NEWS AND COMMENT

By Clair Johnson, Editor

It's Worth Telling About

AN evaluation of the state of affairs at the University of Oregon today soon gives alumni of the school many reasons to be proud of the University and themselves. Many alumni are aware of this and are telling the story of a fine University and reflecting its glory. Many others, however, are neglecting an excellent opportunity to tell of a vastly improved and increasingly successful University.

IT is true, as Dean Wayne Morse declared in his stirring New York speech recently, that Oregon is not a great University. But it is also true that the school is on its way to being a great university and can become one.

One of the greatest and most important factors in achieving this end is the telling of the improvement and success of the University during the past year.

THROUGH liberal federal grants and cooperative state and local support more than a $1,000,000 has gone for the construction of much-needed new buildings. The new library, the new University infirmary, and the new physical education plant were long anticipated additions to Oregon's group of buildings.

Their erection did much to relieve the pressure of inadequate housing for classes and study. The workmanship and material is of the best. Certainly Oregon alumni can be truly proud of the University's physical plant. It's worth telling about.

A FAVORITE conversation topic of alums revolves around sports world happenings. As shown in another section of OLD OREGON, the University has achieved far more than its share of success athletically. World, national, and northwest championships have gone to the mighty Webfoots. Alumni can without question be proud of their sports teams. It's worth telling about.

LIKEWISE in the academic world the University has achieved more than its measure of success. Campus musicians have been on the air nationally several times during the year because of the excellent quality of the music school faculty and students. Oregon again shares with Harvard the honor of being the only school in the nation given the special Carnegie art grant. Dean Morse's appointment as administrative assistant to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings was only one of many awards for top academic achievement.

One of the five best journalism schools in the nation . . . the best medical school on the coast . . . a smooth functioning speech department making friends all over Oregon with its forum tours . . . a bureau of municipal research giving daily invaluable aid to Oregon cities and communities . . . such a story of notable accomplishment could go on endlessly. Oregon alumni can unreservedly be proud of their University as an academic institution. It's worth telling about.

UNQUESTIONABLY the University of Oregon has every justification to be rated an excellent institution of learning.

Such things as the addition of certain practical courses and allotment of more adequate budgets would aid in the progress toward a truly great University.

Taking the school just as it is, however, much can be done to keep it moving at a favorable pace. It has many outstanding points . . . far more than are mentioned above. They need telling about.

INDIVIDUAL cooperation from every alumni member is necessary in spreading the word of a greater and improved University. More power to helpful alums who are already doing this.

Group cooperation is also an essential factor. Through a traveling alumni secretary and through the medium of OLD OREGON the alumni office is in a centralized position to aid in a large share of this necessary promotion.

Continued and increased support from loyal alumni will provide for a larger and better OLD OREGON, and will make possible an increased use of a planned alumni program Mr. Fansett has prepared. He has the program. It's worth telling about. All it needs is increased support.

WITH this issue the present editor concludes a very pleasant year of association with Oregon alumni. Every effort has been made to keep the magazine up to its high standards of the past, and to improve it according to personal notions.

Through the splendid help of such people as Dean James Gilbert, Dean Karl Onthank, Prof. George Turnbull, Elmer C. Fansett, Ruth Orrick, and Vera Powers the work has been made easy.

Personal desires to re-enter the newspaper profession motivated the wish to leave, although the future of the University and the alumni office indeed appears to be bright.

Next year the management of the magazine will rest in the capable hands of Bill Pease, senior in journalism. His ability merits every measure of continued support from alumni.

ALUMNI FLOCK TO CAMPUS FOR COMMENCEMENT

More Than 500 Alums

With more than 500 alumni present, the annual Commencement weekend ceremonies were characterized this year by enthusiasm about the new campus and the revived University and alumni spirit.

High point of the weekend was the luncheon at John Straub Memorial building, with Chancellor F. M. Hunter as main speaker. He urged alumni to do their part in maintaining the present high standard of a unified education system in Oregon.

Toastmaster Arthur M. Geary, '10, presided over the session and filled in between speeches with clever remarks pertinent to the various topics and speakers. He also paid tribute to the faculty members who had loyally stuck with the University during the last few years.

Straub, Campbell Spoken of Representatives of the various reunion classes brought back memories of school days to their former classmates, as they paid tribute to such men as Dean Straub and Prince Campbell, and as they laughed and joked of the good times they had participated in.

Almost every speaker laughingly insisted that Dean Straub was the most sincere when he said their class was the best in the history of the University.

Speakers for the classes were: Judge E. O. Potter, '87; Judge Fred Fisk, '97; Francis V. Galloway, '07; Chester A. Moores, '12; Nicholas Jaureguy, '17; Robert C. Thurston, '27; and Walter Eschebeck, '37.

MacGregor Honored

John MacGregor, '23, head of the New York City alumni, was the alum from the farthest distance on the continent, and told of the friendly spirit of New York's Oregonians. Earlier in the day the alumni association had paid tribute to the New Yorkers, and authorized Clyde Aitchison was in the spotlight during Commencement weekend not only as chief speaker, but as father of one of the leading graduates. His daughter Miss Beatrice, who already has a Ph.D. in mathematics received her M.A. in economics.

Mr. MacGregor to take them a resolution of appreciation.

This was proposed by Dean James H. Gilbert (characterized as "Slogan Jim" by some) who contributed "Organize for Oregon" as his offering this spring.

The other important meeting of the day was the official business gathering in the morning. Vice-President Arthur Geary presided.

Fansett Presents Plan

At the meeting Mr. Fansett presented his report and plans for continued revitalization of the alumni association. He revealed plans for forming active alumni groups throughout the state and told of the work of the office in placing graduates and promoting the University. He declared the set-up is now ready for the best and most active association in the University's history.

Mrs. Irene Gerlinger, former regent, was present at the meeting and aroused considerable enthusiasm for a proposed alumni fund to aid in furthering University interest and activities.

Stirring the session with oratory, Charles Robison, '11, criticized the state board of higher education for cold impersonality in administration. Commenting editorially the next day the Eugene Register-Guard emphasized the fact that his talk was evidence of a healthy outlet of free speech. The paper also pointed out that more enthusiasm and personality could well be adopted by alumni, who had good reason to be enthused but failed to show it.

Hug Memorialized

Action was taken at the meeting authorizing a resolution in memory of George Hug, who died last month. D. M. Stevenson, Leon Ray, and Carlton Spencer were named on a committee to draw up the resolution.

Robert K. Allen, ex-alumni secretary was voted a life membership.

Earlier Saturday morning the State Association of University of Oregon women held their annual breakfast and elected the following officers: Miss Lenore Casford, president; Mrs. Gordon B. Fish, first vice-president; Mrs. Leith Abbott, second vice-president; and Mrs. Walter H. Banks, secretary.

Bjork Top Senior

A feature of Commencement time was the award of the Albert cup to Delbert Bjork of Astoria. Bjork won the Koyl cup as a Junior and has been captain of the Oregon varsity football squad. Winners of the Failing-Beekman oration awards which carried $150 and $100 prizes respectively went to Walter Eschebeck, Malin, first prize and Frances Mays, Prineville, second prize.

