at the University of Denver. In 1920-21 he served the National Education association as president. He was vice-president of the California State Teachers association from 1923 to 1928. He is a trustee of the Foundation for the Advancement of Social Sciences at the University of Denver.

Dr. Hunter is a member of the Congregational church, is a Mason and Shriner, and a member of the Rotary club. He is the author of numerous educational papers.

Dr. Kerr Retires

OLD OREGON feels that the state board acted fairly when it recently bestowed upon Dr. Kerr the title of chancellor emeritus. Dr. Kerr has served the state long and faithfully. However much opinions may differ as to his contributions, there nevertheless is a large body of opinion in the state that would be unwilling to accept any less recognition for the veteran administrator. The peace and quiet of life retired from higher education's last few years should certainly be compensation of a sort for the years of toil and strife to which he has been subjected. The acclaim of his many friends and admirers should likewise atone for some of the humiliations which he has had to endure. The board awarded Dr. Kerr a retirement pension of $6,000 a year.

Revived Spirit

One of the most noticeable reactions at least partially due to the optimism that has been engendered by the appointment of Dr. Frederick M. Hunter as Oregon's new chancellor of higher education has been the marked enthusiasm of the students to lend a hand in the big job of rehabilitating their alma mater. This is not so much from a physical standpoint, but from the standpoint of those intangible qualities of spirit and constructive student endeavor in their school.

First has been the determined effort to stir favor for a new student union building. In this campaign much progress has already been made and institutional authorities are giving careful thought and consideration to the possibilities and probabilities of such a venture.

More recent has been the revival of the old Greater Oregon Committee with its objective of institutional promotion. This time, however, the students have adopted a broader plan than heretofore. Pure institutional promotion is "out." The basis for the new organization is predicated on the idea that Oregon's institutions should serve Oregon students and that these institutions offer greater opportunities and benefits than schools not situated within the state. Secondary to this objective is that of familiarizing prospective students with the curricular offerings, the spirit and objectives of their own state University.

The summer organization is headed by Robert Lucas, editor-elect of the Daily Emerald. Under Lucas 150 committeemen in 55 Oregon cities are assisting in placing before prospective students information about Oregon's schools of higher education and more detailed information about the University of Oregon. Personal contact with these students and a series of publications on the University are included in the committee's plan of operation.

Alumni who know of some prospective college student have been requested to assist this student in obtaining the information he might desire by communicating with the Greater Oregon Committee, with offices located in the Alumni office on the campus. The organization also maintains a branch office in the American Bank building, Portland.

New Department

A need that could not easily be denied was the re-establishment by the state board of higher education of a department of applied social science in Portland as a part of the College of Social Science at Eugene. The department will be for the training of social workers and will be on a graduate but non degree granting basis.

During the past depression years there has been a woeful lack of trained social workers in the state. The re-establishment of the Portland department will do much to alleviate this lack and will give the University and the College of Social Science added prestige and opportunity for service to the state.

FOOTBALL SEATS

Alumni Preference

By special arrangement between the University of Oregon Alumni Association and the Associated Students, alumni of the University who are paid-up members of the Alumni Association are accorded the opportunity of preferential seating at all University of Oregon home games. Application forms will be sent to alumni within the next two weeks. Home games for 1935 are:

- Sept. 28—Gonzaga at Portland.
- Oct. 5—Utah at Eugene
- October 12—California at Portland.
- October 19—Idaho at Eugene.
- Nov. 9—Oregon State at Eugene.
- Nov. 16—Portland University at Portland

Alumni who are paid-up members of the Alumni Association (or those who send $2.00 for alumni dues with their ticket application) will have their orders filled prior to the time that tickets are placed on sale for the general public. Orders must, however, be filed with the A.S.U.O. office prior to September 15, the date on which all orders will be filled.

This offer to alumni does not necessarily assure them of 50-yard line seats. It does, however, assure the paid-up alumnus that his seats will be selected prior to the filling of orders from the general public.

Alumni are permitted as many seats as desired. However, no guarantee of more than six seats in a block in the alumni section can be made. Requests for larger blocks or special positions will, however, be faithfully observed wherever possible. A representative of the Alumni Association will be on hand during the filling of all paid-up alumni applications on September 15.

COMMENCEMENT

561 New Alumni

Five hundred and sixty-one University of Oregon seniors were graduated into the ranks of the alumni on June 17 at the 58th annual Commencement exercises held in McArthur court, with the son of one of the University's early benefactor's, Oswald Garrison Villard, as commencement speaker, presenting to them a challenge to solve the world's problems with less selfish aim than did their elders.

Thus was climaxed one of the most stimulating Commencement weekends in University history.

Date Change Asked

"Alumni Day," Saturday, June 15, started the formal activities of the weekend. The semi-annual meeting of the Association was held in Guild theatre with President Merle R. Chessman, '09, presiding. Two important items of business were the petitioning to the state board to change the date of Commencement to coincide with that of Oregon State College to allow seniors and undergraduate students an opportunity to obtain jobs on an equal basis and to participate in the activities of the weekend and to incorporate the Association under the name of Alumni Association of the University of Oregon, Inc. The resolution regarding the date of Commencement was presented by a committee composed of: Fred Staver, chairman; Nicholas Jaureguy, Oscar Furuset, and Omar C. Palmer, all of Portland, and Karl W. Onthank, '13, Eugene. The resolution for incorporation was presented by the Alumni Council, the Association's governing board.

Student Union Favored

Another motion was passed that a committee be named to work with students and faculty in promoting the program for a student union building at Oregon. Merle R. Chessman, Astoria, class of 1909, presided as president of the alumni association. Lynn McCready was named chairman of this committee. Ethel Tooze Fisher, 15, Roseburg, was named on the alumni council to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Chessman after he became president of the alumni.

Dr. C. V. Boyer, university president, addressed the alumni meeting, and told of the recent faculty action in re-arranging the commencement dates, and declared "the university faces the new year with optimism."

About 300 alumni, seniors and faculty members attended the annual University luncheon held in the John Straub Memorial Building, where President Chessman again presided as toastmaster.

Dr. Morris Speaks

Dr. Victor P. Morris, '15, professor of economics, gave the message of the day and represented his class, one of the five to hold reunions this year. Dr. Morris stressed the importance of a continuing relationship between the graduate and his alma mater stating that the new view of institutional responsibility extended beyond the four years of actual attendance into the later life of the alumnus.

Josephine Waffle, Astoria, spoke for the graduating class and pointed out the feeling of humility that descends upon the graduate as he leaves the institution that has sheltered him for four years. Miss Waffle was named the winner of the Albert cup for the most outstanding senior by vote of her class the previous evening and is the daughter of Dr. Clara Waffle, '07.

Other Speakers Listed

Also speaking for their classes were: Winifred Graham, '25, Salem; Roy K. Terry, '10, Portland; and A. R. Tiffany, '05, Eugene. Daniel Waldo Bass, '85, Seattle, represented the 50-year class and told of the many changes that had transpired since his campus days. Miss Elizabeth Day and Mrs. L. H. Potter, both of Eugene, and Miss Osie Walton, Seattle, other members of the class of 1885 in attendance at their fiftieth reunion, were introduced to the luncheon guests and presented with bouquets from the Alumni Association.

