CHANGING SCENES ON THE OREGON CAMPUS

TRANSPORTATION

or PLEASURE?

Which do you get?

Does your car just take-you-there and bring-you-back, or do you find real pleasure in every mile you drive?

Thousands of motorists have discovered that the difference between the two is the difference between ordinary gasolines and Associated Aviation Ethyl.

There's a feel of unlimited power, of thrilling throttle-control, of satisfaction in your car with Associated Aviation Ethyl—pleasures that you must miss with other gasolines.

That's why new thousands are switching to this "Fuel of the Future." Motorists who count every penny, motorists who have been content with the cheapest gasolines, have found that this premium gasoline gives them more for their money than any other.

NEWS AND COMMENT

By The Editor

THE two-year old problem of student fees at the Oregon institutions of higher education comes to a head at the polls on January 31. Leaders of alumni, student, dads, and mothers groups of all five Oregon institutions are unanimous in support of the bill which is to appear on the special election ballot this month and which would enable the state board of higher education to levy and collect a uniform fee for the support of student activities.

Old Oregon urges alumni to vote "yes" on this measure which carries with it implications far more important than the fee question itself. Of course the matter of providing adequate support and supervision for the many and educationally valuable student activities is of great importance—for if the bill should be defeated the entire program, built up to one of the best in the United States during the past 25 years, would be seriously crippled.

But at least of equal importance is the necessity for maintaining the rightful authority of the state board in matters educational.

THE matter of activity fees should never have been placed on the election ballot. The problem is strictly one that lies within the jurisdiction of the state board of higher education. To take a highly technical educational problem to the people and to expect an intelligent and enlightened vote is utter folly. The outcome of the election this month will merely be decided—no matter which way it turns out—by the superior political tactics of one side or the other. The real issue of the measure has not, even at this late date in the campaign, been clearly defined. The reason is that the issue can only be thoroughly understood by those few persons who are closely connected with the problems involved. Who would propose that the electorate could adequately pass on the curricula and personnel of a given institution? Likewise, how can a wise decision be expected on the educational problem of student activities and their support? The matter is not a political question and should never have been made one.

State Board Should Have Authority

LET it be understood that Old Oregon does not fully approve some of the features of the former student activity program. On the other hand it has faith, and necessarily so if it is to have faith in the institutions at all, in the ability of the state board of higher education and the men it has chosen to administer the institutions, to deal fairly and wisely in the matter of student activities.

Confidence In Board Necessary

VOTE 306 X YES

Bill Authorizing Student Activity Fees in State Higher Educational Institutions:

Purpose: To authorize the state board of higher education to levy and collect from the students in the Oregon State Agricultural College, the University of Oregon, and the State Normal Schools fees of not over $5 per term, of approximately three months each, for development and promotion of recreational and cultural student activities; the funds so collected to be administered by such organizations as the board may designate.

306 X Yes. I vote for the proposed law.
307 No. I vote against the proposed law.

FOR this important reason Old Oregon sees no other course for the friends of higher education to take than to make every effort to see that the bill which would give the state board this authority is passed. Most important of all is actual support in votes by these individuals at the polls on January 31.

Bill's Passage Is Important To Schools

The campaigns for and against the measure have served to becloud the issue more than clarify it. There have been charges and counter charges that have had the barest connection with the bill itself; personalities have been dragged in on both sides in an effort to influence the voters thusly. The whole affair has, from the very beginning, reflected little credit either on the sincere opponents or upon the equally sincere proponents of the measure. The whole affair grew out of a mixture of misunderstandings, animosities and good intentions.

OLD OREGON hopes that January 31 will bring an end to it all, and that the all-important student activities, which have innocently suffered a serious set-back, can begin to recuperate and that a spirit of cooperation can spring up where animosities have prevailed.

Activity Program Hindered

However, the fact remains that the bill is now before the people, and must be settled one way or another. Old Oregon, together with the accepted educational experts, administrative officials and student, alumni and parent group leaders believe that the best solution lies in the passage of the bill, and more important, that strictly educational problems should be left to the state board of higher education, which was constituted for the purpose of dealing with educational affairs and problems.