REUNION CLASSES

In response to special requests from the editor, class secretaries of reunion classes sent in the information which is printed below.

The authors were asked on short notice to write on anything about their class which seemed pertinent or interesting, and they responded with a willing hand wielded excellently.

Because of the short time available, some of the secretaries were unable to get their material in before deadline time. However Old Oregon will endeavor to carry similar material in later issues.

The first of the articles was cleverly written by Mrs. Mildred Bagley Graham and entitled "A Modern Rip Van Winkle Miracle." Old Oregon believes that in many ways it is a typical example of the fine spirit prevailing at the various class reunions.

From the interesting verbal accounts of the doings of the class of '17 we heard from Mrs. Martha Beer Roscoe, it would have indeed been interesting to see which group rated best, had her article arrived in time.

Material from the classes of '97 and '07 will also have to be carried in later issues.

The news concerning members of the class of '27 who were unable to be present was written by Anne Runes, and the historic record of the class of '87 by Judge E. O. Potter.

ALUMNI HOLDING COMPANY IMPROVES CAMPUS BEAUTY

Company Buys Materials, WPA Does Work

The campus has been beautified and improved this year through projects sponsored jointly by the University Alumni Holding Company and the Federal WPA, with the expenditure of $1,608.40 on the part of the alumni.

In all these projects the holding company has borne the cost of the materials and the labor has been furnished by the WPA. Much of the work has been done in the new library where approximately $1,000 was spent by the alumni to provide canvas, paint, iron, and other materials for projects done by the students and professional artists.

Intricate wrought-iron gates lead to the circulation department and are the results of months of labor by O. B. Dawson, ex-'29. The three gates, made entirely of hand-wrought iron, are memorials to former President A. B. Hall. Bronze plaques, summarizing his educational philosophy and serving as a dedication to his service to the University and the library, are on the wall nearby.

Various Alums Do Much of Work

As a decoration for the exterior of the building, a frieze of sculptured heads representing educators and philosophers from the ancient Greeks until modern times, were done by Mrs. Louise Utter Pritchard, ex-'34, and Miss Edna Dunberg, ex-'37. The heads were modeled in clay larger than life, and then cast into stone.

Two stone cuttings by Mrs. Pritchard are on the second-floor balconies. They represent a deer with a fawn, and a cougar with a cub. The huge mural wood-carvings at each end of the upper division reading room of the library were also made possible by the alumni. Each mural is made of three wood panels nearly thirty feet high. The scenes depict views of mountain country near Eugene. The walls of the grand staircase will be decorated with mural messages done by Prof. N. B. Zane and by two mural paintings to be done by the Runquist brothers of Portland (Albert, '21, and Arthur, '19).

Construction of the library has been commemorated by a series of etchings done by Gordon Gilkey, '36, and bound into a book.

Several additional projects for the beautification of the campus have also been financed in part by the holding company. Two frescoes now decorate the walls of the art school patio. They are the work of Halley Johnson, ex-'33. One represents the lumber industry of the Northwest and the other illustrates the legend of Paul Bunyon. In the patio of the art school are two athletic figures cast into stone, the work of Walter Pritchard, '31.

Alum Holding Company Praised

Commenting upon the library art projects, M. H. Douglass, head librarian, said: "We are indeed fortunate to have had the cooperation of the Alumni Holding Company, the WPA, and the architect in working out these various art projects, which have greatly added to the beauty of the building. We are also fortunate that so talented artists were available to do the work." Mr. Douglass also noted the fact that most of the artists were either students or alumni of the University.

In addition to all these art projects the Alumni Holding Company has contributed funds toward financing the landscaping of the new University Health Service building, completed at the beginning of this school year, and aided in the finishing and decorating of the browsing room.

Miss Brockman Commended

Miss Frances Brockman, '35, recently appeared as violin soloist with the New England Conservatory Orchestra when that orchestra gave its Brahms concert at Jordan hall in Boston. Miss Brockman received very favorable comment from the Boston critics and reviews indicate that the audience was very well pleased and impressed.

While on the campus, Miss Brockman studied under Rex Underwood and appeared several times as soloist with the University symphony. Arrangements are being made to have her appear again with the University symphony orchestra next season.

Putnam School Head

Rex Putnam, '15, has been appointed State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He will succeed Charles Howard, M.A. '23, who goes to La Grande to become president of the normal school there. The announcement was made May 24.

Putnam has been superintendent of the Albany schools since 1932—prior to that time he spent seventeen years in educational work, all but five of them in Oregon. He received his Master's degree from the University in 1923.

Howard received his Master's degree from Oregon in 1923. Prior to his election as State Superintendent in 1926, Howard headed school systems in Marshfield and Eugene. At La Grande he will succeed H. E. Inlow, LL.B. '14, who will become professor of history at Oregon Normal school and head the normal schools' extension service.

Zimmerman Flying Visitor

Lieut. Don Zimmerman, '24, was on the campus June 8 after he flew from Randolph Field, Texas where he is a member of the academic staff of the army flying school there. Zimmerman is a member of Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Beta Kappa. After leaving the Oregon campus he attended West Point military academy, where he was graduated in 1929.

Wakasugi New Consul

Kaname Wakasugi, LL.B. '12, has been named Japanese consul general in New York City. Mr. Wakasugi was Consul General in San Francisco from 1930 to 1934. He then went to China and Manchukuo as consul for the Japanese embassy.

Fire Extra Published

During the recent burning of the historic old mining town of Canyon City, Clinton Haight, '99, watched his newspaper go up into smoke—then raced to John Day where he published a fire-extra of his Blue Mountain Eagle.

Mrs. Gibson Honored

Vera Edwards Gibson, B.A. '15 (Oregon); Ph.D. '28 (Edinburgh University) has been listed in the "American Women" for this year—this is the "Who's Who" for women. Since September 1930, Mrs. Gibson has been Dean of Women at Phoenix Junior College in Arizona where she also teaches English and history. In 1934 she was one of the eight Deans of Women sent from the Pacific coast colleges and universities as members of the guest tour of the Japanese Y.W.C.A. and the Japanese government for a tour of Japan. She and her husband, Harry Gibson, to whom she was married in June, 1936, are devoting much of their time to building up their beautiful new home-site known as "Sahuaro Rancho." Mr. Gibson is an alumnus of the University of Southern California.