Many alumni attended the reception given in the afternoon by President and Mrs. Boyer and Chancellor and Mrs. Kerr in Alumni Hall of Gerlinger Building.

Reunion classes met for reunion dinners at 5:30. The classes of 1925, 1885 and 1910 met at the Anchorage and 1905 and 1915 met at the Osburn hotel. Families were guests of the class members at these dinners. Following the reunion dinners alumni attended the traditional Flower and Fern procession, after which groups of alumni stood about talking and visiting until long after dusk.

At the Baccalaureate exercises Sunday morning in McArthur court, Dr. Raymond C. Brooks, head of the department of religion at Pomona college, challenged the graduating seniors to dedicate their lives to constructing a new civilization based upon the principles of democracy and the modern powers of science to bring about world peace and unanimity.

Villard, Coleman Honored

Commencement Speaker Oswald Garrison Villard and Norman F. Coleman, former president of Reed college, were awarded honorary doctor of laws degrees at the Monday exercises. Villard's degree was awarded "in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the knowledge of history and the affairs of state; his tireless promotion of higher ideals for American public life; his courageous championship of democracy and a free press as instruments for the upbuilding of a better social order." Dr. Coleman was honored for "his quarter century of fruitful teaching and educational leadership; his sustained and statesmanlike endeavor in promoting understanding and good will between the nations of the world, and his conspicuous services in advancing the cause of cooperation and zeal for social justice in the realm of industrial relations."

Plea for Freedom

Villard, in addressing the seniors, challenged: "To you is given the task of solving problems of government and human relations which we (your elders) have failed to work out. What an appeal, what an opportunity, what a cause!" Mr. Villard sounded a warning against such doctrines as fascism, communism and other forms of government that have as an objective the submerging of the individual and individual rights. His was a plea for more democracy, not less, and most of all one of individual freedom.

Governor Charles H. Martin, Board Member B. F. Irvine, and Chancellor W. J. Kerr also appeared on the program. Other guests at the ceremonies were Mrs. Beatrice Walton Sackett and Charles A. Brand, President Willard Marks, all members of the state board of higher education. Following the exercises distinguished guests and faculty members were honored at a luncheon given by President and Mrs. C. V. Boyer at the John Straub Memorial building.

Alumnae Gather

Alumnae of the University and graduating senior women gathered Saturday morning for the annual breakfast and meeting of the State Association of University of Oregon Women at the Osburn hotel. Mrs. C. V. Boyer and women graduates of the class of 1885 were honor guests at the gathering. Mrs. Ella T. Edmunson, president, was reelected for another year. Other officers were: Mrs. William Barker, first vice-president; Miss Jeannette Calkins, second vice-president; Miss Bertha Comings, secretary; Mrs. A. R. Quackenbush, treasurer; and Mrs. Frank Chambers, Mrs. R. S. Bryson, and Elma Hendricks, directors. A temporary constitution was adopted for the coming year.

CLASS OF 1910

Reunion Report

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following report of the reunion of the class of 1910 has been turned in to Old Oregon by the class reunion committee and is herewith reprinted in full.

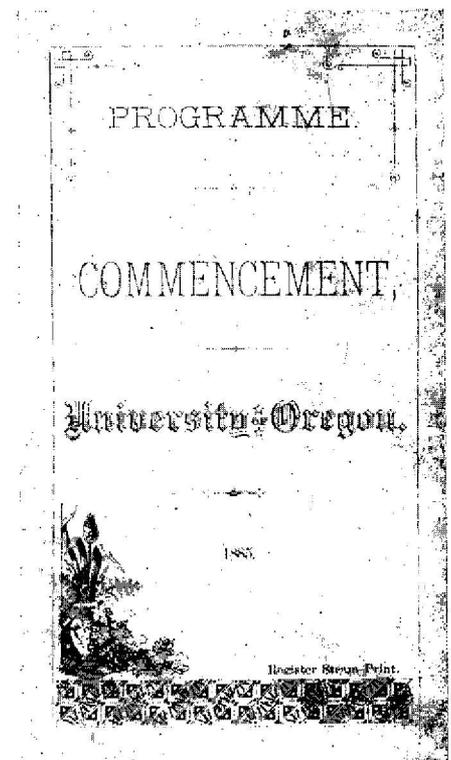

The first class ever to have a freshman enrollment of more than 100 students at the University of Oregon returned to the campus this June to reunite and to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its graduation. This was the class of 1910 which, incidentally, had the largest attendance both from the standpoint of numbers and percentage of any of the classes holding reunions on June 15.

It was the class' twenty-fifth reunion and twenty-five were present for the occasion which constituted twenty-five per cent of the class. Messages from approximately 25 other members of the class were read at the reunion dinner. It was truly a Silver Jubilee.

ON THE OREGON CAMPUS FOR THEIR SILVER ANNIVERSARY

With the gift they gave to the University—the historic Senior Bench—members of the Class of '10 were caught by the camera as they celebrated their 25th graduation anniversary at Commencement. From left to right, (seated)—Mrs. Edith Prescott Siefert, Frances P. Young, Eugene; Mrs. Lela McPherson Ramsey, Goldendale, Washington; Mrs. Jennie Lilly Neal, Bend; Mrs. Ruth Baldersee Wheeler, Mrs. Isolene Shaver Gilbert, and Mrs. Katherine Henderson Fish, all of Eugene. Standing—Harper N. Jamison, Earl A. Nott, McMinnville; Professor H. C. Howe, University of Oregon; William Chester Campbell, McMinnville; Arthur McCornack Geary, Portland; Burke B. Williams, Dean T. Goodman, both of Salem; William G. Williams, Portland; Herman A. Scullen, Corvallis; Roy K. Terry, Aileen Brong, Portland; Dr. Chester A. Downs, Salem; W. Wilshire Bristow, Eugene; Carl B. Neal, Bend; Mrs. Ruby Pratt Loomis, Portland; Oliver B. Huston, Salem; Dean James H. Gilbert, '03, University of Oregon. Not in the picture are Miss Bertha Frances Comings and Van Svarverud, both of Eugene. Copies of this photograph may be obtained by writing the Alumni Office.

PROGRAM, 1885

For Commencement 50 years ago those attending the exercises received this program.

At the alumni luncheon Saturday noon all were seated together. Roy K. Terry spoke for the class and did an admirable job of "coming back at" Toastmaster-President Merle Chessman who was a member of 1909 and who started a verbal feud as to which of the two classes was the best. Terry recalled the changes on the campus and dress since 1910 and recounted many humorous incidents of campus life "back when." Particularly interesting was his explanation of the origin of the "senior bench" which was the class' gift to the University. As treasurer of the class, Terry was instructed to buy the best and sturdiest cement bench that the $24.15 class treasury would buy. The senior bench was the result. Some of the members of the class had never seen this gift until their return to the campus this year—Twenty-five years afterward.

Just prior to meeting at the Anchorage for the reunion dinner, the members assembled for pictures of the class gathered around the senior bench.

