NEWS AND COMMENT

By The Editor

ALL Oregon has been welcoming this month its newest citizen and his family—Chancellor and Mrs. Frederick M. Hunter and son Maurice. Not only by virtue of Dr. Hunter's position as administrative head of Oregon's higher educational system have the Hunter's been welcomed, but because of the fact that the Hunters have with amazing facility and easy dignity elicited the confidence and respect of the Oregon citizenry.

To such a man falls a major portion of the responsibility for the future success of higher education in the state of Oregon—a state that has for the past few years been suffering from acute educational experimental-pains.

However, these disorders would appear now to be definitely on the mend, and slowly the system seems to be settling down to sound constructive effort. The coming of Dr. Hunter marks quite definitely a turning point in the outlook for Oregon educational institutions. Though Dr. Hunter has made no radical moves, a general note of optimism and a general turn toward progress is apparent. Dr. Hunter has indicated that he prefers to better acquaint himself with the system and its problems before taking a too active part in ironing out the difficulties that remain. This course seems wise and at the same time allows for a general settling down to the problems at hand with confidence that if and when changes are made, they will be made only after careful study of all factors involved. The period of more or less haphazard experimentation would seem to be at an end. It is difficult to point out any particular or well-defined proof of the convalescence of Oregon higher education. About all that can be discerned is a trend defined by a myriad of small improvements. Optimism engendered by the new library at the University; indications of a healthy increase in enrollment; the fact that less Oregon students are going out of the state for their schooling; and lastly the confidence and hope centered about the new chancellor—these are the things that bode well for the future.

ONE of the summer's most interesting guessing games has concerned this fall's probable enrollment. Last year 2496 students were enrolled for fall term, an increase of about 17 per cent. About the only reliable index for prognosticating enrollment is the number of admission credentials received. To date this index has shown an approximate increase of 15% over last year's total enrollment. If this figure is reliable, then the University can expect this fall an enrollment of about 2800. Whether it will reach this figure or not is dependent on many variable factors that can not be figured in with any degree of accuracy.

Like last year, enrollment increases in Oregon are favored to be larger than increases throughout the country generally. This general increase can be ascribed in the main to improved conditions and the federal student aid projects that give employment to approximately 12 per cent of all college students. This latter factor is an important one at Oregon and has encouraged many students to attend a higher educational institution who otherwise would not be able. Federal aid amounts to about $15 per month for each student employed.

Due to the expected gains in enrollment this fall, the state board has authorized Chancellor Hunter to proceed with necessary additions to the staff to take care of the greater teaching load.

FOR several years there have been four very definite building needs on the Oregon campus. First, a new and adequate library; second, a new infirmary; third, a new physical education plant; and fourth, a student social center such as a student union building.

By last month the state board of higher education had placed its stamp of approval on the first three of these projects. A PWA-financed library building is now under construction. Application for a loan and grant for a new $50,000 infirmary has been in PWA offices in Washington for several months and may be granted at any time. Last month application for the new gymnasium was forwarded to federal officials. The last of the four projects remains unplanned for to date, although it is expected that if the first three all become actualities, arrangements can be made for a centralization of student activities in some one of the older buildings thus released from heavy use.

Details of the new physical education building have not been revealed due to the fact that a hurried and general application had first to be filed in order to get the application in under the deadline. Estimated cost, however, is $250,000 and tentative site is on the southeast corner of Fifteenth and University streets where the R.O.T.C. barracks are now located next to McArthur court.

The building will first of all be constructed to house the approximately 250,000 volumes now on the campus and make them easily accessible to students, but at the same time such features as a recreational reading room furnished with comfortable easy chairs, a map room, beautiful finish both inside and out, and special studies for faculty members and graduate students will make the structure one to enjoy as well as a place in which to work.

Building to Head Mall

The library will be at the head of the campus mall and will face Thirteenth Avenue. A new feature just announced will be a memorial forecourt, with a garden, fountain and seats, to be financed by gifts made to the Alumni Holding company. Two walks will lead up to the entrances, while a third public entrance will be available through the basement on the Kincaid street side.

The structure, which in architecture will be Lombardic in general design, will harmonize with the museum of fine arts nearby, and with other newer buildings on the campus. It will have a frontage of 248 feet, will be 146 feet in depth, and the center portion will extend up for three stories, with a basement under about two-thirds of the building. Like all other newer buildings, it will be built of brick.

The exterior will be unusually attractive. Access will be through two large entrances, each with a wrought-iron door. In the center seven tall windows will be placed, over which the legends, "Philosophia," "Historia," "Religia," "Ars," "Natura," "Societas" and "Lat-erac" will be carved.