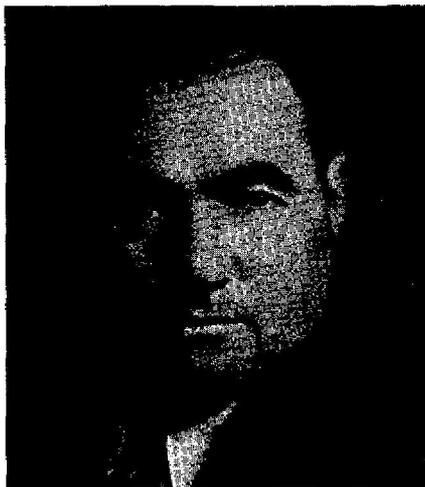

Dr. Hill, '81, Resigns

Dr. Claiborne M. Hill, '81, member of one of the University of Oregon's first graduating classes, has resigned as president of the Berkeley Baptist Divinity school. Dr. Hill, who will be 80 in November, had been president of the seminary for more than 30 years and is credited with building it into one of the finest theological schools in the country. Dr. Hill received a Master's degree here in 1884 and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa society.

¶ Ernest Haycox, '23, noted fiction writer addressed members of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, at their annual Matrix Table dinner held in Eugene May 13.

Homecoming next fall will be the largest ever to be held at the University the way present plans are working. One of the leaders in the movement was "Baz" Williams, prominent Eugenean, who started interfraternity council members thinking about it with a speech during spring term.

John MacGregor, leader of New York alumni, had the honor of being the alum from the farthest distance to attend Commencement and Alumni day exercises this year.

COMMENCEMENT SIDELIGHTS

The much-heralded canoe trip up the Willamette River to Portland by George Colton and Frank Beach started with all the fan-fare of a presidential election, but its conclusion still remains a deep, dark mystery. Twenty-five phone calls at press time still left no clue as to the whereabouts of the travelers. However, close scanning of the obituary columns revealed the trip had not ended tragically. By next issue Old Oregon's private detective will have complete details.

One treat of the weekend was Judge Fred Fisk's reeling off the yell of his class as follows:

Rah, rah, rah, We're Not Slow
Class of '97, U of O.

A laugh at the luncheon was Chester A. Moores' characterization of the class of '12 as the "last to give the frosh some of the friendly fatherly gestures they still need" as he spoke of hazing.

Chuckles greeted Nick Jaureguy's speech for Roland Geary rejecting the kind offer of the University made twenty years ago. It was war time then, and Geary was offered credit for a thesis he didn't have to write.

Still more chuckles at least for a few in the alumni office, occurred when pleasant Lt. Don Zimmerman, flying from Texas, got here just one week after everything was over.

George Hug Dies

George Hug, B.A. 1907, died May 17 in Portland after an illness of some weeks. He leaves his widow, Gladys MacKenzie Hug, '09, and three children, Wallace, ex-'34, Robert, and Kathleen.

Hug played football at Oregon for three years—1904, '05, and '06. He was all-northwest center on teams picked by the late C. N. McArthur, '01, who used to name the official teams for this district. He was also a track and field athlete under Coach Bill Hayward.

Hug coached and taught school immediately after graduation in 1907. He was at Eugene High until 1915, he was superintendent of schools at McMinnville and Salem. He left teaching to handle text-book sales for a large publishing house. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Masons, Elks, and the Rotarians.

Nashes Go to Europe

Ray Nash, '28, and his wife (Hope Crouch, '28) write from Dartmouth that they are getting ready to leave for Brussels and Antwerp where Nash has a fellowship to do research on early block-books and typography. He writes that they often see Tom Graham, '27, who is teaching at the Harvey School, Hawthorne, N. Y.

¶ Ruth Dorris, '15, has presented the music school with a 50-year-old square piano in honor of her father, Benjamin F. Dorris who was one of the University's first regents.

¶ Randolph 'Kap' Kuhn, '23, was on the campus May 15 when he was awarded the Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, plaque as the most active alumnus of the year. Kuhn is the first to receive the award.

¶ Cathryn Collins, freshman in Arts and Letters, has been chosen queen of the 1937 Pendleton round-up.

PRESIDENT C. VALENTINE BOYER RESIGNS POSITION

As a complete surprise to faculty and alumni alike, Dr. C. Valentine Boyer has asked the state board of higher education to relieve him of his duties as president of the University. The request was made at a meeting of the board held in Portland on June 8.

Reason for the request was given as his own failing health, and illness of his wife. The administrative duties connected with the office were cited as too heavy a strain on his strength.

President Boyer made known his desire to continue as Dean of the school of arts and letters, a position which he has held since 1932. Prior to that time he was head of the English department, a position he will continue to hold.

Faculty members grieved Dr. Boyer's resignation in statements given to the press. They said he has been loyal to the interests of the University, and has been sincerely open-minded in dealing with faculty and student problems. The state board was stunned by his action and strongly urged him to remain.

Any action on Dr. Boyer's resignation had not been taken when Old Oregon went to press, and the board had stated that nothing official would be done until the regular September meeting.

It has been definitely determined, however, that Dr. Boyer will not reconsider his resignation. Many names have been mentioned to fill the post, including Dean James Gilbert, Dean Wayne Morse, Dean Victor Morris, and Dr. Howard Taylor.

CAMPUS AND FACULTY

Independent Elected

When the smoke of student elections had cleared away, Barney Hall of Portland was declared new student body president. Hall is the first independent named to this office since 1923 when Claude Robinson was elected.

Hall was also first student body president to be elected by the new proportional representation plan the student body has just adopted. Other officers elected were Noel Benson, Medford, first vice-president; Frances Schaupp, Portland, second vice-president; Dave Silver, Portland, secretary-treasurer.

Interfraternity council elections held the following week put in the following officers: Don Johnson, Portland, president; John Keyes, Bend, vice-president, and Kenneth Battleson, Canby, secretary-treasurer.

Music School on NBC

For the third time this year, the University of Oregon symphony orchestra was heard over the western network hookup of the National Broadcasting company. Sunday, May 23, a half-hour program was presented by the state highway commission.

Broadcast was made direct from the University campus in the music auditorium. Hal Young, professor of voice, and Dorothy Louise Johnson, violinist, were the featured soloists.

Gov. Charles H. Martin also spoke during the program. The University's School of Music is receiving wide acclaim and notice for its broadcasts.

State Drama Tour Possible

With the production of Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion" late in the spring term, the University Theater concluded what critics termed one of the most successful seasons in its history. Its offerings for this year were of an exceptionally fine and varied nature.

The season began early in the fall with the production of the impressive anti-war play "Bury the Dead" which had startled New York into attention only a few weeks before. This was followed at reasonably short intervals by the light and farcial "Goodbye Again" the more serious and touching "The Shining Hour," the American Colonial whimsy "Pursuit of Happiness" and profoundly moving "Ethan Frome" and Mr. Shaw's michievous satire "Pygmalion."

All six were exceedingly well received by the campus and city audience. The first and last were given extra performances at the request of special non-campus groups.

Mrs. Seybolt, the director of the University Theater is entertaining the possibility of taking this last play on tour during the early part of next season, provided engagements can be so arranged that the distances to be traveled are not prohibitive.

Such a tour or tours would be undertaken not with the idea of financial gain but for the interest and enjoyment of meeting the friends of the University in various parts of the state. It is suggested that some alumni organizations might find the presentation of the play-ers an interesting addition to their year's program. Inquiries may be sent to the University drama division or to the Alumni office.

