About the time that hors d'oeuvre was more than a hunk of fish on toast and sardines were shipped from the Mediterranean, not the Columbia, Oregon students staged walk-a-rounds, flag rushes, tore down fences, greeted one another on "Hello lane," shoved in push-ball battles. These were their traditions.

About the time that Dean Virgil D. Earl was a freshman, women wore shirt-waists because they would fit any form and looked mannish. Six volumes of Mark Sullivan's "Our Times," reveal much more than long skirts as indications of customs in 1900.

About the turn of the century, according to Sullivan, the Boston Herald advertised "Boarders Wanted; turkey dinner, 20 cents; supper or breakfast, 15 cents." In the Trenton, N. J., Times, the United States hotel quoted rates of $1 per day; furnished rooms 50 cents—horse sheds for country shoppers." A Chicago department store sold ladies' muslin nightgowns for 19 cents, corsets for 50 cents, men's suits for $5.50. Lady cashiers were hired at $8 per week in Los Angeles and eastern shops displayed skirts for skating which were short enough "to avoid entanglement with the skates."

About the time that the Puget Sound prospectors were shipping for the Nome gold fields, the people in Kansas were in arms for fear the street cars proposed to run over the Arkansas river bridge would frighten the horses. Not even a word was mentioned in the Baltimore Sun about automobiles, but columns of advertisements on "broughams, rockaways, Germantowns, opera wagonettes, phaetons, buggies and tally-hos." "Quick mastery of the waltz and the German" were promised in the Sun by one dancing master.

About the time that "Roosevelt" meant the man who packed a big stick and spoke softly, the word "radio" was unknown, "aviator" was unheard, "income tax" was not tied in with March 15th. "Insulin and 606, relativity, and quantum theory" were in the future. Farmers had no tractors and seamen had no oil-burning engines. Bankers had no federal reserve system, politicians had no direct primaries, congressmen had no League of Nations, and women had few rights. Automats, mah jong, cross-word puzzles, chocolate sundaes and birth control had not entered the American pictures of words, nor had Stuart Chase tyrannized talk with his science of semantics.

About this time hitching posts were where parking meters now stand, while "Beneath the spreading chestnut tree," the blacksmith still stood, "No man's land" was a nonentity and men not only packed knives but knew how to hone them.

TRADITION IS CUSTOM

What's the point? Well, all of these customs and costumes exploited in the 1900's are outmoded today. Since our campus traditions are a disguised form of custom, then we feel safe in admitting they have rightly gone out of style. But we still have traditions, many which we do not detect. We visit the Side for a coke, hike to Open House, skip at the Hello Dance, have a spring term tug-o-war, celebrate Junior Weekend, junk non-conformists at the weekend's picnic, tear down goal posts and wear saddles. We play bridge for pastime, pump bicycles for pleasure, sing songs for sentiment and myriad other activities which are our traditions today.

When the Alumni return for Homecoming, November 8-10, we will return to the outmoded traditions as a means to entertain them. They are better acquainted with the old customs of their school days. Such a stunt is for that weekend. When the celebration is over, remember we still have our up-to-date traditions—paradoxical as that phrase may sound—and by no stretch of the imagination are we lacking in spirit because we fail to keep up habits as old as croquet. Rest assured Oregon's student body is not so supine as to deny that healthy change is a cosmic law.

Los Angeles, Calif.
October 22, 1940

Dear "Nels":

In the Hawaiian decorated "Blossom Room" of the beautiful Hollywood-Roosevelt hotel in downtown Hollywood, about 75 Oregon alums gathered last Friday (October 18) to banquet, do their bit to rally Oregon on, and have a rousing good time.

Alyce Rogers

I thought perhaps you and some of the others up in Eugene might be interested in doings of that particular evening.

Of course seeing "Tex" Oliver was the high spot of the night! He always says just the right thing in his own snappy style.

