Dear Mr. Pease:

Enclosed you will find the only group picture of the hunt with Joe Gordon. We have several individual pictures, which have been published in the Oregonian and other newspapers, but for your purposes we believe you will want the group. Reading from left: Virgil H. Langtry, LL.B. '34, Joe Gordon on horse, the lynx in the Bruin's embrace, Joe C. Brown, Journalism '30, and Bill Kenna, Physical Ed. '35 or '36. Others on the hunt not in the picture are Robert Foley, LL.B. '35, and Chandler Noe, Journalism around '31, both of Bend. John Londahl, Phys. Ed. '34, wasn't on the hunt because he couldn't get out of bed early enough. Our guides and owners of the hounds were Duffy Knorr and Cliff Ralston of Redmond as were all those in the picture.

The hunt occurred in the Metolius river country west of Redmond, the entire party stayed the entire period of the hunt at the summer homes of Joe C. Brown, '30, and Alice Foley, '06. The cabins are situated on the Metolius river. The first day the party was in the saddle about six hours, when the hounds hit a hot lynx trail. Within a mile of hard riding through brush, over logs and fences, and through the forest the cat was treed. Gordon brought him down with his first shot.

On the second day, Sunday, November 6, 1938, we started at dawn in weather about 10 above zero. We rode for about seven hours without hitting a trail, but then the hounds hit the trail of what appeared to be a large bear from the tracks in occasional patches of snow. The bear went up the side of a steep ridge, and together with the dogs and one of the guides, left the party behind. The horses could not negotiate the steep slope as swiftly as the hounds, with the exception of the horse Ralston was on. At the top of the ridge we were able to follow the tracks in snow which was then six inches deep. After getting to the top we rode break-neck through dense thickets and over logs for approximately a mile, and came upon Ralston with the bear up a tree. The dogs had found the track of another bear and left in pursuit of him. Ralston had kept the bear treed while the rest were coming up. Gordon and Knorr shot almost simultaneously at the bear, a large brown one, perched on a limb 50 feet from the ground. He moved his head as the shots were fired, and both shots only grazed his neck and head. He started down, throwing the horses into a panic which was hard for us to quell, while Gordon and Knorr continued to pump lead into the bear. When he reached the earth he was content to dive into a thicket to die, although he looked very much alive. Knorr went in after him, followed by Gordon, and found him dead. Knorr discovered later that he had followed the bear with an empty gun.

The bear weighed out 463 pounds, being one of the largest ever bagged in this section.

Gordon has the hide which will be made into a rug. The dogs got tired of waiting for us to catch up with the other bear toward morning of the next day and came home.

Very truly yours,

VIRGIL H. LANGTRY, LL.B. '34.

Ron McCreight Heads Oregon Alumni

Ronald M. McCreight, ex-'29, was unanimously elected president of the Oregon Alumni Association at the semi-annual business meeting of the organization held during Homecoming weekend, November 4-6. Mr. McCreight has been active in the work of the Portland Alumni Association and has served as a member of the board of governors of that group for some time. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega. Mr. McCreight is sales promotion manager for the Jantzen Knitting mills in Portland. Mrs. McCreight is the former Dorothy Black, ex-'29.

James T. Donald, '15, of Baker will serve as vice-president. Mr. Donald is a practising attorney. He is married to Florence Cleveland, '13. Elected as a member of the board of directors at the same meeting was Dr. Orville Waller, ex-'05, of Eugene. Dr. Waller has been physician for the varsity football teams of the University. Dr. Waller is married to Sara Barker, ex-'18, and their son, Fred, is now enrolled as a sophomore in the University.

Presiding at the meeting was Edward F. Bailey, '13, retiring president of the association. A period of frank discussion followed with the members of the association airing their criticisms and suggestions for the more efficient functioning of the organization. Claire Kneeland, '27, stressed the need for a more active cooperation on the part of the class secretaries.

Plans for the organization of local alumni clubs throughout the state were announced by Elmer Fansett, '28, in his report as alumni secretary. He also read the financial reports and statements of the association.

Featured as a part of Homecoming was the traditional Order of the "O" parade with former lettermen filing into the stadium and taking their places in a special reserved section of the grandstand. Approximately two hundred former athletes were present.

Friday night entertainment included the huge noise-parade and Frosh bonfire. The bonfire was moved to the Amazon flats this year because of improvement work that has been done on Hayward field. Prizes for the "noisiest floats" in the rally parade went to Orides and Theta Chi, first; Hilyard Co-op and Pi Kappa Alpha, second; and Pi Beta Phi and Yeomen, third.

Contest winners for the Homecoming sign competition were Theta Chi, first; Alpha Gamma Delta, second.

