Old Oregon:

Dr. Benjamin Williams, '10, is still instructing the youth of University of Pittsburgh and plans to spend the summer in Portland.

Alfred Scullen, '11, lives in Braddock, Pa., and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric company.

Clarence A. Steele, '10, is still at 156 5th avenue, New York City. He is assistant treasurer of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

I have been here for eight years as associate minister of the Shadyside Presbyterian church.

Mr. Carlton Spencer,
Law School,
University of Oregon.

Dear Carlton:

I have been repeatedly receiving letters from the U. of O. alumni association allying me with that class of 1913.

It is true, and I make no attempt to deny it, I once roomed with Guy Johnston, Vincent Yaden, Hugh Curran, Carlton Spencer and others of that class, and even had my picture taken with 'em—but I was graduated in 1912.

Please remember that whatever good men were turned out by '13, their virtues were due to the judicious paddle wielding of the class of 1912. The last class (historical fact) to whom the faculty allowed the privilege.

I'd be obliged if you'd get my memory lined up with the illustrious class of 1912 instead of the '13 mob. 'nuf of that.

I've lived in Los Angeles since coming back from the war. I work for the government—postal service, not WPA—and grow oranges on the side. I still have a farm in Oregon that I visit every year. I had a nice visit with Ferd Neubauer the other day. He's a Ph.D. and on the U. of C. faculty. See Bill Holt (ex-'16, I think) often. Am married to Gladys Thomas, U. of Nebraska, '12, and have a son.

Yours truly,

ALA EVANS HOUSTON, '12.

(Mr. Houston's predicament can be explained in this wise: Mr. Houston entered the University in 1909 with a year's credits. But the Class of 1913 took him as their own and still consider him a member. So, you may not think so, Mr. Houston, but you're a member of the class of 1913 as far as the '13ers are concerned. Ed.—)

Dear Mr. Fansett:

I just wanted to write a note to thank you for sending copies of OLD OREGON to this address during my stay here in Rome. As American newspapers are rather scarce articles over here, I have depended on the Time news magazine to keep up with events in the U. S., and upon OLD OREGON to keep up with the news of the University. Both have been more than a godsend to me. Of course one talks to American tourists occasionally but as this hospital is a little off the regular tourist beat, I haven't had a chance to visit with many of them. Also am not able to say for sure whether there are other Oregon alums here in Rome, but there probably are, because now, they can be found practically everywhere.

As I plan on leaving here the latter part of June, I wish that you would send all further copies to my former address.

I note that one of the Oregon alums was arrested in Vienna on the assumption that he was a communist. Certainly hope that this won't apply to the rest of us because I plan on visiting there before continuing on up to Belgium and England.

Again thanks for the news of Oregon and more power to the old school in her successful climb to bigger and better achievements.

Sincerely,

A. T. KING, M.D., '33.

Mr. E. C. Fansett,
Alumni Secretary,
University of Oregon:

I wish to thank you for the April number of Old Oregon giving notice of the passing of my brother William J. Roberts, class of '86. He made a remarkable record in Oregon and Washington as a civil engineer.

One or more of the Roberts family of The Dalles were present at the University during the 80's and 90's, and nephews and nieces followed. After graduating in '93, I was instructor there one year, and then came east in '94 to study engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where I graduated 1898, B.S. in electrical engineering.

For the past 40 years my engineering has covered a wide variety of projects and positions, among them which I will mention 10 years in New England with the General Electric Co., then previous to the Big War for a while in the electrical laboratories of Thomas A. Edison, West Orange, N. J.; and then here in Washington, D. C.,

The Cover

The cover is one of the latest studio portraits of Dr. George Rebec, dean emeritus of the graduate division. On page one, Alfred Powers, dean of the extension division, tells a little about the inspiration and love that Dr. Rebec has given Oregon and Oregon students for the past twenty-five years. The portrait is by Kennell-Ellis studios in Eugene.

20 years under civil service of U. S. Government. These would fill a good sized volume to cover the details of the work involved. I was retired in January, 1937, at the age of 70.

During 44 years of my absence from Eugene, many changes have occurred; only a few acquaintances remain who remember me. No doubt I would be surprised now to see the growth of the University. Let us hope it will continue to prosper.

Sincerely yours,

THOMAS M. ROBERTS, Class, '93.

Talara, Peru,
May 26.

Dear Mr. Fansett:

In reply to your letter which, I am sorry to say I have not answered before now, I want to thank you for giving me all the news of the University.

Needless to say I am anxious to keep in touch with all that goes on in Eugene and shall be glad to keep on receiving OLD OREGON for which I am enclosing a money order.

You ask about Talara. We are such a small isolated camp here, just four degrees south of the equator and fortunately directly in the path of the southwest trade winds which keep us comparatively cool the year round.

The white people—or "gringos" as we are called—number about three hundred, so we manage to break the monotony of our life in this little desert city of ours by getting together as often as possible for dances and sports and picnics.

At the time when you people up there in "God's country" are enjoying nice ripe tomatoes, strawberries and cream, and peaches, we are blowing the sand and dust off our carrots and turnips to find out which is which! However, they tell me that after a decade or two one learns to take all this with a grain of sand!

Thank you again for your interest and my best wishes to you and all at Oregon.

Faithfully,

KATHARINE MANERUD MYRANS,

April 15, 1938.

Alumni Secretary,
University of Oregon.
Dear Sir:

I am enclosing the card that I found in the copy of Old Oregon that you sent to me.

I came to Honolulu nearly three years ago as a teacher at Kamehameha Boys' School. Last year I taught orchestra, glee club and drum corps, and coached swimming and track during the day at Roosevelt High School. At night I played in the orchestra at the Alexander Young Hotel roof-garden.

This year I am employed at the California Packing Corporation here, working as a foreman—learning the pineapple business. I'm usually through work at 2:30 p.m. so I instruct the band at Kamehameha in the afternoons and on Saturday mornings. Up until two months ago I also played in the orchestra at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Still single.

Sincerely yours,

BILL SIEVERS, '32.

Dean Rebec--Twenty-five Years at Oregon

A Personal Tribute by Dean Alfred Powers, '10

On the evening of May 13, at the University Club in Portland, 205 friends held a dinner honoring Dr. George Rebec, who at the age of 70 was retiring as dean of the graduate division of the State System of Higher Education, and as professor of philosophy in the University of Oregon. The dinner, planned several weeks ahead, was arranged in its earlier stages without his knowledge through the connivance of Mrs. Rebec, part of whose joyous comradeship with us all was that she could enter zestfully into such gracious stratagems concerning him. The original intention was to commission a portrait of him to be hung in the University library. After her death this gift was changed to the publication of Mrs. Rebec's poems in a volume of fine printing by Mr. John Henry Nash and Mr. Robert C. Hall. Acting for the numerous friends who have collaborated as publishers, Dean Eric W. Allen is selecting and arranging poems for inclusion.

