Hi, Ho! Come to 'State Fair'!

Parade Replaces Traditional Canoe Fete

Written for Old Oregon
By HERB PENNY, '47

THE carnival atmosphere of a "State Fair" jamboree was set to prevail over the 1946 Junior Weekend festivities May 10, 11, and 12, as plans were laid early in spring term by Weekend co-chairmen Marilyn Sage, '47, and Tom Kay, '47.

All could not be traditional, however, for the famed canoe fete, glorified in song and fable, had to be dropped. There is no water in the old mill race as the present break in the revetment cannot be fixed until the water in the Willamette subsides this summer.

Scheduled as a substitute for the dearly-remembered fete was a float parade down Willamette Street in the middle of Eugene. The floats were designed by various campus living organizations following the "State Fair" theme. The queen's float was designed by Druids, newly-reorganized junior men's honorary.

THE carnival parade was scheduled to end at the old campus area where the queen presides over the campus luncheon. Dunking of tradition violators, tapping of Friar's, senior men's honorary, and Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, were on the program to enliven the luncheon.

Simultaneously with Weekend festivities, the annual Mother's Day celebration was scheduled. The Mom's day program includes many of the regular Weekend events with important events scheduled for Saturday, May 11, when the majority of the Mothers arrive on the campus.

As an innovation, the "State Fair" fete starts with an inter-squad varsity football game. In the afternoon an open-air dance on the library terrace with music by Ted Hallock and his combo was scheduled to accent the carnival atmosphere.

The all-campus sing, annual contest between choruses chosen from all living organizations, was set to close the first day of the "State Fair" jamboree. Cups are awarded to the best women's and the best men's choruses in the sing.

THE first Junior Weekend painting of the 'O' atop Skinner's Butte since the war ended was on the program under supervision of the 'O' men on Saturday morning. The 'O' men also enforce campus traditions during the entire weekend.

Gus Arnheim and his orchestra were signed to provide music for the Junior Prom Saturday night. At the Prom Druids society tap new pledges.

Awards of the Gerlinger cup to the outstanding junior woman on the campus and the Koysl cup to the outstanding junior man are also made at the Prom intermission.

The final day's program Sunday, May 12, was scheduled to be largely devoted to Mothers' activities, beginning with a breakfast for the Mothers' executive board. A sunlight serenade at the University music school was played at the close of the first Junior Weekend on the Oregon campus since the war ended.

Alum Makes Study of Fighting Men's Wounds

ONE of the most revealing chapters in the medical history of World War II is being compiled in the Army Medical Center, Washington D.C., by Major Allan Palmer, '31. Entitled "Offensive Weapons in Relation to Injury," the work is the result of research on how to best protect fighting men against enemy gunfire.

Both Major Palmer and his collaborator, Captain William W. Tribby, have examined hundreds of dead and wounded military personnel to determine the various types of wounds and their distribution on the men's bodies.

9 Billion Dollars worth of Peace of Mind

for 3,150,000 Equitable Policyholders and Their Families

IF ALL MEMBERS of the Equitable family of policyholders were to call a single place home, "Equitable Town" would be about the same size as Boston, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and San Francisco combined!

It might look more like a fabulous Hollywood movie lot than an ordinary city, with Texas ranchers living next door to Connecticut school teachers, Iowa corn growers and Cape Cod fishermen. Doctors from Chicago and mechanics from Detroit would be neighbors to Georgia cotton growers and Oregon foresters.

The families of "Equitable Town" have joined in a great co-operative enterprise of family security. There are now 3,150,000 members of this great family. In the past year they increased the life insurance they own to $9,172,440,000. Their membership in The Equitable means peace of mind and the assurance of funds to carry out cherished plans.

Last year these families received checks for an aggregate of $238,064,000—an average of $27,716 every hour throughout the year. These benefit dollars helped keep families together, assured children of college education, paid off mortgages, provided retirement income and served many other human needs.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States is a mutual company incorporated under the laws of New York State.

Assets guaranteeing this flow of benefits reached a new high of $3,849,438,000, an increase of $341,455,000 for the year. Beyond their primary purpose of assuring the payment of policy benefits, these funds are furnishing capital for business and industry in every state of the union. They are helping to finance millions of productive jobs. They are aiding farmers and home owners.

Truly, life insurance funds mean more factories, more work, more homes, and richer living for all America.

Ducks Start Season in Top Spot

Webfoots Take Opening Tilts; Show Promise

Written for Old Oregon
By TOMMY WRIGHT, '48

CONVERTING a 50-man squad into a baseball team in three short weeks was the problem facing Coach Howard "Hobby" Hobson when the University decided to resume the diamond sport after a two-year lay-off. Scheduling fourteen pre-conference games to give his green unknowns the maximum of experience before the Ducks began defense of their Northern Division title, Hobson had developed a well-rounded lineup by April 18, the date of the season opener against Washington State college.

Calling on Barney Koch, veteran letterman and Warren "Teeny" Smith, utility player of pre-war teams, to assist in selecting the cream from the large squad, Hobby drew a favor from the weatherman. When Buck Bailey's Cougars invaded the University with a veteran studded and favored nine, the Ducks had ten games of experience. They turned back the Baileymen in both games of the series and held at least a momentary edge in the conference race.

When spring term registering had been completed, the Webfoots had added three returning veterans. Big Hal Saltzman, regular right handed hurler on Oregon's 1943 championship club, gave Hobson a dependable starter and the return of Tony Crish, letterman out-fielder-first baseman in 1941, and Bob Santee, varsity infielder letter winner in 1943, added valuable hitting power to the 1946 Duck aggregation. Except for Spike Johnson, transfer from Oregon State college, the remainder of the Oregon squad consists of freshmen.