Memories of that dinner will linger long with those who were fortunate enough to be present. For two hours members and families and guests (nearly fifty persons in all) were transported back to the four years preceding graduation in 1910. Many more members were present in spirit as shown by telegrams, letters, and post cards from all over the United States, with characteristic messages—read to all. Most fun was had in the picking of certain contest winners, with Oliver Huston presiding. In the contest for the man having the most hair, Chester Campbell of McMinnville won by a hair over Roy Terry of Portland. Lela McPherson Ramsey of Goldendale, Washington, was awarded honors for having come from the most distant point. William G. Williams of Portland won the doubtful honor of having changed most among the men. No such contest was held for women, although Katherine Henderson Fish of Eugene won by a small margin over Jennie Lilly Neal of Bend for having changed the least. Wilshire Bristow of Eugene won similar honors among the men.

Contests Held

Oliver Huston won honors for having the most children, being the father of four daughters. His closest competitors were Dr. Chester Downs of Salem and Wilshire Bristow of Eugene, who each have three children. Ruth Balderree Wheeler was able to boast of the oldest child, a daughter, who graduated from the University in 1932 and another who was to receive her diploma Monday, following her mother's twenty-fifth reunion.

By a unanimous and enthusiastic vote it was decided to hold another reunion in 1940—five years hence. Oliver Huston was appointed as a committee of one to chairman this event. Elaborate plans were outlined and announcement of two special prizes (one for the member of the class who has done the most for the University and another for the member who has done the most for the state of Oregon) were made. When the time came to leave for the flower and fern procession all were reluctant to leave, and practically all met on the campus following the procession and talked until after dusk.

On one thing all were agreed, that the reunion in 1940 was to be, like the freshman class of 29 years ago, the "biggest and the best ever."

Edith Prescott Siefert, Katherine Henderson Fish, Isolene Shaver Gilbert and Wilshire Bristow were in charge of events for the 1935 reunion, and unanimous thanks were accorded them by members for their fine work.

The class of '10 had such a grand and glorious time at the reunion that they intend to start a new era at Oregon for grander and more glorious reunions among all the graduates.

The Secretary of the Alumni Association was so pleased with the enthusiasm shown that he has promised to send not only this report to all the members of the class but has promised that each one will receive the next Old Oregon with the class picture and the names of those attending.

Classmate Oliver Huston accepted the job as a committee of one for the 30th anniversary on condition that the committee send each member this resume of the activities on June 15th.

Remember the date of our next reunion—the 30th—just 5 years away in 1940.

NOBEL PRIZE

Disease and Cure

Nobel prize winner Dr. William Parry Murphy, B.A. '14, who began the studies in the University of Oregon Medical School which were to bring him highest national and international recognition as the discoverer of the cure for pernicious anemia, concluded this month a visit in his old Portland home.

Returning to his work as faculty member of the Harvard Medical School in Boston, quiet and reserved Dr. Murphy pointed out that pernicious anemia no longer need be regarded with any more alarm than any other minor affliction. Modest Dr. Murphy, explaining the formerly fatal disease, said, "It is a disease in which there is not a normal production of the red cells of the blood. Secretion of certain substances in the stomach is altered and this is related to the failure of the bone marrow to form cells properly."

OREGON'S DR. MURPHY

Winner of the Nobel prize for medicine in 1934, Dr. William Parry Murphy, '14, one of the University's most distinguished graduates, visited in Oregon this summer.

Recipient of Many Honors

Liver, said Dr. Murphy, who received his M.D. from Harvard in 1920, is the cure for pernicious anemia, but now a fluid containing the necessary liver vitamins are injected where formerly liver had to be consumed in large quantities.

The Nobel prize for medicine is but one of many honors bestowed upon Dr. Murphy. From Finland came its highest decoration, the Order of the White Rose; from the University of Edinburgh came the Cameron prize, the highest medical recognition offered by the British Empire; from Germany came membership in the Halle, the oldest academy of science in the world; from the Massachusetts Humane Society he received a gold medal.

One of Oregon's most honored sons, Dr. Murphy came home to see his parents and brothers, George E. and Harry B. Murphy, both LL.B. '15.

Chessman New Prexy

Honors continued to pour on Merle R. Chessman, '09, president of the Oregon Alumni Association, and publisher of the Astorian-Budget, when he was elected president of the Oregon State Editorial Association at the July convention in Hood River. The Astoria editor also was made an honorary member of the Crag Rats, famous Hood River mountaineering organization at a ceremony before the members of the state press climbed Mount Hood.

Arne G. Rae, '22, University of Oregon professor of journalism, was re-elected OSEA secretary and field manager to serve under Chessman's administration.

Sells Northwestern

As director of new students, Dr. John C. Eberhart, '29, is producing dividends for Northwestern University. Says last month's issue of the Northwestern University Information of Dr. Eberhart: "Since his appointment an active program has been inaugurated in acquainting prospective students with the advantages of Northwestern University. A series of meetings was arranged during the spring months which brought to the Evanston campus hundreds of outstanding students from high schools in this area. He is especially desirous of cooperating with alumni and counselors engaged in new student work throughout the country."

'First' for Oregon

Upon graduation recently from Oxford, Rhodes scholar Robert F. Jackson, B.A. '29 and M.A. '31, received an "only specially distinguished first," the most coveted scholastic honor in the British Empire. Only three percent of Oxford graduates are awarded a "first," and seldom does such distinction go to an American student. From Oxford Jackson goes to Harvard where he begins the instruction of physics this fall.

Surprise!

In Eugene's postoffice Wallace C. Eakin, '16, of Albany, left his wallet. Two hours later in a restaurant the loss was discovered and friends paid the check. Returning to the postoffice Eakin could not find the wallet. Eugene police were notified, but were dubious. So was Eakin. Four days later his wallet, intact, was returned in the mail. Accompanying was a letter from Floyd C. Westerfield, ex-'17, Eugene, saying he had found the pocketbook shortly after Eakin had lost it. Eakin and Westerfield were classmates at the University and had not seen each other for more than 13 years—and Eugene boasts an honest man.

After 21 Years

Coincidental with Eugene high school's commencement last month, Mrs. Marie P. Fletcher, '18, announced her retirement as librarian after 21 years service on the faculty. A tribute to Mrs. Fletcher is one of the state's finest high school libraries which she has seen grow from 500 volumes to over 10,000.

"Children of high school age," said Mrs. Fletcher, "are franker than they used to be. Lately, I have found them more and more like young people were in what we term the Victorian day—with a genuine desire for finer living."

Of four sons, three are alumni of the University of Oregon—Dr. Elmer Gordon Fletcher, '20; Meader Fletcher, ex-'18; Franklin Tilden Fletcher, ex-'15.

Said Mrs. Fletcher of the future: "I am going to work in my garden, read and cultivate my friends—something I have not had a chance to do for a long time. I hope to be able to invite my friends in for tea now and show a bit of hospitality." Recently she was feted at a banquet staged by faculty members and former students.

Wellington Re-elected

Earle Wellington, Portland, was re-elected on Friday, July 18, to the presidency of the University of Oregon Federation, an organization composed of representatives from the alumni, dads, mothers, students and friends of the University. Wellington has held the office of president since the inception of the organization in October, 1933.

Wellington is also president of the Oregon Dads, having been elected to that position last fall.

Mrs. Walter M. Cook, Portland and representative of the Oregon Mothers on the board of directors of the federation, was named to the first vice-presidency. Lynn McCready of Eugene who represents the University Alumni Association was named second vice-president and Robert K. Allen, secretary of the Alumni Association and ex-officio member of the federation board was renamed secretary-treasurer of the group.

