NEWS AND COMMENT

By The Editor

THE problems that have been heaped upon the administration of University student body activities came to a dramatic climax last month when Hugh

Rosson and Stoddard Resign

E. Rosson, graduate manager, and N. Thomas Stoddard, assistant in charge of athletics, jointly announced their resignations, effective July 1.

Thus, student body government, just beginning to revise its affairs in light of the defeat of the uniform activity fee bill, was again thrown into confusion through the loss of its two chief executive officers. Both Rosson and Stoddard, in making their decisions public, declared that it was their belief that the system of student activity administration is faced with drastic reorganization, and that they did not wish to have it felt that they were standing in the way of such action. Though neither has announced his future plans, it is definitely understood that both intend to enter other fields of endeavor.

Just what the interim between now and the next school year will bring about in way of a revision of student body reorganization is doubtful. The defeat of the student activity fee bill quashed all chances of assessing a uniform fee of all students for all activities — although it is doubtful, even though the voters had approved the bill, that athletic support would have been included in an uniform fee. The state board of higher education still has, however, the right and authority to assess a fee for those activities that can be justified as educational in nature. In this fact lies the hope for an equitable solution to the problem.

A COMMITTEE of the A.S.U.O. executive council has been appointed to study the whole matter of reorganization and to recommend possible successors to Rosson and Stoddard. The trend of thinking by those who understand the problems appears to point toward a separation of the activity program into two divisions—athletic (to operate under an optional fee plan) and non-athletic (to operate under an uniform fee plan). Under this general plan of reorganization the administration of each "division" would be separate, but both would be more directly responsible to the institution than in the past. This would be especially true in the case of the non-athletic activities, since they would be operating under a regular institutional fee that must legally be administered by the institution.

In view of the uncertainty for the future of the A.S.U.O. as a separate and distinct organization, Rosson and Stoddard can not be blamed for the action they have taken. Both of these men came to the graduate manager's office in 1930, Rosson from an assistant professorship in the law school and Stoddard directly from the student body presidency the previous year.

Under Rosson's administration students have seen the huge indebtedness of their association whittled down continuously until today only a small portion is left. This also would have been wiped out by now had it not been for the advent of the optional fee decreed by the attorney-general last year. At the same time students have seen their program constantly improved and strengthened to a point where it ranked on a par with the best activity programs in the country both from the standpoint of effective administration and educational benefits.

No little credit can go to Rosson, and his capable assistant, for the success and efficiency and progress of student body affairs during the years 1930 to 1936. His ability as an administrator, his integrity, and his enthusiasm have been tempered with a fine understanding and appreciation of the work under his control as an important and necessary adjunct to the program of a well-rounded educational institution. No matter into whose hands the administration of student body activities may fall in the future, no more lofty purpose than that held by Hugh Rosson can be adopted. Though the organization may be vastly different in the future, the general purposes and traditions developed under Hugh Rosson will be of lasting benefit to the institution he has served so well.

AN event of real significance to higher education in Oregon, was Governor Charles H. Martin's recent appointment of Robert W. Ruhl, Medford publisher, to the state board of higher education. Mr. Ruhl fills the vacancy created by the expiration of the term of office held by Leif Finseth of Dallas.

Governor's Move Is Wise One

Mr. Finseth's service to the state and the institutions under the control of the state board of higher education has been of the finest type. He has acted impartially and with intelligence. And in a sense it is regrettable that the Governor deemed it wise to name a new man to fill the post.

However, as the time for appointment drew near, political groups in Polk county took it upon themselves to "advise" the governor upon the appointment, basing their "advice" on partisan political grounds. Whether willfully or not, Leif Finseth was drawn into this controversy.

The Governor's answer, in the appointment of another man, was both wise and emphatic. Adequate administration of higher educational affairs demands that the state board of higher education be free of partisan political influences. To paraphrase an old saying, when politics comes in the door, honest educational endeavor goes out the window.

THE Governor's refusal to reappoint Mr. Finseth does not in any way reflect upon the integrity or ability of the Dallas man. Governor Martin has, however, done much to strengthen further a needed tradition that higher education must be immune from political molestation if it is to function with any degree of efficiency and produce the values to the state that are expected of it. He has further demonstrated his understanding of the needs of higher education in his selection of Mr. Ruhl for the post on the state board. Mr. Ruhl is scholarly, keen, and highly sympathetic to the problems of higher education. He is a graduate of Harvard University, and as such, has no local educational loyalties other than to the state in which he lives. His judgment, his courage as demonstrated as an editor, and his understanding of the problems and purposes of higher education make him an admirable choice for the position to which he has been elevated.

THE University of Oregon lost a loyal friend and ardent patriot on February 22 when Earle Wellington, president of both the Oregon Dads organization and the University of Oregon Federation, succumbed to a heart attack in his Portland office.

Wellington Death Is Real Loss

It is highly probable that on the very day of his death Earle Wellington was thinking or doing something in the interests of the institution he loved so well and served so enthusiastically. For seldom a day went by that some friend of the University, from President Boyer on down to the greenest freshman, did not come to Earle Wellington for advice or assistance.

Not a graduate of the University, Earle Wellington became deeply interested in the institution five years ago when his son Gilbert registered as a freshman. During the Zorn-Macpherson campaign on down through the tax-limitation bill fight, which endangered educational appropriations, Earle Wellington could be found at the head of the lines throwing his ability and enthusiasm into any enterprise that had the welfare of the University as its central purpose. So strongly did he believe in the University and its future that his activities were often carried on at considerable personal sacrifice of resources and even friendship.