Paul Peek, Beta ('27), now secretary of the state of California, was master of ceremonies introducing various alums and others during the evening, here and there advocating FDR to the irritation of a group of Willkie boys in the back of the room.

"Mighty Oregon" and "As I Sit and Dream at Evening" were loyally warbled. Billy O'Brien, MGM musician, entertained with piano selections throughout our delicious turkey dinner. Tex requested "Boogie Woogie" be dedicated to Howard Jones.

Only a few of the class of 1940 were there but did we ever have a grand time getting together!

Anne Frederikson, Gamma Phi ('40), now doing personnel work in Pasadena was there with Betty Lou Kurtz ('40),

"Trek the Oregon Trail" By JOE GURLEY, '41

Enemy of ennui, General Chairman Joe Gurley of Oregon City energetically plans his train of Homecoming thoughts to reach a terminal November 8-10, the graduates' weekend. Aided and abetted by an active group of students, wiry Joe has picked these as program heads: Bill Fendall, publicity, Stan Staiger, dance, Wally Rossman, finance, Al Gray, signs, George Mackin, noise parade, Cynthia Caufield, personnel, Pat Keller, rally, Bud Wimberly, dance broadcast, Maxine Hansen, executive secretary, Nelda Christenson, hospitality. "Trek the Oregon Trail" will have more than alliterative appeal next weekend in this campus city promises this smooth-functioning team of organizers.—Ed.

Ever since the first graduating class left the University in 1880 the tang of a fall morning, the color of a college rally, and the thump of a football have combined to emphasize recollections of "dear days at Oregon." Each year Homecoming has been an outstanding campus event designed especially for the recapturing of all the college eras, each with a different twist, but all of the same metal.

Even in the face of Thanksgiving date differences, Homecoming at Oregon goes on progressively better, and when the three-day program unfolds November 8, 9, and 10, it is the confident expression of the Homecoming directorate that "old guard" Webfeet will be spending a top time in this millrace city.

Friday the show opens. Starting shortly after dinner, the annual noise and torch parade will tie up Eugene traffic, travel a parade route that will lead grads and students to the east entrance of Hayward field for the special Homecoming rally. Although the traditional bonfire has been "tabled" for lack of adequate fire protection, the rally will be a continued feature. Pat Keller, chairman, has submitted elaborate plans for the pep meet which will provide the overture to the Frosh-Rook game to be played in Hayward bowl starting at 8 o'clock.

FROSH-ROOK GAME

There, John Warren (recently christened "Peg-leg") will wheel out the freshman squad that dammed up the Baby Beavers in Multnomah stadium last month for the second of the three game series.

Aimed to sharpen the rivalry that has always existed between the sophomore and freshman classes is the guarding of the old "O" high on Skinner's butte. Vernon Kelley, frosh from The Dalles, is the leader of the vigilantes—the mighty sophomores have not yet disclosed their raider chief's name, at least for publication. This event is officially slated for Friday night.

Simultaneously, the judging of Homecoming signs will be carried on under the guidance of Al Gray. Each year this phase of the graduates' celebration becomes more popular and is certainly one of the most colorful of the many events. Every living organization will vie for a cash prize—the signs take their theme from the Homecoming slogan or the big game of the weekend which this time is the U.C.L.A.-Oregon embroglio.

And speaking of prizes, trophies will be presented the respective houses registering the largest number of returning Alumni, the winners of the noise parade, and, as an innovation, the organization registering the oldest person to return to the campus for this occasion.

Saturday's slate is full, starting early with a meeting of the yet new board of directors for the Alumni Association; at 10:30 the University of Oregon Alumni Association will meet in the Guild theater of Johnson hall for an annual clearing of the business docket.

"O" MEN TO LUNCH

Hailed as another venture for the affair is the luncheon of all Order of the "O" Alumni at the Anchorage. Jim Rathbun, president of the student group, has made all arrangements. Sentimentalities entered the planning, according to Rathbun, who pointed out the interesting fact concerning Oregon's twentieth anniversary of holding training tables at the Anchorage.