The federation was organized to promote the common interests of the participating organizations and to promote the interests and increase the usefulness of the University of Oregon and higher education in the state of Oregon. The group encourages the individual identity of each participating organization and its program, but represents only those activities in which all groups are in accord.

Quarter Million

A total of $259,962 in cash and property with an actual cash value, as well as hundreds of books and other objects on which a cash value is hard to place, was received by the University for the year just past, it was announced at Commencement by Burt Brown Barker, vice-president.

Individuals and groups donating cash or property to the institution totaled 436. In addition to the funds the institution received 757 books, 5617 pamphlets and periodicals and some Braille volumes for the blind.

The federal government heads the list of donors for the year, with contributions for CWA, FERA and SERA projects totaling $216,349.04. Many of these are as yet uncompleted, and will provide employment for some time for many workers. An important item in this classification was the grant of $30,781.54 for student employment, a project that not only provided work, but actually kept several hundred students from dropping out of school.

The new library project, soon to be under way, was aided by an outright grant of $101,300, while the balance of the total cost of $350,000 is in the form of a loan. Funds granted for FERA projects on the campus totaled $84,257.50, and enabled the institution to repair and renovate buildings, construct heating tunnels and keep the grounds in good order.

COLONEL BILL—LIFE AND LIKENESS

At the Oregon-Oregon State dual meet, the Order of the O presented to the University a bust of Oregon's "grand old man" of athletics. To commemorate his 31st coaching year the lettermen preserved his likeness to accompany his deeds in Oregon's "hall of fame."

Foundations Give

Foundations from out of the state contributed a total of $13,855. The Carnegie corporation again designated the University here as the western center for normal art training and provided $6750 for this work. Harvard is the eastern center. The Spelman fund of New York sent $5000 to the University bureau of municipal research and service for its work in connection with the League of Oregon Cities, while the American Municipal Association allocated $1905.34 for the same purpose. The National Research council sent $200 to Dr. R. R. Huestis for research in zoology.

Major projects under way under FERA grants include the construction of steam tunnels on the campus, $30,808; local government survey, $21,358.08, and landscaping of University grounds, $12,739.20.

Cash Prizes Offered

Mrs. Gertrude Bass Warner again donated $400 for prizes in the Murray Warner essay contest, and a total of $7196.03 for the museum of art and the Murray Warner collection of oriental art, recognized as one of the finest in the United States.

The student loan fund was swelled by a total of $1,117.88 in gifts. Gifts valued at more than $1000 were also received for the recently established Oregon state museum of anthropology.

Endowment funds yielded $9,031.22 for the year. Payments on pledges to the Oregon Alumni Holding Company totaled $1647.51. A total of $6776.46 was paid in by donors of commonwealth scholarships.

Oregon Innovation

Answering requests of Oregon newspaper editors for a series of authoritative articles interpreting legal, historical, social and economic backgrounds of New Deal legislation, particularly the now almost extinct NRA, University of Oregon faculty experts have prepared discussion for the state press.

Staff members of the school of journalism are shaping the articles into newspaper form after they have been drafted by the authors.

NRA's financial aspects is the work of Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of social sciences and economics professor. Dr. John T. Student Fee Law Blocked

With over 15,000 names on referendum petitions the legislature's bill, authorizing the state board to collect, at its discretion, student activity fees up to $15 per year, will be voted upon by Oregon citizens in the general election in November, 1936, in event no special election is scheduled before that date. Had it not been for the referendum movement the law would have gone into effect June 12, 1935.

145 Scholarships Awarded

From 457 applicants the high school contacts committee of the state board of higher education last month recommended and awarded scholarships to 145 "High quality young men and women who experience real difficulty in getting through college without financial aid." Varying in amount from $18 for normal school to $54 for Oregon and Oregon State, the scholarships are the first made under the new law passed at the last legislative session. Limited to 2 per cent of each institution's enrollment, entering University students will get 55; the State College will receive 57.

Freshman Week

All entering first year students will converge on the Oregon campus this fall on September 23 for the opening of Freshman week. During that week entrance examinations will be given, freshmen will get the "feel" of the campus, and fraternities and sororities will carry on their fall rushing drives.

Classes begin for all students on September 30.

Summer Enrollment Up

The largest summer session student body in recent years, 601 students, eclipsed last year's total of 573 at the close of the registration period on the University campus.

In Portland, too, the University summer school enrollment swelled, showing 725 registered as compared with 700 last year.

Library Bids Open

Following the recent approval of plans prepared under the direction of Ellis F. Lawrence, dean of the Oregon school of architecture, by PWA, bids will be opened August 19 for the construction of the University's new $350,000 library.

Construction will begin early in September according to present plans.

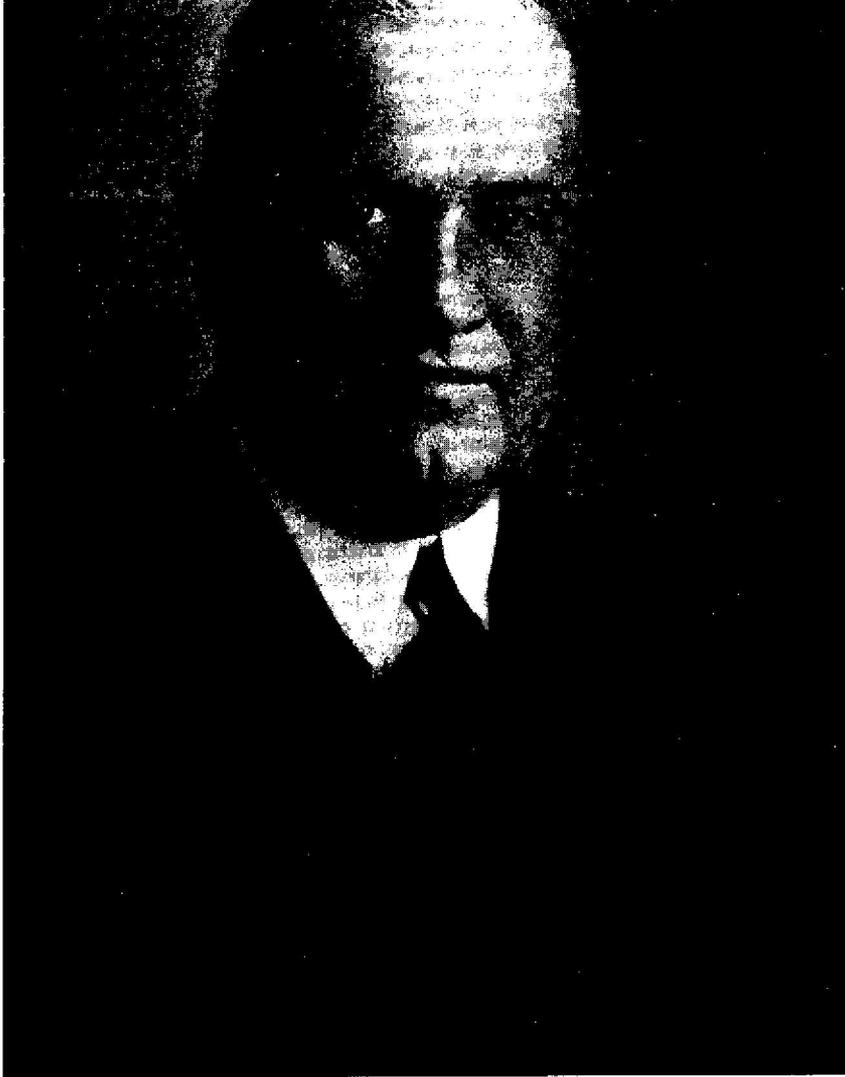

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

Training-

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN FOR CAREERS OF CITIZENSHIP AND SERVICE

CHANCELLOR of Oregon's System of Higher Education is Dr. Frederick Maurice Hunter. To Oregon he comes from Denver University with many noteworthy achievements to his credit.