INAUGURAL

Dr. Boyer Sixth Head

Sixth president of the University, Dr. Clarence Valentine Boyer will be formally inaugurated Thursday, February 6, at an impressive afternoon ceremony on the campus.

The inauguration will give recognition to the efforts of Dr. Boyer, who since January 15, 1934, has carried the burdens of the University presidency. He served as acting president until April 16 of that year, then became president but without formal acknowledgment.

An all-day session of representatives of far-scattered colleges and universities, faculty, students and alumni of the University, and Oregon citizens will reach its climax in the inaugural. In the morning two groups, representing the liberal arts and the professional schools, will meet separately.

Came in 1926

Predecessors of President Boyer have been J. W. Johnson, who served from 1876 to 1893; Charles H. Chapman, serving from 1893 to 1899; Dr. Frank Strong, 1899 to 1902; Prince Lucien Campbell, 1902 to 1925; and Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, 1926 to 1932.

Dr. Boyer came to the University as head of the English department in 1926, after 15 years at the University of Illinois, and in 1932 became dean of the college of arts and letters. He graduated from Princeton University, and in 1911 received a degree of doctor of philosophy there.

Arrangements for the inauguration have been made by a committee including Dr. H. G. Townsend, Dr. John F. Bovard and Dr. Ray P. Bowen.

Extensive Program Set

At a split session in the morning, H. B. Myers, assistant dean of the University of Oregon Medical School, will address professional school representatives on "Education for the Professions," and Harold G. Merriam, of the University of Montana, will address representatives of liberal arts schools and departments on "The Liberal Arts."

In the afternoon, the inauguration will be presided over by Chancellor Hunter. Monroe E. Deutsch, vice president of the University of California, will represent institutions of higher education; Rudolph Ernst, the University faculty; Willard L. Marks, the state board of higher education.

President Boyer will follow with his address.

At the evening dinner, Burt Brown Barker, University vice president, will preside, and greetings will be offered by L. P. Seig, president of the University of Washington, representing state universities; Dexter M. Keezer, president of Reed College, representing colleges of Oregon; George W. Peavey, Oregon State College; Aurelia

CONSTRUCTION

Library Takes Shape

The steady clatter of power shovels, cement mixers, and dump trucks and the sight of workmen in overalls and slickers have become familiar to campus frequenters, as extensive work proceeds at the sites of three new buildings. By next year the University will have a new library, a new physical education plant and a new infirmary.

Cement pouring for the new library is ahead of schedule, although a new addition on the east side not included in the plans as first approved caused a delay of three weeks. The walls and ceiling of the second floor were begun during the third week of this month. A large power hoist housed in a tower lifts the materials into place. The third and last floor will begin within a few weeks, but the wood forms now encasing the walls will not be removed until after the final pouring of cement. Seventy-five men are working on this project.

Buildings on Move

Familiar campus scenes are being shaken up in the name of progress. At two points on the eastern side of the campus, buildings have been on the move this month, as workmen picked up the ROTC barracks on University street to make room for the new physical education plant and the old handball-court building on Thirteenth next to the men's old gymnasium to clear the way for the new infirmary.

From its new location the ROTC unit now looks northward along Onyx street from the south side of Fifteenth, where it occupies a corner of the drill field. The drill shed was moved due east and is still just behind the barracks. Officers returned to undisturbed routine this week.

The new gymnasium will face University street and extend from Fifteenth nearly to McArthur court, a distance of one block.

On the Thirteenth street front, the old handball-court building, with the courts torn out, has been moved north and across Onyx street to a location just south of the old carpenter shop. Since the new gym will supplant it with 12 modern courts, the old structure will be used as a campus storehouse.

The $120,000 infirmary, originally planned to rise on Fourteenth between University and Onyx, will occupy the vacated space, and already excavation for a basement is well under way. A second old structure, the biology research "shack," has also been moved from the site and located just south of the railroad between Emerald and the old carpenter shop, facing the railroad.

