She's in the Navy Now By BETTY ANN STEVENS, '45

She's in the navy now! But a uniform is nothing new to Anne Frederiksen, '40, right. She wore the white sweater of a Kwama, the black and white emblem of a Phi Theta, and was a Mortar Board here on the Oregon campus. Now one of 120 WAVES training at Smith college, Anne is probably meeting girls she met when she supervised the regional AWS meet on the campus when she was president in 1940.

WHEN short, tailored Anne Frederiksen, '40, was a senior, and AWS president at Oregon, she little contemplated while watching "ROTCers" march every Thursday, that she herself would be going to Smith college in '42 for military training in the women's naval auxiliary. Yet that's precisely what Anne's doing this day, along with 120 other WAVE officer trainees.

Sleeping in a double-decker, marching to all classes and meals . . . meals served in true New England style at the Northampton Inn . . . five classes a day in naval organization, administration, personnel, naval history and strategy, and types of aircraft and ships, added to physical exercise and two hours of military . . . all are rapidly becoming routine.

"Life is full," Anne wrote not so long ago in a letter to Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration. "The WAVES is a great organization, and the training will be invaluable as time goes on."

DARK-HAIRED Anne was "truly one of of the most active activity girls this campus has ever seen," in the words of Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, assistant dean of women.

While on the campus, Anne was famed for her talkative, democratic manner, and her quiet, efficient way of getting things done. Commented a friend of hers, Marge Dibble, AWS president, "She has absolutely the most individual vocabulary I've ever known, and was constantly making fun of herself.

"They're stil talking about the wonderful way Anne put on the regional convention of AWS, when she was AWS president in 1940. She will take any job, absolutely, always making it a bang-up success."

"When she was on the Camp Fire personnel one summer, suddenly they were without a dietician for the camp, so Anne volunteered, without any previous knowledge of cookery or dietetics. She fed 250 girls for one and one-half months, with great success and capability.

WELL known for her sincerity and friendliness, she was a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, a Kwama, a member of Phi Theta Upsilon and Mortar Board, president of AWS, one of the senior six in Phi Beta Kappa, sophomore vice-president, in Collegiate Who's Who, chairman of the AWS carnival, Sigma Omega Chi publicity chairman, WAA sergeant-at-arms, winner of the Mortar Board plaque, receiver of the badminton cup, on a Junior Weekend committee, AWS social chairman, besides secretary of Delta Phi Alpha, and being active in the "Y," and the EMERALD advertising staff. She received her B.A. in social science with honors in 1940.

Following graduation, Anne did graduate work at California and studied at the Western Personnel school in Pasadena, later advancing to greater heights in her field doing personnel work for Lockheed Air corporation. Last summer she was transferred to Columbia Aircraft at her home town, Portland, as personnel director.

Then the "WAVE Bug" hit Anne, with the result that during the first week of October she found herself taking the entrance exams and going through a deluge of shots, "including tetanus, smallpox, and typhoid," the same thing that draftees have to face. Unsurprisingly enough, she made the highest grade of anyone on the west coast who took the exam.

TO date Anne is rooming with three girls from Wellesly and Carnegie Tech in "rooms that are simple" with double-decker beds, small closets, and no furniture or drawer space.

Girls in training are from a variety of occupations, including chemists, engineers, lawyers, teachers, and occupational therapists . . . all outstanding in their respective fields.

In her letter she explained that uniforms had not yet been issued, but she was expecting to get hers in a few weeks, and "cast aside civilian clothes for the duration, to march in strictly military attire.

Another Oregon coed, Mary Josephine Shelly, '26, a graduate of physical education, achieved recognition in the WAVES when she was named head of their physical training program. She was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Alums in the Service

By JEANNE PARKER, '43

Perm. Class Sec'y: Mrs. Era Godfrey Banks (Mrs. Walter H. Banks) 2231 McMillan St., Eugene, Oregon.

Captain Elmer G. Fletcher, '20, has been transferred from the army medical corps unit at Fort Ord, Calif., to one on the east coast. Captain Fletcher, who is the son of Mrs. Marie P. Fletcher of Eugene, was a practicing physician at Oakland, Calif., prior to reporting for army duty shortly before Christmas of 1941.

1922

Perm. Class Sec'y: Mrs. Helen Carson Plumb (Mrs. Herbert L. Plumb), 3312 Hunter Blvd., Seattle, Washington.