Looking Ahead

● Beginning a new epoch is the University of Oregon with the appointment of Dr. Frederick Maurice Hunter as chancellor of Oregon's system of higher education. Even as ambitious young high school graduates look forward to acquiring educational equipment for successful careers in the future, so the University of Oregon embarks upon a new era in the same spirit. The University is looking forward.

● Youth, education and progress march together, step by step. Playing a major role in the great economic, cultural and social developments that are to come—just as it has in the past—is the liberal university. Such an institution is the University of Oregon.

OUTSTANDING among western universities and on a par with the nation's best is the University of Oregon College of Social Sciences under Dean James H. Gilbert. His school offers exceptional opportunity for training in careers of public service.

FAMOUS for its accomplishments is Oregon's Law School, which, under the direction of Dean Wayne L. Morse, has received the highest rating that can be awarded to any law school. Many of the state's leading lawyers are Oregon graduates.

RECOGNIZED as one of the five leading medical schools in the United States, the University of Oregon Medical School, supervised by Dean Richard B. Dillehunt, is located in Portland. Complete pre-medical training for the advanced specialized work is offered at Eugene.

NATIONAL recognition has been given the University of Oregon School of Education for its researches and its training of school administrators. James R. Jewell is dean of this school which enjoys unusual success with its graduates.

APPEALING to students who have been graduated from universities and colleges but who desire to continue their education, the Graduate School directed by Dean George Rebec offers advanced degrees, including that of Doctor of Philosophy.

REPUTATION both national and international, has placed the School of Architecture and Allied Arts among the select few in the country. Under Dean Ellis F. Lawrence the University of Oregon has become famous as the art center of the west just as Harvard has in the east.

PRESIDENT of the University of Oregon, Dr. Clarence Valentine Boyer is also Dean of the College of Arts and Letters which is rated among the top 3% of liberal arts colleges in America.

RANKING with Columbia and Missouri as one of the three premier journalism schools in the United States is the Oregon School of Journalism. Directed by Dean Eric W. Allen, this school offers practical journalism coordinated with a wide range of social sciences.

HONORS for outstanding work have been won by Oregon's School of Physical Education. Supervised by Dean John F. Board, its students are offered a modern educational program combining natural and social sciences, hygiene and sports.

SOUNDNESS is the prime requisite for both business and the Oregon School of Business Administration under Dean Harrison V. Hoyt. Leadership in methods of instruction, applying principles, have been both commended and copied by strictly graduate business schools at Harvard and Stanford.

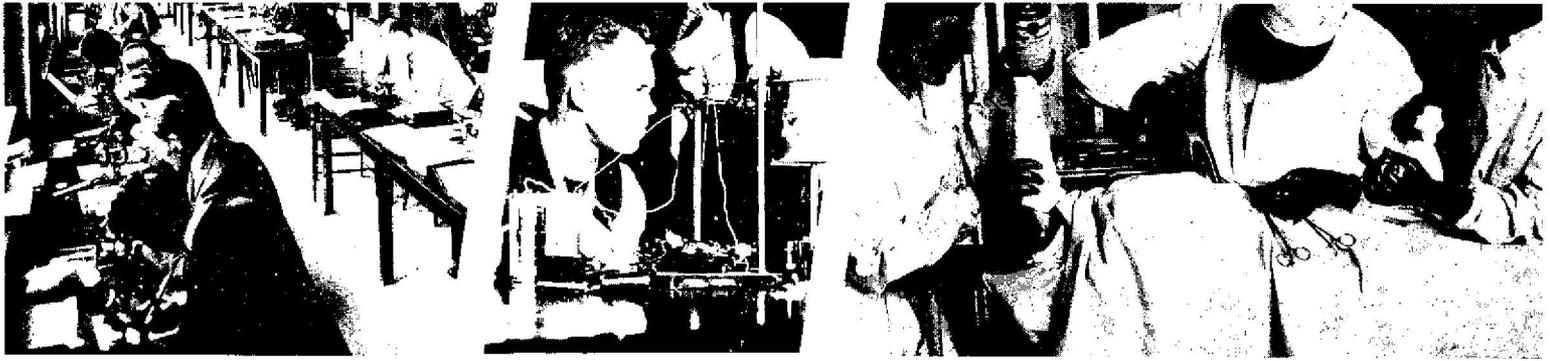

LEADERSHIP of the University of Oregon School of Music is attested by the donations of equipment and funds for research granted by foundations which recognize its position as a musical center. John J. Landsbury is dean.

Opening Frontiers

- Apparent today in almost every phase of activity is the shifting of emphasis from the purely technical and industrial outlook to the far reaching aspects of social planning, cultural development and economic adjustment. Just beginning to open up are the fascinating frontiers of the social sciences as the problem of adapting man to the new era grows increasingly difficult.
- Applying its culture, its studies in the new sciences of human adjustment, the liberal university plays the important role. The background offered at a liberal university is an invaluable addition to more formal studies in preparation for positions of constructive leadership.
- Today the opportunities for pioneering are found in the social professions of economic planning, statesmanship, education, journalism and in the allied fields of arts, literature and music.
- Blazing the way to progress, students at the University of Oregon—a liberal university—prepare themselves for careers of citizenship and public service.

IMPRESSIVE from the air as from the ground is the expansive greenness and the architectural beauty of the Oregon campus.

GREEKS had a word for it—but their form was never more graceful than that displayed in this student tableau.

SKILLED in the use of pencil and brush are these students in drawing. In art as in other departments of the University of Oregon stress is put on the student's ability to create and to achieve original expression.

HEAR YE! Trial practice is a regular part of Oregon's course in law. Pleading in the courtroom before judge and jury is as important as knowing the principles and theories of law and mastering the statutes. Law students, like all Oregon students, learn by doing things for themselves.

MERMAIDS, but not purely ornamental are these Oregon girls. In swimming as in all physical education classes for both men and women, students master correct form along with the modern technique in teaching.

CHISELERS—but Oregon art students are fashioning forms in sculpturing class under the expert guidance of the University's famous art school faculty.

Principles plus Practice

● Acquiring knowledge comes first at the University of Oregon, but not through books alone do Oregon men and women prepare to take positions of leadership in later life.

● Recognized it is that the person who derives knowledge solely from textbooks is unable to cope successfully with the person who not only has learned principles from books but who, in addition, has applied these principles under actual conditions.

● Oregon students know the thrill of self-satisfaction that comes from conceiving and creating originally. Their perspectives are broadened; many of the problems of the world realistically confront them. Into the maze of difficult and perplexing problems Oregon men and women plunge, sharing in the solutions.