As a conclusion to the successful season four members were honored by being selected for National Collegiate Players. They were Helen Roberts, Margie Tucker, Adrian Martin (new

Summer Session Starts

As OLD OREGON went to press, indications were that summer session enrollment would be of more than average size. More undergraduates are expected to enroll than is usual. Sessions will be held in Portland, Eugene, and at the Marine Biology camp at Marshfield.

More Teachers Placed

The teacher placement service this year placed over 80 per cent more teachers than last year. Also during this period the open positions reported were increased by 50 per cent. About 75 per cent of those registering with the service are already teaching, and the bureau reports vacancies and other opportunities for the alumni to advance themselves.

The bureau maintained a desk at the meeting of the Inland Empire Education Association last April and secured a list of a great many vacancies.

Dr. Nelson Bossing, head of the University placement service, has again been re-elected president of the Oregon Association of Teacher Placement Bureaus.

Under the present alumni set-up Mr. Elmer Fansett, alumni secretary, can now visit all schools at least twice a year and thus aid in solving mutual problems of alumni and the placement service.

DR. TAYLOR GETS FACTS FIGURES ON OREGON ALUMS

All About Yourself

If you graduated sometime during 1928 to 1935 we can tell you all about yourself:—

You still live in Oregon in a city of 100,000 or more. You're probably married (chances 4-3 you are) and have 1/3 of a child living. You live in an apartment for which you pay about $30-$35 a month rent.

Your first job was pretty closely related to your major school work. Most of you earned at least half of your way through school. You got your first job either because you had previous experience in a particular field or because you exercised a lot of personal initiative. You are permanently employed in your present position as a skilled worker for which you receive an annual salary close to $1775.

Survey Gives Information

All this information was brought to light in a recent survey, "Economic Status of University of Oregon Graduates 1928 to 1935 inclusive," which was conducted under the direction of Prof. Howard R. Taylor in cooperation with the government's Department of Education. Oregon was one of the schools chosen to take part in a big survey being made to determine the general economic status of college graduates.

Dr. Taylor explained that in many ways this was an unusual group in that nearly one-third of those answering had earned some sort of honors while in college.

An unusually large amount of returns were made for questionnaires of this kind, Dr. Taylor said. Approximately 45 per cent were returned. 3394 of them were delivered and 1541 persons replied.

On its own, the University included some questionnaires regarding graduates' evaluation of college courses, results of this project will be announced later.

OREGON ATHLETES WIN SIX TITLES DURING YEAR

By Hubard Kuokka

One World, One National, Four Northwest

The University of Oregon was extremely successful in athletic competition this year, with one world, one national, and four northwest championships accumulated, which altogether helped financial matters out so much that the athletic board ended the year with approximately a $5000 profit. This will bring the athletic department out of debt by the end of another year it is estimated.

George Varoff was the world's championship acquirer, when he vaulted 14 feet four and seven-eighths inches in Boston during February. The Oregon rifle team, for the second time in three years, won the five man team national ROTC senior division championship and the Hearst trophy, to be the national winners.

Basketball, Swimming, Golf, Baseball

The basketball team of fighting sophomores was on top tied with the University of Washington and Washington State College for first place, the swimming team ran off with everything in sight, the golf team cleaned up on the fairways, and then, to climax it all, the baseball team came up after being floored once to high pressure its way into the Northwest championship.

The football team, although it did not stand high with respect to games won, was always in the game and held the league leaders to very close scores. The freshman grid-ers came through with almost a hundred percent slate in games won, and will greatly bolster the Webfoot gridiron stock next year.

Likewise in basketball. Although the team tied for the northwest championship, it has an ace in its sleeve in that next year almost the whole team will be back as strong contenders for the championship.

Third Time for Swimmers

It was for the third successive year that the Webfoot swimmers asserted their superiority over their northwest rivals and not only that it just finished its fourth year of competition in which it had not lost a single dual meet. In the northwest conference meet in Pullman this spring the Oregon paddlers made 57 points whereas Washington in second place had 52. The duck team holds 14 records, of world, national, coast, and northwest scope.

Golfers Trim Husky Crew

The Oregon varsity golf team captured the Northern division Pacific coast conference crown when its four-man team looped the 36-hole northern division tournament at the Olympic golf course in Seattle in 627 to nose out the powerful Washington team by two points. The Ducks averaged 78 $\frac{3}{8}$ strokes per man per 18 holes over the par 72 course.

In dual meet competition the Oregon team continued the brilliant playing started early in the season and successively defeated the College of Puget Sound 25 to 2 in Tacoma, eked a 14 to 13 win over the University of Washington teams over the University course in Seattle, defeated the barnstorming University of British Columbia team 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 6 on the Eugene country club course, defeated the Washington State divoteers 22 to 5 over the same course and then rolled up its 16th straight victory by defeating the College of Puget Sound, 20 to 4.

On May 15 they were caught unawares and were beaten 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ by Oregon State. However, on the following weekend the Duck divoteers avenged the defeat by defeating the Beavers 17 to 10 on the Eugene country club course.

Cornell Pleased With Finances

The recent athletic year also was successful financially as well as in victories and honors won, says Anson Cornell, director of athletics for the University. Everyone in the athletic department has been happy in his work and a splendid spirit of cooperation has been evident during the last year, "Anse" explained.

Right now he is looking forward to the future—to next fall's football season.

"We didn't have such a bad year in football last fall," he said. "Football was successful in a way, in that it showed us that we have a good team in the making. We believe that within a couple of years we will be in there doing things in a big way. If the students do their part everything will be rosy."

SPRING SPORTS

Third in Four Years

Starting the baseball season with a bang, the Ducks walked over Oregon State 7 to 1 and 14 to 0 in two opening games, and continued on to their third pennant in four years with scrappy play and a fighting spirit.

After beating the Idaho Vandals 9 to 0 and 6 to 3 on the University's Howe field, the squad lost stride and dropped two games to the Washington State college Cougars to the score of 6 to 6 and in the second game 12 to 2.

In the first game the Cougars nicked Sayles for 9 hits, three of which were home runs, and knocked the league leading Oregon club off the top of the ladder, however, not until after a stubborn fight put up by the Oregon club. In the second game however, the Washington State outfit got 7 hits off Johnny Lewis and took advantage of 6 Oregon errors to roll up 12 points against Oregon's 2.

Six Games in Seven Days

Hopes for Oregon's retaliation for the drubbing from the Cougars took another plunge when the games with the University of Washington team had to be cancelled on account of rain. That left everything hinging on the Webfoots' road trip into Washington and Idaho. It was a tough assignment — six games in seven days, against the league leading Washington Staters and their fellow runner-uppers, the Huskies.

The first game with Washington lasted 14 innings before Huruey, Sayles, Coleman and McLean found the apple and brought in four runs. Sayles meanwhile had been keeping the Huskies down to three hits until his team mates got a hold on themselves.

The second game of this series was won 8 to 6 by Oregon.