ACCORDING to the prognosticators, the inexperienced Webfoots could hardly be contenders for the Northern Division crown. And it is still too early in the season to cast predictions on Oregon's chances of defending successfully the title which they won for the third consecutive year in 1943. Offensively, the Oregons appear to be capable of giving the best hurlers in the conference a headache. Though lacking in long hitters, the Ducks have been able to gather enough one-base blows to more than hold their own against the opposition. Defensively, they have been a hot and cold team, playing errorless ball one day and kicking the ball all over the park on the next appearance. If Coach Hobson can steady his infield, the Ducks will be a big threat to keep the pennant at Oregon another year.

The Webfoots received one advantage, and that from the schedule makers. Their first six games were all played at home on Howe field. The season opener brought Washington State college to Eugene. The under-dog Ducks turned the tables on the favored Cougars. They pounced on the pitching of Buck Bailey's ace hurler Adrian Jorison for eleven hits in the first encounter to win 8-5. In the second encounter the Oregons blasted Bailey's number two hurler Johnny McCallum for thirteen blows including Walt Kirsch's first inning home run. Staving off a last inning rally, the Ducks swept the series with a 8-7 victory. Carl Bropst, getting his first conference starting berth on the mound for the Hobsonmen, was retired in favor of young freshman righthander Dick Dehl, who received credit for the win.

APRIL 22 and 23, Idaho's Vandals came to Howe field for a two tilt series and lost both to the hard-hitting Ducks. The University of Washington Huskies, with lettermen at every position, offered the next opposition for the Webfoots at home April 26 and 26.

Ineligibility Hits UO Track Squad Hopes

Written for Old Oregon
By DICK SHELTON, '48 and
AL PIETSCHMAN, '49

BEMOANING the fact that Oregon is weak in track this year, Colonel Bill Hayward, famous Duck cinder coach, finds himself in the same boat with Doc Swan of Oregon State and Hec Edmundsen of University of Washington. The three coaches claim that they have inexperienced teams and men who have not been in training for many years. At Oregon this spring the latter is especially true. Our trackmen, returning from service, are out of shape and can't get back to their stride.

The first Oregon-Oregon State relay competition in several years held Saturday, April 13, proved the Beaver cinder squad in better shape than Oregon's, as they soundly trounced Colonel Hayward's men 6-2 in the eight event relay. Ineligibility hit the U.O. team on the eve of the meet, ruling out two of the promising spikesters, Johnny Joachims, city prep mile champ from Portland, and Curt Deskins, sturdy shot putter. Steve Warren stocky miler from Portland, was ruled ineligible at the first of the week, cutting deeply into the efficiency of the team.

SEVERAL promising athletes were noted during the meet. Bill Beifuss cleared 6 feet 5 inches in the high jump. Bill was a member of the record-setting high jump team of Steers, Harris, and McKee in 1941.

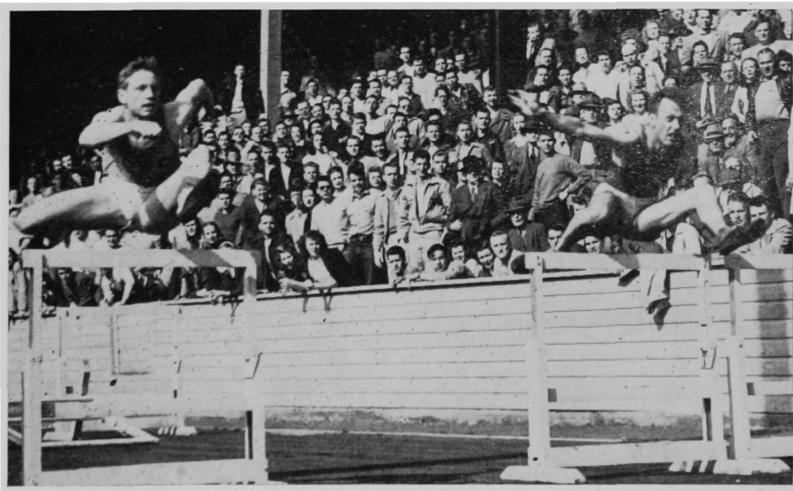

McClure, a 17-year old freshman and son of former Duck harrier, Walt McClure, Sr., who ran for Colonel Hayward in 1910, '11, and '12 and was United State Olympic entrant at Stockholm, Sweden in 1912, showed fine form in lopping off his half-mile of the two mile relay in 2:03.

JAKE Leicht, fireball flash in football, Oregon's All-American in '45 and track letterman in '41, leads the parade of the speed merchants. Jake hasn't hit his old 9.6 century form yet though he has been hitting under 10 flat in the hundred. Like all the other veterans on the team, Jake is having trouble getting his legs into pre-war form.

The other prominent sprinter is Carl Maxey, dusky runner who has pushed Leicht in time trials this spring. Maxey's main forte is the 220-sprint.

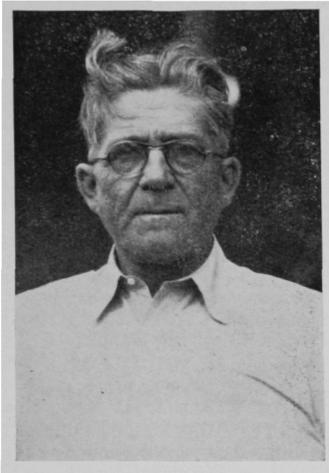

Other leading sprinters on Hayward's spike team are Frank Holmes and Jack McCracken.