A recent letter from Douglas Polivka, '38, brought the news that Alexander G. Brown, '22, is a captain with the administrative branch of the army air forces. Captain Brown is stationed in Washington, D.C.

Perm. Class Sec'y: Mrs. Aulis Anderson Callaway (Mrs. Owen M. Callaway), 188 Parks Ave., Glen-coe, Ill.

Allan G. Carson, '23, Salem attorney, is now a captain in the army air corps and is stationed at Miami Beach, Fla. Captain Carson was ordered to duty in August and reported for induction at Miami Beach. His wife, Mrs. Merle Hamilton Carson, '19, will remain in Salem.

Major and Mrs. Wade H. Kerr, '23 (Iris L. Rodman, '31), are residing in Cheyenne, Wyo. Major Kerr is stationed at Fort Francis E. Warren.

Captain Donald F. McDonald, '23, M.F. A. '40, has been transferred from Camp Roberts, Calif., to the command school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Captain McDonald, son of Mrs. A. H. McDonald of Eugene, has been managing several theaters at Camp Roberts.

1925

Perm. Class Sec'y: Mrs. Marie Myers Bosworth (Mrs. Harlan P. Bosworth), 544 Conger Ave., Klamath Falls, Oregon.

Dr. Roland Allen, M.D. '25, has been commissioned a captain in the army medical corps and reported for duty at Fort

Lewis, Wn. The former Portland physician was an instructor at the Oregon medical school for five years and was attached to the police emergency hospital staff for two years.

Perm. Class Sec'y: Mrs. Alice Douglas Burns (Mrs. E. Murray Burns), 122 Maple Park, Olympia, Wn.

Word has just been received that a daughter, Darby Clark, was born May 30 to Captain and Mrs. Lyle C. Grimes, '30 (Guinevere A. Lamson, '28), at Fort Lewis, Wn. They also have a young son, named Bill. Captain Grimes was recently transferred from Fort Ord, Calif. to Camp Pickett at Blackstone, Va. Mrs. Grimes is continuing to make her home in Portland.

On This Issue . . .

To Oregon men in uniform everywhere, this "service issue" of OLD OREGON is dedicated.

Mortar Board, national senior womens honorary, starts with this publication a mailing service of the Webfoot magazine to grads and ex-students overseas.

Under the guiding hand of President Corrine Wignes Nelson, '43, the 300 copies will be sent in rotate order to those in North Africa, in Australia, in Solomons, wherever the Webfoot has a mailbox.

Tokio Hero Dies in Ohio Plane Crash

Under Jimmy Doolittle, Robert S. Clever, '41, far right, made a daring daylight raid on Tokyo and came through without a scratch but with a mighty exciting story to tell his Dad, A. C. Clever, right. On November 20 flying with six buddies on a routine hop over Ohio, something went wrong with the plane. The army bomber floundered to the ground, killing all its crew.

JIMMY DOOLITTLE is "somewhere" over North Africa. Jimmy wanted to take his Tokio surprise raiders with him to shoot the Nazis out of the sky. Not all of them went.

One that stayed behind was Lieut. Bob Clever, '41, whose ambition was not to go east but go west again with more steel-engraved messages for Emperor Hirohito. Just as OLD OREGON went to press came word that Bob had crashed near Greenville, Ohio.

Bob typified what the average American citizen thinks the average American flyer is like: happy-go-lucky, ruggedly handsome, modest but talkative.

BOB enjoyed his daringly dangerous trip over Tokio and was willing to talk—up to a point—about the jaunt with Jimmy when he was the "alum of the month"—only 90 days ago. He told how the planes approached the capital of "The New Order," skimmed along just over the treetops to reach the targets. Their aim was good and luckily the firing Japanese anti-aircraft wasn't so sharp.

Bob had a great time in Portland in July when he was given several weeks leave. Portland had a great time with Bob, too.

The city went "all out" to honor its hero. Bob had worked at the J. C. Penny company and the Oregonian. They, too, shone in Bob's reflected glory of being the first American to drop a bomb over Tokio.

FROM 1938 to 1942, Bob who was given the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Military Order of China for his part in the raid, was on the campus . . . living at Campbell . . . doing odd jobs . . . joking the pros. In 1942 he couldn't hold out any longer and joined the air corps before graduation.