THE SPORTS BALANCE SHEET

1. Won the nation rifle championship.
 2. Won the world's indoor vaulting championship.
 3. Won a tie for the northwest basketball championship.
 4. Won the northwest swimming championship.
 5. Won the northwest golf championship.
 6. Won the northwest baseball championship.
 7. Ended the year $5000 ahead financially.

Then came Washington State! The ducks journeyed to Pullman and in a 10 inning contest managed to get an 8 to 6 win from the Cougars that knocked the Pullmanites from the league top and placed the Webfoots there with a fraction of a game lead over their victims. Bill Marshall, Oregon pitcher was credited with the victory.

But Washington State tightened up and in the second game of the series fought stubbornly with the Oregonians in a two to two tie for 14 innings. Sayles was again holding the Cougars in check, and again in the 14th the boys from Eugene rallied with four runs, one of them a homer by Andy Hurncy to win a two-game margin over the other teams in league standings.

Hardy and Lewis were then credited with two wins from Idaho, 13 to 4 and 10 to 7, to finish the strenuous road trip with the record of having won six games in seven days!

Ability to hit in the pinches was the reason happy Hobby Hobson gave for the remarkable success of this trip.

Sayles, Lewis Win Fast Ones

Oregon had but one more game to win to clinch the title. But she won two—from Oregon State. In the first game Bill Sayles threw some of the fastest sizzlers that ever zipped over a conference plate to quiet the Beavers 8 to 0 and consequently to definitely clinch the Northern division pennant. Sayles allowed but three hits and let but one man reach third where he died.

In the next game, the last one of the season, Captain Johnny Lewis took the mound as his final bit of competition under Oregon colors. It was a big day for the seniors. Lewis pitched a good game and Hurney, Amato, and Courtney hit home runs.

The only blight in the latter part of the season was when the Webfoots played for 19 innings with Willamette University and lost 10 to 9. But this was just before the Oregon State series and the Webfoots' best pitchers were under wraps.

Injuries Handicap Trackmen

Injuries spoiled what might have been a very successful varsity track season this spring. Three of Bill Hayward's main spark plugs were not able to compete to the full extent of their ability because of injuries.

George Varoff nursed a pulled muscle all season, "Squeak" Lloyd sprained his ankle while broad jumping in the Washington meet, and Elmer Koskella, who had thrown the javelin over 200 feet early in the spring, nursed a bad arm.

In the Oregon-Oregon State relays, the Webfoots came from behind to tie the meet by winning first places in the last two events, the distance medley and the mile relay.

In dual meet competition, Washington beat Oregon 88 to 46, and Washington State took Oregon 90 to 41. But the Ducks defeated their traditional rivals, the Beavers, 69 to 62, and this meet was won in the last event, the mile relay. Varoff made a new northwest record in the pole vault, by clearing the bar at 14 feet.

In the Northwest conference meet in Seattle, Oregon placed third. Varoff, Foskett, and Holland won first places in the pole vault, shot put, and the discus.

Out of the five man team that went to Los Angeles to the Pacific Coast conference meet, Holland won first place with a toss of 155 feet 7 $\frac{1}{8}$ inches in the discus, Crawford Lyle, up and coming distance man, placed third in the two mile and Bill Foskett placed fourth in the shot put with a heave of 48 feet 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Anson Cornell, athletic manager, is smiling this spring, with a good year both in sports victories and financial success back of him.

Tennis Second in Conference

The varsity tennis team had a very good season this year. It won all but one of its dual matches, and placed second to Oregon State in the Northwest conference tournament held in Corvallis. In the conference matches the Webfoot netmen defeated Idaho 7 to 0, Washington State 7 to 0, Willamette 6 to 1, and Washington 4 to 3, and Oregon State 6 to 1. Oregon State won one match from Oregon, however, by a score of 5 to 2.

Frosh Golfers Wax Rooks

Oregon's freshman golfers demonstrated their superiority over the Oregon State Rooks by defeating the baby Beavers twice this spring, once 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ and the other time 25 to 2. In practice matches the young linksmen swamped University high school and Eugene high school and lost a close one to the varsity champs.

Frosh Baseball Even Up

The Frosh baseballers split their four-game series with the Rooks. In the first game southpaw John Linde earned a 7 to 1 win over the Staters, but later in a doubleheader the Rooks nosed out the Frosh 9 to 8 and 9 to 6. But in the final match the Frosh with Paul Thunemann in the box waxed their rivals 12 to 5.

Frosh Beat Rook Tracksters

The Freshman cindermen from Oregon avenged the 63 to 59 defeat they suffered at the hands of the Rooks last year by defeating the Corvallis boys 69 to 53 in the annual Frosh-Rook dual track and field meet in Corvallis. The meet was won in the final event, the mile relay.

NEW LIBRARY NOW OPEN FOR SERVICE

Ten Years of Planning

When Oregon's new half-million dollar library opened its bronze doors for the first official inspection tours on May 3, it was the culmination of ten years' plans and efforts on the part of the University administration and the library staff.

In 1927 Arnold Bennett Hall, then president of the University, saw the need for increased library facilities and requested the legislature to make provisions for the erection of a new building. Both houses of the legislature approved a bill providing for a $355,000 appropriation, but Gov. I. L. Patterson vetoed the measure. Again in 1929 a move to have the building financed by the RFC failed.

With the New Deal came the WPA and plans were laid before this group. The project was approved by the WPA, but legal difficulties again killed the plan. Dean Wayne Morse of the law school gained another interview and soon straightened the matters out with the WPA, and on January 15, 1935, word spread through the campus that the plans had been given final approval.

Building Model of Modernity

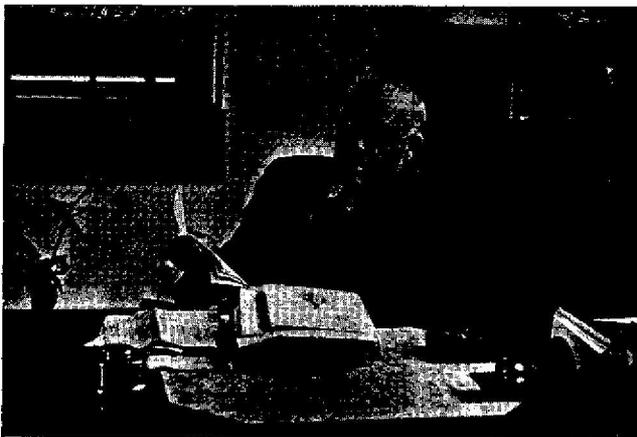

The new building is a model of modernity with indirect lighting, air-conditioning equipment, automatic book deliveries, and individual study rooms which will be available to those doing advanced work.

The foyers at the main entrances are finished in matched imported marble. Brass has been used to great advantage for all the specially designed lighting fixtures.