Browsing Rooms Planned

Entering the east doorway, the first notable feature will be the way in which the walls, ceiling and floors will be fin-

Work Starts

The dream of a decade—a new library building for the University of Oregon—was on its way to actuality last week as contractors began work on the new $350,000 PWA-financed structure which, when completed, will be one of the most modern and complete university library buildings in the country.

Bids for the work were awarded by the state board of higher education at its meeting on August 19. General work contracts were given to Ross B. Hammond of Portland.

Although the actual cost of the completed building will be in excess of the $350,000 plus a $15,000 gift from the Alumni Holding Company, it was the sentiment of the board that it was better to go ahead with the project than not to start at all. Application for an additional $116,000 to completely finish the structure has been forwarded to Washington, D. C.

On September 10, at a ceremony held on the structure site Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter dug the first shovelful of dirt. Since then contractors have proceeded with the excavation work which is now progressing rapidly.

Cheery Atmosphere Planned

The newest in ideas for efficiency, combined with the cheery, pleasant atmosphere of a cultured home, will mark the new building.

Plans of libraries throughout the country have been carefully studied by university officials, the best features selected and a number of distinct and unusual ideas worked into the structure, the plans show.

ished. Wall units will be gray and floors will be made of noiseless travertine.

Once inside no student can go to any part of the building without passing the recreation or "browsing" room. This will occupy the space approximately 90 feet long by 24 feet in depth and will be divided by portals into three sections, each opening into the other.

Huge windows line one side, while the walls will be largely of glass, so that the room will invite the passerby. In place of the conventional desks and chairs the room will be furnished entirely with easy chairs, davenport and floor lamps. Fireplaces at each end will actually hold cheery blazes on wintry days.

Advisory System Changed

A rearrangement of the advisory system for freshmen goes into effect this fall, with the establishment of an advisory council composed of 27 staff members on whose shoulders fall the duties of guiding and directing the course selections of all entering students. Although an advisory system has been in use on the Oregon campus for several years, the new departure is designed to allow for closer association and understanding between advisor and advisee and to further eliminate the possibility of students being persuaded to take courses unsuited to them. The advisory staff has been selected from all departments of the University and in most cases students will be assigned to advisors under whom they probably will not study.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

New Department

A new department of the school of social science of the University of Oregon, to be known as the division of social science, will open in Portland at the beginning of the University term, September 30. Dr. Elon H. Moore will serve as professor of social work and director of the division.

The department will offer a course of study extending over a year that will provide training for men and women who desire to enter social service work, and every student will be trained in actual case work, through the cooperation of a large number of agencies in and near Portland.

Portland Headquarters

Headquarters for the division have been established in room 808 of the Oregon building.

Only graduates of recognized colleges or universities will be admitted to the division, since all work will be in accordance with the high standards of the American Association of Schools of Social Work.

Eleven courses will be offered in the division, including social problems and social work, public health, field work, psychiatric information, administration of social agencies, methods in social case work, community organization, and systems of public welfare. Some of these courses will be open to special students, but only those qualified will receive certificates.

Dr. Moore Director

Dr. Moore is regarded as an outstanding authority in the field of social science, is a graduate of Albion college, and received his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Wisconsin. From 1926 to 1928 he was in charge of social work training at the University of Illinois. He has been professor of sociology at Oregon State college.

As his assistant, Dr. Moore will have Norris E. Class, former training supervisor and head of the adolescent boy's department of the Cleveland, Ohio, child welfare bureau. Dr. Class is a graduate of the University of Alabama and holds a master's degree from Western Reserve. He has also had seven years of actual field experience in social work and administration.

Applications for admission to the new department have far exceeded expectations. Several hundred have already made inquiry at the headquarters office in Portland.

More Than Chaperones

No longer does the housemother in an Oregon sorority have a "rocking chair" job. From the all-observing chaperone of earlier days has developed today's housemother — a competent counselor and manager.

Still maintaining her function as chaperone, the housemother on the campus today is a business woman who is familiar with budgetary problems and house management; she is becoming a skilled personnel worker and an accomplished social leader.

This development of function necessitates an increasing familiarity and understanding of all phases of college problems—social, academic, vocational, and countless others. She is in every sense an adviser for college women.

Enlargement of function of housemothers is a part of the program being carried out by Dean of Women Hazel P. Schwering and Dean of Personnel Karl W. Onthank and others associated in the University's personnel work to give living organizations a more significant role in Oregon's educational program.