As navigator-bomber on the ill-fated plane on a routine trip over Ohio when it crashed, Bob was one of seven who died. Army officials have not released full details concerning the accident.

The eighteenth gold star on the service flag hanging in Johnson hall will be a modest monument to Bob Clever, who proud of his first trip over Tokio, was impatiently waiting to play a return engagement when he died.

It's Lt. Col. Beelar Now!

The public relations office at Bolling field, D. C., recently announced the promotion of Donald C. Beelar, '28, to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the army air corps.

Lieutenant Colonel Beelar is the executive director of the directorate of communications for the air corps.

Mrs. Beelar, the former Virginia Patterson, '33, M.D. '36, is a psychiatrist and is associated with the George Washington hospital clinic in Washington. Lieutenant Colonel Beelar was president of the University of Oregon student body in 1927-28.

Alumni Name Nominees

By ELMER FANSETT, '28

Members of the nominating committee scratched their heads, then threw the hats of four S's into the ring—Stoddard and Staples for president; Stadleman and Schroeder for vice president. All are alumni directors. Each has a family of two potential Webfoots.

ALUMS returning for the 1942 Homecoming had a different story to tell this November—a story in keeping with the whole atmosphere of Homecoming—a story of their part in the war.

There wasn't a grad who couldn't tell of his "war experiences" whether of labor shortages in the lumber camps, tires almost gone on his "family bus," and then there were a few in uniform who had more exciting and unusual tales of Alaska and other far army outposts.

Not so many alums could get to this Homecoming—but they were remembered and honored in the weekend slogan, "The Home Fires Are Burning." A campus-wide drive swung into full force to register the name and present address of every alum in the service. To the living group who tallied up the most men fighting for Uncle Sam went a starred service flag. Delta Tau Delta and Kappa Sig tied with 143 names and both proudly display the flag.

SANDWICHED in between the radio broadcast Friday night rally and the roaring 14 to 7 victory over the UCLA Bruins Saturday afternoon, was the annual report from the Alumni Association nominating committee for the 1943 calendar year.

For president members selected N. Thomas Stoddard, '30, of Portland, and Herbert Carpenter Staples, '23, of Bend.

Vice president nominees were George Stadleman, '30, The Dalles and Elton Schroeder, '27, of Myrtle Point.

The knotty problem of who should be named to run as president of the Alumni association was untangled by Anton F. Peterson, '31, Clarence Codding, '35, and Virginia Hartje, '34.

Ballots are being mailed inside Old Oregon to all paid association members. Present President Harris Ellsworth, '22, urges alumni to exercise their voting privilege. Ballots must be postmarked not later than December 25, 1942, and mailed to Election Board, Alumni Association, University of Oregon, Eugene. Election returns will be announced January 1.

THE successful candidates will succeed President Ellsworth, who was recently elected as congressman, and Vice President Don B. McCormick, '32, now an ensign in the US naval reserve.

President Donald M. Erb met with the alumni directors preceding the regular business meeting to discuss future problems of higher education and the University of Oregon in particular. Among directors present were: President Ellsworth, Douglas county; Lawrence Hull, '23, Lincoln county; Schroeder, Coos county; John Houston, '21, Klamath county; Stadleman, Wasco county; Ralph Cronise, '11, Linn county; Dr. Clarence Keene, '96, Marion county; Dr. Asa Starbuck, '06, Polk county; Codding, '35, Multnomah county; Elmer Fansett, '28, secretary-treasurer.

MEET OUR ALUMS

Skyline, official magazine for North American Aviation, for which Bob Chilton, '37, (right) is test pilot, featured Oregon's alum on a recent cover. It is with full thanks to them that OLD OREGON reprints the color shot on this December issue. Chilton tames Mustang fighter planes, not bookkeeping figures, as test pilot for North American Aviation. Chilton forsook his business administration major, three years of varsity swimming, and four years of ROTC infantry training to turn pilot. In Chilton's work the sky is the limit whether it be in the B-25 Mitchell bomber or the P-51 Mustang fighter, and the ground is what not to hit on a 9-G pullout test dive.

NEARLY 12 months before the Luftwaffe suffered defeat in combat with P-51 Mustang fighters over Dieppe, Bob Chilton, '37, test pilot for North American Aviation, was conducting tests which gave the Royal Air Force knowledge that they would be ideal airplanes for combat assignments against the Nazi air fleet.