HURDLERS taking the high and low sticks are Dave Edwards, Grant high Portland prep champ in 1940, and Win Wilson, dusky hurdle star from Los Angeles. Wilson was a junior college high hurdle champion in Southern California. Edwards Oregon's Dave Edwards and Oregon State's Ross Eaton flash over the second hurdle together in the first lap of the shuttle hurdle relay in the Oregon-Oregon State relays last April 13. The Beavers rode home victors by a score of 6 to 2 in a eight event meet.

Col. Bill Hayward, perennial Webfoot track coach, whose experience is coming in handy in building up this year's green Oregon squad.

has developed near-perfection in clearing the uprights. He won the Portland prep school meet one year with a broken arm.

At the present, the middle distance and distance events have produced one outstanding runner, the aforementioned Walt McClure. Besides "Mac" in the half mile are Denton Porter and Paul Smith. Smith is a former Washington high star in the mile and cross country, but hasn't been getting into shape too well.

THE grueling quarter mile is taken care of by Ernie Schauer, Evans Cantrell, Chuck Beckner, letter holder for 1943, and Dick Shelton, former Portland 440 man from Washington High. Like his high school teammate, Smith, Shelton is finding the time spent in the service a definite hindrance to condition. Schauer and Cantrell are the two leading quarter milers at this writing with slightly better times than Shelton and Beckner.

Roy Erickson, gridman of the '42 season, and Ken Hayes, of the maple courts, are expected to turn in good middle distance runs before the season is over.

MILERS were hardest hit by the ineligibility ruling, losing Joachims and Warren. This unexpected break throws the burden of the distance running on red-haired Hugh Stapleton and powerful-striding George Hammick. Though both men are inexperienced, they show definite promise. Harold Wright also is new to the distance race, but will do his share of running for Oregon this season as will Tommy Hazzard, frosh miler in 1942.

IN the field events two men have been showing early season promise. Bill Beifuss in the high jump and Bill Kydd, transfer from Washington in the javelin throw. Kydd is expected to carry the main attack in his event. Other high jumpers showing early season promise are Carl Maxey, Tom Garrety and Bill Siler. Dick Shelton and Bill Deller, both of Hayward's '42 track team, round out this year's javelin tossing team.

Oregon Founder Donates House to United Nations

The New York house of Henry Villard, University founder, has been offered to the United Nations as a setting for the Security Council according to reports received from Oswald G. Villard, former editor of the New York Evening Post and of the Nation, and son of the late philanthropist.

The house on 50th street and Madison avenue was built in 1883 at a cost of $595,000 as part of a six-house block constructed by Villard.

Significant is the inscription over the marble mantel in the entrance hall of the building. As if carved there by some far-seeing stone mason, the inscription outlines in a single word the aims of the United Nations—"PAX"—peace.

Zane Work Exhibited

A RETROSPECTIVE exhibition of the work of Nowland B. Zane, late associate professor of space arts, was shown in the art gallery of the University school of architecture and allied arts last month.

The collection was loaned by Mrs. Dorothy Zane, Carlton Zane, '43, and Marjorie Zane, '39. Various members of the faculty, townspeople and several sorority houses also loaned pieces for the exhibition.

Mr. Zane had done murals for several buildings all over Oregon and in sororities on the campus.

Lt. and Mrs. Horace B. Fenton, '43, (Pegge Klepper, '45) are due to return from Panama in April.

A Month on the Campus

Written for Old Oregon

By JANET WATTS, '48,
NANCY HOERLEIN, '48, and STAFF

In an effort to present the events of the month on the University campus in the most interesting manner, the two departments, "News of the Current Classes" and "A Month on the Campus" have been combined this month into a single department under the heading of "A Month on the Campus." The staffs of the two departments have been combined and Nancy Hoerlein, formerly in charge of "News of the Current Classes," has been appointed co-editor with Janet Watts of the "A Month on the Campus" department.—Ed.

Nine players received varsity basketball awards following a recommendation from Anse Cornell, athletic manager, last month.

Robert Hamilton '46, was given the only three-stripe award and will receive a blanket upon graduation. Richard Wilkins '48, Kenneth Hays '48, Reedy Berg '48, Stanley Williamson '47, Roy Seeborg, '47, George Bray '48, Marvin Rasmussen '47, and Bruce Hoffine '48, received two-stripe awards. As senior basketball manager, Nick Weddle '47, received an award.

Freshmen given basketball awards for junior varsity play were Walter Kirsch '49, Robert Kehrl '49, and Alan Cohen '49.

An installation of officers and cabinet members for the YWCA was held recently at the home of Mrs. H. K. Newburn. Mary Corrigan '46, retiring president installed the following officers: president, Margery Skordahl '47; vice-president, Martha Thorsland '47; treasurer, Nila Desinger '48; and secretary, Beryl Howard '48.

Betty Swan, freshman in Liberal Arts and a member of Alpha Delta Pi, was recently notified that she had been selected "Sweetheart of the Anitetam," an aircraft carrier.

The Amphibian pageant, the Orchesis dance recital, and a tea are three of the events scheduled especially for the Oregon Mothers during this year's Junior Weekend festivities. Chairman of the Mothers' program is Jean Watson, '47. Assisting her are Bob Matteson, '47, promotion; Gloria Grenfell, '48, publicity; Jordis Benke, '49, decorations and campus preparations; Kay Schneider, '48, registration; Pat Webber, '48, and Dick Atiyeh, '46, hospitality; and Marilyn Anderson, '48, social affairs.

