Key to Cover Picture

This airplane view of a portion of the University campus was taken during the early part of the summer:

1. The physical plant warehouse has been built from the old handball courts which were moved when the new physical education building was erected.
2. The corner of the men's dormitory erected in 1929 and named John Straub hall in memory of John Straub, member of the University faculty from 1878 until his death in 1932.
3. The new student health service built in 1936. The lower floor houses the dispensary and the second floor provides for the complete care of 26 patients.
4. The University depot built in 1924 is headquarters for the physical plant. Here is the heating plant which furnishes heat for the whole campus. The steam is piped to the individual buildings through more than a mile of heating tunnels.
5. The University Press built in 1925 handles all the printing for the University and much of the work for the State System of Higher Education. It also serves as a laboratory for the school of journalism. The Emerald is published here and journalism students are given the chance to learn the complete workings of a newspaper from the time it is "copy" until it rolls off the press.
6. Home Economics and the Extension division are housed in this building which was built in 1908. The Home Economics department will soon move to Chapman Hall.
7. The Swimming Pavilion was rebuilt in 1936 from the pool which was a part of the old men's gym. The building was entirely rebuilt so that facilities are provided for about 500 spectators. The pool was enlarged and deepened to provide for high board diving.
8. The Arts and Architecture Building was built in 1901 with additions in 1914 and 1922. It is constructed of brick and stucco and contains classrooms, numerous studios, drafting rooms, and a gallery for the display of student work and loan exhibitions as well as the Architecture and Allied Arts library. The units are groups around an attractively planned court.

9. McClure Hall was named in memory of Professor Edgar McClure who died in 1897. It contains classrooms and laboratories for the department of chemistry. Backed to it is the journalism building which was built in 1922. It houses the journalism school and the editorial offices of the Oregon Daily Emerald. Complete newspaper equipment is provided for the students.
10. S. H. Friendly hall was originally built in 1893 as a dormitory, and extensive additions were made in 1914. It now houses offices and classrooms for the College of Arts and Letters; the alumni office and the offices of the University editor are located here. It was named after S. H. Friendly, regent of the University from 1895 to 1915.
11. Johnson Hall is also known as the Administration Building and was built in 1915. Named after John Wesley Johnson, first president of the University, it houses the central offices of the State System of Higher Education. The University administrative offices, business offices, and the University Theater are also in this building.
12. The Dramatic Studio was built in 1921. It serves as headquarters for student dramatic work.
13. Hendricks Hall was built in 1917 and provides dormitory accommodations for 112 girls. Besides the student suites the hall contains a spacious living room and smaller rooms for receiving guests. The building was named for T. G. Hendricks, regent of the University from 1872 to 1885.
14. Gerlinger Hall, built in 1920, is more commonly known as the women's building. It was built from funds given to the University by alumni and friends of the school aided by a state appropriation. It houses the women's gymnasium, swimming pool, and Alumni Hall which serves as a social center for the University. It was named for Mrs. George Gerlinger, regent of the University from 1914 to 1929.