During the Homecoming dance alumni and campus members of Friars, senior men's honorary, tapped Harold Haener, Jack Wagstaff and Ronald Husk, of Portland; William Frager and Clair Hofflich, Albany; Dale Malli-coat, Gresham, and Wallace Johansen, Astoria.

MINUTES OF MEETING OF UNIVERSITY OF OREGON ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Homecoming, November 5, 1938

The meeting was opened at 10:15 by President Edward F. Bailey in the Guild Theatre on the University campus. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved as read. The Secretary presented the financial report of the Association together with the report of activities to date. Copies of these reports were attached to the minutes.

There being no old business to discuss the president opened the meeting for new business. Several members of the Association presented new ideas by which the Alumni Association might interest more persons. Roland Davis reported on the activities of the Portland Association during the past year. Claire Kneeland stressed the need to secure more active cooperation from the permanent class secretaries.

Rodney Keating called for the report of the nominating committee. Mr. Henry Fowler of Bend was chairman of the nominating committee composed of Robert Earl, Portland, Basil Williams, Eugene together with himself. The nominating committee placed the following names before the assembled group. For president, Ronald McCreight of Portland; for vice-president, James T. Donald of Baker, and for three-year director, Dr. Orval Waller of Eugene.

The president called for further nominations from the floor for the office of president. There being none, it was moved and seconded that the nominations be closed and that the secretary cast a unanimous ballot for Mr. McCreight. The motion was passed.

The president then asked for nominations from the floor for the office of vice-president. There being none it was moved and seconded that the nominations be closed and that the secretary cast a unanimous ballot for James Donald. The motion was passed.

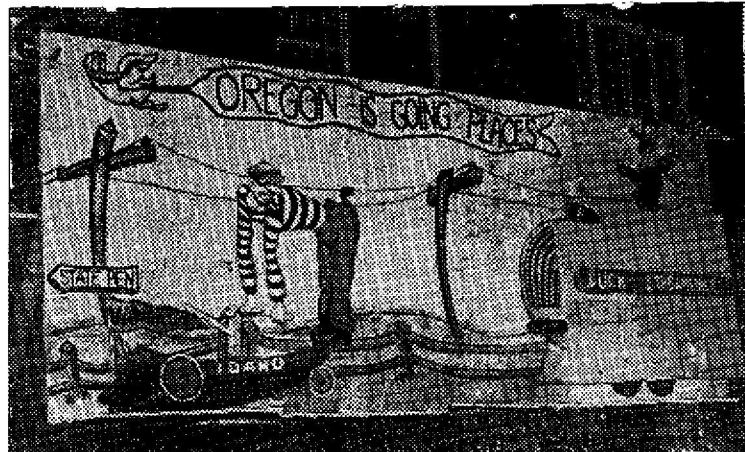

The president asked for nominations from the floor for the office of three-year director. There being none, it was moved and seconded that the nominations be closed and that the secretary cast a unanimous ballot of Dr. Orval Waller. The motion was passed.

Elmer Fansett moved that the Association extend a vote of appreciation to the retiring officers for their splendid work and cooperation during the past year. The motion was seconded and duly passed.

There being no further business to come before the group the meeting adjourned at 11:15 a.m.

Signed,

ELMER C. FANSETT, Secretary,
Oregon Alumni Association.

New York Alumni Meet With Dr. Erb

President Donald M. Erb was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Oregon Alumni in New York City on Thursday, November 17, at the Town Hall club.

The President, upon being introduced by John M. MacGregor (1923) who acted as toastmaster, brought greetings from Chancellor Hunter and the University faculty. Apparently the Chancellor remembers the evening he spent with this group two years ago, at which time he and President Boyer were the guests.

Dr. Erb told the group about the present status of the University, its new buildings completed and projected, its student body and its faculty. He especially delighted some eighty alumni who were in attendance by telling them of the individual members of the faculty whom they remember. A strong tie has always existed between many of the New York alumni and the faculty.

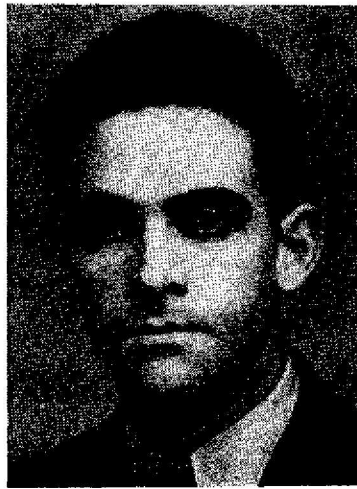

The President was given a very enthusiastic reception. Dr. Oswald Garrison Villard (Hon. 1935) attended and delivered a gracious extemporaneous address. Dr. Harry S. Rogers, formerly the Dean of Engineering at Oregon State College and now President of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, Dr. Edward S. Evenden, a member of the faculty at Columbia, at one time on the staff of the Oregon Normal School, and Dr. Donald P. Cottrell, an authority on college administration at Columbia, were present to extend greetings to President Erb. Will Grant, President of the University of Washington Alumni in New York, was a guest and advocated, while acknowledging greetings, a joint dinner by the Washington and Oregon groups in New York.