Dr. Harry K. Newburn addressed the students on the "Responsibilities of the Educated Man," at the first ASUO assembly held this term.

Martha Thorsland, '47, as YWCA representative from the University, flew to Atlantic City recently to participate in the national YWCA conference. "One World Under God" was the theme of the conference. The inter-racial question was the one most extensively discussed.

Druids, junior men's honorary, was reactivated recently on the campus after a long war-time lapse. New officers elected are president, Bass Dyer '47; vice-president, By Mayo '47; and secretary-treasurer, Herb Penny '47. Other members are Bob Davis '47, Gil Roberts '47, Benny Di Benedetto '47, Bill McLennan '47, Wally Johnson '47 and Tom Kay '47. G. Duncan Wimpsey '46, is faculty adviser and alumni member.

Spring term saw the return to the campus of fraternity houses Sigma Alpha Mu, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Phi Kappa Psi who are sharing their house with Kappa Sigma. Women students from Alpha Hall, a section of John Straub, moved to Gerlinger and Susan Campbell halls and were replaced by the men from Villard hall and new students. The area on Alder street between the music building and University high school is being graded to house a 250 unit dormitory to be brought from Vancouver, Wash. The dorm will be ready for occupation fall term.

The Winter term honor roll of 176 students included 26 who received straight "A" averages. 4.0 students were: Norman E. Anderson, '49; Fred O. Burnett, '48; Mary V. Corrigan, '46; Leola R. Deffenbacher, '47; La Verne J. Erickson, '46; Thomas W. Gerity, '47; Bernice V. Gran-quist, '46; Norma E. Granstrom, '47; Maurice M. Green, '47; Corrine C. Hammer, '48; Clayton R. Hess, '48; LeRoy A. Hewitt, '48; Johnette C. King, '47; Merlin V. Layne, '48; Alice Lockhart, '46; James R. McGill, '46; Glenn G. Morgan, '49; Genevieve Morton, '48; Jean F. Paris, '47; Donald B. Richardson, '48; Marthe E. Smith, '48; Joseph P. Stampher, '48; Virgil E. Stice, '46; Charlene L. Thurston, '49; Yvonne A. Zeek, '47.

Yolande Pouteau, '48, was elected president of the University chapter of Pi Delta Phi, national French honorary. Leola Deffenbacher, '47, was elected vice-president and Irene Jolivet, '48, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Pi Mu Epsilon, mathematics honorary, chose Shirley Anderson, '49, as director recently. Shirley Rubenstein, '48, was named assistant director and Pearl Petersen, '48, elected secretary-treasurer.

Wilma Jeanne Wilson, '48, was elected president of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music honorary, for the coming year. Other officers are: vice-president, Rosemary Loder, '48; co-secretaries, Gloria Fick, '47, and Beryle Howard, '48; and treasurer, Jean Girts, '47.

In honor of the late Dean of Women Hazel Schwering and to contribute to the Hazel Schwering scholarship, the women's living organizations held exchange dinners last month. House members each paid twenty-five cents toward the fund at the dinner.

Plans for Matrix Table, annual banquet sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, May 1 were formulated by Yvonne Zeek, '47, general chairman for the banquet, together with her various committee heads. Stewart Holbrook, well-known Oregon writer and historian, was guest speaker for the event.

The smallpox epidemic which developed in Seattle and San Francisco during spring vacation caused students and faculty members to swarm to the infirmary for vaccinations upon their return to school spring term. Dr. Fred Miller, infirmary physician, Spring has indeed again returned to the University as scenes like this one of Oregon coeds basking in the sun are becoming more and more frequent on campus. Picnics, tennis, baseball, and track are moving into the limelight of student interest as "spring term at the U." gradually recovers that pre-war meaning.

reported that the shots had a more severe reaction on faculty members than on students.

The Library of Congress recently asked Dr. G. F. Lussky, head of the University German department, to prepare for its files a review of "Die aelteste Chronik der Hut-terischen." This chronicle was compiled between 1581 and 1665, a period about which Dr. Lussky has done much study. He reviewed "Rendentiner Osterspiel" for the Library of Congress records several years ago.

An interesting addition to the student body is Chinese-born Yothi Chou, known to Oregon students as Jue Stanton. At one time serving as Chinese official for the ministry of foreign affairs to the United States and later doing special assignments under the Office of Naval Intelligence, Stanton is a junior in political science at the University. Previously he attended Kuomin university in Kuangtung, China.

The first large-scale initiation for fraternities since the war resulted in 90 men exchanging their pledge pins for fraternity badges at the beginning of spring term. Phi Gamma Delta headed the list with ten initiates. Fourteen fraternities initiated in all. On the women's side, ten sororities initiated a total of 39 members, Alpha Omicron Pi leading the list with seven initiates.

George Pegg, '47, was appointed business manager of the Emerald for the next school year, and Robbieburr Warrens, '48, was appointed business manager of the Oregona at a recent meeting of the educational activities board. Miss Warrens' appointment is effective for the balance of this school year and for the forthcoming year.

An abundance of students has produced more than a housing shortage at the U. of O. this term—there's a textbook shortage too! According to Marion McClain, manager of the Student Co-operative store, the paper shortage probably will become worse, causing an even more acute shortage of textbooks next fall.

Maxine Cady Barnes, '46, presented a piano recital in the music school auditorium, April 16. Mrs. Barnes has assisted Miss Maude Garnett, associate professor of public school music, in conducting the University high school chorus, and she has also appeared as a pianist on the radio program "Let's Sing, America" over KOAC. The program of her recital consisted of the works of a variety of composers including Brahms, Beethoven, Debussy, and Gershwin.