Two Heat Tunnels

At two other points, the tranquility of campus grounds is being disturbed while heating tunnels are installed. The longer of the two new tunnels will extend from the heating plant, south along the alley between University and Onyx to Fourteenth, where it will tie in with a line extending from Mary Spiller hall. The second extends from in front of S. H. Friendly hall across Thirteenth and southward for 100 feet where it will connect with a tunnel leading to Gerlinger hall.

These improvements will not be apparent to the eye of returning alumni when dirt and sod are restored, but heating facilities for present buildings will be improved, and those for the new structures already partially installed.

Miner Building Taxable

The Miner building, Eugene's largest office center, which was placed in trust in 1933 for the benefit of the University, was declared not exempt from taxation by the state supreme court late in December.

The decision reversed that of Circuit Judge Skipworth in Eugene, and returned the property to the Lane county tax rolls. In 1933 it was assessed on a valuation of $124,265, according to one witness about 50 per cent of its market value. The holdings include two structures used for office and store purposes.

Concert Season Sparkles

Musical and concert attractions, promising to surpass those of the past two seasons in excellence, round out the cultural program of the Associated Students for winter term. Already under way with the appearance of the Ted Shawn troupe of male dancers, and of the University band, final plans were being made for the appearance of the famed Russian Latvian singers on January 23.

The Eugene Gleemen are scheduled to present their always immensely popular winter concert on February 4, followed on February 13 by the University Symphony orchestra and on February 23 by the Portland Symphony orchestra under the masterful direction of Willem von Hoogstraten. The University band will close the season with a concert on March 8.

Male Dancers Hailed

Winter term's program of ASUO-sponsored events featuring noted artists opened January 8, when more than 2000 students and townspeople responded to the dancing of Ted Shawn and his company of eight accomplished male artists.

Strong, masculine interpretations of the emotions, of old religious and historical themes, by the visitors brought back the ancient traditions of the dance as an artistic medium. From deeply reverent studies, their lithe, graceful bodies swept the audience through the stronger emotions—vibrant anger, passion, hate and greed—then back to joy, sorrow and contemplation.

Big Fir Crashes

Cub reporters around the journalism "shack" and news cameramen took advantage of a fallen tree to localize the unusual wind and rain storm that swept the Northwest coast early in the week of January 12.

A fir tree towering 100 feet above the dispensary crashed against the journalism building but smashed only a window in the brick structure. Workmen sawed the fallen giant into logs to clear the south entrance.

Chancellor Dares Youth

Youth faces the challenge to create something useful to society and has the help of six constant laws of education in meeting that challenge. Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of the state board of higher education, carried that message before assembled students at an early January gathering.

"We must remember six universal, instinctive laws that hold us constant, and will remain for ages and eons," he said. Dr. Hunter's six points were outlined as follows: 'The existence of a scientifically proved God, the monogamous family, patriotism without nationalism, private property, instinctive love of liberty, and love of education.

Scholars Get Honors

Highest scholastic honors of the year were conferred on three men and three women students, when Phi Beta Kappa chose the annual "Senior Six" at the close of fall term. These outstanding scholars, picked from the senior class, included Mary McCracken, Ann-Reed Burns, and William O. Hall, all of Portland; Marjorie Sumpter, Forest Grove; Andy Newhouse, Broadbent, and Charles A. Reed, Hood River.

The fall term honor roll included the names of 110 students, all of whom made a grade point average of at least 3.50. Twelve students earned straight A grades. The school of business administration led the way with 24 honor roll students, four of whom made straight A's. Grade points are determined by giving four points for A, three for B, two for C and one for D.

Dr. Cloran Mourned

A beloved campus figure and an instructor who had never missed a class in 30 years, Timothy Cloran succumbed to a short illness Sunday December 8.

DR. TIMOTHY CLORAN

Whose death on December 8 saddened hundreds of friends among students, faculty and alumni.

Although 67 years of age, Dr. Cloran had worked with his students day in and day out until only a week before his death.