Earle Wellington was the type of man that the University was more than proud to list as a friend.

C A M P U S

PRESIDENT

Dr. Boyer Formal Head

Dr. Clarence Valentine Boyer was formally inaugurated as president of the University at impressive academic ceremonies on the campus February 6.

Leading educators and delegates from more than a hundred colleges, universities and learned societies scattered through many states gathered for a full day of events which ushered in the highest honors given to Dr. Boyer during his life-time devoted to higher education's development.

Within the towering walls of McArthur court, the dignity of somber caps and gowns and the flare of brilliant robes denoting advanced degrees, the measured strains of the inaugural march, and the concise, thoughtful words of numerous eminent speakers lifted witnesses of the spectacle to new visions for the future of higher learning.

In the midst of this setting, the title of president was officially conferred on Dr. Boyer by Willard L. Marks, chairman of the board of higher education, and Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter, while Governor Martin and a host of state and local officials, as well as hundreds of faculty men, students and townspeople, looked on.

The new president, declared Chairman Marks, "is a man completely devoted to his profession, a man of poise and dignity, a calm and logical thinker, careful and prudent and diplomatic, but purposeful and forceful when it is necessary."

Responding with animation, President Boyer, in his inaugural address, lauded the ideal of freedom, and explained its relation to education in a democracy, then sounded a challenge, with a portent of warning.

Responds With Challenge

"Youth is indifferent to the ideal of freedom," he said. "This is the saddest omen of our time, for freedom is above material welfare and economic security. Youth is not to blame, for there is no unified program to further the human values of civilization and lift up ideals worth striving for.

"We need to take stock of our ideals," he sternly declared. "The unemployment and present demoralization, the fall of governments in post-war Europe, the rapid rise of dictatorships, demand that we bring our most critical intelligence to bear upon the actual significance of freedom, of democracy, of industrialism to the individual and to society."

More optimistically and with a plea for a sane perspective, the honored speaker noted humanitarian progress in abolition of slavery, in the advance of psychology and biology. "Planning based upon hope," he remarked, "is no less reasonable than planning based upon despair."

Faculty Pledges Faith

Accomplishments under the leadership of President Boyer, who for two years has acted in that capacity without formal recognition, was voiced by a faculty spokesman, Dr. Rudolf Ernst, professor of English. "He already has our loyalty and esteem," he said for the faculty.

Visiting educators extended formal greetings on behalf of institutions of higher learning in other regions. Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, University of California's vice-president, speaking in behalf of state universities, asked cooperation between students and executives, and stressed the president's responsibility in selecting faculty members.

Banquet for Greetings

Inaugural ceremonies were preceded by a split session, one devoted to professional and the other to liberal education, which took place in the morning. The day closed with a banquet, at which Judge James T. Brand, of the second judicial district circuit court bench, was highlight speaker.

President of the University Alumni, Ben R. Chandler, brought greetings from the group, and declared the day's ceremonies "the fulfillment of a cherished hope on the part of the University of Oregon alumni." "The University," he added, "will now be able to build and grow on its own initiative."

Others who extended greetings at the closing dinner were: James Blais, Associated Students president; Dean Mahlon Ellwood Smith, of Oregon State College; Dexter M. Keezer, president of Reed College; Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, president of Mills College, Oakland; Dr. Lee Paul Sieg, president of the University of Washington.

MILITARY

Optional vs. Compulsory

That perennial campus issue, shall military training be compulsory or optional, has reared its head once again and has been the subject of much discussion and jockeying for position during the past term.

"Optionalists," headed by many of the same students who led the fight for optional student body fees, started the revival of the old question recently by distributing petitions addressed to the faculty requesting that it recommend to the state board of higher education that military courses on the campus be made optional. Last year, under similar circumstances, the faculty split evenly on the issue and President Boyer broke the deadlock by casting his ballot in favor of the present system.

This year, however, more organized opposition to the "optionalists" has developed in the form of a "committee for general university welfare." Like the opponent group, this new organization started circulating petitions in favor of the present system, which makes military training compulsory during the first two collegiate years, although comparatively liberal exemption regulations are provided.

With two sets of conflicting petitions before them, each of approximately 600 names each, the faculty decided to give the question further study, referred the matter to its advisory council.

At its last meeting the state board of higher education also took cognizance of the situation and appointed a committee composed of Mr. B. F. Irvine, Mrs. Beatrice Walton Sackett and Mr. Herman Oliver to make an investigation and report back.

CAMPUS NOTES

¶ Betty Hughes, '30, for two years secretary to the campus Y.W.C.A., has resigned her position effective in June. Mrs. John Stark Evans, wife of the University organist and music professor, has been named to fill the vacancy. Miss Hughes has not announced her future plans.

¶ Landscaping projects on the campus are progressing rapidly under the direction of Fred Cuthbert, professor of landscape architecture. Among the many activities along this line are: re-landscaping the front of Friendly hall; removal of the old tennis court between the old library and Commerce hall and planting of shrubs along the sidewalk; regrading the slope between the Music building and Alder street; and levelling athletic fields east of McArthur court and the tennis courts. Fills are being made with dirt obtained from the excavations on the new gymnasium and infirmary.