And history has borne out the fact that it was. The Mustang was the first American-built fighter plane to cross the English channel into occupied France after the fall of France; it carried out successful assignments in cooperation with the Commandos at Dieppe; and a few weeks ago Mustangs became the first single-engine aircraft to raid Germany from Great Britain.

Chilton has been flying North American Mustangs, as well as B-25 Mitchell bombers, ever since he entered the organization in January, 1941.

Chilton is in the engineering flight test section, which is assigned to provide various groups in the engineering department with specific information about North American airplanes. Each flight Chilton makes, he is provided with a list of "test requests" from power plant, aerodynamics, equipment, hydraulic, landing gear, and other engineering units. These test requests are worked into a master flight plan for the plane, with the master plan itself being broken down into separate plans for a series of test flights.

THE test flights are preceded by a period of from a week to a month during which special test instruments are installed in the plane. These instruments will record the answers to the questions asked by the engineers, because the latter want readings at specific speeds, at specific altitudes, and in specific maneuvers. Chilton's job, like his fellow test pilots, is to produce exactly the conditions prescribed in the test plan. When he goes aloft, instead of carrying a note pad to jot down instrument recordings from time to time, Chilton pulls a trigger, and a camera records the readings of all the regular flight and engine readings, plus special ones for testing purposes. Later these photographs are projected by the engineers, giving them, in effect, an instrument panel with which to learn their answers.

Chilton began his aeronautical career shortly after he left the University of Oregon. He entered the Army Air Corps in 1937 as a flying cadet. He received his training at Randolph and Kelly fields in Texas where he graduated in 1938.

After a year in active service with the 79th pursuit squadron at Barksdale field, La., he returned to civilian life and became an aviation instructor for the army primary flying school, in Santa Monica.

HE left the flying school in 1941 to take his present job as test pilot with North American.

Test flying, being the science that it is today, instead of the hit or miss experimentation that it was only a few years ago, is Bob's favorite form of flying. He prefers it to anything else in aviation because of the constant changes that are being made in aircraft. He gets first hand information and experience with the latest developments in the field of aviation.

Working with engineering test flight, Bob is in the air almost every day, recording and observing the operation of some new instrument or detail which has been added to the Mustang's design. Engineering test pilot services are as instrumental in development of new engineering designs as are those of the design engineers themselves.

He enjoys the distinction of being one of the very few test pilots of his experience

Faculty Attacks the Axis on Home and Fighting Fronts

By JACK BILLINGS, '45

The "war bug" has thinned faculty ranks too. Thirty-three well-known profs have traded their quiet life and lectures in Eugene for the hustle and bustle of army camps. Among others, there is Historian Harold J. Noble making history in the Marines. Football Mentor "Tex" Oliver coached St. Mary's Pre-flight to a successful season. And Paul Washke (right) has traded his office in the PE building for a similar one with the navy men at the University of Arizona

MEMBERS of the University of Oregon faculty are doing their share in the nation's war effort as shown by recent letters received by President Donald M. Erb.

Dr. F. G. Macomber, professor of education, whose leave of absence is dated February 1, 1941, wrote last month that he had been transferred to a WAAC training camp at Daytona Beach, Fla., where he is third in command. He has been made officially responsible for the development of a program of training for thousands of incoming WAACs. His official title is "director of training."

Said Capt. Macomber, "I have no illusions about the job—it is going to take plenty of hard work, and I'll make mistakes, but I also think I can do it in an acceptable manner. At least I'll do my best."

Part of Capt. Macomber's work consists of psychological testing and classification and assignment service of the WAACs.

Dr. Harold J. Noble, associate professor of history, who left for the marine corps on a leave of absence January 1, 1941, is now teaching the Japanese language, history, and customs to officer candidates in the San Diego "boot" school.

ARMEN A. ALCIAN, instructor in economics, received his leave on January 1 of that year also and is now in South Carolina in an army air force training center teaching statistics to officer candidates in the air force with particular reference to weather statistics and interpretation of meteorological data.

Marvin A. Krenk, instructor in speech and dramatic arts, has been in the army air corps basic flying school intelligence office at Chico, Calif., since January 1, 1941; and both Kenneth S. Ghent, and Thurman S. Peterson, assistant professors of mathematics, have been with naval intelligence for the same period of time.