● No hidebound theorists are Oregon students. Whether designing a building in architecture, experimenting with a bubbling beaker of acid in the chemistry labs, playing an intricate piano passage of Chopin or writing terse headlines on the journalism copydesk — students learn to face actual conditions and practical methods of solution.

● Oregon students learn by doing !

FRIENDSHIPS that will be lifelong as well as valuable in the business, professional and public life of tomorrow are formed on the Oregon campus.

BACKSTAGE as well as on the stage Oregon drama students learn all phases of play production in workshop groups.

RELAXING between classes, Oregon students (below left) discuss a professor's lecture or pass the time of day. Characteristic of student life is the spirit of democracy and easy informality which pervades the Oregon campus. EXPLORING the atom romantically challenges the modern chemist (below center) to make discoveries and developments for industry and science. X-RAY mysteries become common knowledge to Oregon medical students (below right) who get real experience in the school's celebrated clinics.

Education Is Not

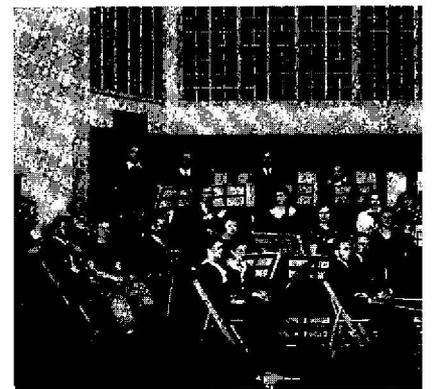

- Education is more than mere book learning. It demands that individuals know how to associate ideas, how to cooperate in common enterprise, how to endeavor.
- At the University of Oregon work and studies create each student a well-rounded individual—one who is best fitted to succeed in civic and public life.
- Accordingly, the student at Oregon is able to appeal to his own tastes. A premium is put on individuality. On the Oregon campus each student is urged to grow just as he must in the world outside.
- Oregon men and women are encouraged to participate in managing student government, taking part in sports fields, studying in the classroom and library and in all the integral parts of the educational process which are so important.
- Oregon men and women learn to do things for COMMITTEES give Oregon students practical managerial and political experience in the functioning of democratic government. Not neglecting the cultural side of life, many world famous artists like Pianist Josef Hofmann and Roland Hayes, negro tenor, appear each year in campus concerts.

ACTIVE participation in musical life. In the University band, the symphonically inclined student has an opportunity. University credit is granted for those SOCIAL poise and consciousness is gained by Oregon students in formal and informal campus dances. Many Oregon men work their way through school playing in orchestras on the campus.

POWER at bat, airtight fielding and brilliant pitching brought Oregon the northern division Pacific coast conference baseball championships in both the 1934 and 1935 seasons.

● Sound bodies aid clear thinking. Else students become dull, over-serious, from the rigors of academic work, ample opportunity is provided at Oregon for friendly athletic competition in campus leagues. Enjoying the exhilarating thrill of vigorous combat, 65% of the students at Oregon last year kept fit for heavy study routines by participation in intramurals.

PRECISION that results from superior coaching make Oregon basketball teams constantly feared by conference opponents.

for Fun and Glory

● Dominated always by that legendary Oregon Fight, Webfoot teams are habitually among the most feared in the Pacific coast conference. Finding joy in the fierce combat, in the sportsmanship, the discipline, demanded by strenuous sports, rugged young Oregon men learn to "give it and take it" under fire as they must do in the competitive world after college. Getting valuable training under Oregon's famous coaches, 35% of the men in school participated in some intercollegiate sport, and played a part in capturing Oregon's many championships during 1934-1935.

GOLFERS brought the Pacific coast's northern division championship to Oregon in 1935 while the tennis squad took second honors. Minor sports are fostered at Oregon along with the more elaborate major sports program.

ATTACK has made Prink Callison's Webfoot gridiron machines the talk of the Pacific coast conference. Using much of Callison's own football technique, the Oregon system puts stress on a driving offense, but complete mastery of defensive tactics and team coordination are likewise characteristic of Oregon football.

GLORIOUSLY beautiful is Oregon's traditional Canoe Fete. This pageantry on the old millrace is the only one of its kind in the world.

...which permits and encourages the subtle art of group living at its best in the true democratic Oregon tradition.

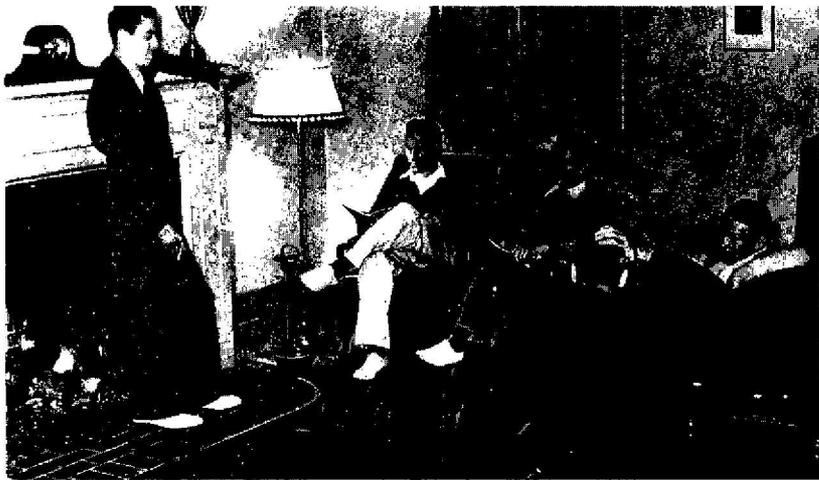

● Steeped in glorious tradition is the University of Oregon. The tradition of genuine democracy is found on the Oregon campus from the friendly "hello" exchanged between students walking on shaded campus paths through all student and faculty groups and activities. Social and class barriers are unknown on the Oregon campus. From this fundamental principle underlying all phases of Oregon life has sprung that intangible thing which has made the University famous—Oregon Spirit.

The Friendly Campus

INTIMATE friendships add to the appeal of fraternity life which develops strong desires for cooperation and brings forth new senses of personal responsibility.

SORORITIES serve to balance academic pursuits with wholesome associations with other Oregon women and to act as a stimulus for greater individual achievement.

Lasting Greek Bonds

- Fraternities and sororities give university life its most intimate atmosphere. Lasting friendships are formed; students learn to live. Students sing and laugh together, share life's joys and sorrows, learn to face the world squarely. Advice is given; individual ambitions are encouraged; rough edges are smoothed. At Oregon 34 national Greek fraternities and sororities form bonds that make Oregon students at home on dozens of campuses.

Youngsters for Callison

Prink Callison will open his fourth season as head coach at the University of Oregon the middle of September with a squad built around 15 lettermen, only two of them with two years of regular experience. The balance of the 1935 Webfoot squad will be composed mainly of sophomores, with a sprinkling of junior college transfers.

The outlook in general is slightly brighter than at this time last year, mainly because the Webfoots will be far better supplied with reserves. The 1935 team will be less experienced to offset the reserve gain.

Loss of nine lettermen through graduation will leave Callison a tremendous task in sending out a capable 1935 eleven. Weak spots loom at the tackle posts, where giants Alex Eagle and Gardner Frye moved out, and at both halfback and the quarterback positions in the backfield. Remaining berths will be filled by returning veterans who have shown their ability under fire.