Virgil Johnson (class of 1896), a son of Oregon's first President, and Dr. Allen Eaton (class of 1902, Hon. 1937) gave some of the early history of the University. Both referred to the part played in the founding of the University by Henry Villard, whose son was present, and each mentioned President Johnson. Dr. Eaton described the first dress suits to make an appearance on the Oregon campus, and told the now famous story of Lash Applegate's subscription at the time the University was placed in Eugene. He then presented to President Erb some old documents pertaining to the early history. One was a letter from Mrs. Ellen McCormack, of the first graduating class, referring to her father, Dr. Thomas Condon's tribute to Henry Villard. A second was a letter from President Johnson to members of the faculty, asking them to help pay off a judgment held against the University property. A third was a complete list of the first subscribers to the University Association, made in compliance with the demand by the Oregon legislature that a promise to raise a certain sum by a given time be redeemed. It is on this list that the signature of Lash Applegate shows that he subscribed to 251 shares, or a total of $25,100. Another document was the second list of subscribers to this fund, bearing names of the citizens of Eugene who pledged not only cash but farm products, labor, merchandise, etc. These were accepted with thanks by Dr. Erb.

Paul Ager (class of 1925), now the budget director of the T.V.A. camps, and his wife, Marion Phy Ager, timed a business trip from Knoxville so that they could be present at the dinner. John Rae, who is a colleague of Dr. Erb's on the Economics faculty, came down from Bridgeport for the occasion.

Some of those who attended the New York dinner for the first time were: Hilda Chase (1926), Mary Johns (1919), Ruth Akers Halloway (1925), Janet Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Brown, Russell Calkins, who is the supply officer on the U.S.S. Honolulu now in the New York harbor, McGowan Miller (1933), and Roxie Hall, visiting from her home in California.

Eugene V. Lincoln, '35, whose article on the consolidation of school districts appeared in the recent issue of the OREGON EDUCATION JOURNAL. Mr. Lincoln is principal of the high school at Linslaw, Oregon.

Employment Opportunity

The following memorandum has been received by the Alumni office from the placement division of the University:

The University Employment Service operated by the University with the cooperation of alumni and Dads organizations is receiving an increasing number of calls for college graduates, both men and women, with a little experience after graduation. Many of these it is unable to fill for lack of available persons. It is altogether probable that there are alumni who would be both qualified and interested in these places, but they have not listed themselves and so are not known to the office and in consequence cannot be recommended for consideration by prospective employers.

Very few University of Oregon alumni are unemployed and seeking work, but doubtless a great many, although employed and not seeking a change would be glad to be considered for a position which would constitute a worth-while promotion. It is this latter class which it is particularly desired to have listed. In a number of instances during recent months positions carrying substantial salaries have gone begging, although we are morally certain that we have alumni who would fill them adequately and be mighty glad to have them. But it is urged that alumni, even though they are not at all dissatisfied with their present places and do not wish to suggest to their present employers that they are looking for work elsewhere, merely list themselves not as applicants for jobs but as alumni with certain training and experience and professional or business interests. Then when employing concerns come to us looking for men for junior executive positions, for instance, or requiring maturity and experience beyond that possessed by most college graduates, we will be able to go over with them the alumni listed and help them to select one or two appropriate ones to whom to make their proposition.

The increasing activity of the Oregon Dads and of leaders among the alumni in the placement field is likely to increase substantially the number of such calls received at the University. It is accordingly appropriate for young graduates who, although not seeking employment, would be interested in propositions for promotion to list themselves promptly. One position for which we have had call for a number of months but have not been able to fill is that for a man having had experience of successful salesmanship and bookkeeping for an attractive position with a high-class employer.

SDX Chapter Best

The University of Oregon chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity, has been named the best in the nation according to word received by the local chapter. The award is a tribute to the professional standards of the school of journalism.

A score of 96—the highest ever given to any chapter—was given to the Oregon chapter in the annual competition. Activities of the local chapter have included: contests for the best weekly newspapers of the state, the best high school papers, best news stories in non-metropolitan papers, community service award, arranging for the campus appearance of nationally-known speakers. The high scholarship rating of the members and their journalism activities counted heavily in the contest.

M. H. Douglass was the guest of honor at a recent banquet commemorating his completion of thirty years as University librarian.