Dr. Albert E. Caswell, professor of economics and head of the department, on January 1, 1942, joined Dr. Merle A. Starr, instructor in physics, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Starr had been at the institute for a year previous to Dr. Caswell's arrival. According to Dr. Erb, they are working on research projects in connection with the technological aspects of the war.

Dr. Daniel D. Gage, associate professor of business administration, left the University the first of last fall term to take a position as rent administrator for the Portland area. His position is officially with the office of price administration.

DR. Carlton E. Spencer, '13, LL.B., '15, professor of law, was the first to obtain a leave of absence to serve his country. He left on January 1, 1941. He is now assistant director of the state selective service control board in Salem. Now Lt. Col. Spencer, he is working directly under Colonel Wootton, state director of the selective service system.

Cecil Snyder, '31, M.A. '34, formerly acting director of the University news bureau is now lieutenant, senior grade, and is in training at the Pensacola, Fla., aviation school. He is preparing himself for work with the photography division of the navy.

Paul R. Washke, professor of education, is now lieutenant, senior grade, at the Tucson, Ariz., naval officer candidates' training center. He is helping to direct the physical education program there.

Richard L. Collins, budget officer for the state system of higher education, has been commissioned a lieutenant, senior grade, in the navy and is now a paymaster at the Bremerton navy yard in Bremerton, Washington.

All these and at least 25 others are either in the armed forces or in some government activity closely allied to the war. As reports come in on these and as more complete information is received on those already mentioned, further articles of this type will be published in OLD OREGON.

Goodrich Family Enlists

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Goodrich, '32 (Shirley R. Weinke, '33), capped a life of doing the same things and doing them together by enlisting together in the armed forces. Mr. Goodrich has been assigned to an infantry school in the volunteer officers' corps of the army. Mrs. Goodrich is undergoing training at the WAAC training center at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

In civilian life he held the position of assistant art director with the J. R. Gerber company of Portland, and she was an advertising copywriter with the Adolph Bloch agency.

FIRST TO LEAVE—Was Professor Carlton J. Spencer, '13, LLB '17. Spencer has just been promoted to Lieutenant Colonel.

DR. CAMPBELL was president then. Karl W. Onthank was employed as the first full time executive secretary. The library force was eight strong. There was no ROTC. The fight was then to keep the School of Commerce.

Yet there was still that Webfoot spirit of patriotism for his country when Woodrow Wilson asked Congress to declare war in April 1917. During the next 18 months the Pioneer Father saw 2034 Oregon men and women rush to defend the colors.

In army khaki, in navy blue 1394 men went into active service. The Pioneer Father saw 60 per cent of his sons rise above the rank of private—forty per cent receiving commissions.

Six hundred were enlisted in the Students Army Training corps; 12 others were officers in the Red Cross and other organizations.

Forty of his daughters likewise did their bit long before the days of WAAC's and WAVES as nurses, reconstruction aids, and canteen workers.

THE Pioneer Father, as he anxiously scans headlines from the Solomons, North Africa, New Guinea, remembers with pride those 15 of his family who returned from the last war wearing the Croix de Guerre from both France and Belgium, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Victory Cross, and the Order of the Chevaliere of the Crown of Italy.

When the armistice was signed . . . Germany was given a president . . . Poland, Czechoslovakia, and other small European countries were free . . . forty-seven sons did not come back to pay their respects to the Pioneer Father, stroll down "hello" walk or see an Oregon football game.

A huge service flag hung between the stately columns of Johnson hall filled with 1394 blue stars—47 of which had their color fade to gold.

Forty-seven Oregon men were gone—war dead and war heroes. They were:

RANSOM S. ANDERSON, '17, ordnance department, died at Tours, France; Ivan E. Bellinger, '13, medical corps died at Fort Riley, Kans.; Irwin G. Henriette Horak, '36: WAAC

By JANET WAGSTAFF, '43

OREGON'S fighting daughter, Henriette Horak, '36, third officer of the WAAC, probably had as much first hand knowledge of war to start with as most of the University's fighting sons have now.

Only 15 years ago, she came to this country from Czechoslovakia where her father had been an officer in the Czech legion that fought as a part of the Russian army in the first world war. He died as a result of injuries received in the war. Her mother also died during the war period.

A missionary brought Henriette Horak to the United States when she was 15, but her brother and sister were left in Europe, and she is not certain what happened to them.