All "O" men will move from their luncheon spot at 1:45 to Hayward field where the traditional lettermen procession will precede the kickoff of the Homecoming game—Oregon versus U.C.L.A.

OLD OREGON

Game time is two o'clock and advance requests in the University ticket office indicate a packed stadium. U.C.L.A. will be the only California team to meet Oregon on a local field this season and the contest stands to mark a highlight in the Homecoming activities.

Not planned by the student committee, but a favorite portion of the weekend, is the Alumni reception in the Eugene armory immediately following the game.

Closing Saturday's full calendar will be the annual Homecoming dance in McArthur court—an event free to all full members of the Alumni Association. As in other years, a band of some repute will provide the entertainment. Stan Staiger is dance chairman.

Special Homecoming services will be conducted in all Eugene churches Sunday morning. All houses will honor the returning grads at Sunday dinners, and as a new attraction a mid-afternoon music concert in the music school auditorium will close the weekend.

Several "open house" displays from the University's various schools will be open Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon in Johnson hall and the Library. More of an emphasis will be placed on the academic side of Oregon as a part of the yearly Alumni mix. The Homecoming directorate has issued a particular appeal that the returning Ducks "nose around" the grounds and visit both the old and several new buildings.

Adding to the heavy slate, most houses are preparing special entertainment for their Alumni guests during this weekend.

The slogan adopted for the finest and most memorable Homecoming is "Trek the Oregon Trail"—and it's meant to be taken literally! No carpet has ever been weaved that would be large enough to place WELCOME comparative to the open-armed spirit of the 1940 University of Oregon student body.

Ducks in the Spotlight

By BOB FLAVELLE, '41

Sportswriter Flavelle is critical of Oliver's team in this succinct story of Homecoming's activities in track and football. Not to be forgotten, though, are Oregon's tenacious tackles and driving lines in recent games. Seattle's Stenstrom still smacks his 202-pound frame through the line in heavy duty style. Nelson, the Swede from Salem, runs and blocks in the best of backfield style, not forgetting the good performances of Buck Berry and the consistencies of Chet Haliski. Genial Jacobsen, Big Jim Stuart, Sailor Ashcom, Trader Horne, Wild Bill Regner, Tuffy Segale are men to be remembered when sixty minutes of ball playing end. The UCLA-Oregon Homecoming clash will be one worth watching.—Ed.

Many an Oregon graduate will "Trek the Oregon Trail" to Eugene when Homecoming weekend of November 8, 9, and 10 rolls around. In addition to the opportunity of renewing old acquaintances and visiting once again the familiar scenes of their college days, they will have the privilege of witnessing a weekend crammed full of sporting events.

The big game between the Ducks and UCLA on Saturday afternoon at Hayward field will of course hold the spotlight of the three-day celebration. From all indications this contest between the Bruins of Westwood and Tex Oliver's not-too-mighty Webfoot aggregation will prove to be a knock-down-drag-out affair, with both teams scoring occasionally and spectacularly. The Uclans boast one of the most dangerous runners in the business in dusky Jackie Robinson, Coach Babe Horrell's athletic jack-of-all-trades. Thus far this season Jackie has been handicapped by an injured leg but should be in good shape to give the Ducks a hectic afternoon when the two teams meet on November 9.

TIE WITH WSC

Oregon's "scoreless wonders," who perform so admirably between the 20-yard markers and fold up so completely when they approach the goal line, have to date dropped each of their first three conference games. In each case, the Ducks had several chances to score but lacked the extra punch when they ran into a tightened line. (The fourth game tie with Washington State last weekend erased the "scoreless wonder" title.)