At the national convention held in Milwaukee, Wis., Palmer Hoyt, '23, manager of The Oregonian was named national treasurer of the organization. Mr. Hoyt has taken an active interest in the affairs of the local chapter and his interest and advice has helped to increase the value of the organization to the school of journalism and to Oregon journalism.

M. H. Douglass Honored

Matthew H. Douglass was honored guest at a dinner held on the campus during Homecoming. Mr. Douglass has just completed 30 years' service as librarian for the University, and the dinner was arranged for him by members of the library staff. Miss Lenore Casford, '27, M.A. '31, presided. Miss Beatrice Barker, ex-'24, and Dean Karl W. Onthank, '13, were among the speakers.

Special guests for the dinner were Dr. and Mrs. Donald M. Erb, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Hunter, Dr. and Mrs. John Henry Nash, Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Boyer, Dr. and Mrs. Burt Brown Barker, and Dr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Skiff.

Memorial Plaque

A bronze plaque in memory of the 47 University of Oregon students who lost their lives in the World War has been placed in the new entrance to Howe field. The commemorative plaque is a part of the wrought iron gate project on Howe field which was made possible by the class gifts of the classes of 1919, 1920, 1930, and 1935.

This group of Oregon Alumni gathered in New York City on November 17 to meet with Dr. Erb, president of the University. They are:

Harry Schenk Named ONPA Manager

Harry S. Schenk, advertising manager of the McMinnville Telephone-Register, has been appointed manager of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association to succeed Arne Rae, '22, whose resignation will be effective January 1. The appointment of Mr. Schenk, '33, as assistant professor of journalism to succeed Mr. Rae in that position in the University of Oregon has been recommended to Chancellor Hunter and the Oregon State Board of Higher Education by President Erb and Dean Eric W. Allen.

Although Mr. Schenk will not officially assume his duties with the ONPA until January 1, he plans to get into Eugene on week-ends and to spend more time during December acquainting himself with the duties of the office.

Following his graduation from the U. of O. school of journalism in 1933 he joined the advertising staff of the Eugene Register-Guard. From there he went to McMinnville to become advertising manager of the T.R. Prior to his graduation he had been employed in advertising work on the Oregon Journal, Portland, and during his senior year at the University was business manager of the Oregon Daily Emerald, student publication. While in the University he was also active in Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity, of which he was a president.

Last spring Mr. Schenk completed a term as president of the ONPA Advertising Managers, and since the creation of that organization has been active in its affairs. He also served as chairman of the advertising promotion committee of the ONPA, of which he is now vice-chairman.

A large number of applicants and suggested candidates were considered by the executive committee of the association, which met in Portland to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Rae's resignation.

Lane County Dads Meet

With the election of officers at a dinner meeting held in Eugene on November 30, the Lane County Oregon Dads effected plans for a permanent organization. Any man in Lane county with a child, ward, or grandchild enrolled in the University is eligible for membership.

Elected president was Karl F. Thuneman, father of Robert L. Thunemann, '37. Vice-president is Fred G. Stickels, ex-'16. Mr. Stickels is the father of Emerson Stickels, '38, and Fred Stickels, member of the class of 1942. Mrs. Stickels is the former Florence Thrall, '14. Raymond A. Torrey, father of Gordon H. Torrey class of 1942, is secretary-treasurer.

Address Available

"The Companionship of Learning and Life," the inaugural address made by Dr. Donald M. Erb, president of the University, at the Sixty-first annual commencement last spring has been published in the November, 1938, issue of the Commonwealth Review. A preprint in booklet form has been prepared for those wishing copies of the speech. Anyone wishing a copy may secure it by writing to the University Editor.

Oregon Men Named

Oregon alumni placed in prominent public office by the last general election include: Homer Angell, '00, who becomes United States congressman for the first district in Oregon. Mr. Angell is a former president of the Oregon Alumni association. Rex I. Putnam, '15, was re-elected superintendent of public instruction for the state.

Eight Oregon alumni became district attorneys by election. Grant J. Williams, '25, Curry county; James R. Bain, LL.B., '12, Multnomah county; David R. Parker, LL.B., '03, Gilliam county; Robert V. Chrisman, LL.B., '34, Wallowa; Harlow L.

Weinrick, B.A. '28, LL.B. '29, Linn county; Royd R. Overhulse, ex-'33, Jefferson county. Mrs. Overhulse is the former Helena Graham, '31.

West Named CLU Prexy

Thomas H. West, LL.B. '06, has been elected president of the Portland, Ore., chapter of the Chartered Life Underwriters. The Chartered Life Underwriters are a group that are under the sponsorship of the American College of Life Underwriters. To win the C.L.U. designation, the members must pass very rigid examinations and complete an involved course of study. There are only 1534 insurance men in the United States who have been able to complete the work.