Freshman Week

Freshman week, when entering students at the University are examined and introduced to their new environment, opened on the campus September 23. During the forepart of the week, freshmen are given their physical examinations, take the English and psychology examinations, and are introduced through a series of lectures and meetings to University procedure and campus life.

At the same time, "rush week" is in full force. Registration opens September 26 and classes are scheduled to begin September 30.

M.A.s in Demand

Placement of all holders of recent master's degrees from the University department of sociology has brought country-wide notice to the campus, letters from other institutions received by the Oregon department indicate.

Fellowships, scholarships, and other responsible positions have been offered to the advanced sociology students, in preference to those of long-recognized eastern colleges, and several students have had to choose from more than one offer.

Paul B. Foreman, '33, who receives his master's degree in June, has accepted a teaching assistantship at Vanderbilt university in Nashville, Tennessee, chosen over a research fellowship at Northwestern university in Evanston, Illinois. Foreman's M.S. thesis represented an 18-months' study of "State Care of Juvenile Male Delinquency in Oregon."

Eugene Stromberg, '35, has accepted a fellowship at Cornell university in Ithaca, New York, where he will work on rural sociology. Regarded as an exceptional offer, the fellowship was chosen by Stromberg over one from the University of Nebraska.

Other graduates recently placed include Earl Pemberton, M.A. '31, who received a fellowship at the University of Southern California, and last June was granted a Ph.D. degree; and Joel Berreman, M.A. '33, who went to Stanford on a teaching fellowship. Pemberton is now engaged in FERA research work in San Francisco.

Alumni Honor Callison

Prince G. Callison, Oregon's head football coach, and one of his star players, Frank Michek, were honor guests at a luncheon meeting of the Portland alumni association held at the Portland hotel September 10. Omar "Slug" Palmer, '32, was in charge of the meeting.

Football was the decoration theme for the gathering with pictures of members of this year's squad, colorful schedule posters, and football equipment placed about the room.

Callison, though reticent to prognosticate where he thought the Webfoots would end up after the coming season, discussed the squad man for man and painted a not too gloomy picture as far as material was concerned. He conceded Stanford a good chance to repeat its championship again in 1935 and stated that sports scribes gave Oregon little hope of finishing above the .500 mark. Michek, however, speaking unofficially for the squad, stated that in his opinion Oregon had one of the scrappiest, most intent squads in recent years from which he said alumni could expect anything, most of all real "Oregon fight."

Tom Stoddard, '30, assistant graduate manager, made an appeal to alumni to support the athletic program of the University through the Commonwealth scholarship fund. Special guests who were introduced were: Gene Murphy, coach of the University of Portland; Ralph S. Schomp, '34, assistant graduate manager; and Billy Stepp, sports editor of the News-Telegram.

Announcement of the annual Founders' Day banquet to be held Friday, October 11, was made by Paul D. Hunt, president of the Portland group.

Haney Named Federal Judge

Confirmation by the U. S. senate of President Roosevelt's appointment of Bert E. Haney, LL.B. '03, as circuit judge in the federal court of appeals, ninth district, was made recently following a favorable report by the senate judiciary committee.

Recommended by Representative Walter M. Pierce (D), Oregon, and Carl C. Donagh, U. S. attorney for Oregon and former democratic state chairman, Haney's selection was made to fill the post created by congress a short time ago.

One of the state's long-time democratic leaders and former member of the U. S. shipping board, Haney has practiced in Portland since graduating from the University of Oregon law school in 1903 and has been active in state and civic affairs.

Judge for Three Days

Portland's municipal judgeship went begging until she powdered her nose.

After the city council had elected Gladys M. Everett, LL.B. '23, to sit on the city bench while Judge Donald E. Long attended the Legion convention for three days, her oath of office waited until she powdered her nose. Then, sworn in, she became the first woman to conduct the Rose City's municipal court.

A partner of State Senator Dorothy McCullough Lee, Judge Everett has practiced law in Portland for eight years; been active in women's club work; prominent in politics.

Of her new job Judge Everett said, "I think the work will be very interesting, and will put me in a position to know actual conditions if I want to engage in social service work."

AUTHORS

Revises History

After 12 years of intensive work spent in revising his first history published in 1923, Judge Charles H. Carey, M.A. '27 (Hon.) has completed the first of a two volume work, A General History of Oregon. The second volume will be off the press in the fall.

Critical comment has praised the honesty and accuracy of Judge Carey's book which is written with simple directness and which avoids the controversial points in Oregon history. With his grasp of the material and his familiarity with the original sources, Judge Carey has had access to recently discovered documents, books and periodicals. His book is illustrated and contains maps.