15. Susan Campbell hall was built in 1921 and completes the women's quadrangle composed of Hendricks Hall, Gerlinger Hall, The Pioneer Mother, and Susan Campbell. It is very similar in structure to Hendricks Hall, and was named for Mrs. Prince L. Campbell, wife of the late president of the University.
16. Villard Hall was erected in 1885 and named for Henry Villard, early benefactor of the University. It houses the administrative offices of the College of Arts and Letters and has many classrooms of the English department.
17. Deady Hall was the first building on the campus, erected in 1876. It was named after Judge Matthew P. Deady, president of the Board of Regents from 1873 to 1893. It now houses laboratories for physics, zoology, botany, and mathematics.
18. Fenton Hall served as the University library from 1907 until 1937. At that time it was entirely reconditioned to house the Law school and the Bureau of Municipal Research. The stacks were converted into huge air-conditioned reading rooms, housing the law library and the Kenneth Lucas Fenton memorial law library. The building is named in honor of the late William David Fenton, prominent Oregon attorney who was a benefactor of the Law School.
19. Chapman Hall is now under construction and will house the English department, the home economics department and the student co-operative book store. It will be completed for use during the coming school year, and is named in honor of Charles H. Chapman, second president of the University.
20. The Commerce building, built in 1921 to house the School of Business Administration.
21. Oregon Hall faces the Commerce building and is built on a similar architectural plan. It houses offices of the College of Social Science and the classrooms of the departments of Economics, History, Political Science, and Sociology. It was built in 1916.
22. Condon Hall faces Chapman Hall and the two structures of the same plan. It is designed as the first wing of a larger structure containing laboratories and classrooms for geology, geography, psychology, and anthropology. The Museum of Natural History is on the second floor. The building is named after Dr. Thomas Condon, pioneer geologist of Oregon and a member of the University faculty from the foundation of the school until his death in 1893.
23. The Museum of Arts was erected in 1930, a gift to the University from the people of the state, its alumni, and friends. It was built to house the

1899 Reunion

I am sure all of our class members had a pleasant time. This is our third reunion since our graduation and I'm sure we are agreed that the last one was the best.

You all ask how we maintain interest and enthusiasm and class loyalty? I think that is all due to the fact that in our day the enrollment was small and real and lasting friendships were made which will endure even though years lapse between visits.

Fourteen out of the original twenty-two came back and these with husbands and wives and daughters made up our group of twenty-five at our dinner at the hotel.

The following is the list of class members who returned:

- C. L. Templeton, M.D., Seattle, Wn.
  - John R. Barber, M.D., White Salmon, Wn.
  - Anna Grimes Calef, Portland, Ore.
  - Marie Thompson Paisley, Portland, Ore.
  - Leslie M. Scott, Portland, Ore.
  - James H. Carrico, M.D., Portland, Ore.
  - Lawrence Read, Gladstone, Ore.
  - Charles V. Galloway, Salem, Ore.
  - Zola Grimes Sorensen, Eugene, Ore.
  - Lulu Renshaw Dunbar, Eugene, Ore.
  - Maude Kerns, Eugene, Ore.
  - Blaine H. Hovey, Eugene, Ore.
  - Roscoe S. Bryson, Eugene, Ore.
  - Lizzie Griffin Bryson, Eugene, Ore.
- Lizzie G. Bryson.

Sports Record Impressive

By BRUCE HAMBY
ASUO Publicity Director

Championships and individual honors fell thick and fast on University of Oregon teams and players this past year to make the period one of the most successful in history.

Conference titles were won by the basketball, baseball, and golf teams to give Oregon top ranking in three of seven major athletic fields. In the other four competitive sports Oregon gained a tie for fifth in football, a second in swimming and third places in track and tennis.

Highlight of the year, of course, was the national collegiate basketball championship won by Howard Hobson's colorful quintet. The Webfoots, rated as the greatest court combination in northwest history, continued their winning tactics after regular northern division play to annex the Pacific Coast conference crown and then the western regional and national N. C. A. A. playoffs.

The remarkable record of the basketball team will stand out for many years. It was the first Oregon team ever to invade the east and was the first in 20 years to win the coast championship.

Three Get All-American

Three of the starting five players were accorded all-American rating, a record accomplishment in itself. Laddie Gale was named on the NEA five and later in the season Captain Bob Anet and towering Slim Wintermute were honored on the Chuck Taylor all-American, selected by the former court star for a sporting goods concern. Wally Johansen and John Dick, the other two regulars, also came in for a large share of all-star honors. Gale and Wintermute finished one-two in the northern division individual scoring race.

Following the tumultuous basketball season Coach Hobson piloted a dark-horse baseball nine to its fourth northern division title in six years. The Webfoots played consistently good ball throughout the season and landed three seniors in professional ranks. Bob Hardy, star southpaw pitcher, and Captain Ford Mullen and Gale Smith, infielders, all were signed by the Detroit Tigers at the close of the year.