Discoveries of evidences of prehistoric man in southeastern Oregon by Dr. L. S. Cressman, head of the University of Oregon department of anthropology, are described in detail in a recent issue of the news service bulletin of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D.C.

The entire issue of the bulletin, which is sent to thousands of schools, colleges, libraries, periodicals, and other places throughout the world, is devoted to the work of Dr. Cressman and his associates. The article has been entitled "Fresh Light on the Antiquity of Man in America."

Skeletal remains, basketry and other evidences of men who lived in Oregon approximately 10,000 or more years ago, were found in caves in the Catlow and other regions of southeastern Oregon, the article relates. Photographs of the objects, as well as maps and scenes of that section of the state, are used to illustrate the article.

The article states "In view of what has been found Dr. Cressman is confident that if the remains of early men are to be found anywhere in the northwest, such evidence exists in the Pleistocene caves of the Oregon area. The work that he has done strengthens this opinion and also the conviction of many scientists working on the subject that Man was actually present in America, if not actually during the glacial time, then surely during very early post-glacial time."

The Carnegie Institution has shown a great interest in Dr. Cressman's work, and has aided in sponsoring expeditions of exploration. A display

Mr. E. C. Fansett, Secretary,
Oregon Alumni Association,
University of Oregon,
Eugene, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Fansett:

Receipt of my October OLD OREGON this morning reminded me that I had not yet asked you to change my name and address. I was married on June 26th at the First Congregational Church in Forest Grove, Oregon, to Mr. Robin Adair Galloway, tax expert for the firm of Schwabacher & Co., Investment Bankers and members of the New York Stock Exchange. After a wedding trip to Canada, visiting Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, and Victoria, we have returned to San Francisco to live.

My address now is:
Mrs. Robin Adair Galloway,
2337 Green Street,
San Francisco, California.

There are many former Oregonians here in the Bay Area and it makes one feel quite at home to see so many familiar faces.

Eugene, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Fansett:

My neighbor Dr. Irving Anderson, who is on the staff at Harvard, loaned me several copies of OLD OREGON today, which reminded me to send the enclosed two dollars for a subscription to OLD OREGON.

Polly Povey Thompson, '35, my wife, received her Bachelor of Architecture degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology last June, after which we sailed for Europe on an architectural tour of England, Denmark, Sweden, Germany, Holland, Belgium, and France. Our visit in London was made doubly enjoyable by a chance meeting with Carl Heilborn. Carl resigned his position designing motion picture sets in Hollywood, and is making an architectural tour around the world. Since our return this fall Polly won a prize in a local architectural competition conducted by the "American Home" magazine. She is now employed in the office of Archie Riskin, a Boston architect.

I am still on the faculty of the Department of Architectural Construction of Wentworth Institute, Boston.

Yours sincerely,

RAYMOND K. THOMPSON, '29.

Dear Sirs:

I was just wondering if you would forward copies of "Old Oregon" published since my graduation in June. My address is contained in the above letterhead, to be used as a mailing address for future copies of the magazine, which I believe was included in the cost of graduation.

For your information, I have been assigned by the Department of Interior, to Camp Mill Creek, Co. 263, since June 10, as Camp Educational Adviser.

Thank you in advance for your consideration and cooperation.

Your sincerely,

HOWARD R. LEE, G. '38,
Educational Adviser.

Duck Basketeers Barnstorm East Coast

By Vincent Gates, Old Oregon Sports Editor

In conquest of the Pacific Coast conference basketball title with nine lettermen from last year's Northern division championship team, the Oregon Webfoots will barnstorm the east during the Christmas holiday season for a nine-game schedule.

Opening in New York December 17 against City college, the Hobson crew will attempt to take the measure of such first-rate quintets as Miami university, Cleveland, Wayne university, Detroit, Drake of Des Moines, and finally a revenge game against the Stanford Indians in San Francisco for the trouncing they gave the Ducks in last year's Coast play-off.

Four pre-schedule games with Portland industrial teams will reveal to Coach Hobson what wrinkles in team play need ironing out before the scheduled eastern trip.

Lacking the form that carried them to the top of the division last year, the Webfoots are still fighting for their varsity posts—Gale, Wintermute, Anet and Johansen still being pressed by lettermen Hardy, Mullen, Pavalunas, Dick and Sarpola. Hobson indicated several non-lettermen from last year's freshman squad will get a try-out, Earl Sandness, Toivo Piippo, Evert McNeeley, and "Porky" Andrews considered as possible varsity material.

Before the conference schedule opens in January the Webfoots will attack the following slate:

December 17—College of New York, New York.

December 19—St. Joseph College, Philadelphia.

December 20—Miami university, Cleveland.