His unusual teaching ability and his jovial, colorful personality made friends of all acquaintances since he first taught on the University campus in 1906. His long tenure was interrupted only by one year's leave of absence during which he and Mrs. Cloran studied and traveled in Europe.

Thousands of alumni remember him as not merely a professor of Spanish, French and Italian, but also as a man who knew his students by their first names, who playfully styled himself "professor of demonology" but whose demeanor carried with it none of the role of the fierce old schoolmaster.

Dr. Cloran was born January 9, 1869, in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. He graduated from Adelbert college of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, in 1891. He attended the University of Berlin, then studied at the University of Strassburg in Germany where he received his doctorate in 1901. He completed his studies at the Universities of Paris and Madrid.

Before coming to Oregon he taught four years at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. For two years he served as an assistant professor in the University and was named full professor of Romance languages in 1908. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He left his widow, Mrs. Laurretta Edith Cloran, a sister and two brothers.

“Command of Words”

An enthusiastic reception on the part of the press, educators and others has been accorded the volume of “The Command of Words” by S. Stephenson Smith, professor of English at the University of Oregon, according to word from the publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell.

The book is so cleverly written that while it can very well serve as a stimulating text, it also makes interesting reading for anyone interested in writing, literature or criticism, it is pointed out. Although it has been published only a few weeks, it has already been placed on the recommended list for students in writing classes at Columbia university, and for composition classes in this institution's far-flung extension division.

“The Command of Words” was accorded a review nearly a column long in the book section of the New York Times, while the Christian Science Monitor treated its publication as real news and ran a news story, under a large two-column heading, that was more than a column long.

The volume, which is the second full length book to be written by Mr. Smith, contains 290 pages. It is divided into 11 chapters, and as special features contains a “style rule,” a “desk set” for the student of words, and a large number of exercises with keys. Professor Smith's previous book was “The Craft of the Critic.”

Germany Beckons Dean

Travel and study in the German speaking nations of Europe is the good fortune promised Dean Eric W. Allen of the school of journalism who was notified January 14 that he had been awarded a grant of $1500 for the purpose by the trustees of the Oberlaender Trust of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation.

With Sally Elliott Allen and their youngest son, Bill, he plans to spend the summer in Germany and Austria, studying in particular housing, city and regional planning, liquor control, power distribution, relief, local administration and newspapers.

FACULTY AUTHOR HONORED

A testimonial dinner attended by 200 authors and others honored Dean Alfred Powers, head of the University extension division, in mid-December in Portland. The gathering was occasioned by publication of Dean Powers' new book, “History of Oregon Literature,” which has been enthusiastically received both in Oregon and elsewhere.

State College and now a member of the University's social science faculty, was elected chairman of the northern division for the society. Dr. Samuel H. Jameson and R. R. Martin, with Dr. Moore, were in attendance. Dr. Victor P. Morris, professor of economics, attended the economic conference.

Vincent Wins Award

Professor A. M. Vincent, instructor in drawing and painting, received first honorable mention for an oil painting he entered in the Northwest Artists' exhibition in Seattle.

“The painting was an oil landscape of the Bailey hill district west of Eugene. It was painted in early spring and was a typical Oregon early spring landscape,” Vincent said.

¶ David John McCosh, instructor in drawing and painting for the past two years, has been designated as one of 21 painters to decorate federal buildings. The federal jury of awards picked his work from that of 200 artists entered from all parts of the country. McCosh joined the University faculty after leaving the Art Institute of Chicago. He has exhibited work in a number of foremost eastern art shows.

O.S.T.A. Unites Alums

Moulders of youth, hundreds of teachers from all parts of the state, large numbers of them Oregon alumni, met in Portland over the final week-end in December for the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Oregon State Teachers Association.

Among headlined speakers was Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of higher education, who warned against loss of political freedom in a headlong pursuit of economic freedom. More than a score of University faculty men assisted with panel discussions during the meet.