After starting off with the three toughest teams in the league this year, coming on successive Saturdays, Oregon had mild excuse for a breathing spell when they took on the ambitious Washington State Cougars on October 26 and the Grizzlies from Montana a week later. These contests will tell whether the Webfoots have really had tough luck during the first few weeks of their schedule or whether they were fortunate in not having bigger scores run up against them.

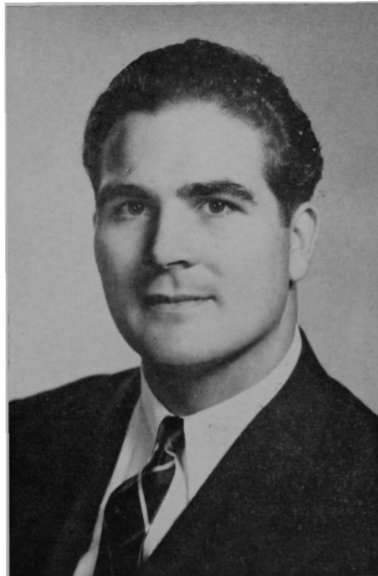

Something new in half-time entertainment is in store for the Homecoming fans. Plans are in progress to have three of Oregon's greatest track figures perform on Hayward turf during the lull in grid hostilities. Topping the list of nationally known record holders is Les Steers, unofficial holder of the American high jump record of 6 feet, 9¾ inches. He has been known to go over 6 feet, 11 inches in practice workouts.

SHOW TRACK MEN

Familiar to Oregon followers of track, George Varoff, polevaulter, and Boyd Brown, javelin tosser, will take to the field once again to demonstrate the form that carried them to national recognition. Varoff at one time held the world outdoor record of 14 feet, 6¾ inches. On two occasions he travelled through Europe with a squad of American athletes and in the last year he was named captain of the squad.

Boyd Brown completed his three years of eligibility last spring and his best heave in competition measured 232 feet, 7 inches which was good enough for a new record in the Big Ten-Pacific coast meet in the Midwest last summer. Boyd's record is doubly impressive when one considers that his throwing is handicapped by the loss of the thumb of his pitching arm, making it necessary for him to grasp the spear between his first and second fingers.

The second struggle between the Frosh

Clarence Codding, ex-'35, will toastmaster Order of the "O" noon luncheon on the campus, Saturday of Homecoming weekend. The Portland alumnus is president of the Duck Club in that city.

of Oregon and Oregon State's rook team is scheduled for Friday of Homecoming week and it threatens to surpass the varsity game in thrills and interest. John Warren's Ducklings took the first clash when they defeated the Babes by a close 7 to 6 score in a contest on Multnomah field at Portland.

Warren's formidable squad of newcomers has power, speed and deception and has given the varsity representatives stiff opposition in recent practice games. Jim Newquist is a one-man-gang when he dons his gridiron uniform and takes over the ball-carrying position for the Yearlings. In the Beaver game he handled the pigskin 15 times from scrimmage and averaged better than 5 yards per try. His passing and kicking was equally brilliant and the fans accorded him one of the warmest rounds of applause ever given a player at Multnomah stadium when he left the field with a hand injury late in the game.

Inky Boe is number one replacement for the "Camas Cyclone" and the diminutive halfback, who teamed with Brad Ecklund while at Milwaukie high last year.

Duck Club Peppy

Football radio parties, welcome receptions for campus emissaries promoting Homecoming, and noon luncheons take up the time of Portland's Duck Club members, according to their weekly news sheet.

President Clarence Codding reports such celebrities as Art Kirkham, dean of northwestern announcers, and Edwin Atherton, father of the purity code, as recent speakers. Also, movie pictures of Oregon football games catch the eye of Duck Club attendants as they meet Monday noons in the Roosevelt hotel.

Yell leaders will exhort Alumni to lend their voices in student songs and cheers the eve of Oregon's UCLA game.