December 22—Canisius college, Buffalo.

December 23—Wayne university, Detroit.

December 26—Bradley Tech, Peoria.

December 27—Western Illinois State, Chicago.

December 29—Drake university, Des Moines.

December 31—Stanford university, San Francisco.

gon State's Beavers. The tune was a pair of touchdowns, the music was furnished by Jim Kisselburgh, Orange fullback, and the finale was a fanfare of 14 points. Thus, for the third successive year, the Webfoots failed to cross the State goal.

For three quarters the two elevens played nip and tuck, the Oregon offense bogging down on the Orange 20, and the Staters going to the Webfoots' 22 in the third period. Suddenly Kisselburgh shot through a hole at center just as the third quarter ended for a 32-yard gain to the Oregon 7-yard line. With the last quarter a minute old the sophomore State back had crashed for a touchdown that gave the Orangemen a lead.

The second touchdown followed quickly, after Oregon's desperate passes had carried them to the Orange 29, Hutchins intercepting a flat pass from Jimmy Nicholson and running it back to the 40-yard line. Higgins' punt return for 38 yards to the Oregon 28, was followed by line plays, Kisselburgh again going over from the one-yard mark.

Injuries to the first-string guards provided a weak spot in the Oregon line which OSC capitalized on.

Oregon 3, Washington 0

Washington's revamped Huskies who took the measure of the Coast conference champs, USC, the week before found the jinx of Oregon victories too much for them to handle and went down to a 3-0 defeat, the Webfoots scoring on a field goal by Nicholson. Hailed as a good passing outfit, and with Oregon having shown a decided weakness during previous games in pass defense, the Huskies threw the football all over the field, but succeeded in completing only one pass, that good for one yard. The Duck forward wall was stubborn and refused to yield to the pounding of the Washington backs, and Reginato, Lance, and Yerby, ends, kept Jimmy Johnston bottled up all afternoon.

Jimmy Nicholson, in addition to booting the necessary field goal for victory, passed and ran the Huskies dizzy, and was by far the outstanding back of the day. Donovan, Gebhardt, and Cadenasso also showed to advantage.

Oregon 0, California 20

The California Golden Bears of Berkeley, defending champs of the conference, found the Oregon eleven too strong to risk the second team against, after the Oliver men had marched half the length of the field in the first minutes of the game to place the ball on the 10-yard line, and rushed the regulars in to halt the drive. For two quarters the Webfoots tried gamely to score, taking the ball within scoring distance twice, but the big California line aided by Oregon penalties, held and with the aid of a long forward pass from Vic Bottari to Louis Smith scored twice in the last two minutes of the second period.

"Slim" Wintermute, Oregon's 6 foot 8 inch basketball star, drops one in the basket to show how easy it is. Wintermute, Anet, Johansen, and Gale play their last year of competition this winter.

Oregon 0, OSC 14

The season-old habit of forgetting about the last quarter played havoc with Tex Oliver's Webfoots in the annual "civil war" battle with Ore-

Again the Bears came back and marched 61 yards to scoring ground in the opening minutes of the second period, but Oregon stiffened and held the score down from then on, with offensive thrusts of their own going to the 15, and the 6.

Stenstrom was the shining light of the day, carrying the ball for 81 yards in one series of offensive threats, but the Webfoots were unable to push a touchdown across.

Oregon 19, Idaho 6

The Homecoming game at Eugene brought the favored Vandals from Moscow to the lair of the Webfoots. After Ray Smith, fleet Idaho end, had crossed Oregon's goal in the second period, on a pass from Hal Roise, the Webfoots came from behind and tied the count on a brilliant 92-yard run by Bob Smith. Nicholson put the Ducks ahead with a try-for-point.

In the third period the Webfoots scored on a long run as Ted Gebhardt sped through a hole in the center of the line for 34 yards. Gebhardt scored again shortly after, from the one-yard mark following Nicholson's 65-yard runback of a punt.

Oregon 7, USC 31

The Coast conference winners, USC's Trojans, ran rough-shod over the Webfoots on Portland's Multnomah field, 31-7, with Lansdell occupying the role of the unstoppable back.

The defeat was the third for the Webfoots since they entrained on their 7000-mile cross-country jaunt.

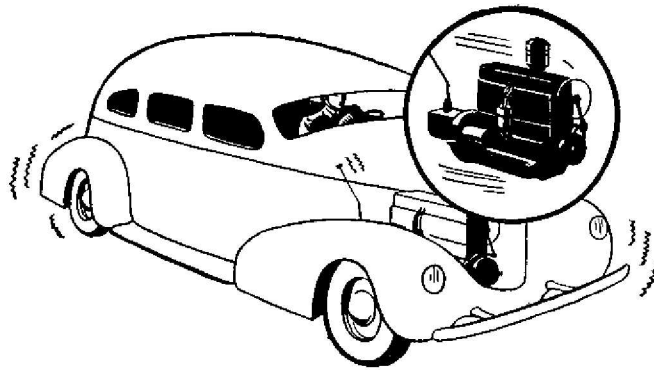

Lansdell's pass to Stanley set up the first score on the Oregon 13, where an interference penalty put the ball. Another pass to Morgan was good for the score.