Gamma Alpha Chi, women's advertising honorary, tapped 13 new members April 15. Those included were Beryl Howard, '48; Carolyn Jacobs, '47; Gloria Grenfell, '48; Joan Hickey, '48; Helen Hicks, '48; Janet Hicks, '48; Alice May Robertson, '48; Barbara Twiford, '48; Virginia Avery, '48; Marilyn Stratton, '48; Barbara Borrevick, '48; Barbara Fullmer, '48; and Pat Powell, '48.

"The Student's Stake in the Atomic Age" was the theme of the Northwest Student congress held at Reed college in Portland last month. Representing the University at the congress were Lois McConkey, '46, and Lloyd Frese, '47. Two delegates from the congress will be sent to New York to present the students' views before the United Nations. The "Oregon Daily Emerald", University student newspaper, was entered in a contest sponsored by the Portland Journal to determine which campus newspaper covered the decisions of the congress and their effect upon the various student-bodies the most effectively.

The death of Sgt. Robert L. Tramp, '46, was confirmed recently by the War Department. Sergeant Tramp was killed in the crash of his B-29 on a flight over Nagoya. He was awarded the DFC, the Service Medal and the Purple Heart.

FACULTY SALARIES

Facts and Figures on Faculty Salary Problem

UNITED PRESS: Released series of articles in April dealing with salaries of faculty members at Oregon's schools of higher education.

PRESIDENT NEWBURN: In an article on the situation at the University of Oregon expressed the view that University faculty members have been staying on the job fairly well, but that if salaries are not increased for next year, the exodus will begin.

OREGON LOW: Median salaries for U. of O. professors in 1945-46 was almost $1,000 lower than pre-war median salaries of 1939-40 at the Universities of California, Illinois, Minnesota, Ohio State and Wisconsin.

DR. CALVIN CRUMBAKER, U. OF O. PROFESSOR OF ECONOMICS: Reported to the state board of higher education that some replacements of faculty members who have left Oregon have been made at higher salaries than were paid before, and that in "training and experience they have been definitely inferior".

REGISTER GUARD: In the last two and one-half years Oregon's state universities and colleges have lost enough faculty members to staff half of the University of Oregon. And the rate of resignations is increasing, and under present conditions is likely to continue at even a faster pace.

CHANCELLOR HUNTER: It is becoming increasingly difficult to fill vacancies.

COMMITTEE REPRESENTING AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS: Requested Oregon State Board of Higher Education for 20% increase in salaries for higher education faculty.

REPORT OF PROF. LEO FRIEDMAN, OSC: from 1940-41 to 1944-45 living costs rose 35%.

Edit . . .

The March Old Oregon carried a full page editorial calling attention to two principal defects in the University faculty salary system. This issue concludes our "campaign" for early action on the faculty-salary problem. Faculty, as one of the three ingredients of a greater University of Oregon, is as important to us as student body and physical plant.

PROBLEM NUMBER ONE

The first defect in the University's faculty salary program was stated to be lack of range in salaries in each of the several faculty ranks. Salaries are grouped too closely around the median. Other schools, offering higher salaries for particularly outstanding faculty members, can attract the cream of our faculty.

Little public attention has been directed toward this first aspect of our faculty salary edit. It seems to be something for "internal management".

PROBLEM NUMBER TWO

A second faculty salary defect discussed in our March edit has received considerable public attention. Studies show all of our faculty salaries are lower than in most other comparable colleges. The problem runs through grade and high schools as well as our higher education institutions.

THE GOVERNOR SPEAKS

We sent our March faculty salary edit to Governor Snell. His reply is printed on this page. Although the Governor tends to express his personal attitude on two very important points (in his fourth and fifth paragraphs) with safe generalities, we feel his heart is with us. If so, it can best be shown by active, affirmative support of proposals to correct the obvious defects in the Oregon faculty salary structure. At no point does the Governor come out and say the present salary structure of teachers is too low. Nor does he say that teachers deserve a salary increase. What the Governor does say is that salaries should be adequate "to attract teachers of the caliber our state and its educational system deserve" and that a teacher's salary "must be sufficiently attractive" to meet competition of private industry. All that boils down to higher teacher salaries . . . the facts call for them.

NOW WHO'S MOVE IS IT?

What bothered us earlier was the lack of public expression from public officials charged with administering the Oregon higher education system which would clearly show they favor faculty salary increases. Students, faculty, the people themselves, and the newspapers recognized the problem with sufficient unity to crystallize the common opinion that Oregon teachers are underpaid. April 17 Chancellor Hunter released the statement that the state board of higher education had declared itself in favor of giving priority to the faculty salary problem, or "for as much of it as it

The Governor Speaks . . .

(1) The problems facing the State of Oregon and the nation generally are reflected in large measure in the State System of Higher Education.

(2) Liberal provisions for expansion of our educational plant facilities have been made, but this expansion is being held up by difficulties general in many fields of endeavor. Additional campus housing facilities for veterans have been and are being provided.

(3) However, the physical plant alone does not provide the answer. The character and quality of our educational system depends to a very large extent on the quality and character of our teachers. This gives rise to the questions of compensation, security, living conditions and special inducements.

(4) We must recognize that competition between states is keen. Oregon must be in a position to attract teachers of the caliber our state and its educational system deserve. We must make certain that the thousands of veterans who are returning to civilian life, and who are certainly entitled to the best education which can be provided, also will have sufficient competent instructors.