Traditions Are Timely

By BILL FENDALL, '41

Verve and vigor run together in Publicity Man Bill Fendall's framework. Seeking a major in journalism, Fendall transferred from Oregon State this year to rub shoulders with his adopted brothers of the fourth estate. For Homecoming weekend, undergraduates will return out-moded traditions to their temporary place in the campus sun. Alumni will observe the University seal near Villard hall, hesitate to smoke near Hello Walk, glance at freshmen with tops attired in green hats and ribbons, avoid the grass by using the by-paths. Spirit of an older Oregon will be reproduced November 8-10.—Ed.

undusted files of the library will be revived by the combined classes of '40, '41, '42 and '43 during those three days you encircle on your November calendar. Examples before you will bring up memories of how walking on the Oregon seal in front of Villard was a millracing offense . . . you, too, said "hello" on this path . . . and the walkouts the boys over at the house were talking about—why you didn't come back for three days . . . how you bent the knee to each orchestra that came to the campus . . . yes, how you were once a college student with all its habit-forming qualities.

Come conscription, high water or number seven, University of Oregon undergrads will take the initiative Friday, November 8, and for three days relive with University Alumni those traditions that put the "when" in last year's Homecoming slogan. "Remember When,"

of rain and promises all the excitement of a four-alarm fire if the weather is clear. Every tradition to be found in the

which is already a tradition in Homecoming committee circles.

When you climb off the train with everyone headed in the same direction, take a good look around, for after the coedette welcoming committee grabs you, you won't face the same direction twice until you board the train again Sunday night.

NOISE PARADE OPENER

Like the Emerald coming off the University press you will get it on both sides. Very traditionally, the noise-torch-pajama parade starts the weekend-list of grad-undergrad activities. With all the timing and formation of an army air squadron in flight the '40 Homecoming schedule will unfold from the mother event—the UCLA-UO football game with its turf-wrecking crews down to the smallest incident of a Lemon "O" man swinging the pine on a grass-walking frosh who has forgotten the resurrection of that '02 (or ought not to) tradition.

The Homecoming committee has scheduled a program so injected with traditions that the facts of the case interfere with the truth in trying to boil down this word-parade about the 1940 Homecoming.