Seventy-one Oregon alums and faculty members were brought together by common campus memories on the closing day of the conference, December 28, for a luncheon at the University Club. Those attending were as follows:

BASKETBALL

Webfoots Overtake Beavers

Oregon's amazing basketballers turned the tide of a riotous court thriller in the final four minutes of play and wrested a 29-27 victory from Oregon State's champion Beavers in their first encounter of the season, January 17. McArthur court was packed with 7500 roaring fans, largest crowd ever to witness a basketball game on the campus.

The Webfoot victory rocketed the Green and Yellow into top position in the northern division conference with three straight wins, not to be disputed until resumption of play the following week. Washington and Oregon State held second and third positions, respectively.

Pitted against a quintet of veterans, the tense and over-eager Ducks were unable to break through the Beaver defense in the first half and repeatedly were left flat-footed as an Oregon State forward weaved through for a basket. The score at half-time was 17 to 14 for Oregon State.

Forsake Zone Defense

Arching howitzers by Liebowitz and Chuck Patterson, with foul shots by the close-guarded Howell, kept Oregon within five points of their opponents, but not until the Ducks switched to a man-to-man defense did they perform like winners. Then, with four minutes left and the score at 26 to 24, Liebowitz tied the count with a one-hander from the side. Howell gave Oregon a one-point lead with his ninth foul shot of the evening. Courtney darted through and hoisted the ball in, on a rifle pass from Willie Jones.

In the remaining 40 seconds, the Beavers made a wild flurry for points, but a swarm of defenders warded off the threat. The towering Folen sparked the visitors, making 14 points. Howell led Oregon with nine counters, all free throws.

Washington was the next scheduled opponent, two games to be played in Seattle January 24 and 25.

Ducks Grab Openers

A rough-and-ready crew and a strange pilot took Oregon's hope-ship under full sail into treacherous northern division conference basketball currents January 13 and 14, and still flew unvanquished colors after twice meeting Idaho's visiting Vandals.

Coach Howard Hobson introduced himself to the coast "big-time" with a spectacular squad of basket-tossing giants, playing a spectacular fast-breaking style of ball. Though sometimes coordination wavered, the Ducks demonstrated amazing dexterity in making goals and fairly smothered the Idaho quintet in the opening game, 61 to 29. Practically all of a squad of 16 men, only two of whom are less than six feet in height, saw action.

Oregon's grenadiers were given a scare the second evening when the Vandals returned with a flashing, bitter offensive. Only in the final moments did the Webfoots sink enough points to emerge unscathed, 45 to 41. The hard-earned victory gave Oregon a three-way tie for the conference lead along with Oregon State and Washington.

Color Brings Crowds

Color is the keynote of the 1936 basketball varsity. On the playing floor, the two Idaho games unleashed the relentless ball-handling skill of Ward Howell and Chuck Patterson, both of whom played for Hobson at Southern Oregon Normal last year; and three lettermen from last season, Sam Liebowitz, Willie Jones and Roland Rourke.

The fast-firing Ducks have caught the fancy of sport fans, who crowded into McArthur Court in unprecedented numbers for the opening contest. Their rollicking, good-humored play has spread to the rooters and the University pep band plays jazz, Southern Methodist style, between halves. As "Music Goes 'Round and 'Round" blares out from the bleachers, the lanky Webfoot players virtually cast defense to the winds and go on a booming rampage for points, which pour into the hoop from all directions. While the experts worry about its defense, the latest edition of Oregon basketball proves its immense popularity with the crowds.

WEBFOOTS BOAST TALLEST IN CONFERENCE

Coach Howard Hobson looks insignificant among his grenadiers, but they listen when he tells them how it's done. These are the five tallest on Oregon's hoop squad: Left to right, Bill Harcombe, 6 feet 4 inches; Dave Silver, 6 feet 4 inches; Ray Jewell, 6 feet 7 inches; Ward Howell, 6 feet 6 inches, and Willard Jones, 6 feet 4 inches.

Pre-Season Successes

A busy pre-season schedule of 15 encounters gave Coach Hobson a chance to tune up the weaker spots in his rangy but erratic crew of Webfoots. The wild and woolly giants failed to click in only two contests, with Willamette university and in the year's opener against Riggs' All-Stars of Eugene.