The traditionally strong Oregon golf team played a rather ungracious role of host in the annual northern division links championship, dominating the field at the Eugene country club. A four-man team of Captain Bill Watson, Ben Hughes, Fred Davis, and Shelby Golden finished 14 strokes ahead of the second-place Washington quartet to take team honors. Hughes clipped five strokes from par to win the medalist trophy with a card of 139.

While Colonel Bill Hayward's track and field team did not rank with many of his previous cinder squads, it did produce several outstanding individual performers, among them Captain George Varoff and Rod Hansen, pole vaulters; Boyd Brown, javelin thrower, and Kirman Storli, half-miler.

Varoff, Brown Score

Varoff climaxed three years of collegiate competition by winning the national A.A.U. championship with a 14 foot 4 inch vault at Lincoln, Neb. Brown also won the A.A.U. javelin crown at 215 feet, far under the 224 foot 1½ inch toss that set a new Pacific coast conference meet record earlier in the season. Storli, captain-elect of the 1940 team, placed third in the A.A.U. meet.

Any mention of the year's activities would not be complete without recognizing the national champion R. O. T. C. rifle team and its captain, Stanley Warren, who shot a perfect 200 score to shatter all previous individual records. It was the third national rifle championship in five years for Coach Harvey Blythe.

While Coach Tex Oliver's 1939 Oregon football eleven did not win championship honors it did turn in the best conference record in three years.

Highlights of the season were the thrilling 14 to 12 victory over U.C.L.A. on Hayward field at Eugene and the 3 to 0 "jinx" victory over Washington at Portland.

Football Colorful

Under Oliver's guidance the Webfoots displayed a colorful, versatile offense that never failed to produce thrills. The "breakaway" plays advocated by Oliver resulted in more than 30 long gains ranging from 10 up to 92 yards.

With a fair-sized group of returning veterans and some promising talent up from freshman ranks, Oliver has high hopes of bettering his inaugural record this coming fall.

Oregon's 1939 swimming team, coached by Ned Johns, produced two brilliant sophomores who are definitely in line for the 1940 Olympic consideration. They are Sherman Wetmore, who specialized in the backstroke, and Jack Dallas, breaststroke expert.

Left is Coach "Tex" Oliver who has just completed his first year as head football coach and looks forward to a successful season next fall after the results of spring practice sessions. Right is Coach Howard Hobson who had a successful season with his "tall fir" basketball boys capturing the national collegiate championship and his spring baseball squad capturing the northern division crown.

Venice, June, 1939.

Here is some news from Nella Roster at last! In English words I inform you that on the 21st of June I married a nice Genoese boy, Dr. G. Evangelisti with whom I shall live for this summer at the seaside in Chiavari at the mentioned address. In autumn we shall move to Genoa where we intend to settle. I'll inform all my Oregon friends through the Old Oregon, of my new address because I am sure that many of them will have the opportunity of passing through that city, and I'll love to greet them and spend pleasant hours with them.

I have been teaching near Turin this winter and hope they shall give me a position in Genoa for next year not to be obliged to go back to my school, which is too far from Genoa and husband.

I remember all the nice friends I once had in Oregon and wish they do too. I hope to hear from many of them soon!

My husband and I are now spending a week in Venice which looks in its best. Best greetings and wishes.

Sincerely,

NELLA EVANGELISTI ROSTER,

George Varoff, captain of the 1939 track squad, climaxed three years of collegiate competition by winning the national A. A. U. championship by vaulting 14 feet 4 inches at Lincoln, Neb. His teammate, Boyd Brown, threw the javelin 215 feet for another championship. Brown broke the Pacific Coast conference meet record with a toss of 224 feet 1 1/2 inches earlier in the season. Both boys appeared at the meet under the San Francisco Olympic club colors.

U. of O. Again Carnegie Center

For the ninth consecutive year, the University of Oregon was chosen for the site of the summer Carnegie Art Center. The University of Oregon on the west coast and Harvard University on the east coast were given grants by the Carnegie corporation to carry on this work.