Third officer rank in the WAAC is equivalent to a second lieutenant in the regular army. After earning this rank, this University graduate was sent with a group of 52 officers from Fort Des Moines to do recruiting work.

OFFICER Horak speaks Czech, Slovak, Polish, Russian, and some French and German. She is now anxious to get back to Europe and help right Hitler's wrongs. Remembering the conditions that killed her parents and left her and her brother and sister to spend most of their time searching for enough food to keep alive, she looks on her position in the WAAC as a chance to help change things.

The University's foremost WAAC graduated in journalism in 1936, and went to work on the San Francisco Chronicle. She also edited the Slav-American News in San Francisco for a year.

She was employed as a member of the publicity staff of the Golden Gate exposition, and afterwards was advertising manager for the California Prune Growers, supervising a staff of 13 men.

Activities at the University of Oregon prepared third officer Horak for the busy life she has led since graduation. In faculty circles, the abundance of energy and ability of this petite miss are still remembered.

SHE was totally self-supporting, earning her way by writing for the Oregonian. She acted as assistant publicity director for the University, and handled publicity for Junior Weekend as well as many other campus activities.

Homecoming

Homecoming was different this year. It wasn't bigger, because of the war, but alums went away thinking that a weekend that held a 14 to 7 defeat over the Rose Bowl-bound UCLANS plus an evening of Tommy Dorsey was just about tops.

Adopting "The Home Fires Are Burning," the campus tried to pay allegiance to both returning alums, and alums who were busy fighting Uncle Sam's war.

Hendricks hall, playing up the "buy a bond" idea, and Sigma Chi, reminding visitors and hosts of the grim side of war with a skeleton cloaked in gray as the symbol of war, won the sign contest.

Perm. Class Sec'y: Mrs. Eleanor Poorman Hamilton (Mrs. Alfred E. Hamilton), 6 E. 82nd St., New York City.

Dr. Allen M. Boyden, '29, of Astoria was recently called to serve in the army medical corps. He received a commission as captain and was ordered to report to the Ledderman general hospital at the Presidio in San Francisco. Captain Boyden was at one time a member of the staff of the University of Michigan medical school.

Frank R. Hallin, '29, has been promoted from second to first lieutenant, according to a recent public relations release from Fort Mason, Calif. Lt. Hallin is attached to the provost marshal's office at Fort Mason. Mrs. Hallin, the former Hazel Shroust, resides in Portland.

Wallace S. Larkin, '29, former member of the Oregon house of representatives, has been called to serve as a second lieutenant in the army infantry. Lt. Larkin reported for duty at Camp Tyson, Tenn., a barrage balloon training center.

Dear Elmer,

Early this morning before sunrise an alarm clock awoke me from a dream about the University of Oregon and I thought of you and Pop Cornell. I wondered how John Warren was doing, thought it was about time to send best wishes and even if it is darn warm at times, to wish you a merry Christmas.

I received a V-mail letter from my big girl Pat today dated September 24th but she did not mention anything about football, guess it was most too early. But we have heard that Oliver and his gang claimed a one-point victory. Now on Sunday evenings we hear the scores and have heard parts of play-by-play accounts of the Stanford and California games with Santa Clara. The Washington folks remind us of the game Saturday.

Have been receiving OLD OREGON right along, received the June issue not so long ago. Read with pride about Oregon's baseball team. Please include Hobby and Donald Erb in my greetings when you see them.

I see a number of Oregon people about now and then. Lt. Leonard L. Jermain, '40, and Hugh B. Collins, '41, are here. I see Major Hal Chapman, '25, looking after the sick and lame quite often. . .

Australia has treated us very well. I have met some very fine people and have had the privilege of seeing some four thousand miles of the country by air and rail.

Elmer, when you have time we would like to hear any news from Oregon and the gang you would care to send. My kindest thoughts to you and yours.

Dear Ray and BJ:

. . . We get up at 5, eat at 6, 11, and 5. Lights out at 9. You don't have to go to bed at 9 but everybody is so tired out by that time that they want to crawl in bed and sleep for a week.

But in some ways it's kinda fun and definitely a change in routine.

At present I'm working in the classification section—interviewing recruits and recommending them for army jobs on the basis of their civilian experience, education, general appearance, mental tests and anything that happens along.

Sentiment is pretty strong here for the 18-19 draft and against the Lee prohibition amendment. . .