Those present at the dinner, and many others unable to attend, had all been enriched, each in a special and radiant way, by his wonderful mind and spirit. Some had known him for a quarter of a century, others for varying lesser periods, and a few went back in their friendship to his Michigan days. Like the abrupt line along the high Cascades where eastern and western Oregon meet, the time after he had come was for all of them richly separable from the time before. For them, he represented lofty benefactions, from himself, human and friendly, and from the University, creative and fostering—a man and an institution in a fused and blended personality.

His Slavic name was first brought to my attention by Dr. Joseph Schafer in a letter telling me of the remarkable man who had just joined the University faculty. Shortly afterwards I met him with Dr. Schafer on Willamette street—wearing a black cape against the extemporaneousness of the Lane county showers, his moustaches in terminal droops, his eyes reminding me of Carlyle's essay on Burns.

I never had a class with him, only numerous seminars—in second-hand bookstores, on town and country walks, on long drives the length and breadth of Oregon, in the lobbies of little hotels, in quaint restaurants, in University offices—a glorious series of discussion that animated a host of men and a multitude of timeless ideas.

It was soon after the War that I had my first experience of hearing this man talk with the magic they say Dr. Johnson, Coleridge and Stevenson had. Previously I had seen him only briefly at odd times. In this instance, Earl Kilpatrick and I, calling on him in Portland, found him sick in bed at home. As we left I could only say:

"Great Scott, and he's sick! How does he talk when he's well?"

The same extraordinary gift of expression had a convenient result for him a few years ago. After his long canoe journey with Amos Burg when he was returning from the Alaskan wilderness to his University classes, he put down his dunnage sack at a Canadian customs house. The uniformed officer contemptuously disregarded the plebian baggage and the unkempt man. Then Dr. Rebec talking to him in polysyllables, in cadences of indignant eloquence. The officer wilted; superciliousness changed to abject humility.

Under far different circumstances, but as offhand in the moulding of his language, without a manuscript or note or any memorized phraseology, he delivered the perfect lecture. Speaking at a University assembly, his subject was "Romanticism and Realism." The snug-fitting organization of his theme, its flawless sequences of logical development, and the transcendency of his delivery—the rightness of word and the resonant timbre of voice—these things produced an address which his audience could never forget, which remains incomparably in my memory as a golden unity of thought and utterance. We regretted that no court reporter was present to record it on paper, for we knew that with his teeming vocabulary Dr. Rebec's theme would never again be presented in just this way, never again be clothed in just these words.

Over a long period of association, I have known Dr. Rebec in many capacities and in many environments. Episodes, perhaps not important in themselves but which seem to be significant, flash out. The trip to Vancouver, when thorough combing of second-hand stores brought forth but one prize—a copy of Swinton's high school text in English literature, used by Dr. Rebec as a boy. Back in Portland, we separated at the Multnomah hotel, Dr. Rebec retiring to his room with our purchase. Next morning he confessed he had read Swinton until two o'clock in the morning—which means he had reread the whole volume from front to back, absorbed in these beginnings of his literary enthusiasm. And with satirical relish for his youthful convictions, he told how for years he had had difficulty in accepting Shelley as one of the "big boys," because his picture had not been in Swinton along with those of Coleridge and Wordsworth.

677 Degrees Given at Commencement

Six hundred seventy-seven degrees were conferred by the University of Oregon at its 61st annual commencement exercises held on May 20. The commencement address was given by Dr. Donald M. Erb, whose formal installation as seventh president of the University was a feature of the commencement exercises.

Dr. Erb's subject, which served as his inaugural address, was "The Companionship of Learning and Life." In his speech, Dr. Erb pled for intellectual tolerance, "of a person's views regardless of his racial stock, his religious affiliation, his political affiliation, his economic status or his educational opportunities."

"There is a growing tendency," he said, "to condemn man's every utterance because he is—a banker, or 'a labor leader,' or 'a fascist,' or 'a manufacturer.' This tendency is an evidence of intolerance and its chief ally—intellectual laziness. It is to be condemned."

A person must, however, be always on guard and judicious in his tolerance, he said: "Do not be tolerant with misrepresentation, of superficiality, of the parading of false issues as though they were real issues."

Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of the State System of Higher Education, also was a featured speaker and gave a charge to the class of 1938 . . . "be wise leaders and intelligent followers; to make an honest living, since the world owes the individual nothing he does not strive for; to fight for the American system of government, and for the maintenance of local self-government and tolerance for the rights of all; and to seek for the truth at all times."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Allen Hendershott Eaton, "In recognition of his foresight and courage as legislator, citizen, and public servant; his tireless endeavor in promoting an appreciation of beauty in art and creative craftsmanship, and his sympathetic and enlightened understanding of the vital contributions which foreign peoples have made to the culture and civilization of America." Dr. Eaton's degree was conferred in absentia because of his inability to come to Eugene from his home in New York City.

Dr. Eaton is a member of the class of 1902 and a former faculty member. Shortly after his graduation from the University, Dr. Eaton opened an art store in Eugene; in 1914 he joined the faculty of the art school at Eugene, in 1917 he resigned from the faculty and became labor adjuster for the shipping board during the war. Following his work there, Dr. Eaton joined the staff of the American Federation of Arts. From there he went to the Sage Foundation where he is with the department of surveys and exhibits.

Dr. Eaton has written many books on the handicrafts and rural arts of the United States, included are "America's Making," "Immigrant Gifts to American Life," and last fall his "Handicrafts of the Southern Highlands" was published. While living in Oregon, Dr. Eaton was a member of the state legislature.

Allen Hendershott Eaton, '02, who was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the University's 61st annual commencement.

Doctor of Philosophy degrees were awarded to Herbert C. McMurtry and William T. Starr. Herbert Galton was given the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence. There were 55 Doctor of Medicine degrees given, 35 Master of Arts, 32 Master of Science, three Master of Education and three Master of Fine Arts degrees granted. The bachelor degrees numbered 541.

Dr. Edwin Maslin Hulme, professor of history at Stanford university, was speaker at the baccalaureate sermon.

Summer Session

Enrollment for the summer session at Eugene hit a new high this summer when 866 graduate and undergraduate students enrolled for the regular six-weeks' session. The men enrolled outnumbered the women 452 to 413. There were 183 out-of-state students enrolled, California led with 67 and Washington followed with 25.

Distribution of the out-of-state enrollees was: Alaska, 2; Arizona, 2; California, 67; Canada, 10; Colorado, 6; Hawaii, 3; Idaho, 7; Illinois, 4;

Iowa, 6; Kansas, 4; Korea, 1; Louisiana, 1; Minnesota, 3; Massachusetts, 1.

Montana, 10; Nebraska, 3; Nevada, 2; North Dakota, 9; New Mexico, 1; Oklahoma, 2; South Dakota, 6; Texas, 3; Utah, 3; Washington, 25. There were 683 Oregon students registered.

Cupid complicated matters no end at the University of Oregon medical school in Portland when twin brothers, Dr. Ronald Neilson and Dr. Duncan Neilson, both of whom earned their M.D. degrees this year, were married to Marian Schwichtenberg and Lilian Schwichtenberg, both of whom earned M.A. degrees from the University in 1935. Ronald and Marian were married and Lilian and Duncan were married.