Paced both on the floor and at the hoop by Liebowitz, the brawny Ducks ran up an aggregate pre-season total of 676 points, an average of 45 points per game, against 521, or 35 per game for their opponents. They defeated Southern Oregon Normal four times, Union Oil of Portland three times, Multnomah club twice, and on a California barnstorming trip vanquished Chico State, Utah State and Y.M.I. of San Francisco.

Liebowitz showed his court wizardry by garnering 50 field goals and 13 free throws in the 15 games. Two newcomers, Howell and Patterson followed with 98 and 96, respectively.

FOOTBALL

Conference Stiffens Slate

Hailed by sports scribes as a vast improvement over previous Oregon football schedules, the 1936 series will pit Coach Callison's Ducks against eight Coast Conference opponents.

The drastic revision accompanied a move to restore the meaning of a coast conference, in which there has been no undisputed champion for several years. Teams from non-conference schools, hitherto rating on virtually even terms with conference schools for places on coast schedules, will be given dates not claimed by the heavy conference slate.

The new setup matches four Northwest teams against four California teams in a year-to-year round of home-and-home games. Although coaches have moaned over the increased problem of maintaining sufficient reserves for the heavy schedule, the change may pave the way for a constructive program for building support for home games. Oregon will play Washington State at Eugene, and Oregon State at Corvallis, while Washington, UCLA and Idaho games go to Portland.

Oregon's conference schedule follows:

Oct. 3—Southern California at Los Angeles.

Oct. 10—Stanford at Palo Alto.

Oct. 17—Idaho at Portland.

Oct. 24—Washington State at Eugene.

Oct. 31—Washington at Portland.

Nov. 7—U.C.L.A. at Portland.

Nov. 14—California at Berkeley.

Nov. 21—Oregon State at Corvallis.

Oregon will play St. Mary's again in 1936, on December 5, officials of both schools have announced. September 26 is still open.

Gaels Trim Ducks

As Oregon's gridiron warriors packed away their togs until next fall, their followers deemed the 1935 season more than satisfactory. If the decisive 18-to-0 trouncing meted out to the Webfoots by a fast and powerful squad of St. Mary's Gaels in their final encounter was disappointing, ample consolation was found in earlier victories over more ancient rivals, Washington and Oregon State.

Sharp-breaking reverses through a tough charging line, aided by alert recoveries, won for the Gaels. Two touchdowns were made through the line, and one on a pass in the final seconds. Oregon threatened but once.

The season's record gave Oregon victories over Gonzaga, Utah, Idaho, Oregon State, Portland University and Washington, and exacted three losses, all to southern neighbors, U. C. L. A., California and St. Mary's. Early season injuries, particularly to key backfield stars, proved Coach Callison's number one bugbear, but the crafty mentor guided his team into a tie with Washington State for second place. Stanford, California and U.C.L.A. tied for first with one loss each.

Eight Lettermen Leave

More saddening than the loss of a game, however, is the permanent adieu of eight lettermen, who will not be on hand when next the Webfoots answer the call of Coach Callison. Leading the outgoing parade will be Frank Michek, last of Oregon's great line-crunching fullbacks; Stan Riordan, capable end and the Coast's leading punter; and Ross Carter, all-Coast guard who added to his laurels in this year's East-West Shrine contest in San Francisco. Others winding up their grid career as Webfoots were Jerry Donnell, Michek's understudy at fullback, Bud Jones, rangy end; Quarterback Johnny Reischman; Andy Hurney and Clarence Codding, guards.

SWIMMING

Strong Squad Out

Fortified in nearly every event through additions to last year's championship squad, the University of Oregon swimming team is in the midst of strenuous preparation for the winter schedule.

HOBSON'S HIGH SCORER

Sam Liebowitz, Webfoot guard, has started where he left off last season, sparking his team in two wins over Idaho and leading the Oregon basketweavers with 113 points in a strenuous pre-season campaign.