¶ Zeta Tau Alpha sorority will move during the spring holidays from their present location at 1670 Alder street to Mary Spiller hall on the campus. The sorority plans to build or buy a new home next year. Mrs. A. J. Gillis of Seattle has been named housemother for the group.

¶ Despite bad weather, more than 3,000 persons attended the Portland Symphony orchestra concert on the campus February 23. Willem van Hoogstraten, conductor, thanked the audience for the reception given the orchestra and stated that its members always looked forward to the annual Eugene appearance. An ovation lasting several minutes followed the last number and prompted the conductor's brief remarks. The concert was the last on the A.S.U.O. concert series for the year. Burns Powell, trombonist with the orchestra, will be remembered by many alumni. He was active in campus affairs from 1908 to 1912, being editor of the Emerald and organizing the first University band.

¶ University psychologists were hosts to more than 20 of their Oregon contemporaries at a conference on teaching methods of psychology held recently on the Oregon campus. This was the first session of its kind to be held in Oregon, and plans were made for a repetition of the event next year. Problems of teaching elementary psychology drew the particular attention of the delegates.

Gerlinger Hostess Named

Gerlinger hall has a new hostess, Mrs. Edith Siefert, '10, who recently took over the duties of Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, a familiar figure at the University's finest reception rooms since the building was opened in 1920. Mrs. Wilson was forced by ill health to resign.

Mrs. Siefert is regarded as well fitted for the position, having served as director of the prep school dormitories at Antioch College and as assistant to her sister, Mrs. Edna Prescott Davis, '12, present director of girls' dormitories at Pomona College, California. Their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Prescott, was manager of Friendly hall when it was a men's dormitory.

Gerlinger hall, under Mrs. Siefert's direction, will be made center of women's activities on the campus, particularly those of independent women who previously have had inadequate facilities for social events. The Murray Warner museum library has been moved to the new museum building, and the entire third floor has been returned to the AWS for its activities. Mrs. Siefert will act as housemother for the Ordes, independent women's organization.

Sorority Leaving Millrace

"Sorority Row" on Alder street, along the southwestern edge of the campus, will be the address of another women's living organization, when Alpha Lambda chapter of Alpha Delta Pi moves into a house at 1670 Alder.

The sorority purchased the structure, which is at present occupied by Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, and will move from its location on 11th street during spring vacation.

Alpha Delta Pi has been on the University campus for 16 years, and first took up residence in the University Heights district. In 1926 the chapter moved to its present location on the mill race.

ART LEAGUE NOTES

Portland, Oregon

To the Editor:

The University Alumni Art League will hold its second annual exhibit April 1 to 22 at the Portland Art Museum. Alums from all parts of the world will be sending work consisting of painting, sculpture, design, and craft work. All exhibits work must be in by March 20 in order to allow time for selection and arrangement.

At our last meeting in January which was held at the home of our president, Mrs. Lydia Herrick Hodge, '27, we were particularly fortunate in having Mr. W. R. B. Willcox of the University faculty with us, and the evening, filled with interesting discussions of current interests, proved most enjoyable to all.

Recently we entertained very profitably with a benefit dinner at the Pewter Plate.

The following is news concerning some of our members, both here and in other parts. Katharine Talbot MacNab, ex-'30, exhibited sculpture in Portland early in February. Margaret Goodin Fritsch, '23, is travelling all over the United States as architectural adviser to Delta Delta Delta. Mary Kirkwood, '30, has been studying under Reginal C. Marsh at the Art Students' League in New York. Lowell Anderson, '34, is now working at Lawrence, Hofford, Allyn & Bean, architects, with Abbott Lawrence, '28, who has recently completed designs for Young's Gown Shop and the Bohemian Restaurant. Margaret Scott is studying with Grant Wood at Iowa City, Iowa. Al and Art Runquist, '21 and '19, are working on the murals for the new library at the University. Harriet Meyer, '31, has designed the costumes for the Portland Symphony Ballet, and Juanita Babbitt, ex-'31, has assisted in making them. Edgar Bohlman, '26, has been invited to exhibit at the Modern Museum in New York. Nellie Best, '30, is working at the Commercial Pottery Company in Los Angeles, California. John A. Breneiser, '29, has been teaching in the Eidolon Art School at Santa Fe. His subjects are drawing, painting, and wood block. Cecile Frazier, '34, has received a fellowship for the Carnegie Art Center at the University next summer. Rex Sorensen, '32, is doing commercial sculpturing in Los Angeles and Hollywood, California. Constance Cole, ex-'25, has designed the cover and chapter headings for Robert C. Johnson's book "John McLoughlin, Patriarch of the Northwest." Marian Rorapaugh Field, '30, is doing botanical drawings for the botany department at the University. Doris Bothwell, ex-'25, has opened an interior decorating shop, Bothwell and Cook, on Wiltshire Boulevard in Los Angeles, California. Lucia Wiley, '28, has been selected to do murals for the federal government.

Cooperative House Set Up

Cooperative buying and marketing plans have their counterpart on the University campus this year. Following the example of students on other Pacific coast campuses, a group of 20 men students formed the Student Living association at the beginning of fall term, and since then have fed and housed themselves on a cooperative basis.

Encouraged by the continuance of the men's cooperative house, 14 girls have begun plans to open a similar house for women at the beginning of spring term. A location, a cook and a housemother will be chosen during the next few weeks.