Character Portrayal

Using as a background the Oregon and Washington coasts, Nancy Noon Kendall, ex-'13, wife of Frederick Neal Kendall, ex-'14, has written The New House. A writer of many short stories, most of which have appeared in women's magazines, Mrs. Kendall has created a realistic character portrayal of the conflict within a man who has made a mess of his life. A New House is considered by critics to be the best work Mrs. Kendall has yet done.

Harper Prize Novelist

H. L. Davis, husband of Marion Lay, '24, is the author of the Harper Prize novel of 1934-35, "Honey in the Horn" which is being published now in five countries. The British edition, brought out in September, bears the Lovat Dickson Ltd. imprint. The Stockholm firm of Norstadt & Soner are handling Scandinavian editions. Mr. Davis attended Stanford University. In 1932, he received a Guggenheim Fellowship and went to Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Davis are now abroad. Mrs. Davis, as Marion Lay, is a frequent contributor to the magazines.

Round-up Rimes

A new book by Chester Anders Fee, '16, whose recent book, "Chief Joseph: The Biography of a Great Indian," received such wide acclaim, was released early this month from the Metropolitan Press of Portland.

The book is called "Rimes O' Round-Up" and is 96 pages of catching, liting verse of the West, with cowboys, pioneers, Indians, mountains and deserts vitalized by one who knows whereof he writes and is able to graphically portray the life of the western range or high country with feeling and under-

Alumni, Brothers, Authors

Two graduates of the University, brothers, will have books published this fall. They are Oscar O. Winther, '25 instructor of history at Stanford University, and Sophus K. Winther, '18, M.A. '22, professor of history at the University of Washington and well-known novelist. His latest book is entitled "Listed Rows" and will be released by the MacMillan company. Oscar's book is "The Story of San Jose" and is published by the California Historical Society.

On Distress Ship

Two graduates of the University School of Architecture and Allied Arts, Mr. and Mrs. Ray K. Thompson ( Polly Povey), were passengers on the ill-fated steamship Dixie which was grounded of the Florida coast in early September.

The Thompsons were en route to Boston where Mr. Thompson is a professor at the Wentworth Institute. He graduated from the University in 1929 and later attended Boston Tech. Mrs. Thompson graduated last June.

Professor at Reed

The administration of Reed college has announced the addition of Dr. S. Kerby-Miller, '20, to the faculty of that institution as visiting professor in history and philosophy. Dr. Kerby-Miller was a Rhodes scholar from the University and has been associate professor of philosophy at the University of Missouri. He holds a master's degree from Columbia university and a Ph.D. from Oxford. His wife is Sally Craighill Miller, '26.

NOTICE!

All Oregon alumni are cordially invited to attend the second big annual Founders' Day dinner to be held in Portland this year at the Woodcraft Temple, Fourteenth and Morrison streets, on Friday evening, October 11, at 6:30 p. m.

The program headlines the first appearance of Oregon's new chancellor, Dr. Frederick M. Hunter. The Oregon and California bands, the rival football coaches, faculty, alumni and student leaders, and the presidents of the University of California and University of Oregon have all been invited. It will be the biggest University of Oregon gathering ever to be held in Portland. The program will be broadcast.

The spacious Woodcraft Temple banquet hall has been selected for this gathering. Tickets this year have been reduced to $1.00 and may be obtained through John Yerkovich, ticket chairman, 321 Platt Building, Phone: BEacon 8585 or by writing the Alumni Office, Eugene. George Weber is banquet chairman.

Founders' Day banquets for other Oregon localities have been postponed to later in the year, and all alumni planning on attending the Oregon-California game on October 12 are cordially invited to attend Portland's all-University affair.

Happy Day!

Two boys were born 50 minutes apart on July 30 in Portland's Wilcox Memorial hospital.

The mothers are sisters.

Parents of both babies now live in Idaho.

The mothers, Mrs. E. N. Dunn, Moscow, and Mrs. Ellery Wheelwright, Grangeville, occupied the same room at the hospital. Both were attended by Dr. Theodore Adams.

The fathers are doctors, both former country physicians, both graduates of the University of Oregon Medical School. Edward North Dunn received his M.D. degree in 1930; Lloyd A. Wheelwright his in 1931.

Railway President

For the further exploitation of northern China, Yosuke Matsuoka, LL.B. '00, hailed by the press as "Oregon's No. 1 Alumnus," was appointed president of the Southern Manchurian railway following the recent resignation of Count Hiroto Hayashi.