Gene Shields, '26, for nine years line coach for the University of Oregon football team, has been named head football, basketball, and baseball coach by Washington high school in Portland.

Widmer Loan Fund

A cash gift of $2000 to be used exclusively as a loan fund for deserving students at the University, has been made by Miss Margaret M. Widmer, '97, of Eugene.

The gift will be known as the "George C. Widmer Loan Fund" in honor of her brother, George C. Widmer, who was also a member of the class of 1897. The fund will be administered by the University student loan fund committee.

In her letter of transmittal establishing the loan fund, Miss Widmer wrote to Dr. Erb: "This loan is established out of certain proceeds of the estate of my brother, George C. Widmer, who graduated from the University of Oregon in the class of 1897. My brother was very much interested in helping needy and worthy students to obtain an education, and although he did not provide for this gift specifically in his will, nevertheless, this gift is made to carry out what I believe would be his wishes in the matter."

Senior Luncheon

The alumni luncheon held Saturday, May 28 was notable for the large "mob" of 1913ers running around in lemon and green rooter's lids with 13's on them. Every speaker was assured of some sort of cheering if he had the foresight to mention the class of 1913.

Honor guests at the luncheon were two members of the fifty year class: Mrs. Albert McMurphy and Mrs. Rose Hollenbeck who were enrolled in the school of music while attending the University. Also introduced were Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. McCornack Welles, both of whom are members of the class of 1880.

Ed Bailey, '13, president of the alumni association and toastmaster for the luncheon, introduced "Tex" Oliver, new football coach, who spoke a few words on the prospects of the 1938 varsity. Roland Davis, '28, president of the Portland alumni club, presented retiring President C. Valentine Boyer with a handsome desk set. Mr. Davis explained that the gift was to have been presented to Dr. Boyer at the banquet given in Portland on March 17 in honor of Dr. Erb, but Dr. Boyer had been unable to attend.

Responses for the different classes were made by: A. K. Cleveland, class of 1898; Oscar Furuset, class of 1908; Carlton Spencer, 1913; Dr. Edward E. Gary, class of 1918; Roland Davis, class of 1928. Kessler Cannon, winner of the Failing-Beekman orations, gave the response for the class of 1938.

Proceedings were interrupted at this point to allow Ralph Cake, '13, to present Dr. Erb with a Class of 1913 rooster's lid and to make Dr. Erb an official member of the class of 1913.

Dr. Erb told alumni present that the relationship between any group of alumni and its alma mater must of necessity be reciprocal. The University must be interested in the careers, interests, and ambitions of its alumni. The alumni must give their Alma Mater support — spiritual, intellectual, and emotional. Dr. Erb told alumni that he could take over his duties as president of the University with a feeling of optimism because of the volume of progress that the University has made under Dr. Boyer and Dr. Hunter.

Gen. M. F. Davis, D.S.M.

General Milton Fennimore Davis, D.S.M., '88, died May 31 at Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y., after an illness lasting several months. General Davis was graduated from West Point after he had attended the University.

General Davis was one of the first explorers of the Grand canyon. He also made the first ascent of the 12,000-foot peak in the high Sierras which later was named Mount Davis in his honor. In 1897 he made a record ascent of Mount Popocatepetl in Mexico. He was also known as a big game hunter from Alaska to Mexico.

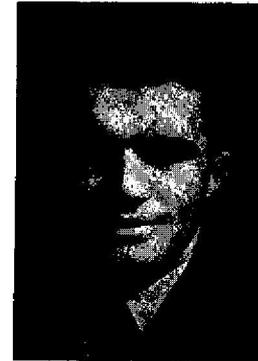

He was born in Manterville, Minnesota. During his long army career he served at Fort Walla Walla and in the presidio at San Francisco and saw action in the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection, receiving the silver star citation for gallantry in action against the Spanish forces at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.

UO to Rally in Portland

August 25 is to be the date of the big University of Oregon rally in Portland, Harry Weston, president of the Associated Students and field secretary for the University of Oregon Federation, has announced. The picnic will be at Jantzen Beach park.

The rally is for all alumni, students, prospective students, Oregon Dads, Oregon Mothers, and the University's friends. The park will be taken over for the use of the University groups that night. A big picnic supper will be provided for all present by the Portland clubs of the Oregon Mothers and the Oregon Dads.

The evening will be given over to all sorts of entertainment furnished by professional and University talent. The huge ballroom will be available for the exclusive use of the picnickers and Carol Lofner and his orchestra will play for the dancing.

Bannock Indian War

[The following review of The Bannock Indian War of 1878, written by George Brimlow, M.A. '36, has been written for OLD OREGON by Dan E. Clark, professor of history.—Ed.]

Readers of OLD OREGON will find this volume interesting, not only because the author received his M.A. at the University of Oregon, but even more because the book deals with the last major episode in the series of Indian uprisings which make the history of early Oregon such exciting reading. The Bannock war of 1878 is less well known than the Nez Perce conflict that immediately preceded it or the Modoc war of 1872-1873. Nevertheless, the resistance of the Bannocks caused widespread alarm not only in southern Idaho and southeastern Washington, but throughout Oregon east of the Cascades. The Indians led army detachments a long and arduous chase before they were finally subdued.

Mr. Brimlow presents an excellent survey of the background of this uprising. The events of the campaign are related in detail, and the results, some of which were far-reaching, are clearly described. The bibliography and the footnote references indicate that the study is based upon a thorough search for source materials. The style is clear and readable, and the attractiveness of the volume is enhanced by pleasing typography and binding. Altogether Mr. Brimlow has made a contribution which is of distinct value to the historian and of interest to the general reader.

DAN E. CLARK.

Sixty-Six '13ers Attend Silver Reunion

July 12, 1938.

Members of the Class of 1913
Everywhere.

Dear Folks:

On July 12, 1923, we wrote of our 10th year reunion, "Commencement 1923 of the University of Oregon has come and gone—but not as other commencements have come and gone—because, by the hand of the class of 1913, was writ a page in the history of the institution that will forever mark the date."

That seems as but yesterday, yet here we are again, writing this family letter to make a record of the events of our 25th anniversary reunion. Five years ahead of time we began to plan for it. Each commencement, and often in between times, wherever a group of '13ers could get together, a council of planning was held. The result was the greatest reunion the University has ever seen. We think we got the names of all who attended. Here they are:

Here's the chronological narrative of events:

At six o'clock Friday evening we began to assemble, with relatives and friends, for our picnic under the Condon Oaks. But also did the clouds assemble, and the rain, and we took shelter in the "Anchorage," (remember the old Paul Bond house across the track from Villard), which was pretty handy, because the Anchorage was providing the eats anyway. In spite of the fact that some hadn't arrived yet, the place was filled. Many of our old professors were there, and, all in all, it was a fine informal get-together, and started the reunion off in great shape.