In the men's group, board and rent costs each member $15 per month, plus five hours a week. Odd jobs from ditch digging to correcting papers and clerking bring in enough cash to keep the young organization going. During fall term the boys did their own cooking, but this term have hired a cook to get lunch and dinner. The members do all remaining tasks. The menus indicate a balanced, nourishing variety of food.

The living cooperative grew out of an extensive study conducted by the Wesley Foundation into plans worked out on other campuses.

Vacation Dances

Revival of an old tradition in the form of vacation dances, to be held in many parts of the state on March 21, is being sponsored by the Associated Women Students this spring with Martha McCall, newly elected president of the organization, in charge.

Dances so far scheduled will be held in Portland, Eugene, Salem, Bend, Klamath Falls, Astoria and Pendleton. It is hoped by the sponsors that alumni will cooperate with the local dance committees, as one of the purposes of the dances is to bring about a revival of Oregon spirit. Alumni and high school students are especially invited. Tickets are selling for seventy-five cents.

¶ Officials from seven Oregon cities met on the campus last month for the purpose of discussing a new model ordinance for the administration of civil service for firemen. The ordinance is being drawn up by Herman Kehrli, executive secretary of the League of Oregon Cities and director of the University bureau of municipal research, and R. S. Bryson, field consultant for the League. This is the type of cooperative enterprise and community aid that is sponsored by Kehrli's office. Cities participating in the meeting were: Eugene, Albany, Baker, Bend, LaGrande, Medford and Klamath Falls.

MEDICAL SCHOOL

ANNUAL SESSION

Alumni Doctors Gather

Doctors, alumni of the University of Oregon Medical School, from all parts of Oregon and Washington gathered in Portland on March 2, 3, and 4 for the twenty-fourth annual meeting and post graduate session of the Alumni Association of the University of Oregon Medical School.

The sessions, which were held at the Old Heathman hotel and the Multnomah County Hospital, were among the most successful ever to be held by the Association. Dr. Thomas R. Brown, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University and an outstanding authority on internal medicine and digestion was the guest of honor and principal speaker during the three-day meet. Clinics, lectures and several social gatherings rounded out the program.

Van Loan Elected

Dr. B. A. Van Loan, '26, Portland; who has served as secretary of the group for several years, was elected to succeed Dr. Earl DuBois, '25, Portland, as president. Dr. DuBois was named to a vice-presidency post, and Dr. Thomas D. Robertson, '30, Portland, was elected secretary. Other officers elected were: Dr. Harry Irvine, '20, Portland, re-elected treasurer, and Drs. F. Cecil Adams, '27, Klamath Falls; Martin Norgore, '26, Seattle; Roswell Waltz, '25, Forest Grove, and Arthur Jones, '26, Portland, district vice-presidents.

Social gatherings included class reunion dinners on the evening of March 3, the annual "pow-wow" Tuesday evening, meeting of the Camel club Wednesday afternoon and the alumni banquet at the Portland hotel that evening.

Dr. Abele, Veteran

Twenty-seven years of service in the battle against communicable diseases carried on by the Portland city health bureau was completed last month by Dr. John G. Abele, M.D. '07, city health officer in the Oregon metropolis. The elderly physician is also a veteran of the Indian, Spanish and World wars.

Dr. Abele served in the army for 15 years before graduating from medical school. During that time he fought Indians at the Crow agency in 1887 with the first cavalry and engaged in the Wounded Knee campaign in Dakota territory in 1890, which was the final outbreak of the Sioux.

In the Spanish-American war he was stationed at Fort Canby, Oregon, and during the World war he was in charge of the communicable disease hospital at Fort Riley, Kansas.

When he was named to the Portland health staff he served under Dr. Esther Pohl Lovejoy, M.D. '94. He has a son, Dr. John F. Abele, '30, M.D. '34, who is now taking post-graduate work at the University of Iowa Hospital at Iowa City.

Nurses Find Places

Graduates in public health nursing at the Medical School have won numerous positions in several western states, records of the nursing education department indicate.

The list of placements includes:

Marion L. Coffee, '35, anesthetist, Oakland, California; Emily Covert Heaton, '35, supervisor, Good Samaritan Hospital, Portland; Helen Pearl Parish, '35, public health nurse, Jackson county health department, Medford.

Esther Lucille Catlin, '35, health service, Eastern Oregon Normal School, La Grande; Rosemary Gasser, '35, Doernbecher Hospital, Portland; Alladine Hollister, '35, staff of St. Vincent's Hospital, Portland; Annette G. Kern, '35, staff, St. Vincent's, Portland; Margaret D. Portmann, '35, county nurse, Umatilla County.

Kathleen Shepard Kindschi, '35, Medical Dental Surgeries, Medical Dental Building, Portland; Florence Miriam Diebel, school nurse, Wallace, Idaho; Alma Theresa Hankey, '35, school nurse, Powers; Gertrude Deutsch, '35, supervisor in southeastern division, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Noted Portland physician and surgeon and for many years an instructor in the University Medical School, Dr. Murray M. Levy, M.D. '17, died at his home on January 24. He had come to Portland from San Francisco 28 years ago. He was a member of the American Medical Association, the Academy of Medicine, and a number of other organizations. He is survived by Mrs. Levy and a daughter.

Notes From Medical School

¶ Miss Grace Phelps, superintendent of the Doernbecher hospital, and Mr. Ralf Couch, superintendent of hospitals and clinics at the Medical School, were recently elected to office in the Oregon Association of Hospitals. Mr. Couch was elected vice-president and Miss Phelps was named secretary-treasurer.