The distinguished Oregon graduate has been in the Japanese diplomatic service since returning to Japan in 1904 after having worked his way through the University.

As League of Nations representative from Japan in 1933, Matsuoka was the principal player in the diplomatic upheaval which resulted in Japan's dramatic withdrawal from the League.

A large reception honored Matsuoka when he last visited the campus in April, 1933.

Tax Expert Valuable

Industries and taxpayers in Oregon credit savings of millions of dollars to an alumnus of the University, L. B. Smith, LL.B. '09. Rated as the outstanding tax research specialist and analyst in the state, he is constantly sought out for his knowledge of legislation, taxation, corporate and municipal finance.

Recently Smith joined Oregon Business & Investors, Inc., of which F. H. Young, '14, is executive secretary. He will serve as counsel in his new position, but will continue his work with Northwest Municipal Statistics, Inc., which he organized last year for compiling analytical service and data on municipal finance in Oregon and Washington.

Biggs Resigns Post

Announcement of the resignation, effective October 1, of Hugh L. Biggs, '27, assistant United States attorney, to become a member of the law firm of Maguire, Shields & Morrison was made in Portland September 17.

Mr. Biggs, formerly district attorney of Malheur county, assumed his position as assistant United States attorney April 3, 1934. Prior to entering the legal profession he served for a time as dean of men at the University.

MEDICAL SCHOOL

Dr. Josephi Passes

On Monday, August 19, the flag over Johnson hall, University administration building, waved listlessly at half mast. The first dean of the University of Oregon Medical School was dead.

Dr. Simon Edward Josephi, LL.D. '24 (Hon.) gave long and valuable service to the state and the University as dean of medicine from 1887 until 1912.

One of the state's most prominent physicians, Dr. Josephi was superintendent of the state hospital in Salem and was the first president of the Portland Medical Society and former president of the Academy of Medicine of Portland.

Always active in political and civic affairs, Dr. Josephi was state senator for two terms and for years was a member of the Portland water commission.

FOOTBALL

Dark Horse or Dark Hope

Just where among the ten places in the Pacific Coast conference is Oregon apt to wind up? That is a question that of course cannot be answered with any assurance just yet awhile. But this year it is strangely harder than ever to make any sort of prediction of Oregon's chances in the conference race. Sports-writers in several cases have given Oregon little chance of rising out of the lower half.

END

Stanley Riordan, 191 lbs., a one-year veteran and one of Callison's most capable wingmen.

On the other hand, close and long-time observers of Oregon football are not so sure that the Webfoots might not turn out to be the surprise team of the season. The squad is larger, more fiery this year than last and good material abounds, albeit in the main sadly inexperienced. The consensus of opinion seems to be that anything can happen, although to think of a championship team seems out of the question.

Problems Face Callison

Conditioning his players in the short 14-day period prior to the Gonzaga game on September 28 is but one task confronted by Coach Callison, for in addition he must uncover a number of new men to replace graduated veterans. Seven regulars from the 1934 squad are missing this fall—Con Fury, center; Alex Eagle and Gardner Frye, tackles; Butch Morse, all-coast end; Ralph Terjeson, quarterback, and Bob Parke and Maury Van Vliet, halfbacks.

Some of these gaps are already filled, on paper at least, on the basis of showings to date. Others, however, will not be plugged until after Callison has had more time to shift and scramble his players around.

First in line to step into Fury's post at center is Ed Farrar, 190 pound letterman reserve from the 1934 squad. Farrar will have to step, however, to keep ahead of a pair of husky sophomores, Denny Braid and Vernon Moore. Chandler Berry, another 1934 reserve, will be back for another two seasons.

Tackle Loss Alleviated

The loss of the all-star tackle combination of Eagle and Frye, ordinarily a terrific blow, has been softened by the presence of two rising young newcomers—Del Bjork, giant Astoria youth who saw plenty of action last fall, and John Engstrom, transfer from St. Mary's. Other leading aspirants for the tackle berths are Kenyon Skinner, 214 pound sophomore; Pat Fury, brother of center Con and a reserve hold-over; Andy Hurney, letter winner as a guard last fall, and Chuck Shimomura, Japanese sophomore star.

Replacement of Morse at left end will not cause as much trouble as it might, chiefly because Callison is blessed with three lettermen wingmen, Budd Jones, Stan Riordan and Vincent Walker. Leonard (Dutch) Holland, giant transfer from Long Beach, Cal., and Alan Wilson, member of the 1933 freshman eleven, are also candidates.