Next morning the men all donned rooters' caps with the numerals "13" on the front and everyone put on the 1913 badges with silver ribbons (our silver anniversary), and trooped into the meeting of the Alumni association. The class occupied one complete section of seats. We participated in the serious business of the meeting in a very sedate manner, but just before adjournment Ralph Cake moved (with appropriate oratory) the re-affirmation and re-adoption of the resolution which was passed in 1923. In case you don't remember, here it is:

"Whereas, at some time in the life of every great University there is graduated a class which stands out preeminently above all others, and

Whereas, such a class is recognized as superior by all prior classes and is looked up to as the shining, though unattainable, example by all subsequent classes, and

Whereas, such a class is unanimously praised by all faculty members who constantly strive with despairing hope of ever producing another class of equally high quality, and

Whereas, when a university is so fortunate as to have produced such a class, it is fitting that due recognition be taken thereof, and

Whereas the class of 1913 holds this enviable position in the University, therefore,

Be it resolved that this association go on record as paying homage to the class of 1913 in recognition of the fact that it is the best class yet graduated from the University of Oregon, and in recognition of the further fact that no future class can hope to attain more than a mere semblance of its high degree of perfection."

The motion was put to vote, and carried by an overwhelming majority. At least to all unbiased ears, including those of Alumni President, Ed Bailey, '13, presiding, the noise indicated an overwhelming majority.

At noon we had a special section of tables at the annual alumni luncheon, and with our numbers and enthusiasm, "stole the show." One stunt was to present Ed Bailey with a cup, (provided by Fen Waite) for his masterfulness in presiding over alumni meetings in such a fair and impartial manner. The cup wasn't brand new—in fact it had been used before at a county fair, and the inscription it bore referred to a certain "prize bull calf." Judge Howard Zimmerman presented it with appropriate solemnity. Another stunt was to initiate President Erb into the class, and to present him with 1913 cap and numerals, which he wore with evident pride. So both Ed, presiding at the dinner, and President Erb, chief speaker, wore our colors.

After the luncheon we were photographed on Villard hall steps, so far as possible in the same positions as in our sophomore class picture.

At 3:30 we all attended the reception in honor of the new president.

At 5:30 we began to assemble at the Osburn Hotel for the reunion dinner. This dinner was really the highlight of the weekend. One feature, unique in the annals of class reunions, so far as we know, was the recording in permanent form, of the voice of each and everyone present. At considerable labor and expense, Donald Carruth, son of Hilda Brant Carruth, had set up his sound recording equipment. The microphone was placed in front of each one as he sat at the table, and a record was made of his voice. Singing and talks were likewise recorded, and we had the unique sensation of hearing them reproduced immediately. These records will be available in years to come, and together with the pictures taken of the group, will tell the story vividly.

Ralph Cake acted as master of ceremonies, and there was something doing all the time.

Verena Black (Mrs. Rutherford) got the prize for having come the farthest. She came all the way from Pasadena especially for the reunion, having had to hire a substitute teacher to take her place while she was gone. She brought bushels of perfect oranges as a gift to the class.

Olive Zimmerman (Mrs. Holfman) from Burbank was a close second for distance traveled. Thad Wentworth had the most hair. Cecil Miller (Mrs. Elinwood had changed the least. Faye Ball (Mrs. Bond) had the least gray hair. Walter Hodge took the prize for the most children (four). Hazel Fields (Mrs. Millar) had been most recently married. Hilda Brant (Mrs. Carruth) had the oldest child. Bertha Masters (Mrs. Patterson) vice-president of the freshman class, spoke a few words on our greatness as freshmen. Carlton Spencer, sophomore president, Elizabeth Lewis (Mrs. Scott), junior vice-president, and Ed Bailey, senior president, all made a few remarks which were duly recorded for posterity. Judge Zimmerman, chairman of the necrology committee made his report, and the committee stood in silence in memory of those members of the class who are no longer with us.

Karl Onthank read dozens of letters and telegrams of greeting from members who couldn't be here.

Then, with the aid of the reflectoscope, pictures of the absent members were thrown on the screen, with campus scenes of our school days and pictures from memory books and old Oregonas. The members of the class milled about and visited until the wee small hours, and everybody swore it had been the finest time they'd ever had. Just to back up all we've said, the next day the Eugene Register-Guard had this to say:

"While officially the day was designated as "alumni day," the entire period might have been heralded as the "class of 1913er's big lark." Not in years has as much "college spirit" been demonstrated by any campus group, some 75 to 100 members of the class, togged out in their bright green and yellow rooters' caps, 'making things lively' throughout the day. 'Safe' because their Edward F. Bailey of Portland is president of the University of Oregon Alumni association, the 1913 clan had everything their own way. Mr. Bailey, ably assisted by Ralph Cake of Portland, Judge Howard K. Zimmerman of Astoria, Carlton Spencer, Dean Karl Onthank, Jack E. Luckey, all of Eugene, and others of the "mob" was able to "railroad" anything the 1913 mob might think up. Because 'all the prominent names of Oregon' are in the class of 1913, the group decided President Erb should be there too, so 'inducted' him into the class with presentation of a rooter's cap at the luncheon."

Well, folks, we think that about tells the story. Of this much we are sure, to those of us who were here, the glorious

Alumnae Pay Tribute to Luella Clay Carson

The following tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Luella Clay Carson was prepared by Mrs. Ella T. Edmundson and read before the annual meeting of the State Association of University Women when that group met in special session during Commencement week to pay tribute to their former teacher. During the business session the association established the Luella Clay Carson scholarship loan fund which will be loaned without interest charge to University women students.

"Dr. Luella Clay Carson was actively connected with the University of Oregon for a period of over 20 years. She held the chair of rhetoric and public speaking from 1888 to 1895, rhetoric and English literature, 1903 to 1909. She was the first dean of women at the University and served in that capacity from 1895 to 1909. She organized the State Association of University Women at Oregon, and was originator of our traditional Flower and Fern procession, held each year during commencement Week.

During the years that Dr. Carson served at Oregon she was outstanding in her loyalty to the institution and in her enthusiasm for its ideals. To her, the university was the state in its highest manifestation. A daughter of Oregon pioneers, she knew Oregon history and revered the "empire builders." She never lost sight of the responsibility of the institution to the people, constantly envisioning the University of the future as an exponent of a larger and more highly developed commonwealth, possessing the virtues of its pioneer founders.

Singularly forceful and impressive in personality, Dr. Carson's influence was potent for the good, the beautiful and the true. She was a beloved teacher, a devoted servant of the state, and a woman of beautiful and noble character.

Mrs. Norma Hendricks Starr and Mrs. Edna Prescott Davis, both former students of Dr. Carson, attended the funeral services held at Pomona. Mrs. Starr gives the following account of the rites:

"There were many beautiful flowers but two Oregon bouquets of bright spring blossoms stood out . . . those from the group of alumnae . . . another larger spray of blossoms represented the thoughts of the faculty and those who remembered her passing.