Uncertainty of arranging a schedule worthy of possibly the finest aggregation of aquatic stars in Webfoot records ended with the executive council's decision to authorize Graduate Manager Rosson to negotiate for a California barnstorming tour as well as dual meets with northern division schools this term. The squad appeared doomed for a time to one conference meet against the University of Washington.

Of last year's great squad that went to Seattle and captured every first place in the northern division, Pacific Coast conference swimming meet, seven lettermen have returned to greet Mike Hoyman, who now starts on his third year as mentor.

The procession of returning stars is led by Jim Reed, record-breaking backstroker. His brother, Chuck, holds the conference breast stroke title, and Vern Hoffman, Eugene flash who won two free style championships, is also on hand.

Other letter-winners are Leonard Scroggins, who placed high in the free style events; Bob Chilton, diving champion; Forrest Kerby, breast stroke; and Bill Angell, free style.

The outstanding newcomer to the squad is Jim Hurd, transfer from the University of Hawaii. Ineligible last year, he should have things his own way in the free style sprints. Hal Sexton is a promising recruit from Menlo, Cal., J. C., and Clarke Thomsen, northwest A. A. U. diving titlist, has returned to school to aid Chilton.

From the 1934-35 yearling squad are a trio of outstanding hopes in Eugene's

John Halverson, distance star, Bill Cooper, breast stroke, and Bert Myers, diving.

At present Webfoot officials are contacting California schools including California and Stanford, with a view to arranging meets with these schools.

March Gathering Booked

Alumni of the University of Oregon Medical School will gather for their annual session March 2, 3, and 4. Secretary of the alumni association, Dr. Birchard A. Van Loan, has announced that Dr. Thomas R. Brown, professor in medicine at Johns Hopkins university, will be the leading guest speaker. The balance of the sessions will include clinics and lectures.

Events will reach a climax with the annual banquet Wednesday evening at the Portland Hotel. Class reunions will make the gathering doubly significant for alums from '96, '06, '16 and '26.

Early Grad Retires

Dr. J. Hunter Wells, M.D. '88, one of the earliest Oregon Medical School graduates to attain prominence, has retired from active service as Portland's assistant city health officer. Ill health forced Dr. Wells to leave duties which had been his for nearly 18 years.

The 70-year-old physician was for several years in his youth a medical missionary in Corea, and a hospital erected there recently has been named in his honor. Long contact with contagious and infectious diseases and overtime work contributed to his eventual retirement.

His first service for the city of Portland was in 1894, during a threatened epidemic of cholera. He became school physician in 1918, and later under Dr. John G. Abele, M.D. '07, he was made assistant health officer and placed in charge of the city isolation hospital.

Among his co-workers were Dr. Fred J. Ziegler, '02, city physician, and Dr. Ernest L. Boylen, '23.

Faculty Portrait

A comparative newcomer to the Medical School is Dr. Edward S. West, head of the department of biochemistry. He succeeded Dr. Howard D. Haskins who died in 1934.

Dr. West received his undergraduate training at Randolph-Macon University, Virginia; his master's degree from Kansas State college; and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1923. He came to the Oregon Medical School from Washington University Medical School where he was associate professor of chemistry. He is a member of the

DR. EDWARD S. WEST

American Chemical Society, American Society of Biological Chemists, Society of Experimental Biology and Medicine, Phi Sigma, and Chi Beta Phi.

Dr. West is an ardent research worker and besides the work that he does himself, he has five full-time graduate students working under him in his department. Also, he is a believer in a proper balance between work and relaxation and was responsible for the initiation of noontime horseshoe tournaments that have proved popular on Marquam hill. Since the advent of cold weather students and faculty are looking to Dr. West for some new form of noon-hour entertainment.

Rosenberg Heads Board

Dr. J. H. Rosenberg, M.D. '97, of Prineville, was elected president of the Oregon State Board of Health at its annual meeting January 14 in Portland. Among other officers named was Dr. Arthur W. Chance, M.D. '01, of Portland, who becomes vice-president, and who was also named on a committee for drafting new health legislation.

The state board of health went on record favoring the establishment of a school of public health at the University of Oregon Medical School.