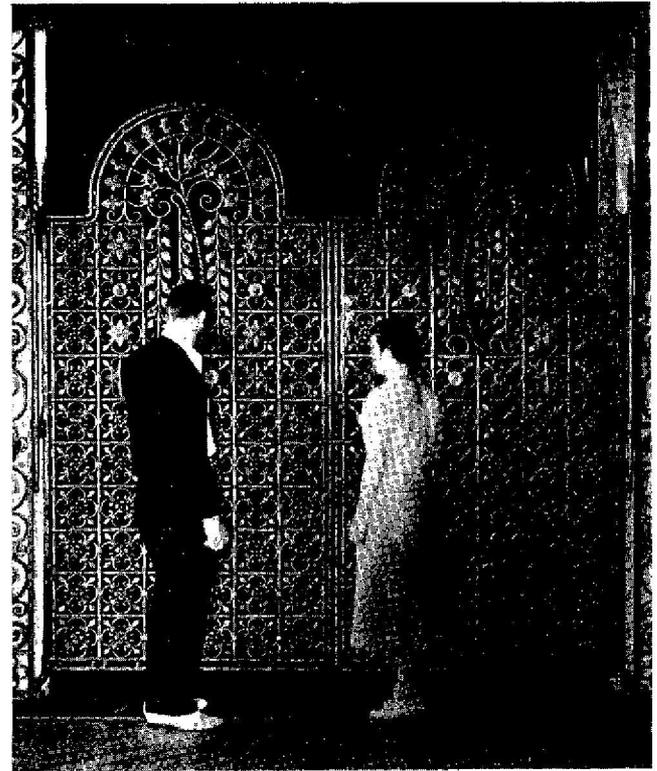

On the first floor in the central part of the building is the main circulation room which is guarded by three magnificent wrought iron gates which serve as memorials to the late Arnold Bennett Hall. Here requests for books are sent to the proper levels in the stacks and an automatic conveyor brings the books, thus speeding up service.

Browsing Room Finely Furnished

Across the hall on the front of the building is the much-heralded browsing room. This room has been finished in bleached white pine, and is to be furnished as a huge lounge where students may come for recreational reading. The Pauline Potter Homer memorial collection of fine books has been placed here. A huge fireplace at each end is intended to brighten rainy days.

After years of work and planning, Head Librarian M. H. Douglass has finally seen his dream come true in the completion of the magnificent new library.

The huge wrought iron gates shown above were constructed in the new library and dedicated to Arnold Bennett Hall, former president of the University. Gayle Buchanan, AWS president, and Jim Hurd, star swimmer, are shown admiring the works of art. The material in the gates was paid for by the Alumni Holding Co.

The first floor of the east wing houses the English and history reserves; the periodical and reference departments are in the west wing.

The two large stairways leading to the upper floors are finished in Kasota stone — a beautiful stone mined in Minnesota. All the hallways in the building are finished in this stone also. Two murals flank each stairway. Panels in missal writing carry messages of Dr. Luella Clay Carson, professor of English and head librarian from 1888 to 1909, and of the late Dr. Frederick Young, dean of sociology from 1895 to 1928.

Special Collections Provided for

The second floor is given over to the special collection room where many pictures of early Oregon faculty, students and University history is kept, to a map room, and to the large upper division reading room. The reading room has carved wood murals at each end. Indirect lighting and the huge front windows make this a particularly pleasant room for study. On the same floor are open stacks for upper division reading courses.

The basement level of the building contains several vaults for storing valuable books, a staff-room, the huge air-conditioning plan for the building, and a large room for newspapers.

Pride of the library is the huge terrace in the front where students may lounge on the comfortable benches that form a wall between the huge cement plaza and the lawn.

MATSUOKA TRULY AN ILLUSTRIOUS ALUMNUS

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles OLD OREGON will present on prominent alumni.)

From the far distant shores of Japan comes one of the University of Oregon's most illustrious graduates,—a man whose reputation is international, and who at the present time is shaping the destinies of a new nation.

Yosuke Matsuoka was born in Japan in 1880 and came to the United States when a small boy. He received his education in the Portland Public Schools and later matriculated at the University of Oregon, where he graduated with high honors in 1900.

In the summer of 1936 Mr. Matsuoka was honored by the Portland Alumni Association of the University of Oregon, when Mr. Paul D. Hunt, President of that organization, and Miss Ruth Covington, a member of the Board of Governors, carried to him in Japan a plaque in recognition of his distinguished career. Mr. Matsuoka was deeply moved by this honor and stated:

"I hardly need to tell you how much I appreciate the honor coming as it does, from the Alumni Association of my Alma Mater. I cannot find words adequately to express my sense of gratefulness. Only I doubt if I really deserve the real cause for which you chose me as one of the few selected of such a high honor.

"I assure you that I will treasure the gift as one of the most precious souvenirs in my life and as one that will always keep me, throughout the rest of life, attached to my dear old Alma Mater. May I ask you to convey the expression of my deepest appreciation and best wishes to the Alumni and friends of the Oregon University."

Mr. Matsuoka often thinks of his University and looks forward to the day when perhaps one of his five sons may enter his father's Alma Mater.

Upon graduation Mr. Matsuoka returned to his native land, immediately started in the diplomatic service and served through many important positions, representing his country as (1) Vice-Consul at Shanghai and Commissioner of the Kwantung Government; (2) Secretary of the Japanese Legation at Brussels; (3) Secretary to the Embassy at Washington, D. C.; (4) Commissioner of the Foreign Office; (5) Peace Conference representative in Versailles; (6) Consul-General at Canton; (7) Member of Parliament; and (8) as representative of his country at the League of Nations when Japan withdrew from the League in 1933, at which time he received world-wide recognition.

Upon his return home from the League meeting he traveled through the United States, where he was widely acclaimed throughout. The University of Oregon paid him homage at that time. Returning to Japan he was selected as President of the South Manchurian Railway Company, which is now developing Japan's vast new empire—Manchoukuo.

Truly a most illustrious son of Oregon . . . Yosuke Matsuoka.

QUACKS

INAUGURATED in December, "Quacks" is here to stay. Its quality we hope to improve as reader response intensifies. The office ducks, (Iguesso, on the left, and Iguesso II, on the right) indicate what we want. Shouting or weeping, chuckles or "gleeping," will fill the bill. Fire away!

FIRST quack this month comes from an eastern alum who has a good suggestion, a slight reprimand, and a nice compliment all wrapped up into one.

3653 Walnut St.,
Philadelphia, Penna.

Editor, Old Oregon:

This is intended to be just a note to ask you to send my summer issues of Old Oregon (I hope the magazine is published over the summer) to 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. This summer, instead of remaining at the University of Pennsylvania, I am going to work for the Psychological Corporation, which is comprised of a group of psychologists who do work for various industries.

Your new method of organizing Old Oregon is a decided improvement over the old style. But why can't we have, with each issue, a write-up about a prominent alumnus of Oregon? This could be made a feature story, and could include a photo of the individual, together with a description of his activities, past, present, and future. If I may make another suggestion, it would be that you make more use of the suggestions made by readers of the magazine. Some of them are particularly fine ones, it seems to me. Old Oregon seems like a letter from home, every time it arrives. Here's hoping it continues to arrive as promptly as it has been. And may it improve as much the next year as it has in the past year. Cordially, Albert B. Blankenship (M.A. 1936).