"It was sweet to be there to honor her and all she meant to me and to the legion of others at the University those years ago . . . It seemed a small group to do her honor that day, considering all those whose lives she had touched during her active years of service . . . we spoke of how we used to be afraid of Professor Carson, but we had always had respect for her vigorous stand on right principles and we both had grown to love her cheer and affection during these late years when we had seen her down here. . . .

"Dr. Brooks (who conducted the service) told of the whole history of Luella Clay Carson, from the time she was born in Portland until the ending of her days, and how she always carried that spirit of superiority. And she was just that as we looked at her face on its last pillow—a true patrician.

"They took her out to a little place near the town of Pomona and under a leaning Acacia tree, which was beginning to show its fresh green leaves, she will wait her morning. She would love the spot, for it was so quiet, so serene . . . And sometimes she must look up to old big 'Mount Baldy' nearby and think she is once more in Oregon which she loved devotedly.

"She had meant much to me during all those early years at the University and had given me so much direction in living as well as in learning. It was as if a good book had been closed to my view for a while.

"I thought the service which had been prepared by Dr. Brooks was so fittingly expressed in the few words which he spoke. . . . The little company of friends from 'Pilgrim Place' were much moved. . . . I think it was fine and true, just as she was, and I was honored to say goodbye to her for all of you. . . ."

So ends the life of a beloved teacher, and while most of us have forgotten many of the things we were supposed to have learned at the University of Oregon, we have not forgotten, nor shall we ever forget the incentive Dr. Carson held up toward integrity of character, high ideals, and nobler womanhood.

Chessman, '09, former president of the Oregon Alumni Association and publisher of the Astorian Budget, who has been elected to the executive board of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers' Association. Lower left is Earle Richardson, '20, of the Dallas Itemizer-Observer, who is also a director for the ONPA. Lower right is Henry N. Fowler, '14, of the Bend Bulletin, who has been named the vice-president of ONPA.

Reunion of Class of 1918

At the University luncheon, Dr. Edward E. Gray, responding for the class of 1918, asked for all 1918 members to meet at the close of the luncheon. A few of the class had gathered at one table and we were glad when others joined us and we had a little get-together. We decided to meet at 5:30 at the Anchorage and have dinner.

So at 5:30 we all gathered, and after having our pictures taken by Mrs. Edward E. Gray, (Missouri, 1918) we sat down and found we had a fine crowd representing our class of 1918.

Sara Barker Waller, Eugene; Dorothy Dunbar Dysart, Centralia, Washington; Kenneth A. Moores, Seattle, Washington; Gladys Conklin John, Stayton, Oregon; Walter Grebe, Portland; Mrs. Walter Grebe; Mrs. Edward E. Gray, Eugene (Missouri 1918); Frances Elizabeth Baker, Eugene; Celeste Foulkes Brougher, Brooklyn New York; Cora Hosford Rathburn, Portland; Emmett Rathburn, '17; Lucien P. Arant, Baker, Oregon; Gladys Wilkins McCready, Eugene; Florence Sherman Flavel, Astoria, Oregon, and daughter, Miss Flavel; Edward E. Gray, Eugene.

During the dinner we found out all about each other and lots about the absent members, so it was decided to plan a big reunion in 1943, our silver jubilee, and from now on to keep in touch with as many members as possible and make our jubilee a real one.

At the request of James S. Sheehy, who is now in San Francisco, a new class secretary was appointed and Dr. Edward (Eddie) E. Gray was selected.

We bid each other goodbye and best of health and a promise to be together in 1943.

Edward E. (Eddie) Gray, Sec.

Reunion Class of 1908

Members of the Class of 1908:

Our reunion began at the registration table in the Administration Building, as members of the class drifted in to register before the Alumni meeting on Saturday morning. There was many a pleasant moment as one familiar face after another appeared.

Have we changed much in thirty years? Yes and no. There were a good many gray hairs and some that were absent permanently. There were some extra pounds where they shouldn't have been, but the same old snap was in the eye, and the same old smile appeared when an old friend hove in sight. Life has dealt variously with us, but we all agreed that the class of 1908 was and is the best ever, and decided to meet at unofficial reunions at least every five years. We hope there will be many more present at the next five year reunion in 1943.

After the alumni meeting, we adjourned to John Straub Memorial building for luncheon. This was the first time the group had had a chance to get together, and we didn't have perfect success at the luncheon, as there was a bit of confusion over tables, and some of our number were seated elsewhere. However, we all enjoyed the brief word of greeting from Oscar Furuset, who represented us at "Toast" time.

After the luncheon we busied ourselves seeing the campus and visiting with friends from other classes. Then at six o'clock we gathered at the Anchorage on the old mill race for the dinner that had been arranged for by Elsie Bond, and the great talk fest. We missed many of you who were absent, but we remembered each and every one of you, for we called the roll and pooled our information about you who were not there to answer for yourselves. And we got the picture that appears with these notes. Now, don't the others of you wish that you had been there too? We wished that you had been, and are hoping that you will be with us next time.

Members of the class who were at the dinner were: W. J. Moore, Dr. W. B. Neal, Edna Caufield Henderson, Dick Hathaway, Elsie Davis Bond, Robert W. Prescott, Clara Caufield Wood, R. Claude Gray, J. W. McArthur, Don M. Stevenson, Paul Bond, Oscar Furuset, Webster L. Kincaid, and Mozelle Hair. As there are just an even fifty members of the class that graduated in 1908 still living, our percentage of attendance was high.

Reunion Class of 1928

Dear 28ers:

Our reunion was a great success—not in numbers attending—but in fun had by all.

In fact, we discovered that reunions are better than we had expected. Everyone seemed the same in spite of those 10 years, and we were all glad to see each other again. Needless to say, news and gossip was exchanged fast and furiously!

The few of us who were able to attend the alumni luncheon Saturday noon rallied together and arranged our banquet at the Eugene hotel.

The afternoon was spent as one liked. There was the reception for President and Mrs. Erb, and then for those of us who hadn't been back for years there was the new library to inspect as well as the art museum.

By the time for our banquet, our number had risen to 18. The Eugene hotel orchestra furnished music for dancing so we had sort of a dinner dance after all.

Later in the evening we adjourned to Willamette park which seems to be the place to go now. (Our old Campus Shoppe with the hump in its floor is a thing of the past).

Now we are all looking forward to our 1948 reunion, for I can truthfully say that you who were not present have no idea what a grand time you missed.

Sincerely,

ALICE DOUGLAS BURNS.

old class means more to us than it ever did before—and that's saying a lot. We thought and spoke of all who couldn't be here, and knew they were with us in spirit, and we all send our best wishes and fondest regards.

Sincerely, and in the bond of 1913,

Karl Onthank,

Carlton Spencer.

P.S. A number of those present were so satisfied with the occasion that they not only said so here, but took the trouble to write to us afterwards.