By far the biggest item on Callison's lists of "musts" is the rebuilding of the Webfoot backfield, shattered by the loss of three 1934 regulars. Only Frank Michek, famed cruncher play specialist, will return from last year's combination.

Good on Paper

Here again, on paper, prospects look bright. John Reischman, utility back last fall, will probably draw the starting quarterback berth. He will have two lettermen, Dick Bishop and Hugh McCredie, as understudies. Reischman is one of the finest blockers on the Webfoot squad.

The important left halfback post looms as the scene of a three-way dog-fight between Walter Back, 190-pound letterman; Bobby King, 155 pound transfer from Glendale junior college, and Dale Lasselle, 165 pounds, star of the 1934 freshman eleven. All three men are true triple-threaters. The edge goes to Back because of his experience as a reserve last year.

The flanking halfback position may also see a hot scramble for first string honors, with Bob Braddock, transfer from Southern Oregon Normal school; Frank Goodin, talented sophomore; and Ray Lopez, 165 pound letterman, rated on a par at the start of practice. Braddock has the edge in blocking, Goodin in all-around ability, and Lopez in speed and experience. None of the three have seen much conference competition.

Other first team positions appear to be well sewed up. Ross Carter and Clarence Coddling, both seniors, are not expected to find much opposition for the guard posts. Both men played as regulars last fall.

1000 New Seats

Plans for a gala Homecoming are rolling along with preparations for the opening of the 1935 football season as University of Oregon athletic officials prepare Hayward field for a capacity crowd on Saturday afternoon, November 9, when the annual University of Oregon-Oregon State College game is returned to the campus for the first time in three years.

Bleachers seating approximately 1000 spectators have been moved from old Reinhart baseball field to the north end of Hayward field, raising the total seating capacity to more than 18,000. Renovation of the present stands is already under way. In addition to the Oregon-Oregon State game, four other contests are scheduled for the Eugene stadium—Utah on October 5, Idaho on October 19, and freshman tilts with the Oregon State rooks on October 25 and the University of Washington Babes on November 2.

While athletic directors work on plans to take care of the Homecoming crowds, Head Coach Callison and his aides are impatiently awaiting the start of the conference race on September 28, when the 1935 Webfoots receive their baptism against the Gonzaga Bulldogs. Practice sessions started Saturday, September 14, with more than 50 varsity candidates in uniform. Workouts are being held twice daily for two weeks until the opener with Gonzaga.

CENTER

Edwin Farrar, 196 lbs., slated for a full season at the pivot position and on whose shoulders falls heavy responsibility in Callison football.

PRACTICE NOTES

Clarence Coddling, veteran guard, is liable to pay a stiff penalty for arriving a week late. The Seattle boy, cagey when it comes to making money, had a job that offered too much financial opportunity for him to resist. When he got back, he found chunky Tony Amato, sophomore, threatening his entrance to the first string . . . and once a sophomore gets into a first string line-up he always hates to get out.

* * *

Honors for the initial crack-up of the season go to Bill Estes, 192-pound guard from Klamath Falls. The lanky Estes was rendered hors de combat by an individual scrimmage, and an injured knee may keep him on the sidelines for some time.

* * *

Probably the outstanding back in the sessions thus far is Bud Goodin, who hails from Hopland, Cal. He is the most versatile of Callison's backs, as well as the fastest (not even excluding Michek). When he takes the ball he tears through the opposition like a hurricane and is also considered a good kicker. Inexperienced though he is, he'll be tough to stop.

Bobby King, 155 lbs., playing his first year of varsity ball. He may be the one to fill the troublesome halfback post.

Line Coach Gene Shields apparently has his worries, too. Although he hates to admit it, the genial mentor really has the material for a fine forward wall. For the center post Ed Farrar, 190-pound letterman, is the favorite, but this Denny Breiad, 188-pound transfer from Oregon Normal, will bear watching. He's wiry, tough, and scrappy—the essentials of a good Callison center. Tab this spot as the scene of the outstanding duel of the season.

At the beginning of the season no one was counting on Dick Bishop to be a first string threat, but from all indications he will be very much in the running. He's big, fast, and a savage tackler. He lacks the experience and blocking finesse of Johnny Reischman, but will get to see a lot of action at quarterback.