¶ Murals completed by Darrel R. Austin, Portland artist, under the public works of art commission, have recently been installed in the lobby of Mackenzie Hall. These four murals, each five and a half by eight feet, are in a series which will eventually include eight. They are executed in the modern style, and represent symbolically the fight to free medicine from superstition and ignorance.

1907

Henry C. Randle, M.D. '07, of 2829 Southwest Upper Drive, Portland, died on January 19. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Agnes Adams Randle, '98, M.A. '99, daughter, Lois Randle, and sisters, Mrs. Nellie Jones, Salem; Faye, Margaret, Agnes and Hattie Randle.

A note from Dr. Reuben Ratner, in San Francisco, states: "Nineteen thirty-six has an auspicious start for me. A son was born January 6, 1936.

"I have moved my home residence from 1850 Gough Street to 2329 North Point Street and I have moved my down town office from 490 Post Street to 450 Sutter Street, all showing a marked improvement on my part and looking for a brighter future."

1923

Leland Eastman Pynn, four year old son of Dr. and Mrs. Carleton P. Pynn, of 2710 Northwest Pettygrove, Portland, died February 4. He leaves an older sister, Lorraine Pynn.

1924

Wilmoth Osborne, M.D. '24, who was medical adviser to women at the University of Oregon from 1925 to 1930, has been visiting friends in Eugene and Portland. Dr. Osborne is now at Bennington College, Bennington, Vermont.

1928

Dr. A. W. Christopherson of Hermiston died December 3 in Portland. A recent graduate of the Medical School, he was brought to Portland in November for a mastoid operation, but meningitis set in. He had been practicing in Hermiston since 1929. He was married in Portland in 1927 to Miss Beatrice Morrow, and leaves her and a small daughter, Barbara.

1929

Dr. Edward LeCocq was married February 4 to Miss Jane Nettleton of Seattle. The marriage took place in Trinity Church, Seattle.

1931

The marriage of Miss Ruth Larrabee and Frederick E. Templeton, M.D. '31, was recently announced. Mrs. Templeton is a graduate of Yankton College, Yankton, South Dakota, and also spent two years at the Cornish school in Seattle. Dr. Templeton received his bachelor's degree from the University of Washington and is a member of the staff of the Billings Memorial Hospital, in Chicago, where they will live.

Dr. Carl G. Ashley has announced the opening of offices at 612 Medical-Dental building, Portland. His practice will be limited to infants and children.

Dr. J. D. Blair was honored by his fellow townsmen recently when he was named "first citizen" by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Vancouver, Washington.

1933

Medical Lake, Washington, has moved to Wallace, Idaho.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Roderick Blatchford and two small daughters, Ann and Carol Lee, live at Forest Grove. Dr. Blatchford is resident physician in obstetrics and gynecology at Multnomah County Hospital, Portland.

H. Alladine Hollister and Richard Scott Fixott, '31, M.D. '34, were married in Portland on January 10. Dr. Fixott recently returned from Vienna where he had been doing graduate work. Mrs. Fixott is a member of Alpha Phi sorority at the University. The couple will make its home in Portland.

Onthank Named Director

Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, has taken over new duties as director of the national youth administration in Oregon, following his recent return from Washington, D. C., where he conferred with NYA officials. Dean Onthank is spending part of his time on the campus and part in his Portland headquarters office. He has been granted a half-time leave by the state board to accept the federal job. Before returning from Washington, Dean Onthank attended meetings of the National-Vocational Guidance association and American College Personnel association at St. Louis, and was elected vice-president of the latter.

Triple Honors

Events moved fast for Wayne L. Morse, dean of the school of law recently. On February 19 there was born to Dean and Mrs. Morse a daughter, Amy Ann. Cigars were passed out by the Dean to all students in the law school upon the arrival of this third member of his self-styled "girl scout troop." On the following day Dean Morse received word of his appointment by Governor Martin to a committee to propose legal procedure reform for Oregon. And on the day following that, word came of his appointment to a national committee to seek increased cooperation between schools of law and the American Bar Association.

¶ Two University leaders will attend the Anglo-American Historical Conference in London July 6 to 11, it has been planned. Burt Brown Barker, vice-president, and Dr. R. C. Clark, head of the department of history, will attend the distinguished historical sessions, which have been held every five years since 1921.

¶ Formerly professor of economics at Oregon, Dr. M. K. Cameron is now a Kamaaina (old-timer) at the University of Hawaii, where he has been head of the department of economics and business since 1928.

¶ A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Casteel in Eugene on February 4. Mr. Casteel is instructor in the speech division on the campus.

¶ Continued research on the unique properties of heavy water conducted on the campus during the past year will be described soon in the Physical Review. The article, "An Infra-red Absorption Band of Heavy Water Vapor," was written by Dr. W. V. Norris and Dr. R. E. Holmquist of the faculty, and Dr. H. J. Unger, now with the University of Idaho.

¶ Dr. Leavitt O. Wright, of the Romance language department, will be one of two visiting professors for the 1936 summer session of the Pomona College School of Spanish at Claremont, California. Students there are pledged to the exclusive use of Spanish. The Oregon professor's appointment is a recognition of his fluency in the language.

BASKETBALL

Finish Fourth

The story of Oregon's 1936 basketball season, though ending with the Webfoot squad in fourth place in conference standing, was not the entire disappointment that the team's showing "on paper" might indicate.