Following are extracts from two of them: Ruth M. Stone says, "This is to let you know (as you must already know, to be sure, but it will bear repeating) what a magic spell was woven about all of us '13ers during those perfect days of our reunion. It was so marvelously like the traditional idea of heaven! I cannot forget it; I live still a little under its spell. And it is not I alone. We all felt it. That was why it was like that. And nothing marred its perfect beauty. It is not often in a lifetime that one has the privilege of such an experience." And Agnes Dorothy Campbell adds, "Meeting and hearing from so many who have gone a different way ever since graduation gave me more pleasure than I dreamed possible; a very real sense of the bond that time seems only to strengthen. For a day long to be remembered, thanks a million! I had a swell time!"

We ourselves had more fun than anyone, so we don't feel we deserve the many nice things that were said about our small part in the arrangements. There were many others, the committees, both in Portland and Eugene whose work and planning had much to do with the success of the occasion, but it does add to our pleasure, of course, to know that those who came also enjoyed the reunion so greatly.

And now how about plans for our 30th anniversary reunion in 1943?

Sigma Delta Psi Meet

Art Holman, former Webfoot track star, beat the national Sigma Delta Psi record by .8 of a second in the 120-yard high hurdles when he skimmed the sticks in 13.5 seconds in the intramural track and field meet on Hayward field.

The Phi Deltis won the meet with a total of 246.5 points. The Kappa Sigs were second with 232 points and the Yeomen third. George Andrews, Sigma Phi Epsilon, was high point man with 66 points.

Spring Football Practice

Commenting that his squad would need more work to be in good shape for the 1938 conference season, Coach "Tex" Oliver wound up his first spring practice with a 40-minute scrimmage between two squads picked from varsity aspirants.

Captained by Erling Jacobsen, the "Yellows" scored one touchdown to beat the "Greens," captained by Jim Cadenasso, 6 to 0.

Ted Gebhardt, returning to the Webfoot uniform after a season out of school, plunged five yards through center for the Yellow's score.

Starting lineups were—Yellows: Larry Lance and Bud Robertson, ends; Jim Stuart and Merle Peters, tackles; Milford Smith and Nello Giovanini, guards; Erling Jacobson, center; Denny Donovan, quarter; Leonard Isberg, left half; Ted Gebhardt, right half; and Marshall Stenstrom, fullback. Greens: Vic Reginato and Rod Speetzen, ends; Russ Inskeep and Elroy Jensen, tackles; Mel Passolt and Ernie Robertson, guards; Jim Cadenasso, center; Hank Nielson, quarter; Jay Graybeal, left half; Bob Smith, right half; and Dave Rowe, fullback.

A two weeks' coaching school devoted to football, basketball, track, and baseball took place during the first two weeks of the regular Eugene summer session. "Tex" Oliver, Howard Hobson, and Bill Hayward acting as instructors.

Oliver for the first time on this campus taught the game of six-man football which is gaining wide popularity in the smaller high schools. The six-man game is wide-open and requires as much mastery of football fundamentals as does the regulation game. Assisting Oliver during the school were Bill Cole, line coach; Mike Mikulak, backfield coach; and John Warren, freshman coach.

Robinson, Varoff, Finish Fine Season

Although Oregon won the dual track and field meet title of the northern division this spring she failed to win the northern division Pacific Coast conference meet in Seattle.

Oregon placed third with a score of 36 points following Washington State which was first with 48½ points and Washington which was second with 40 points.

Mack Robinson, the Webfoots' dusky speedball, bit off a little too much in four events and consequently had a 100 per cent second place day. Washington State's Lee Orr beat Robinson in the 220 and in a 9.5 hundred yard dash, which tied former Webfoot Bud Shoemake's northern division record made in 1935. Robinson also placed second in the 220 low hurdles and, after having broken the broad jump record, was outjumped in that event by Washington's Jim Patton who set a northern division meet record of 24 feet 2¾ inches. In a dual meet earlier in the year, Robinson had jumped 24 feet 10¾ inches.

George "Pop" Varoff, however, posted a new northern division pole vault record of 13 feet 11 inches and failed by a hair to clear 14 feet 5 inches.

Kirman Storli, sophomore half miler, won the 880 in 1:57.1 and was followed closely by Jim Schiver for second place.

Pacific Coast Meet

The Webfoots won 22 points to place sixth in the Pacific Coast conference meet at Berkeley a week later. Mack Robinson was the individual star with 11 points. He placed first in the broad-jump with a leap of 24 feet 2¾ inches and skimmed the low hurdles to win first in the time of 23.4 seconds. He placed fourth in the 100-yard dash.

Varoff won the first place in a draw with Loring Day and Kenny Dills of USC after all had tied at 14 feet.

Boyd Brown, sophomore Webfoot javelin thrower placed fourth in that event with a toss of 204 feet 7¾ inches. Storli placed third in the 880 and Jim Buck placed fourth in the low hurdles.

Captain Leonard "Dutch" Holland, discus thrower, failed to qualify in both the northern division meet and the conference meet because of difficulty with his turn.

As a result of the Pacific Coast conference meet in Berkeley Robinson, Varoff, and Storli were selected to represent the Pacific coast in an intersectional track and field meet against the Big Ten all-stars at Evanston, Illinois, June 24 and 25. All first and second place winners qualified for the trip. Storli was chosen in the half-mile because Malott of Stanford who had won the PCC event in 1:54 declared himself unable to go. Storli's teammate in the 880 will be Modisette of California who placed second in the Berkeley meet.

Varsity Baseball

If the Webfoot baseball club had been able to maintain its mid-season rally it might have finished in first place in the northern division standings of the Pacific Coast conference, but after winning the first three games on their road trip, the Ducks dropped the other three and slipped back down the ladder into third place for the season.

The Webfoots defeated the Oregon State Beavers in both of the last two games of the season to dislodge them from the undisputed top spot position into a deadlock for the pennant with the Washington State Cougars.

On May 17, the midpoint of the Oregon team's road trip and the day after they had shellacked Washington State 12 to 0 at Pullman, the Webfoots slipped and lost 3 to 1 to the Cougars. Then journeying over to Seattle, the Ducks dropped two more to the Huskies, 7 to