Tackles Big Worry

Edwin Farrar, husky reserve center last fall, appears slated for first string pivot duty this year. He will be supported by a trio of ambitious newcomers to varsity ranks—Chandler Berry, a reserve last fall; Denny Braid, ex-Portland star who transferred from Oregon Normal, and Vernon Moore, 200-pound sophomore rated by coaches as a great prospect.

Ross Carter and Clarence Coddling, both seniors with one year of first team experience, will probably rank tops as guards. Understudies include two letter winners of last fall—Bill Estes and Andy Hurney, who is available both at guard and tackle. Tony Amato, 203-pound sophomore, and Winfred Pepper, transfer from Fullerton J. C., are other candidates.

The vacant tackle posts left by Alex Eagle and Gardner Frye are the object of stiff competition from blonde Del Bjork, Astoria giant who played regularly last year; John Engstrom, scrappy transfer from St. Mary's; Pat Fury, 1934 reserve and brother of Center Con, and Kenyon Skinner, 214-pound sophomore. Other prospects are Robert Shaw, transfer from Fullerton J. C., and Chuck Shimomura, Japanese star from Washington high in Portland.

Ends Plentiful

Callison will be blessed with ten capable end candidates, leaving him little fear of formidable wingmen. Heading the long list are three lettermen—Budd Jones, with two years of service, and Stan Riordan and Vincent Walker. Others are Leonard Holland and Alan Wilson, transfers; Mel Engel, Leif Jacobsen, Frank Beers and Frank Johnson, sophomores, and Jerry Calhoun, reserve.

Three letter wearers will vie for the first string quarterbacking berth. They are Johnny Reischman, versatile blocking back from the 1934 team and the leading candidate; Hugh McCredie, reserve last year, and Dick Bishop, second string fullback in 1934. Lester Lewis, place-kicking star from the freshman team, and Joe Houston, transfer from Glendale junior college, are other hopes.

Back, Michek in Key Posts

The left halfback post, important ball-carrying berth under Callison, will be handled by Walt (Blondie) Back, 190-pound triple threat letterman from the 1934 reserves. He will have two lightweights as understudies in Dale Lasselle, sparkplug of last years freshmen, and Bobby King, 155-pound newcomer from Long Beach junior college.

Ray Lopez, 165-pound Spaniard, is the only letterman returning among the right halfbacks, but will find strong competition in Frank (Bud) Goodin, 185-pound sophomore. Goodin saw no action as a freshman due to an injury, but is rated by the coaching staff as a brilliant prospect. Other right wingers are Bob Braddock, transfer from Southern Oregon Normal; Fred Simpson, transfer from Santa Monica, J. C.; John Brown Browning and Maurice Ward, sophomores, and little Bill Patrick, 1934 reserve.

Crashing Frank Michek, kingpin of Oregon's famous "cruncher" play last year, will again hold forth as regular fullback in his senior year. He will have assistance from a pair of husky newcomers—Chuck Brachers, lanky sophomore, and Jerry Donnell, punting star from Citrus junior college.

TRACK

N.C.A.A. Disappointing

From Colonel Bill Hayward's track and field team which finished second, losing the Pacific coast northern division title to Washington State by one lone point, seven qualified for the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet in Berkeley last month.

A week before the meet Oregon's

ORUNCHER MAN
Returning for another year of fullbacking on Prink Callison's Webfoot varsity, Frank Michek will again supply the ball-carrying drive for Oregon's famous cruncher play.

LINEMAN HURNEY
With one year of varsity experience, Andy Hurney may land a steady job at one of the guard or tackle positions before the 1935 season is finished.

FLUSH OF VICTORY

Hammering Oregon State into submission to clinch the northern division Pacific coast conference pennant for Oregon and their departing coach, Bill Reinhart, these Web-foot baseball artists brought home a championship for the second successive year.

Captain Bob Wagner, brilliant two-mile runner and fourth place winner in last year's N.C.A.A. finals, withdrew. Attending R.O.T.C. camp at Vancouver, Wash., military regulations would not permit Wagner leave to compete in Edwards stadium.

Blasted by the loss of what was considered a sure place winner, N.C.A.A. Champion Bob Parke, whose 220-foot heave set a new national javelin record in 1934; Warren Demaris, another javelin thrower of championship caliber; Carson Shoemake, whose 9.5 century and 21.2 furlong made him the sprint titlist of the Northwest; George Scharpf, who ran the fastest half mile in the Northwest this year, Marvin Janak, 13-foot pole vaulter; and John Stolp, high jumper who consistently soared above the 6-foot mark, carried the Oregon colors to Berkeley.

Oregon Finishes Low

Ironically enough, Parke did not get a chance to defend his national championship. An old football elbow injury kept his entire season's performances far under par, and he was unable to qualify in Friday's preliminaries for the finals the next day.

Oregon's only place winners in the N.C.A.A. finals were Demaris, who finished fifth in the javelin; Janak and Stolp, who tied for fifth place in the high jump; and Janak who finished tied for sixth place in the pole vault.

'Donut' Crown Won

From a year-long program of hotly contested sports tournaments emerged a dark horse, Phi Delta Theta, to win the 1934-35 University intramural sports championship. Until the spring softball season top place had been effectively cornered among Beta Theta Pi, the independent Yeomen and Sigma Phi Epsilon, all winners of one or more of fall and winter season events.

Participation of men students in this year's program indicates the most successful season since intramural sports were organized in 1930-31 by Paul R. Washke, present director. Thirty-eight per cent of the spring term enrollment of 1442 men took part in the program, while for the entire year 63.6 per cent of all men played "donut" sports, an increase of .6 per cent over last year.

Intramurals are governed by a set of regulations and by-laws in accordance with national rules. Director Washke is assisted by Earl Boushey, Russell Cutler and H. S. Hoyman, all of the physical education department.

In this year's race, the Phi Deltas annexed a championship in only one sport, softball, but made creditable showings in virtually all events to ride just beneath the three favored contenders and accumulate a total of 810 points, nearly 100 points under the record set by the Yeomen in 1933. The Yeomen placed second this year, with championships in both basketball leagues and in wrestling. The Betas followed with swimming, water polo and handball crowns, while the SPEs placed fourth with a title in volleyball.

Scharpf 1936 Captain

Succeeding Wagner as track captain, George Scharpf was named by his teammates to lead the 1936 Hayward array. One of Oregon's principal point winners during the campaign just closed, Scharpf led all other northern division half-milers, chalking 1.54:56. Rail-birds predict he will cover the distance in 1.53 or less next spring.

Fourth in A.A.U.

Shifting running activities from California to the national Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships at Lincoln, Nebraska, Oregon's Shoemake finished fourth sprinting over 100 meters after winning a trial heat the day before in 10.5.

FACULTY

Now He's a Lawyer

Dean of Oregon's law school Wayne L. Morse was recently admitted to practice law in Oregon following his successful hurdling of the bar examinations. Dean Morse has previously not been a member of any state bar.

Dr. Hall Seriously Ill

Still seriously ill in his Washington, D. C., home, former University of Oregon president, Arnold Bennett Hall, is reported in a slightly improved condition following complications resulting from the amputation of an infected finger. Dr. Hall is now director of the institute of government research at Brookings institution.

Mr. Woerndle, an attorney, has offices in the Sherlock building.