In the first place, the Webfoots proved to be, despite the more or less disastrous season, by far the most colorful and popular aggregation to represent the University in many years. In the eight-game home series, for instance, 22,595 spectators attended. This mark bettered by about 3,000 the previous year's all-time record. In the eight-game away-from-home series, the same tendency held good. Total gate receipts for basketball are expected to reach $4,500 following the final check-up.

Off to Hopeful Start

Oregon's in-and-out squad got off to an encouraging start by defeating Idaho for the two openers, and then proceeded to take the title-defending Beavers from Corvallis into camp by the close margin of 29 to 27. Sports commentators throughout the northwest were sounding a warning to other conference contenders: "Look out for the mighty Grenadiers from Oregon."

But either the hopes for a coast championship were based on false appraisal of Howard Hobson's squad, or else the team was weakened under the strain of a gruelling pre-season succession of contests and handicapped with learning a new system, and absorbing transfer material.

Washington Wins Four

Anyhow, in the four-game series with Washington the Webfoots saw their title hopes snuffed out under a stifling barrage from Hec Edmundson's basketeers. It was Edmundson, the dean of northwest basketball coaches, and not Hobson, the newcomer, who was to pull the coup in the northern division circuit and win the title. Oregon was let out the back door at Seattle with two black eyes, 36-38 and 40-26. The rampant Huskies then called at McArthur the next weekend and continued their merciless march toward the championship by administering two more drubbings to the battered Webfoots, 42-23 and 35 to 31. It was amazingly perfect passing and shooting—nothing less—that forced the four-game disaster on Howard Hobson's towering hopefuls.

Before traveling to Corvallis for their second encounter with Slats Gill's Beaversmen, where the Huskies had also brought gloom to the Staters, Oregon and her intra-state rivals were rated about even. Both still had mathematical chances at the championship. But even this hope faded as the Orange wrecking crew went to work on the smarting Webfoots. It ended temporarily with a score of 49 to 23, only to be revived again the following weekend in a thriller in which the Ducks lost their sixth straight, 26 to 28.

Despite heroic efforts on the part of Oregon's Silver and Patterson, the Stater's leading point-getter, Wally Palmberg (who subsequently set a new conference high for individual scoring) was responsible for the two-point loss.

Split Series With W.S.C.

Washington State offered the Webfoots their next opportunity to redeem their lost prestige. This they did, 42 to 35, in the series opener, but failed to repeat in the second encounter, losing to an inspired Cougar outfit, 51 to 40.

The came the Webfoots' chance to even its series against Oregon State—not only that but more. A defeat would have destroyed the Beavers' chance at the title (in the mean time Washington had lost two to W.S.C. and one to lowly Idaho). But the Staters were hot on the trail of the Huskies, and Oregon proved to be merely a bothersome obstruction in the Staters' trek to Seattle. Oregon lost 35 to 29, and the score does not do justice to the struggle that took place. Again it was Palmberg who spelled defeat for the Webfoots.

Wins in Inland Empire

Thus, all that remained for Oregon was the Inland Empire jaunt to Moscow and Pullman. Eight losses and four wins, could be changed to eight of each and possible third place in conference standing. The Webfoots started out sprightly enough, with two wins over Idaho, 22 to 17 and 49 to 33. But at Pullman, after a 48-hour rest, Washington State took the touring Webfoots, 44 to 30. The Ducks' season ended the next night, after they had split the series with the Cougars and won their final game, 50 to 45. However, the loss the night before had definitely placed Hobson's squad in fourth place.

Prospects Encouraging

In view of the 19-wins-out-of-20-starts record of the frosh this year; in view of the fact that several reliable regulars will be back in 1937; and because Hobson and his system have both been initiated into northwest conference society, the outlook for next year is far from discouraging.

However, Hobson does lose through graduation the two Jones boys, Willie and Budd, and his two valuable transfers from Southern Oregon Normal; Patterson and Howell; not to mention Rollie Rourke, the fighting Irish guard.

HOWARD HOBSON'S 1936 VARSITY BASKETEERS

Fans who look to the future of Oregon's basketball have already found a basis for enthusiasm in "Honest John" Warren's squad of freshmen hoop stars.

The season has uncovered, among others, the ball-handling and scoring prowess of lanky Laddie Gale of Oakridge, and light-footed Wally Johansen of Astoria, both of them all-state men in prep school days. Between them they have kept high-point honors for every one of the contests. Gale scored 219 points in 20 games. Another comer is Bob Anet, a sparkling guard from Astoria.

In four encounters with the Rooks, the Frosh came off with three victories and one loss. The defeat is the only one in 20 games.

FOOTBALL

Bjork to Head Varsity

Del Bjork, battering blonde tackle from Astoria, will captain the Oregon footballers next year, it was decided at a recent "feed" meeting of the squad at the home of Coach and Mrs. Callison.

Bjork will lead the team throughout the playing season. The old method of a different captain for each game has been discarded. The new captain was mentioned prominently for all-coast honors last year and will undoubtedly be one of Oregon's stellar players next season. Ross Carter, guard, was named honorary captain for the past season. He captained the team in four different games and distinguished himself for consistent and dependable service.

Gael Contest Dropped

Oregon and St. Mary's will not meet on the gridiron in 1936, officials of both schools have announced.