Freshman prospects are eagerly awaiting the grid season. Until registration they'll have to be content with watching the varsity on the sidelines. Among those present at sessions this week were outstanding prospects from all parts of the northwest. Indications

Frosh Schedule Enlarged

Two games have been added to the Freshman football schedule since the original announcement, according to information released by Graduate Manager Hugh E. Rosson. The Frosh will tangle with Jean Eberhart's Southern Oregon Normal eleven at Ashland on October 12 and on October 19 they will meet Oregon Normal of Monmouth at Astoria.

Increased interest in freshman sports has resulted from the enlarged athletic program which brought to the University "Honest John" Warren of Astoria as frosh mentor. Not since Prink Callison took over his head coach duties have the freshmen had a full time coach at the head of their athletic activities. That was in 1931. Games already scheduled for the frosh are: October 25, O.S.C. Rooks at Eugene; November 2, Washington Babes at Eugene; and November 8, O.S.C. Rooks at Corvallis. Similar enlargement of schedules in other sports is contemplated.

Ticket Demands Heavy

Heavy advance sales of tickets for the Webfoot football games this fall are reported by Hugh Rosson, graduate manager—especially for the two "big" games: California at Portland on October 12 and Oregon State at Eugene (Homecoming) on November 9.

Alumni preference on football ducats closed September 15 and sales to the general public opened in both Portland and Eugene on September 20. In Portland tickets are on sale at the ticket wagon at Sixth and Morrison streets; in Eugene at the A.S.U.O. office.

Two Game Times Changed

Change of the Gonzaga game to a night contest and change of the St. Mary's game from December 7 to December 8 has been announced by University athletic officials. The Gonzaga game was shifted to the evening at Multnomah stadium on September 28 in order to accommodate many fans who otherwise would be unable to view the tilt. Kickoff time has been tentatively set at 8 o'clock.

The St. Mary's game was postponed a day or so as not to conflict with the Texas Christian-Santa Clara tilt, scheduled for December 7 in San Francisco

FACULTY

Boyer May Leave

University of Oregon's president, Dr. C. V. Boyer, returned last week from a trip to Missoula, Montana, where he conferred with officials of the University of Montana. It is understood he is under consideration for the post of president of the Montana institution.

On his return, however, Dr. Boyer indicated that no definite arrangements had been made and that probably no decision would be reached until January—at least that he would not be leaving the University until that time.

Whether Dr. Boyer had been formally tendered the presidency at the Montana school was not revealed. It is understood that the salary of the Montana position is considerably larger than that paid Dr. Boyer at present.

Dr. Smertenko Lost

Lost overboard somewhere in the Yellow Sea, the death of Mrs. Clara Smertenko, professor of Greek and Latin at the University of Oregon, was reported to President C. V. Boyer on July 22 in a brief radiogram from Capt. Tomioka of the Japanese liner Taiyo Maru.

Mrs. Smertenko was one of a party of University of Oregon people touring the Orient this summer. Mrs. Smertenko was a native of Michigan, born in 1873. She received her bachelor of arts degree from Grinnell college and her Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago. She studied at University of Berlin also. She taught at Grinnell, Hunter college, Columbia University, and Skidmore College before coming to Oregon in 1927. She did war work overseas in France during 1917-18. She had written numerous articles and reviews for various periodicals. She was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Pi Sigma, and the American Philological Association, and of the Congregational Church.

Morse to Stay

Offers to aid in establishing a bureau of crime prevention in the department of justice at Washington, D. C., have been turned down by Wayne L. Morse, dean of the Oregon law school, at least temporarily.

Because of the arrival of Dr. Hunter and the approach of a new school year, Dean Morse decided not to accept the proffered position from the capitol. Perhaps later in the year, if the attorney general still desires the services of the Oregon dean, he will assist in the work.

The change would not be a permanent one and would only require the dean's absence from the campus for whatever period might be necessary to establish the bureau in Washington.

DeCou Honored

E. F. DeCou, head of the department of mathematics at the University, has received international recognition through publication of his biography in the August number of Town and Country Review, published in London, England. Copies of the issue, which also contain a beautiful picture of Johnson Hall, the University administration building, have recently reached the campus.

A glowing tribute to Professor DeCou is paid in the biographical article. "The life of this eminent American professor has been given primarily to the teaching of college young people, but his influence in religious, social and recreational fields would be difficult to estimate," it states. "Certainly it will survive many college generations of Americans."

Professor DeCou's career at the University began in 1902, when he was made head of the mathematics department. He has served continuously since.

Special Summer Job

In addition to his duties as dean of the Oregon school of social science, Dean James H. Gilbert has acted this summer in the capacity of special representative of the U. S. Department of Labor. In this capacity Dean Gilbert organized and supervised examinations for applicants for positions in the state and national re-employment service. Examinations were held in Eugene, Portland, Medford and Pendleton on September 20 and 21.