The Carnegie corporation originally made the grants to the educational committee of the American Institute of Architects to further the teaching of art in the schools. In the summer of 1922 under the direction of the committee, an art center was established in Chicago. It was so successful that it was repeated. It was then moved to Harvard, and since 1930 there have been two centers, Oregon and Harvard.

The grant given the University of Oregon through the committee this summer was more than $3000. This was sufficient to pay the traveling and living expenses of the twenty-three art teachers who were chosen. During this session, the students were all ones who had attended previous Art Centers.

Choice Honors University

The choice of the University of Oregon for this work is recognition of the fine standards maintained by the School of Architecture and Allied Arts. The Art Centers are conducted on the same basis as the regular sessions—the feeling that each student is an individual who will acquire education through his own personal experience. Formal grading, examinations and other usual academic procedure are kept in the background and the individual student is guided to accomplish and learn as much as he is able. Students this summer were able to take work in painting and drawing, sculpture, interior and applied design, art appreciation and the history of painting. One student, Constance Fowler, completed work for the degree of Master of Fine Arts.

Professor W. R. B. Willcox acted as director for the center and was assisted by Andrew Vincent, painting and drawing; Brownell Frasier, interior and applied design; N. B. Zane, art appreciation and the history of painting; Miss Jean Sutherland, sculpturing.

At the conclusion of the regular summer session, members of the Art Center went to the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco where they held seminar conferences on the Fair

HOW TO GET RID OF CARBON "PING"—FOR GOOD!

... why have a car that runs like this

Too many cars, even the best of them, eventually develop carbon knocks or "ping." But the fault is not in the motor. It is caused in most cases by oils that form excessive amounts of hard carbon.

— when you can have one that runs like this?

It's so easy now to have a car that "purrs" instead of "pings." Simply change to Triton—the 100% PURE paraffin-base oil that forms so little new carbon it enables your motor to burn away old carbon deposits!

Enjoy the benefits of this 100% Pure paraffin-base oil that changes PING to PURR by cleaning out carbon as you drive!

You can get rid of annoying and damaging carbon ping easily and inexpensively with Triton Motor Oil. Because it is Propane-solvent refined, it forms so little new carbon that it actually allows your motor to burn away carbon deposited by other oils! The motor generally loses its carbon ping within 2 to 3 thousand miles!

When knocks go you get better gas mileage, increased power. You save on repairs and operating costs. Switch to Triton next time you refill.

Your surest motor protection is to drain regularly and use Triton

100% PURE PARAFFIN-BASE

Try it today!

"We like Triton so much, we haven't used anything else in our Ford for the last three years. The Union salesman told us Triton would keep our motor absolutely 'ping-free,' and it has done just that."

MRS. PEARL KORTZEN
Los Angeles

"I have used Triton since 1934. It has given me such noticeable results that I felt it only fair to write and let you know that I believe it to be the best motor oil available today."

24. The new University Library was built in 1937 at a cost of more than half a million dollars. It is air-conditioned throughout and houses the main portion of the library. On the first floor are the circulation lobby, reference room, catalogue room, the famous "Browsing Room" for recreational reading, reserve reading rooms and the offices. On the second floor are the open-shelf reserves, the map room, and the special collections room. The John Henry Nash collection of rare books is on this floor; the Burgess collection of incunabula and fine books is on the first floor. The third floor contains faculty research rooms and classrooms for library courses as well as the famous Oregon collection. In the basement is a large newspaper room, newspaper stacks and special facilities for blind students. In the rear of the building may be seen the five stories of "stacks" where study space is provided for graduate students.

Dear Sir:

I finished my work in March, 1939, and then went to San Francisco where I was selected along with 19 other men throughout the U.S.A., to come to Muskegon, Mich., where the factory of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. is located, and go through a one month's training course. When this is completed I will return to S.F., and work in the branch office there. Thanks again, and I wish "Old Oregon" the best of luck in the coming year.

Sincerely,

ED STROHECKER, '39.