For Mr. Blankenship's information, Old Oregon comes out for June-July on about June 20, and then not again until September 1 with the August-September issue. To his prominent alum proposal and to his comps we say thanks. Inadequate finances have prevented carrying out many ideas. First of a possible series (increased dues permitting) on outstanding alumni is the one of Yosuke Matsuoka on page 13 this issue.

THE University's serious-minded, but nevertheless jovial, vice-president, Burt Brown Barker (who often signs his name B-3) unawaredly walked off with the $1 prize for the best Quack-of-the-Month in a personal letter to Mr. Fansett which Iguesso couldn't resist printing.

Here it is:

Mr. E. C. Fansett, Secretary,
Oregon Alumni Association,
Eugene, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Fansett:

You flatter me when you ask for a letter giving my impressions of the Alumni banquet held in Portland on the 9th instant. I was so sure it would be a success, that I had as my guest an alumnus of Columbia University, Mr. Joseph A. Danysh of San Francisco. Now stand by while I switch you to Mr. Danysh:

"Hello, Oregon! This is Joe Danysh saying the banquet was everything Barker guaranteed it would be. Columbia alumni surely could take a leaf out of your alumni spirit book with much profit. The meeting had spirit without bla (other college papers please take note). The speeches (except Barker's) had point. Dean Gilbert's had everything. Whenever you hold another banquet, wire me tickets. Thanks for the party! This is Joe Danysh signing off till his repeat order is filled."

I'm a bear on authorities. Let me give you another. This one is Judge Kanzler, who said,

"Barker, without exception that was the best planned and executed alumni banquet that ever I attended."

Naturally I hesitated to reduce that to writing fearing lest Chancellor Hunter and the rest of the Nebraska pack would track me down for an apology. So today I faced the Judge again, and dared him to repeat, and he did on the street corner. I really thought he was going to make it the occasion for one of his well poised orations. It began to rain—I began to run, but he O.K.'d and visaed the statement and gave me leave to print.

To this I would like to add one more authority. This one is a classic:

"Ya ain't heard nothin' yet!"

Very cordially yours,

Burt Brown Barker,

Sub-Assistant Scrub.

Iguesso II wisecracks that B-3 will think the $1 is just another gift to the University which he forgot to add to the impressive list he read at Commencement time, but Old Oregon hastens to assure Mr. Barker that the award is entirely upon the merit of his correspondence.

NEXT comes a brief but interesting letter paying just tribute to the music school and the national broadcasts initiated from there this year by Hal Young.

Wallowa, Ore., May 14, 1937.

Editor Old Oregon,
Eugene, Ore.,

Dear Sir:

Enclosed is a check for one year's subscription to Old Oregon. I believe this check is not due as yet, but I would dislike missing one issue.

I am teaching the music and English in Wallowa High School, where I have found the students alert and respectful of University training. Orchids to you, Music School! I plan to spend another year in this the Switzerland of America, but at the moment am anxious to visit my old campus.

Especially have I enjoyed the radio broadcasts from the Music School, and hope they will be continued next year. It has been the best kind of advertisement for the University.

Sincerely,

Ruthann Breitmayer, '36.

WHEN registering during Commencement week, seniors were asked to fill out a blank which included space for Old Oregon improvement suggestions. Surprisingly, perhaps, fully three-fourths of the graduating class had read the magazine. Evidently this year's drive to arouse campus interest clicked. Below are a few of the spicy replies picked from the assorted answers:

"Not so rah-rah. Have occasional serious articles by outstanding alumni and faculty."

"Good job, but a little more humor would help."

"Have a graduate editor."

"Less athletics."

"Use less advertising."

"I do not approve of the pseudo-snappy style affected by the writers."

Of the many other replies, most of them ran either to compliments or to statements such as, "Make it larger, more pictures, more news about alums, more news about campus, make it bigger and better, more news of classes, more information, keep it growing, etc."

If interested alums cooperate by urging non-members to subscribe Old Oregon will certainly do its best to answer all these suggestions. More dues, more news.

ACROSS the continent from South Carolina comes a letter of particular interest to older alums. It is to Chancellor Hunter, and he kindly allowed Old Oregon to use it. Parts of it follow below.

Columbia, S. C.

My Dear Dr. Hunter:

Your letter asking me to be an Oregon representative at the inauguration of Prof. McKissick as President of the University of South Carolina came while I was ill and therefore unable to reply.

I recovered in time, I am happy to say, to attend this memorable occasion and do credit, I hope, to my own beloved state. . . . The long march of gowned and capped delegates was one of the most impressive events of a most eventful day, and when we were introduced individually as bringing greetings from our Alma Maters and I bowed to the new president . . . my thoughts winged back to those brave Oregon ancestors, those Oregon pioneers, who braved the new, fought the unknown, and builded for an un-dreamed of beautiful future. To them and to the most noteworthy of their achievements—the University of Oregon—I felt eternally grateful.

Interested as I am in education the day seemed all too short though I entered the line of march at ten a. m. and applauded the last after luncheon speech at five p.m. And the men had a banquet that evening!

... With all best wishes for the future of my greatly beloved University,

Very sincerely,

Juanita Wilkins Crews, ex-'18.

Mrs. Crews also tells of her prominent lawyer husband who is at present in the general assembly and serving on many important committees, of her football-playing, poetry-writing son who is 18 and in his first year at the U. of S. C. although she longed to send him to Oregon, and of her lovely daughter who is a typical young girl more western than southern.

FROM the other Carolina state arrives a short requested note of interest from a '36er, Mary McCracken, who was a diminutive dynamo of action during campus days.

Dear Editor:

Glad you provided this opportunity. I've wanted to write to say how much I enjoy Old Oregon way out here in the southland, where they think of the west as Chicago.

This is really a grand, growing school (The University of North Carolina at Durham). The campuses and the buildings are beautiful. Weldon Ross, ex-'35, ATO, and Dick Carter, ex-'35, Sigma Chi, finish their third year of medical school here this year. Joe Paquet, whom I think attended Oregon one quarter, is in his first year of medical school, and Joe King from Salem, who later went to Stanford, is doing graduate work in sociology. I see George Corey now and then. He is taking pre-law at University of Virginia.

They run things very differently here, and it surely makes you appreciate the dear U. of O.

Sincerely,

Mary McCracken, '36.

ANOTHER member of the class of '36 contributes some more good material to the column with a letter from Washington, D. C.

491 23rd St., N.W.

Dear Mr. Fansett:

Your new ideas and new spirit in the alumni association are indeed heartening. Keep up the good work.

I had lunch last Friday with Dean Morse, John Ray, visiting from General Electric in Bridgeport, Conn., Paul Raymond, ex-Oregon law professor and Bill Berg, '29.

Maud Long, '36, receiving her master's in retailing from N.Y.U., and Gertrude Winslow, '34, dropped in Saturday on their way from N. Y. to Richmond, Va.