(5) It is my feeling that salary considerations offered to the teaching profession in the system of higher education must be sufficiently attractive to retain the present fine staff, in competition with both private industry and other states, and to attract to our institutions the best possible in additional personnel.

(6) The teaching staffs of our colleges and university must be increased to handle the expected tremendous load of veterans and others. We must offer adequate inducements, both in salaries and in tenure and security considerations.

(7) Progress along these lines has been made. The 1945 Oregon Legislature passed a retirement act, which will apply to faculty members.

(8) This problem must be met; sources of needed revenue must be found. And educational standards must not be allowed to fall because of the pressing needs soon to be upon us.

(9) The board of higher education has been giving much time and thought and study to the program. In addition, a special tax study commission, created by the 1945 legislature, is exploring phases of this problem along with a complete study of our entire tax structure.

can possibly finance." Further study of the board's opinion indicates that funds for the increase would come from increased veteran enrollment. That source may be insufficient; if so, let us refer to the Governor's statement in his eighth paragraph: "This problem must be met; sources of needed revenue must be found. And educational standards must not be allowed to fall because of the pressing needs soon to be upon us."

Liberal Arts - - Core of an Education

19 Departments Make up UO College

Written for Old Oregon
By BARBARA GILBERT, '48

KNOWLEDGE—scientific, historical, and literary—is the indispensable condition of the good life of free men." On this basis the University of Oregon has developed the central core of its educational program, the College of Liberal Arts.

Designed to assist and direct the exploration of man's nature and his position in the world, the liberal arts studies, at the founding of the University, were loosely grouped under the "Collegiate Department," which was first distinguished only from the "English Preparation Department" and later from professional schools. In 1899, as part of President Strong's formal organization plan for the University, the College of Literature, Science, and Art was established and continued for 23 years. With the reorganization of the Oregon State System of Higher Education in 1932, a College of Arts and Letters and a College of Social Sciences were organized at the University while major work in physical and biological sciences was allocated to Oregon State College. Only through the lower division and service departments were non-major courses in these courses offered at the University.

Major work in science was reestablished here in 1942 when the separate liberal arts divisions were grouped under the College of Liberal Arts.

The college, which includes 19 departments with all but two offering major curricula for baccalaureate and graduate degrees, is headed by Dean James H. Gilbert. Dean Gilbert, who is also head of the department of economics, came to the University in 1907. He received an A.B. degree at Oregon in 1903 and a Ph.D. in 1907 from Columbia university.

ANTHROPOLOGY

The department of anthropology, headed by L. S. Cressman, provides, in addition to its major programs, a background and perspective in human society for students in other fields.

Anthropology collections in the Museum of Natural history in Condon hall provide interesting material, particularly in the culture of the American Indian, for use in class work.

Dr. Cressman received degrees from Pennsylvania State, the General Theological Seminary and Columbia and came to the University in 1929. He is also curator of anthropology and director of the Museum of Natural History. Other members of the anthropology faculty are H. G. Barnett, assistant professor who came to the University in 1939; A. F. Whiting, assistant professor who came to the University in 1944; and Mary E. D. Douglass, assistant.

BIOLOGY

Planned to provide for three types of work: a broad background in fields of animal and plant biology, thorough training for students in undergraduate and graduate major work in biological sciences, and for required work in biological science for medical, dental, and nursing students, the department of biology offers courses in botany, physiology, bacteriology, zoology, and anatomy.

The Institute of Marine Biology at Coos Head in southwestern Oregon during the summer is maintained by the Oregon State System of Higher Education for the use of students of both the University and Oregon State college. The 100-acre tract of land on which the institute is located was given to the University by the Federal government in 1932.

The department of biology is headed by Dr. P. L. Risley, and other faculty members are R. R. Huestis, A. R. Moore, H. B. Yocum, professors; R. P. Sipe, associate professor; C. W. Clancy, L. E. Detling, and A. L. Soderwall, assistant professor; and Nancy J. Meyer, assistant.

CHEMISTRY

The courses offered by the department of chemistry, headed by Dr. A. H. Kunz, provides an essential foundation for students wishing to become professional chemists, or to teach science in secondary schools, in addition to meeting requirements for entrance into medical and dental schools.

The department was recently notified of its accreditation by the American Chemical society.

Dr. Kunz received an A.B. degree at William Jewell university in 1923, and his doctorate at Iowa in 1928. He has been at the University since 1930. Also teaching in the department of chemistry are F. L. Shinn, Pierre Van Rysselberghe, J. M. McGee, F. J. Reithel, C. H. Secoy, R. C. Andrews, Theodora N. Edwards, A. H. Groppe and Lucille Trowbridge.

CLASSICS

The classics department is headed by Edna Landros and offers major work in Greek and Latin leading to a bachelor of arts degree. The department is staffed by F. M. Combella, a widely known authority on Homer and ancient Greek culture.

ECONOMICS

As part of liberal education and training for intelligent citizenship, the department of economics, headed by James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of liberal arts, gives students an insight into economic facts and problems, in addition to fulfilling requirements for major students.

In addition to Dean Gilbert, staff members include Calvin Crumbaker, E. G. Daniel, V. P. Morris and L. A. Wood, professors and A. S. Alchian, instructor, now in war service but scheduled to return at the beginning of the fall term. Dorothy A. Bruhn is assistant.

ENGLISH

The English department, largest in the college, is headed by Dr. P. W. Souers and offers instruction in literature, rhetoric, speech and drama, and library training.