Twenty-five hundred poets' names, filed neatly on cards, fill completely one desk drawer in the Poet's Corner, the Oregon Journal, Portland, where Harold Hunt is dramatics editor of that daily. Oregon poets live in China, the middle west, and many scattered places, but to be Oregon poets must really be or have been residents of the Pacific Northwest, in order to be eligible for Mr. Hunt's files. The Corner has readers in all parts of the world, particularly England and Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt (Florence Marquis, ex-'13) live at 3214 Northeast Fortieth Street. Their daughter, Sally, the eldest, was married last October 10th, her twenty-first birthday, to Merwin Houghton, O. S. C. alumnus. Nan, seventeen, the youngest daughter of the family, is a freshman in the Portland unit of Albany College. Phil, fourteen, entered Grant High school last fall. He is a trombonist in the Portland Junior Symphony orchestra.

Just back from a stay of several years in China is Dr. Earl V. Morrow, Portland surgeon. With him Dr. Morrow has brought complete furnishings, furniture and accessories, for his offices in the Broadway Building. Dr. Morrow was U. S. public health surgeon in North China, at Shanghai. While there his office hours, he said, were from 4:30 to 7:30 in the afternoon and evening, while his operating hour was three o'clock a. m. because of the warm climate. The hospitals in which he worked were fine, he said. Some of the nurses and assistants were Chinese, but in the main British.

1911

Mrs. Lillian Cochran Turner (Mrs. Frank Turner) recently visited the campus from her home in Heppner. This was her first visit to Eugene since she attended the University twenty-eight years ago. Her younger daughter, Anabel, is a freshman in the school of journalism and Jeanette, the elder daughter, graduated from the University in June.

1912

Austin F. Flegel, ex-'12, Portland attorney, has been retained to do the legal work for the Oregon liquor control commission.

1913

The class of 1913 held a pre-25th anniversary reunion gathering at Commencement time. Present among others were: Florence Cleveland Donald, Harry L. Cash, Jack Luckey, Carlton Spencer, Wayne Elliott, Karl Onthank. Messages were received from various absent members and plans carried forward for the forthcoming reunion in 1938. It was noted among other interesting facts about the class that seven sons and daughters of class members are now enrolled in the University. From advance reports, the number will at least be doubled next year.

For the past five years Dr. Neuberger, a member of the naval medical corps, has delivered a series of lectures for the American government at the European meet. He speaks five languages and has written extensively on surgery, being the author of several treatises on the subject.

Harry L. Cash, ex-'13, and Mrs. Cash visited on the campus at Commencement time. Cash has been Provincial School Director at Legaspi, Albay, Philippine Islands until recently. He has now returned to the United States. He was accompanied by Burleigh Cash, '13, and Mrs. Cash. Burleigh is on the staff of the Oregon City High school.

From Vernon Motschenbacher comes the following: "You might be interested to know that after five years in the South I have again returned to the Pacific coast as branch manager of the Sun Life of Canada. I was for two years in charge of the Little Rock office, three years in charge in New Orleans, and in May was transferred to San Francisco as manager here. This is one of the company's largest and most important offices and I am very glad to be back on the Pacific coast again. While in New York, I had a nice visit with John MacGregor, '23, and have already met a number of Oregon men here."

Charles Reynolds, formerly of Silverton, is now receiver for the First Inland National Bank, Pendleton.

Writing about Oregon's early days and legal work in Portland occupy the time of George Estes. Already accepted as an Oregon author by critics because of some half dozen books, Mr. Estes has as many more in process of preparation or completed and ready for the printer. Naturalist as well as historian and teller of tales is Mr. Estes. One of his forthcoming books will have to do with Oregon forest folk, a story amongst animals. A deal of it is taken from Hudson's Bay company records.

"Rawhide Railroad," 1916, and "The Stagecoach" have received perhaps the most publicity, the one for its review by Emerson Hough in the Saturday evening Post. From that a friendship arose between the two men lasting until the death of Mr. Hough.

Mr. Estes' information for both books came at first hand. He was at one time chief spokesman for the railroad trainmen and workers in a successful strike of the Pacific coast region. Data for "The Stagecoach" came from his observations at his boyhood home where his father maintained a depot for the early horse stagecoaches, and from family records. Mr. Estes' books are printed privately and many are beautifully illustrated, some with hand water colored plates. The State Library at Salem, Portland City, University, and Masonic Eugene libraries, all have his volumes on their shelves.

Boyce Fenton, former vice-president of the Commonwealth Securities Corporation, Portland, and associates, William H. Hemphill and Paul Campbell, have purchased all capital stock of the corporation, changed the firm name to Hemphill, Fenton and Campbell, and opened late in May with offices at 611 Porter Building. Mr. Fenton will act as secretary-treasurer of the new stock and bond company.

Alumni who registered for the reunion of the class of 1915 at Commencement were W. E. Lackey, Longview, Washington; James T. Donald, Baker, Oregon; Roy C. Andrews, Eugene; Ben F. Dorris, Eugene; Mrs. Helen Van Duyn Quackenbush, Eugene; Walter Brenton, Portland; A. P. Scholl, Portland; Mrs. Carrie Koyl Van Winkle, Portland; Mrs. Callie Beck Heider, Sheridan.

Anthony Jaureguy is resident partner in charge of the Boston office of Price, Waterhouse and Company, public accountants.

Elmer R. Spencer, ex-'16, well known in Portland investment circles since 1920, has opened an office at 212 Pacific Building where he will engage in the general investment business. Mr. Spencer was with Blyth and Company from 1919 to 1930, first entering their employ in San Francisco. Late in 1928, when Blyth and Company joined the New York stock exchange, and opened a brokerage department, Mr. Spencer was named as manager. When this business was sold to Russell, Miller and Company, Mr. Spencer went with the latter firm as resident manager and remained until the local business was taken over by E. A. Pierce and Company. He has since, together with Victor A. Johnson, served as co-manager for that company.

Deeply sun-tanned from much swimming in the surf at Australia's fine beaches, Paul M. DeKoning, Mrs. DeKoning and John, three, and Robert Paul, seven, are now in Portland after a five year sojourn in Sydney, Australia. In Sydney, said Mr. DeKoning, swimming in the surf is by far the most popular of all sports, and one in which everyone indulges. There is one of the most elaborate life saving systems, where there are many rescues but seldom drownings. Mr. DeKoning, who was director of the board of control of Jantzen Knitting Mills in Sydney (only two members of the board of four were actively engaged in the business, after the English custom of bringing the outsiders point of view to the firm's management) is now in the sales department of the Portland factory and offices of that firm. Robert Paul, who will begin Portland schools this fall, is anticipating his first American school days. His course of studies was somewhat different in Sydney where he attended private school, as is customary, for the public schools are not on the same level as the American public school. Sydney is a city of a quarter million inhabitants. The DeKonings lived in a cottage of brick and timber. Only the hard and semi hard woods grow well in Australia, hence houses of wood, as known on this coast, are not practical. The DeKonings live at 6214 Northeast Davis, Portland.

*I struck a match amid the rain drops
While there we waited you and I.
A little flame revealed we both liked Chesterfield.
You know—I know—They Satisfy.*

*You smiled and said, "They do taste better"
And I replied, "They're milder, too."
Those words just fit them to the letter.