The Gaels will meet Temple University on December 5, the date originally set for the Oregon game, and the Webfoots will have just completed the heaviest conference season in their history, playing on each of nine successive Saturdays.

For seven seasons Oregon and St. Mary's met at Kezar stadium in always colorful encounters. The Ducks had emerged victorious in but one of the contests, the other six going to the Californians. The winning team each year was awarded the Governor's trophy, offered jointly by the chief executives of the two states.

SWIMMING

Big Year for Mermen

The biggest year in Oregon's swimming team history is in the making. To date three events have contributed to this fact and two more loom ahead.

First, Coach Mike Hoyman's small but proficient squad of natators traveled to California early in February and vanquished the best in collegiate swimming teams that that state has to offer. The Webfoot splashers registered decisive victories over San Jose State (47 to 37), Stanford (45 to 39), and the University of California at Berkeley (48 to 36).

Second, by defeating the University of Washington 48 to 36 on February 29, the crack Oregon splashers were in a position to claim the Pacific coast swimming championship.

New Natatorium Provided

And third, a WPA grant of $25,000 has been made for the purpose of remodeling the old gymnasium into a modern swimming pavillion, with new locker and shower rooms, a higher roof to provide for high diving, and bleacher accommodations for 600 spectators. Work is already under way. The remodelled structure will utilize only the north half of the old gym and will face on University street. The remainder of the old gym, which was built in 1909 and is being replaced by a new modern PWA building at the corner of University and Fifteenth, will be wrecked.

New Marks Set

In the California meets, Jim Hurd and Jim Reed, both seniors, accounted for a pair of new coast marks. Hurd, former Hawaiian all-around champion and present state free-style record holder, established a new record in the 100-yard free style for 75-foot pools with a 53.3 seconds performance.

Reed, elder of the swimming Reed brothers, cracked his own 150-yard backstroke mark by a full second. His new time was 1:45.8.

In the Washington meet, Oregon accounted for two new coast records in 60-foot pools and Gene Caddey of Washington set a new coast mark in the 200-yard breaststroke event. His time was 2:37.8. The marks broken by Oregon were in the 300-yard medley race when the Reed brothers and Jim Hurd bettered Stanford's 1933 mark by 4.9 seconds setting a new coast record of 3:13.8. Jim Hurd broke the other record in a thrilling race in which he bested Washington's famous Jack Medica in the 100-yard free-style with his time at 54.4 seconds. Oregon took six firsts to the visitor's three.

Team Has Olympic Material

A movement is now on foot to send Jim Hurd and the Reed Brothers east to the national intercollegiate meet at Yale University the latter part of March. This meet will serve as an excellent opportunity for him to make his bid for Olympic tryouts and possible competition in Germany this summer. Bob Chilton and Clarke Thomsen, ace divers, have also definitely stamped themselves as Olympic prospects.

For the first time in history, the Oregon campus will be the scene of the northwest swimming championship meet. On April 4 Pacific coast conference schools north of California will gather for the high spot of the aquatic year. The meet is expected to bring out one of the finest swimming exhibitions in northwest annals.

COACH HOYMAN'S TRIO OF SWIMMING CHAMPIONS

NEWS LETTER

Old Oregon publishes herewith a letter from Kent Hamaker, '32, which is full of news about himself and other alumni. Old Oregon will gladly publish from time to time other such letters—if alumni will write them.—Editor.

DEAR OLD OREGON:

Here are a few notes concerning Oregon Alumni here in Washington, D. C. which may be of interest:

I have been in Washington, since the spring of 1932, engaged in the practice of architecture. During this time I have met so many "alums" and former schoolmates here and in neighboring cities that it seems as much "at home" here as in Oregon.

Mrs. Hamaker and I spent a weekend in New York lately where we had an impromptu convention of many old "grads." There were Mr. and Mrs. George Barron (Freda Stadter, '33) who had just returned from a two year sojourn in Vienna, where they studied music. George had just completed a successful audition at the studios in Radio City. He and Mrs. Barron expect to stay in New York for some time.

As host and hostess for the gathering, were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Wagner (Elizabeth H. Brown, ex-'32) and Wilfred Wagner, '33. Lawrence Wagner, ex-'30, late of the Varsity Vagabonds, has been in New York for a year where he has a very successful and independent business. He arranges music and orchestrations for the various publishing houses. Wilfred is engaged in package designs and advertising work.

Edward Hicks, '34, was there, too. He has just been granted a master of architecture degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is now working with me in Washington.

Just heard yesterday that Chloethiel Woodard Wright, '32, is here in Washington with the Federal Housing Administration.

Not long ago we were surprised by a visit from James "Jim" Sharp, ex-'30, and Mrs. Sharp. Jim is with the Bureau of Investigation under J. Edgar Hoover and has been stationed in Nashville, Tennessee. He is now in Washington for a training period.

We see Margaret Stauff, '34, very often. She has a good position instructing music at Langley Junior High in the city.

Jack Miller, ex-'36, and Charles "Cap" Roberts, '33, have positions here while they are taking more school work.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Moser (Edna Dunbar, '30) have just returned to the United States after three years of work under the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in Kribi, Cameroun, West Africa. They will be in the United States a year for Mr. Moser to pursue studies in connection with his work at Princeton. Mrs. Moser will return to her home in Klamath Falls, Oregon to visit relatives and friends.

I certainly do look forward to receiving

KENT HAMAKER, '32,

with his father in stock raising, and will represent this district on the board.