The literature division gives students a basic knowledge of English literature and

Dr. James H. Gilbert, '03, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, has been on the University faculty for 39 years. Since 1907, Dean Gilbert has devoted his life to educating the young men and women of Oregon. In addition to his position as dean of the college, Dr. Gilbert is also head of the department of economics within the college.

a detailed study of the relation to social history and natural culture.

Seeking to train students to express themselves clearly and forcefully in the English language, the University requires all freshmen to enroll in English composition. The division also offers instruction in creative writing and business English, the last named course intended for majors in business administration.

The division of speech and drama offers study in public speaking, interpretation, theatre and drama, radio and speech correction and provides professional training in all these fields. The division is directed by W. A. Dahlberg. Practical experience in writing and broadcasting for radio is offered to students through the facilities of station KOAC, and the University theater provides facilities for dramatic productions.

Through symposium programs and the Speakers' Bureau sponsored by the division, intramural speech and reading contests of the Pacific Forensics league and the Inter-collegiate Forensics association of Oregon, many opportunities for experience in the field of public speaking are provided. A modern equipped speech correction and hearing clinic is provided for the division's speech correction program.

Although it does not provide major curriculum in librarianship, the library division of the English department strives to acquaint students with the resources and use of the library; to provide instruction in librarianship sufficient for the needs of school librarians; and to give students who plan careers in librarianship an introduction to this field.

GEOLOGY AND GEOGRAPHY

Headed by W. D. Smith, the department of geology and geography offers instruction for professional major students or for students in other fields who wish some knowledge of the contributions of geology and geography to the understanding of the world and its problems.

Laboratory facilities for study in paleontology, mineralogy, and petrography are provided by the department and collections of rocks, minerals and vertebrate fossils from the John Day valley are found in the Condon Museum of Geology.

GERMANIC LANGUAGES AND LITERATURES

Courses in German and Scandinavian languages are offered by the department of Germanic languages and literatures, headed by G. F. Lussky. Other members of the staff are E. P. Kremer and Astrid M. Williams.

HISTORY

The department of history, headed by D. E. Clark who is also director of summer sessions, offers courses in world history and the development of Western civilization in addition to work in United States and English history. Special emphasis is given to the history and contemporary civilization of the Orient.

HOME ECONOMICS

The department of home economics is one of the two departments not now offering major work in its field. All professional work in this field was assigned to Oregon State College by the State Board of Higher Education in 1932. The lower division and service courses in the three divisions of the department are designed to lay a foundation for specialization in home economics and to serve the needs of students in other fields. Occupying the entire third floor of Chapman hall, the home economics department, headed by Mabel A. Wood, offers instruction in the divisions of clothing, textiles, and related arts; foods and nutrition; and household administration. Also on the staff of this department are Lillian E. Tingle, Valliere G. Decker, Ruth H. Thurston, Frances Van Voorhis, and Elizabeth K. Warren.

Dr. Dan E. Clark heads the history department in the College of Liberal Arts as well as directing the University summer sessions.

MATHEMATICS

Designed to serve three purposes, the mathematics department, headed by A. F. Moursund, provides training in rigorous thinking and analytical processes which are fundamental to a liberal education. It also provides for a basic mathematical program for students in science and training for teachers of mathematics.

A statistical laboratory, equipped with all types of calculating machines is maintained through the cooperation of the sev-

PHILOSOPHY

The philosophy department, headed by H. G. Townsend, offers a brief introduction survey for lower division students and a program of more intensive study of selected philosophical problems for major students. Other faculty members are A. R.
Moore, B. E. Jessop, and C. J. Sullivan.

PHYSICS

Headed by A. E. Caswell, the department of physics provides broad training for professional physics majors and helps to meet entrance requirements for medical schools. Dr. Caswell is assisted by E. B.
Ebbighausen and M. A. Stark on the faculty.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Designed to encourage independent thinking about political problems and to promote intelligent and effective participation in public affairs, the department of political science, headed by E. L. Johnson, provides a critical study of the organization and practical operation of American, European, and international governments.

Because of the growing demand from government agencies, college graduates trained in political science, the department offers a program of study preparing students for careers in public service and administration. It also provides instruction designed to help orient and broaden the understanding of technically and professionally trained students in all fields who or local governments.

PSYCHOLOGY

Headed by Dr. H. R. Taylor, associate dean of the graduate division, the department of psychology, besides preparing for major work in the field, provides an introduction to psychology as part of cultural education or professional training of non-major students. Other members of the department are A. R. Moore, L. F. Beck, H. R. Crosland, R. W. Leeper, D. L.
Adler, H. C. McMurry, Leona E. Tyler,
R. C. Myers, Jeanna C. Gray, J. C. O'Neil,

RELIGION

The department of religion whose aim is to acquaint students with the far-reaching influence of religion in the cultural history of the world, is the second department offering no major work in its field. Non-sectarian in spirit, it is designed to develop an appreciation of religious thought and experience, and to relate these facts to the problems of our times.

Dr. P. B. Means, who heads the department of religion, recently received a citation from Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, commending him for services rendered while he was serving as a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve. He had, before coming to Oregon, been for twelve years in educational work centering around Singapore.

Forced Landing, and UO Alum Meets Russians

THEY poured tea cups full of vodka and before we ate, we had to toast Stalin and Roosevelt and Russia and America and the commanding officer and his wife and the pilot and I don't know who all. We appealed to the Russian doctor but he just said vodka was good for us." So runs the account of Helen M. Gorrell, '41, of her experiences when the plane in which she was riding was forced down in Russian territory last Thanksgiving day.