I live with Francis Pallister, '35, and would be very happy to have any Ducks winging their way east drop in on me.

Sincerely,

Cosgrove C. LaBarre, '36.

"Cossy," ace campus politician and tennis player during his undergraduate years, is now attending George Washington University and working in the department of labor offices.

EXTREMELY interesting is some correspondence of Henry V. Howe, B.A. '16, who writes to his father, Professor H. C. Howe, on the campus. Professor Howe was kind enough to allow Old Oregon to use part of the material, as follows:

"Have written off for my passport, for my visa to Russia and have put in a reservation for my transportation on the Norwegian steamer Tabor to sail from Savannah, Georgia, about the 24th of May. It is a freighter, but has nice accommodations. Dick and I have the special suite which costs us 25% extra, but at that only costs $125. Takes about 16 days to go over. We expect to go to Oslo, thence by train to Bergen, where I want to do some research on Sar's ostracodes which are deposited in the museum there, then by train to Stockholm, by boat to Helsingfors, by train to Petrograd and Moscow, arriving there on July 1. We will then take a 19 day boat trip down the Volga to the Caspian salt dome basin, return to Moscow for the 10 day session of the Congress being taken by special train to Petrograd and back for two days to visit the scientific museums and research establishments there and to take a special tour of the city, thence back to Moscow, following which we will take a 40 day trip to Siberia, going by special train first to the province of Perm where we will look over the type Permian, thence through the Urals, then to the Yennese, with a four day boat trip down it and back, then to Lake Baikal, taking a boat the length of it, then by horseback to some other lake basin to visit a famous coal basin, then return to Moscow and Petrograd, and get back here as quick as we can for the start of the school year."

Mr. Howe is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and received his Ph.D. from Stanford in 1922. He has been chosen as the delegate of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists to the International Congress in Moscow soon. He is also to act as a member of the executive committee of the International Paleontological Union meeting there simultaneously.

columnist writes that both men are very capable and well qualified, and with apparent correctness predicts Professor Leighton will be chosen.

No Saturday Classes

Oregon students will no longer go to Saturday classes as a result of a recent faculty vote which put the University on a "Five Day Week." Announcement has also been made that the University will no longer publish grade lists of fraternity and sorority standings. The latter move was made in an effort to relieve pressure brought upon students to take "pipes."

Senator Pearson came to Portland in 1908 from Virginia, since that time he has been engaged in the insurance business. He was elected to the state senate in 1934 to represent Clackamas, Columbia, and Multnomah counties. His present appointment will necessitate his resignation from the senate.

brate their twenty-fifth reunion. It was "Old Home Week" for the handsome and distinguished members of this illustrious class. From as far south as San Diego (Emma Waterman) to as far north as Tacoma, Washington (Madge Fulton Whitteley) they came—forty strong. Letters were read from Baltimore (Nell Murphy Dickson), Washington, D. C. (Frieda Goldsmith Gassin), Salem, (Carl Gabrielson), Ogden, Utah, (Leigh and Alice Larsen Huggins) Santa Cruz, California (Ethel Evans Anderson), Santa Barbara, California (Bill Main), Schenectady, New York (John P. McGuire), Palo Alto (Pansy Shaver Reynolds), Claremont, California (Edna Prescott Davis). Many others sent interesting bits of news at the expense of the University.

The contest for having retained the most hair went to Ben Harding, mayor of Oregon City (class of 1913, please take notice!). Little "Benny" is very well preserved. The depression evidently didn't touch him. No "mama" to peck at him, no kids to bail out of jail, only a peaceful little city to manage. What could be simpler? No wonder he won this contest! The contest for having retained the most teeth went to Ruth Merrick Caulfield. She was the most beautiful, the spryest, the most dashing—having dashed down with a promising young Lochinvar, leaving a husband and a couple of children to shift for themselves.

All reunion class members who wish enlarged pictures of their group may obtain them by writing to The University News Bureau and inclosing enough to cover mailing and expenses. A 5x7 photo is 25 cents, and 8x10, 35 cents.

Anyone desiring addresses of alumni may obtain the information free by writing the alumni office.

At the University luncheon, Mr. Chester A. Moores, of Commonwealth, Inc., Portland, in his inimitable way, called attention to the fact that this class was peculiarly distinguished for being the only class suspended from the University in wholesale fashion. Thirty-five of our eminent members, one now a prominent judge, were told that the University would have to struggle along without their help. President Campbell finally found the price too great for the "ultimate good of the University" and therefore saved it from utter ruin by his timely intervention. Most of the thirty-five were at this reunion but the aforementioned judge just couldn't stand the glory.

A banquet was held at the Kappa Alpha Theta house at 5:30 p. m. so that all the women could attend the Flower and Fern procession on the campus at 7:30. But what was our chagrin when we discovered at the close of the banquet it was 9:00 p. m.! Telegrams came thick and fast during the banquet. Jane, Ione, Merle, Bernie, Elizabeth and dozens of others! Each one of us rendered an accounting of the past 25 years. Some complained they hadn't any husbands or wives. Others complained they had! One had a daughter graduating with the class of 1937 (Ed. Himes of Dallas) Pretty good, eh? Another had a son already graduated from Stanford law school (David McDaniel). Some told of the foreign countries they had visited,—others never got out of Eugene! Some had bunions, others had defective gall bladders. Ralph Moores told how he happened to invent the Canoe Fete which has been a successful annual Junior week-end affair ever since and how it poured that first time! A permanent class committee was elected. Jennie Fry Walsh, Leon Ray and Mildred Bagley Graham are to communicate with members from time to time on important matters. Following the banquet all who could find the way gathered at the Fairmount Heights home of Mildred Bagley Graham for the rest of the evening, guests of the Eugene members of the class. There the new Memory Book was presented to the class by Bob Kellogg, president, and Chester Moores. Jennie Fry Walsh presided at the "flowing bowl" and charmingly dispensed hospitality. The class invited certain beloved professors whom we hold responsible for our present plight: Professor H. C. Howe, Professor Mary H. Perkins, Dr. F. G. G. Schmidt, Prof. E. E. DeCou, Dr. James H. Gilbert, and Bill Hayward. Mr. Ra- phael Geisler, famed musician, and former U. S. Consul, favored us with old familiar tunes such as "It Looks to Me Like a Big Night Tonight," "Cuddle up a Little Closer," "Alexander's Rag Time Band," "Oh Mr. Moon, Kindly Come Out and Shine," "Beautiful Lady," "Harvest Moon." We all pictured ourselves floating about in the men's gym at one of the "huge" Junior Proms—all but unconscious—programs dangling from half-bare arms, dresses slightly below the knees, men with swallow tails floating in the breeze—Hendershott's orchestra puffing and steaming, struggling with the fourth encore of "Good Night, Ladies." Harold Cockerline, O.S.C. electrical engineering instructor (imagine!)—gaily dragging Frieda around for the "steenth" time—then everybody off for "Otto's and oysters."

The hour was late—the best of friends must part. Au revoir until another, not 25 years (mercy, no!) five years—God willing!