Harris Ellsworth, editor of the Roseburg News-Review, has been elected president of the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. McWaters (Virginia Giles, ex-'22) and two small daughters, Mollie and Mary Anne, have returned to Portland to live in their old home in Forest Hills, Oswego. For the past five years they have been living in New Canaan, Connecticut.

1923

Mathilda Mathisen, who taught at the University of Alabama last summer, is now an instructor in medical-social work at Tulane University. Her mailing address is Kingsley House, New Orleans. Miss Mathisen majored in Latin at the University, receiving her M.A. in 1923.

A daughter was born, on January 24, to Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Kime, of Cottage Grove.

Evangeline F. Rice, ex-'23, and Walter M. Gordon were married in San Francisco, on December 31, 1935. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon will make their home in Los Angeles.

A daughter was born, on January 26, to Mrs. Ruby Baugh Hufstader (Mrs. Lester E. Hufstader) of Wendling.

After having served for more than a year as administrator and executive secretary of Federal relief in Lane county, Mrs. Martha W. Wyatt has resigned her position and plans to engage in other work elsewhere.

After having served as city playground supervisor in Portland for ten years, Mrs. Dorothy McKee Fudge, ex-'23, has resigned and will make her home in Los Angeles. Her husband, Vern O. Fudge, who was employed by the Union Oil Company in Portland for some time has been transferred to the California city.

Donald Wilkinson, B. A. '23, Ph. D. '32, is a professor of geology at Oregon State College.

Shannon Pettinger teaches English in the Lincoln High school, Portland. Miss Pettinger has her M.A. degree from Columbia University, in New York.

B. Shirley Edwards is with the Home Owners Loan Corporation in Oakland, California.

Rev. and Mrs. Philip P. Werlein (Virginia Pearson) with their children, have moved from Houston, Texas to make their home at 425 Convention Street, Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Mrs. Nellie Nygren Wedoo (Mrs. Atvin Wedoo) has moved from Fillmore, California to live at 1250 Marion Drive, in Glendale.

1925

Carl Vreeland is now in the sales promotion department of Jantzen Knitting Mills, Portland.

A daughter was born in January to Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Hoppe, of 1494 Charnelton Street, Eugene.

Home address for Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Lyman (Mary Druley, '24) is 840 Northeast Fifty-second Avenue, Portland. Mr. Lyman is a special salesman for Marshall Wells Company.

Lexro B. Prillaman has been appointed head of the English department and instructor in dramatics and public speaking of the Portland unit of Albany College. He also will be dean of men. After receiving his bachelor's degree from Oregon in 1925, Mr. Prillaman attended Northwestern University where he received his master's degree. He has since completed one year's work toward his doctor's degree. For some time he has been a member of the faculty of the Hill Military Academy, in Portland, and previously served on the faculties of the College of the City of New York and Lafayette College, Pennsylvania.

Hazel A. Johnson is joint author with Leon Carnovsky of an article on "Recreational Reading of Graduate Students," which appeared in the January, 1936, issue of the Journal of Higher Education, published by the Ohio State University. Miss Johnson is librarian at Scripps College, Claremont, California.

Mary A. Donaldson is on a year's leave of absence from her position as supervisor at the Independence Training School to study at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer N. Calef (Jean Robinson, ex-'27) and two sons, Douglas, seven, and Philip, three, make their home at 6105 North Mississippi, Portland. Mr. Calef is manager and partner in the Calef Furniture Company, associated with his younger brother, Robert Calef.

Theran B. Sausser has been advanced to the position of manager of fuel oil sales for the Oregon division of the General Petroleum Corporation from a similar position in the Portland district. Mr. Sausser has been with the firm for more than eleven years and is known as one of the best authorities on diesel oils in the Pacific northwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wall (Alicia Agnew) are living at 2015 Northwest Flanders, in Portland. Mr. Wall is with the WPA and has offices in the Bedell Building.

Miss Mary E. Swan and Dr. Blondel E. Carleton were married in Rochester, New York, on December 28, 1935. Mrs. Carleton is a graduate of Nazareth College and for several years served as secretary at Strong Memorial Hospital of the Medical School of the University of Rochester. Dr. Carleton graduated from Oregon in 1926 and last year received his Ph.D. from the University of Rochester. He is now a member of the faculty of South Georgia Teachers College, Collegeboro, Georgia, where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Junius Claude Snow (Opal Spear, ex-'26) live at 734 South Chevy Chase, Glendale, California.

A son, James Franklin, was born, on January 25, to Mr. and Mrs. Rupert T. Gilbert (Melba Mickelson, '27) of Marshfield. Mrs. Gilbert formerly taught in the Drain schools.

Frank A. Wilson is credit manager for the Firestone Service Store at 815 West Burnside Street, Portland. His daughter, Nancy Anne, will be one year old in June.

Dr. Wilmer C. Smith was appointed executive assistant at the Boston City Hospital, beginning January 12.

Fern George Kelly is now assistant purchasing agent and traffic manager for the Jantzen Knitting Mills, Portland.

A daughter, Caroline Ann, was born on January 31, to Evangelina Foster Hurd (Mrs. Stuart Hurd) of Route Two, Eugene.

Helen Reynolds Wadleigh, former reporter on the Eugene Morning News, has accepted a position with the State Highway Department at Salem. She will handle secretarial publicity and general work for the Travel Bureau Department.