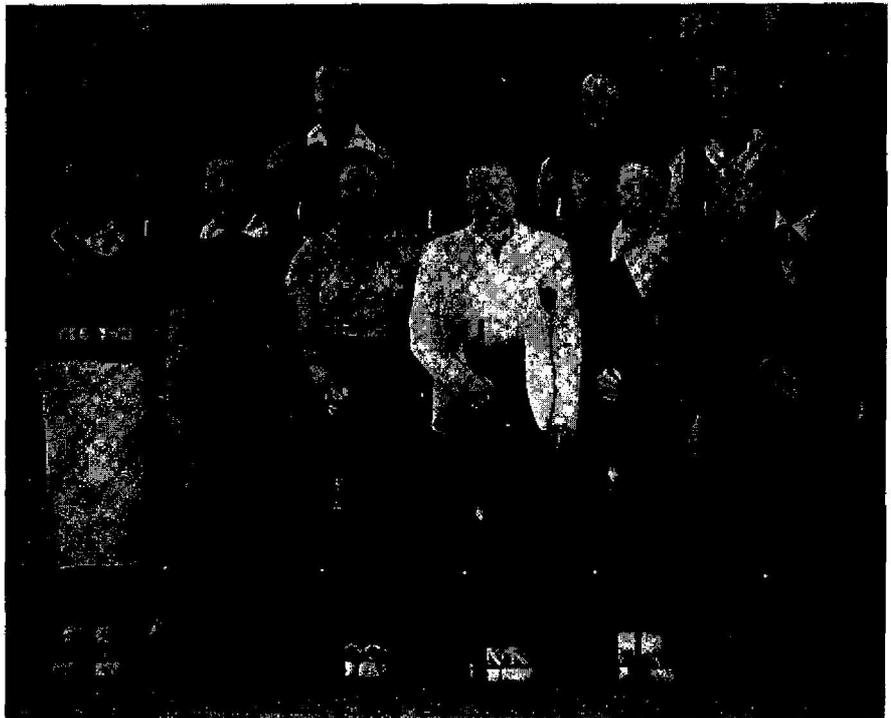

In line with their highly erratic season the Hobson men went on a winning streak for their two finals and defeated the league-leading Beavers 9 to 5 at Corvallis and 9 to 7 at Eugene.

In the second inning of the second WSC game Al Hooper, Cougar basketball and baseball star, poled out a homer that scored two runs. In the same inning that Jack Gordon of Oregon who smashed two home runs in the previous game clouted another four-baser with no one on bases. The score stood 2 to 1 until the eighth when WSC crossed the plate again.

Bob Hardy, Webfoot southpaw, chucked for Oregon allowing eight hits. The Ducks could only connect with two, Mullen's single in the sixth being the only one beside Gordon's round tripper.

The next day at Seattle the Huskies went on a six-run spree in the fourth inning and beat Oregon 7 to 3. Ducks had a three-run lead in the first of the third, but five Webfoot errors and the heavy Washington batting off John Linde's pitching beat the Webfoots.

LeRoy Mattingly relieved Linde after the fourth. Oregon did not score after the third inning and Washington tallied again in the seventh for their final run. The Webfoots outhit the Huskies, 7 to 6, but Oregon's five errors lost the ball game.

On the following day the Washington men took the Webfoots again, 5 to 3. The Ducks had a two-run lead in the second, but Washington tied the score and went ahead to stay in the third. Bob Creighton, Oregon's No. 1 pitcher was hit in the leg by a hot drive in the second and felt it throughout the game. The Huskies connected with 10 hits and Oregon with 7.

Oregon Beats OSC Twice

In the final "Civil War" games the Webfoots defeated the Beavers, 9 to 5, at Corvallis to throw the Staters into a tie with the Cougars. Bob Creighton, pitching for Oregon allowed seven hits. The Ducks knocked Earl McKinney, Beaver chucker, out of the box in the first inning and scored five runs. OSC came back in the same inning and scored four runs. Oregon had 11 hits and 3 errors and the Beavers 7 hits and 2 errors.

Of the five home runs made in the game, Wimpy Quinn, Bob Smith, and Tom Cox scored for Oregon, and Bob Bonney and Earl Younce hit them for OSC. The score stood 8 to 4 in the fifth until the eighth when Oregon scored one. OSC scored its final run in the ninth.

Memorial day on Howe field in Eugene, the Webfoots defeated their rivals once again, 9 to 7 and knocked the Beavers out of a tie for conference leadership into second place. The Webfoots led all the way in this game. Numerous Beaver errors proved costly to the Staters.

Oregon had 11 earned hits and two errors; OSC, 10 hits and 7 errors. The Webfoots scored four runs in the second and three in the third. Wimpy

Oregon athletes showed up well at the national A.A.U. senior track meet held in Buffalo, N. Y., on July 3. Mack Robinson, Oregon sprint star, won the 200-meter dash in :21.3 seconds. Robinson also qualified in the 100-meter but failed to place in the finals. George Varoff, pole vaulter, tied for second with a vault of 14 feet.

Oregon athletes scored 13 points when the Pacific Coast conference all-star track team met the Western conference all-stars. The Coast squad won 101 to 35. Mack Robinson placed second in the broad jump, second in the 220-yard low hurdles, and third in the 220-yard dash. George Varoff took the pole-vaulting event with a vault of 14 feet 2 inches. Kirman Storli, sophomore quarter-miler, finished third in his event.

Quinn made three hits and made three runs and Jack Gordon made two hits and scored twice.

Idaho pulled a fast one in the final game of the 1938 season by defeating WSC, 2 to 0, to drop the Cougars back into a tie with OSC for the northern division championship.

Frosh Baseball

The Frosh baseball team finished the 1938 season with four straight wins over the Oregon State Rooks and 17 wins in 19 games. After drubbing the Rooks 9 to 1, and 14 to 7, early in the season, John Warren's Ducklings took their Corvallis rivals 9 to 0 and 2 to 1 in the final game.

Pete Igoe, former Eugene high school chucker, started every game on the mound against the Rooks. Lanny Allegretto from Commerce high in Portland finished the third game, and Bob Reider from Lincoln high pitched the last eight innings of the final game. Igoe was replaced because of a sore arm in the last game.

The Frosh collected nine hits and made no errors in the third contest which was held in Corvallis and the Rooks hit six times and muffed two.

The Rooks had a one-run lead (1 to 0) in the eighth inning of the final game when Jim Rathbun, Duckling catcher, smashed one over second to score two Oregon men. Again the Frosh outthit the Beaverlings seven to five but made three errors to the Staters' two.

The freshmen also defeated Harrisburg high school who won the Linn county championship, 11 to 2, and Silverton high school, 7 to 6.

Girls' Rifle Team

The sharpshooting girls' rifle team which won 15 of their 17 matches this last spring has organized as a club and will have a team of 15 members next year. Ruth Ketchum was elected captain of the club, Dorothy Burke was elected lieutenant of the club and has been made manager of the varsity team, and Barbara Stallcup, was elected publicity director, and Ruth Russell is to be faculty adviser of the club.

A return match with the girls' rifle team of the University of Washington has been arranged for next year and plans have been laid to have similar matches with other schools. In addition postal matches will be shot with leading colleges and universities of the United States.

Varsity Tennis

The Oregon varsity tennis team placed second in the northern division conference trailing the University of Washington by 8 points. Washington scored eight points and Oregon seven.

The Huskies swept both singles and doubles finals to win.

Larry Crane and Bill Zimmerman of Oregon won the semi-finals doubles by defeating Greely and Crapo of Washington (6-3, 8-6), but in the finals were beaten by Page and George Ravenscroft, of Washington, (8-6, 6-1, 7-5).

Crane lost to Page (6-0, 6-0) in the semi-finals singles, and Page went on to win the championship.

Toward the end of the season the Webfoot netters defeated Linfield 7-0 on the Linfield courts. Linfield won only one game. Crane, Les Werschkul, Zimmerman, Karl Mann, and Ellsworth Ellis played on the Oregon team.

In the last of their dual matches Oregon lost to Washington, 6 to 1, at Seattle. Werschkul, sophomore playing No. 2, won the only match for Oregon.