Bob Edwards, '45, came through here the other day and Herb (Penny), '44) and I convoyed him around. . .

The yardbirds here are feeling pretty good about the news of the Algeria and Egypt fronts. They all seem eager to get over there and get in some bayonet drill.

Old maid aunts who worry about army morale are crazy. They speak of entertainment—quite a different thing. Morale is good in that the guys all want to put in their two-bits worth where they feel it will do the most good. None of them feels he is being used to best advantage in some US camp. They all want to go over.

"Morale" is reflected in the war news or

BERNIE ENGEL, '43

Dear J. W. S.:

Glad to hear you're in the saddle, poet.

I am at the moment seated on the spacious top of spacious footlocker number 32 while Ken Dorrigan to my left chortles over a letter from Bob Whitely, '43, who writes on life in Madison, Wisconsin, with gossip-column style, using three different colors of paper. In the army, Whitely is known as "The Body;" he's famous now in the air force for the nicknames he has pinned on fellows from Utah to Atlantic City and way points. Cosmopolitan kid. Wish they weren't all so damnably unavailable.

Mr. Engel and the rest of the "Silent Second" platoon are presenting an exhibition of fancy drill every afternoon for the entertainment of the rest of the 23rd squadron—and a very gentlemanly audience they are—in a spirit of complete selflessness and with the pure-souled intention of helping our fellows to improve, we had taken pains to point out their errors when they had squadron punishment a few weeks back; somehow they mistook our aims and now, vulgar beasts that they are, they stand about and chide us whenever the sergeant gets out of step with us.

Oh, this is verily the house of Allah—an inspector general is dropping by this week, so we spend an hour or so as sanitation engineers, ridding the barracks, mess halls, grounds, etc., of all contaminating shreds of paper, wayward leaves, and nasty old leaves.

Progressive education dropped in last week, determined that we shudder sufficiently at its presence, and decided to stay. Oh for those first four weeks when we could cram Wednesday for Thursday's tests and then forget it all,—now we have to study in class and be graded on the "practical work" we do.

Did I tell you the make-up of this outfit? All collegians. One from Washington, one from Harvard, and others from every place between: Duke and Fordham, Bucknell and Columbia, Marquette and Alabama, Wisconsin and Ohio State, Haverford and Michigan. As for our instructors, one played eight years as a comedian in burlesque, one has his degree from up Ann Arbor way—everything. My sidekicks are Dorrigan (Gonzaga, '42), Forrester (Alabama, ex-'43), and DeGennerr (Queens, '40).

We have three graduate lawyers—Duke, Fordham, and Penn, also a fellow who studied painting. It's fun to hear "Mary Ann McCarthy," "The Fiji Song," "One Keg of Beer for the Four of Us," and all those touching ballads sung at Oregon coming from a platoon whose members have seen the sleeping facilities of half the colleges of the country.

Hey boy, this is long and the hour is late, so goodbye for now and write again.

Bernie Engel

Dear Sir:

After hearing Oregon's glorious victory over UCLA last Saturday, it occurred to me that no copies of OLD OREGON since I subscribed last spring have reached me. Although I have moved about considerably, having seen active service both in Africa and Australia, my permanent address has only been changed once from West Palm Beach, Florida, to the above address.

Believe me Oregon alumni are certainly getting around—one boy named Putnam whom I flew with in Africa is now in India. I just received a letter from Corp. Lionel Domreis, '42, from Australia. I met another in a bar in Sidney, and another on a remote island. And you can be sure that there is nothing that we would all have rather done than to be with you to celebrate that Homecoming victory last Saturday.

PAT KELLER, '42

Dear Nels—

Just a short note to let you know I am still hanging around and would like very much to have my copies of OLD OREGON sent to me.

I've been in the army almost two months now and feel like a veteran. I just got tired of seeing everyone go off in uniform so I up and joined as a buck private. Who should I run into when I was joining but Dick Horn, '43, Kappa Sig prexy and one of Tex's star ends. We went to Fort MacArthur together.

I was just sent to Fort Ord and then my company was moved up here to the Presidio—which is much closer to the bright lights.

Saw Al Hunt, '42, ex-Phi Delt prexy last Saturday at the UCLA-California game. He is a sergeant in the air corps at Hamilton field. We both are planning and hoping we can make the Oregon-Cal game at Berkeley.

Don't forget to send my OLD OREGONS.

As ever,