Lansdell himself scored a few minutes later from the 4-yard mark, after a series of line plays and end runs.

Ollie Day, another quarterback, shot a pass over Gebhardt's head just before the half-time for the third touchdown, to give the Trojans an 18-0 lead.

Oregon came back stronger in the second half, but the Trojans scored twice more. Banta bucked over for a score, after a 34-yard ground attack, and Boyle Nave picked up a rolling punt to gallop 66 yards behind perfect interference.

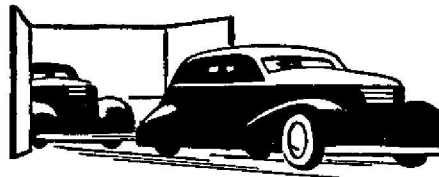

Oregon's score came in the final quarter. Hank Nilsen intercepted Nave's pass on the Trojan 48 and dashed to the 24. Gammon made three yards, and then Jimmy Nicholson romped 18 around left end before laterally to Bill Rach, the Oregon fullback, who went to the Trojan 9. Rach went to the 4, and then Nicholson passed to Bob Blenkinsop for the touchdown. Nicholson kicked the goal.

THERE'S A QUICK STARTING MOTOR HIDING IN YOUR CAR

Every car has two winter motors—one that's lazy, sluggish—one that's alive, quick on the trigger. Associated Aviation Ethyl gasoline gives you that ONE that starts instantly and stays started—regardless of temperature.

Aviation Ethyl gives you split second starting because it's refined after rigid aircraft specifications. Its dry vapor gets to the cylinders faster in ready-to-fire form.

MAKE THIS TEST

Put in a tankful of Associated Aviation Ethyl today. Then see for yourself—in your own car—how easy winter starting becomes when you take advantage of a true aviation fuel (the only true aviation fuel available to western motorists.) Fill up with Aviation Ethyl at your neighborhood Smiling Associated Dealer's today.

Emerald seems to indicate that others have similar thoughts.

It occurs to me that there is a noticeable lack of cooperation of the latent power and strength of the great mass of former Oregon students. Is it possible that we have a small group who form alumni policies without asking for comment or suggestion or who disregard them when offered, or is it a case of everyone not giving a whoop—except the small minority who prefer a "status quo" for some reason or other? If it is the latter then we have no one to blame but ourselves for not exercising our prerogative—alumni voting.

I attended class reunion and homecoming this year and since have been forced to make comparisons. If the several examples of alumni organizing which I have seen recently are typical of other work, then I believe there is a bad case of "dry rot" in the timber structure of the good ship "Old Oregon" and it is about time we do some dry-docking and see what is wrong.

To assist in bettering our organization I recommend this:

1. Ask and allow constructive criticism through OLD OREGON and the Oregon Emerald.

2. See that the paid secretariat organizes and follows up on local alumni chapters. (If such is being done I find no comment on it either in the alumni publication or from inquiries.)

Let's quit "joking" and hear what others have to say—we might get a few surprises that have been long delayed and badly needed.

DEL MONTE,
Ex-class of '28.

OLD OREGON has always welcomed constructive criticism from Oregon alumni. Such criticism always springs from the desire of alumni to strengthen their Alma Mater. The lack of critical comment in OLD OREGON is due entirely to the fact that too few of the alumni take deep enough interest in the affairs of the Alumni Association to trouble to write in.

It is very possible that a comparatively small group influences Association affairs out of proportion to its size. This influence is natural because the persons comprising this group are always so actively engaged in the work of the Association and the University that their influence is always present.

This group is not in any sense exclusive—there is room in it for every alumnus of the University of Oregon. Anyone who takes an active part in the work of the Association automatically becomes a member of this group. Its membership card is the desire to aid the Association plus a constructive interest in the group.

OLD OREGON invites your criticism and suggestion. Send them in.

Aoyama Gakuin,
Shibuya, Tokyo,
October 31, 1938.

Dear OLD OREGON:

We are only too glad to send you our renewal order, for OLD OREGON is the one magazine that we both read from cover to cover, when it comes, for it brings such welcome news of our friends and our University.