Delta Upsilon won the intramural softball championship by defeating Theta Chi, 6 to 0, in the finals. Bill Jones, D.U. pitcher, hurled his second no-hit no-run game of the season.

PING CHANGES TO PURR

WHEN YOU SWITCH TO TRITON

IN 1000-CAR TEST, TRITON STOPPED CARBON KNOCKS..BOOSTED HORSEPOWER 5.4%..INCREASED GAS MILEAGE!

Here's proof that Triton gives the finest type of lubrication any oil can give—and in addition cleans out carbon as you drive! Proof from a recent 1024-car research test!

Carbon knocks were greatly reduced or completely stopped in every test car finishing 3000 miles with Triton!

Horsepower picked up an average of 5.4%. Two-thirds of the car owners reported increased gasoline mileage.

Triton gives these results because it is propane-solvent refined... 100% pure paraffin-base... 100% pure lubricant. Triton forms so little carbon that motors burn away old carbon left by other oils. Carbon "ping" is changed to "purr"!

You save four ways with Triton Motor Oil. You save on carbon scrapes, gasoline, motor wear, and oil drains.

Try Triton next time you buy oil!

Dean Rebec

tents but also for their physical selves, Dr. Rebec treasures them as individuals, as editions with which he is familiar. This combined affection was the basis for an amusing hoax never previously disclosed. The Rebecs had two copies of Byron, and it was their joint wish that I should have one of them, Mrs. Rebec acting as donor. A few weeks later I received a humorously apologetic note from Mrs. Rebec, explaining that she had given me the wrong copy; that Dr. Rebec, inconsolable, was lamenting the loss of his belovedly familiar volume. It was smuggled back; I was given the handsomer book originally intended for me, and the other was returned to its shelf where sometime later Mrs. Rebec reproachfully "located" it. She told me in his presence that he had accused her of giving me the wrong book—while the undue hilarity with which we swore such was not the case left him somewhat bewildered and still a little suspicious.

With an enthusiasm by no means confined to books, Dr. Rebec has always been a competent administrator capable of meeting difficulties and establishing common ground in original ways. Because on one occasion we disagreed on certain administrative policies, we walked around the block while discussing them; still at an impasse when we found ourselves back at our starting place, we walked around two blocks; and so on in extended peregrinations. Finally we were not only in perfect accord, but also in considerably improved physical trim.

In his early period with the University he created and organized the Portland Center, and gave it an educational validity and a quality of soul that have helped it to enrich the lives of 30,000 adults during the years of its existence.

In 1921 he returned to Eugene as professor of philosophy and dean of the graduate school. In the memories of many students, some of whom are now 30 and 40 years old, his classroom is forever like a fresh wind blowing. It has implanted graces and faiths that in the grip of change still hold their evidences of perpetual truth. At the recent dinner Dean Allen said that Dr. Rebec had never purposely taught his students how to make a better living, yet somehow they were grateful to him above all others for the ways he had helped them. One young man, after taking his degree in a professional school, stayed on another year to study under Dr. Rebec. What this young man did is not typical, but it is indicative of what in lesser degree has happened time and again because of that influence. With a personal eagerness and an executive capacity that might well have made him stand out in alumni records for practical success this student now lives undramatically in a remote corner of Oregon, but he keeps a physical youth like one in Shangrila and retains a spirit that is buoyant, sensitive, and abundant.

Because of the standards he well knew how to sustain, a master's degree and later a doctor's degree from the University of Oregon has been given a recognition which is good the country over. By the students themselves scholarship gained acceptance not as a mere handmaiden of jobs and worldly advantages but as a goddess of more than mortal purity.

Dr. Rebec came from a large and distinguished university to the University of Oregon, but he came in no attitude of patronage or condescension. He never felt that way towards institutions or men. In the latter, whether they were learned or not, he found peninsulas of knowledge and experience from which his own wisdom increased; in their natures he found breadths that added to the expansiveness of his own. Hence his vast catholicity, his vast friendliness. The small school at Eugene enlisted his ardor, because it seemed to him the most creative, the most alive academic community he had ever known. Of the men who were making it so, he has talked many times. P. L. Campbell, constantly rebuffed by the taxable commonwealth, nevertheless had magically assembled a faculty who were all lighted from within; educators and those to be educated carried on in eager collaboration; yeast was swelling in every department, in every school. It was with this magnificent company he threw his lot.

It is not easy, even for one naturally gifted, to be a good teacher—the regimented way to preferment and advancement compels the young instructor to go on receiving until the habit is heavy upon him and giving is palsied; he must share the oppressive emphasis of out-of-class routines; he must write learned monographs for other professors to judge him by. Thus in institutions where the main business is teaching, it is paradoxically hard to win recognition by good teaching alone. Napoleon is supposed to have said: "As a youth I learned faster than other boys. This gave me more time for reflection. Therein lay my profundity." Dr. Rebec has given the University an almost inexhaustible energy—the kind found only in such rare individuals as himself. Because of his resistance to fatigue, he has always held out a brimming cup to his students. He has regularly done an immense amount of educational administration and an immense amount of public service, yet he has always taught his classes and conducted his seminars like one perpetually recuperated and refreshed. As for the getting ahead auxiliaries of an academic career, he was above and beyond them before he came to the University of Oregon. And so, by brilliant recognition he already had and by his tremendous surplus energy, he was emancipated for the teaching that is remembered by hundreds with so much thanksgiving.

We could easily be in awe of him if he stood dramatically aloof, possessing and showing only his limitless mind. But in prodigality he was given much more than that by having magnified in him a commonality with ordinary men. Knowing books and with the ability to know them to such a surpassing degree, he was kept from being bookish. Having a learning of a measureless range and depth, the scholar was flavored by the man. All the elements of his personal charm, his capacity for friendship, the whole human side of him, cause us to think of him with an affection first, admiration second, and awe not at all—although we realize that here is one of the most richly endowed men we shall ever know: ours for a quarter of a century and ours still—for Chancellor Hunter tells us that Dr. Rebec will continue to spend part of his time as professor-at-large in the University of Oregon and the State System of Higher Education.

OLD OREGON:

As one of a sizeable contingent of ex-Oregonians here at Stanford, I'm going into my second year's residence, working on my Ph.D. in sociology with a minor in economics.

Others from the University of Oregon majoring in one or another of the social sciences include Joel Berreman, '33, sociology; Bill Bruce, '31, political science; Easton Rothwell, '29, history; and Fred Arpke, economics.

U. S. Hopkins holds an associate professorship in econ, teaching courses in labor relations.

All of this may be well known to you, but I'm passing it along just in case.

Sincerely,

M. REID HANGER, M.S. '38.

Old Oregon:

I have been in San Francisco for some time now working as secretary in the firm of Schwabacher & Co., which is an investment banking and brokerage business and thoroughly enjoy it.

It was a great thrill to see the Oregon basketball team play against Stanford in the auditorium recently. They showed fine spirit and are surely able players.

Sincerely,

ALICE REDETZKE, '32.