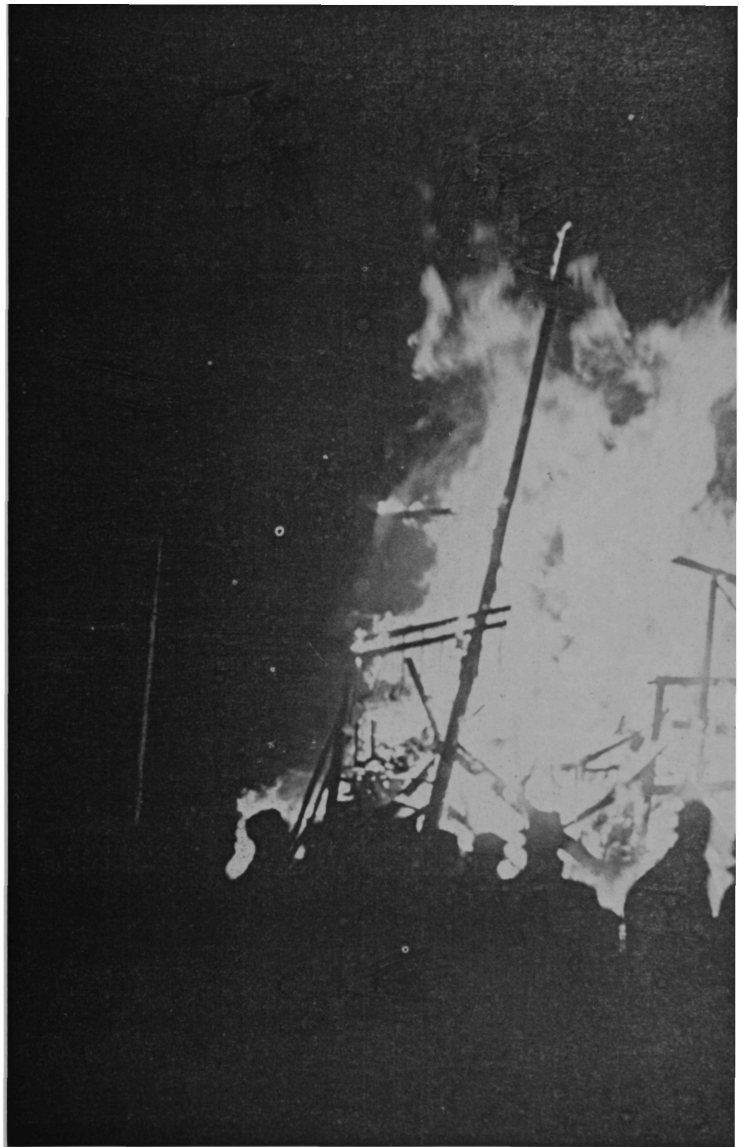

The program is so arranged that for 24 hours out of the 24-hour day, you will each be a man-of-the-hour . . . each hour.

BIGGEST TRADITION

Whether you "Trek the Oregon Trail" at about 60 or on foot, after arriving on the campus you will immediately become a part of the biggest tradition of the University. HOME COMING

This year the Homecoming schedule is planned to make you forget that hair is approaching the timberline on so many classmates, and at the same time remind you of the time you went into the goal-post frays against OSC students or any other student body optimistic enough to shake an Oregon goal post, and come out panting and pantsless.

Plans for the 1940 tradition-infested program call for an indoor street riot in case

Fiery fingers stretching heavenward indicate Oregon's freshman bonfire of last Homecoming weekend. This print packs historical wallop with no pyrotechnic display scheduled for 1940's celebration. Read Alumni Secretary Fansett's explanation, this issue.

Why No Frosh Bonfire?

A timely question in the minds of all traditionally minded Alumni. We all dislike seeing one of our most colorful Homecoming events discarded in favor of so called stream-lined activities. To do away with a tradition of such long standing requires a word of explanation.

The city of Eugene and particularly the University district has grown by leaps during the past few years. A careful survey discloses there is no bonfire location in any easily accessible location near the campus.

Freshman classes have become larger each year and the problem of obtaining 100% participation has become increasingly difficult.

Improvements in city fire prevention laws have required merchants and others to dispose of inflammable material regularly so that the procuring of suitable bonfire material has become almost impossible.

Oregon spirit is not a thing of the past. The students of today evidence just as much school spirit as those classes a score of years ago. Oregon students are progressive and are able to adapt themselves to changing times and conditions. In place of the outmoded bonfire the students have built a homecoming program that will not be lacking in a single detail in making the weekend of November 8-9-10 one to be remembered.

THE SPIRIT OF

by JOHN CLINTON

Listen! Can you hear the surging pulse of America in full vigor, busy with her greatest task—Defense?

I want to tell you something about Defense that maybe you don't know. For years the Petroleum Industry has carried on independent research on its own initiative, unsubsidized by the Government. Union Oil Company has done its share — has research engineers who spend practically all of their time in this work.

Thanks to such research America can now produce enough 100-octane aviation gasoline for more planes than we'll ever have. And thanks to that research, the same bomber can fly 30% faster and farther in the U. S. than in Europe. It can carry 20 to 30% more bombs and climb above anti-aircraft fire 25% faster.

Take rubber, too. We use more than half of all the rubber in the world and 90% of it comes 9000 miles across the world to us, and the dictators want it! Well, Petroleum Industry research has made synthetic rubber a commercial reality. Before our supply of natural rubber is exhausted we can produce all we need . . . from Petroleum! If I had room I could list at least fifty more essential products they have developed. But that'll give you an idea.

It gives me a thrill to know that the same research engineers who developed 76 and Triton are an important part of the Petroleum Industry — an industry that has done so much to make America strong.