Everyone knows that Jack simply cannot sing, but the other day, on an overnight excursion with fifth year boys of our middle school, students of 16 and 17 years of age, he sang "Oregon, Our Alma Mater" and the "Oregon Pledge Song" as a stunt for their class meetings in the Japanese inn at Ikaoh hot springs. Whenever he goes, if students are holding class meetings, singing our Alma Mater song seems to be the most popular kind of entertainment for them.

Oregon's victories (and defeats) in football this season have not gone unnoticed, even so far away as we are, and the newspaper sport pages and copies of OLD OREGON that keep us informed about these matters are shared with American-born Japanese in our classes.

Every evening, we listen to the "News in English" broadcast of Tokyo's JOAK by genial Charles Yoshii, a fellow alumnus of our school, and we are always disappointed when some foreigner (American) substitutes for "Chuck" for his voice is far better than that of a native American of European ancestry.

This summer, through the courtesy of Mr. Yosuke Matsuoka, also a graduate of U. of O., who holds the important post of President of the South Manchurian Railway company, Jack visited political and industrial centers, including the major cities of Korea, Manchuokuo, North China, and Inner Mongolia: Seoul and Heijo, Korea; Mukden, Fushun, Hsinking, Korea; Harbin, Manchuokuo; Peking, China; Kalgan, Chahar province, Inner Mongolia; Dairen, Kwantung Leased Territory, and other places of interest. He accompanied two noblemen of the royal family of Aischingero, cousins of the Emperor of Manchuokuo, and a Japanese baron and others into the high plateaus and steppes of Mongolia before returning to Japan.

At the same time, Mary Louise visited Matsushima, Lake Nojiri and other vacation spots in Japan.

Of course, our principal interest in Japan, and reason for being here is the English department of Aoyama Gakuin. The English Speaking Society has just published the October number of "English Aoyama," with Jack's assistance, and this week are presenting two English plays, "Spreading the News," by Lady Gregory and "Ile" by Eugene O'Neill, both with complete stage settings and costumes. Can you imagine a group of students of an American college attempting quite so much in French or German?

The other evening delegates of the Second Japan-America student conference met together for dinner and we enjoyed an evening of fellowship with a number of young men and women we had met in Portland, many of whom we had also seen several times here. Among them was Miss Takako Nakajima, who has graduated from the University of Oregon.

We attended some of the informal sessions of the fifth Japan-America student conference held this summer at Keio. We had the pleasure of having Miss Kiyoko Tsuboi of Portland, another U. of O. graduate, as a dinner guest in our home. Bruce Rogers, stranded in Hawaii, arrived late, missing the Tokyo sessions of the conference. He is now studying and working in Tokyo, and we expect to meet him soon.

Extra-curricular English classes, Wesley Fellowship discussion groups, private lessons and informal meetings bring us into contact with students of Waseda, Keio, Tokyo Imperial and other universities of Tokyo and give us a chance, not only to teach them a bit of English, but also to learn some Japanese ourselves.

We are greatly enjoying life in our Japanese house, and wish some more Oregon folks could cross our threshold. We have just completed a holiday trip to the Fuji 5 Lakes and Hakone.

Sincerely yours,

JACK and MARY LOUISE
BELLINGER,

Dear OLD OREGON:

Enclosed please find my check for another year's subscription. You will note our address is changed once again. Moving around as we do, we find OLD OREGON our only link with the "good old days." Please send us, if possible, the back numbers we have missed since our subscription expired.

My husband entered Stanford last summer quarter for a full year's graduate work in education. Among his classmates are Wendell Van Loan, "Mike" Hoyman, and the Senn twins, as well as several other Oregon alums.

Last year my husband was superintendent of schools in Glide, Oregon, and he plans to resume his career in school administration next fall.

We are both greatly enjoying our stay at Stanford; the campus is beautiful and the scholastic program excellent, although in some respects not as broad as Oregon's.

At present campus activities center around Big Game preparations, and a semblance of "school spirit" and enthusiasm is noticed. For this occasion, a feeling akin to the everyday pep and life of the Oregon campus has been aroused, but ordinarily Stanford campus life doesn't look like much fun, from the outside, anyway.

Sincerely,

HILDA GILLAM BUEL,
(Mrs. Lauren S. Buel, '36).

Dear Editor:

Florence Grebe Deute is now my neighbor here in the East. She lives in Baltimore, Maryland. Florence (Mrs. Arthur H.) came from San Francisco and was married in Frederick, Maryland, on July 6 of this year. Her address: Stony Run Lane. . . Humbolt (Hutm) Greig and his wife Jessie Powell Greig have just moved from New York City to Old Greenwich, Conn. They have a little girl that will be a year old on November 12, 1938. . . We are all hoping to go to the game in New York and see Oregon win. . . Frances Effinger Rothenburg is now living in Stamford, Conn., and has a little daughter sixteen months old.