New 'Y' Secretary

A newcomer to the campus this fall is Mr. Glenn Griffith, who comes to the University as its first full-time Y. M. C.A. secretary in four years. Mr. Griffith comes to Oregon from Nebraska, where he was prominent in "Y" work and an active participant in church music groups. Besides his duties on the campus, Mr. Griffith has been chosen organist and choir leader for the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Eugene.

Research Authority Called

Resulting from the nationwide attention directed to the research program of the University of Oregon, Dr. Ralph W. Leighton, under whose direction studies have been compiled at Eugene, appeared before the first annual conference on Research in Higher Education early in September. Because his work has become of such major interest to American educators, Dr. Leighton's expenses for the trip to the University of Minnesota will be borne by that institution and the Carnegie Corporation, joint sponsors for the conference.

Japanese Guest Professor

Jiro Harada, commissioner of the imperial household museum in Japan and a world-famous authority on oriental art, arrived on the campus September 20 where he will be visiting professor of oriental art during the fall and winter terms.

GUEST PROFESSOR
Jiro Harada, visiting professor in oriental art.

The University of Oregon is one of six institutions in the United States selected by the Japanese Society for International Cultural Relations for an exchange professorship in art.

While on the campus much of Mr. Harada's activity will center around the museum of art, which houses the nationally famous Murray Warner collection of oriental art. Many of these priceless art treasures will be used by Mr. Harada in his lectures and classes.

Mr. Harada, in addition to his standing as an art authority, is also an experienced teacher. He was on the faculty of the National college at Nagoya from 1908 to 1916. He is familiar with the United States, since he attended college here, and in 1915 was imperial government commissioner to the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco.

Oregon Explorers Return

Returned from a three weeks expedition into southeastern Oregon, particularly in the Steens mountain region, Dr. Luther S. Cressman, University of Oregon anthropologist, is confident his discoveries will throw a new light on migrations of ancient tribes in western America.

Exploring an isolated cavern, evidence was found of three levels of habitation in the water-washed cave which Dr. Cressman believes was once occupied by a lake 200 feet deep. Under debris four stone knives were found.

Other discoveries made by the party, which included three University students, number fragmentary remains of a human skeleton in a cave near Blitzen, a short distance north of the Nevada state line; many large mammal bones; horns of mountain sheep; sandals of sage brush; bones crushed for marrow; brush fagots; stone artifacts and pottery. This material, believes Dr. Cressman, will prove to be the possessions of the oldest habitation in Oregon. Evidence found by the party indicates that these early inhabitants were either basketmakers or were in contact with the basket weavers of the ancient southwest.

Crater Lake Formation

Blasting the generally accepted theory that Crater Lake resulted from the collapse of Mt. Mazama, Dr. Warren G. Smith, head of the department of geography and geology at the University, contends that Oregon's scenic jewel was formed after the mountain was "blown to bits."

Dr. Smith's conclusions were reached after extensive research and recently made public. This summer Dr. Smith is again a ranger-naturalist at Crater Lake after returning from a short trip in Mexico early in the summer. This summer Dr. Smith plans further studies upon which to elaborate his already well documented theory of the explosion of Mt. Mazama.

NEWS OF THE CLASSES

1881

Charles E. Stanard, ex-'81, of Brownsville, dropped dead August 12, while directing the beautification of the plot in the Baptist cemetery where his wife was buried on July 14. Mr. Stanard had been engaged in the mercantile business in Brownsville for fifty-five years, having also served as postmaster for several years. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Wayne F. Whealdon, of Portland, and son, H. Wayne Stanard, of McMinnville.

1888

Professor Mark Bailey, who received his bachelor's degree from Oregon in 1888, died of leucemia at his home in Weslaco, Texas, on June 29, following an illness of two years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edith Howe Bailey, a son, Mark Bailey, Jr., and two daughters, Edith and Ruth Bailey. After Professor Bailey received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Harvard in 1890 and 1891, he returned west to become professor of ancient languages at the University of Washington, a post he held until he joined the Klondike gold rush in 1898. He resumed teaching in 1901, having joined the faculty of Whitworth College, Tacoma, Washington. This position he held until 1906 when he resigned to join the faculty of Klamazoo College, Michigan. For twenty-six years he was head of the Latin and Spanish department at the Michigan institution from which he resigned three years ago to live on his citrus ranch in Texas. He was a son of Professor Mark Bailey, who was on the first faculty of the University of Oregon.