Miss Gorrell, an American Red Cross worker since October, 1943, has been stationed in New Guinea, Brisbane and Townsville in Australia, Leyte, Lingayen, San Fernando, and Manila in the Philippines, and is now in Korea working as recreation director at a Red Cross Club while awaiting shipment home.

On November 21, 1945, a plane carrying ten Red Cross girls and the crew took off heading for Seoul. After missing the airstrip, the transport circled until lack of gasoline forced it down on a strange airstrip. The Oregon alumnae and her friends soon discovered they had landed in Russian territory. For two days they had no idea whether they would be shot or feted. They were allowed to return to American territory two days later after being forced to consume "gallons" of vodka at dinners held in their honor.

Helen also was allowed to witness the trial of Jap General Yamashita in Manila. She was on the field at Manila when the Japanese surrender party landed there.

She has flown over Tokyo and has visited in typical Japanese homes during her duty in the Far East.

Helen has requested a month's duty in China before returning to the United States, but after that she will be perfectly willing to return to "God's country" again.

Dr. James E. Campbell, '32, has been discharged as a lieutenant commander in the navy and has resumed his practice of medicine in Roseburg, Ore.

Dental dignitaries attending the first annual post-war alum dental association meeting held in Portland April 11-13 included from left to right: Dr. Collister Wheeler, Portland, who was elected to succeed Dr. George Redpath, Portland, as president of the University School of Dentistry Alumni association; Dr. Harold B. Noyes, new dean of the dental school who flew from Chicago to attend the convention (Dr. Noyes will officially take office on July 1); Dr. Herbert C. Miller, founder of North Pacific College of Portland which became the University's dental school last July, and present dean emeritus; and George Redpath, retiring alumni association president, who directed this year's convention activities.

'And the Molars She Had!' Dentists Hold Alum Confab

UNIVERSITY dental school students had spring vacation the week-end of April 11 while 655 dentists registered for the first alumni convention in four years and trekked back to classrooms and clinics for refresher courses, giving the benefits of professional and scientific advancement during the war years.

It was the largest assembly of dentists to attend an alumni meeting and the association officially joined the University family with its change of name from North Pacific College of Oregon alumni.

Dr. Harold J. Noyes, of Northwestern university, who takes over his duties as dean of the dental school July 1, outlined to alumni his plans for the school when he addressed them at alumni banquet in Multnomah hotel.

Dean-elect Noyes, who holds B.S.,

dental education "must be integrated with the health services on an autonomous basis." School plans call for training men, training them in the practice of new tactics and training in special fields.

While agreeing that a two-year pre-dental college education is the minimum requirement, Doctor Noyes said that "three years are more advisable" and told alumni that in gaining new students for the school while students are plentiful it is important to seek the best material among the men who wish to enter the profession.

More and more funds will be needed for development and for research and since the money is largely tax collected, he emphasized the importance of spreading public understanding of the profession's aims and what the expenditure of public monies for dental education will mean to Oregon. Other avenues in which alumni can play an important part are in endowments and assisting in teaching, Noyes told them. Dr. Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University, presented Doctor Noyes.

College of Liberal Arts

ROMANCE LANGUAGES

The department of Romance languages, under the direction of R. P. Bowen, offers courses in reading, composition and literature of French, Italian, Portuguese and Spanish in addition to courses in Romance philology. The growing commercial and political relations with Latin America has increased the popularity of Spanish study.

SOCIOLOGY

By giving students an understanding of the principals that govern human associations and relationships, the department of sociology aims to contribute to training in citizenship. E. H. Moore heads the department, assisted by S. H. Jameson, and R. C. Myers and Jack Parsons. Mr. Parsons, who was recently added to the staff, is a trained social worker and will give courses of a pre-professional nature both in Eugene and in Portland.

In order to provide broad cultural education and the basic liberal arts preparation required for admission to technical schools, the College of Liberal Arts has arranged D.D.S., M.D. and Ph.D. degrees said that several programs of study which utilize the courses of the various departments without departmental specialization.

This special division offers curricula in basic liberal studies, general arts and letters, general science, general social science, Pacific basin studies, premedics, pre-dental and preparatory nursing.

THUS it is that through the College of Liberal Arts, University students are given vast opportunities to obtain what Thomas Huxley called a liberal education—"instruction of the intellect in the laws of Nature, under which are included not merely things and their forces, but men and their ways; and the fashioning of the affections and of the will into an earnest and loving desire to move in harmony with those laws."

Harold C. Ellicott, '41, has been appointed secretary-manager of the Honolulu Junior Chamber of Commerce. He was recently discharged from the army air forces.

One of the more interesting jobs is that of Robert Schott, '43, who went first to Washington, D.C. following his graduation from the University, and then to the American Consulate at Basra, Iraq. After his arrival in Basra, Bob wrote "Basra is a quiet place of about 70,000 people situated on the Statt-el-Arab river about 60 miles from the Persian Gulf and about 8,000 miles from New York. The weather this time of year (February) is lovely. Most of the world's supply of dates come from around here. The houses are all made of mud brick and the poor peoples' for the most part of mud and palm leaves. Anyway they don't have central heating. One must for the most part make his own entertainment; consequently there are many parties, the show, the British Club, swimming, tennis, riding, drinking, shooting, card playing, talking, reading, and much work to be done for this lad.

1944

Miss Pearl Higgins, '44, and Willis Dotson were married recently in Eugene, Ore.

Andrew "Jack" Brown, '44, has been discharged from the service and has returned to the University to study law. Jack saw service as a first lieutenant in the South Pacific and the Philippines. He was married March 2 to Miss Virginia Hale of The Dalles, Ore.
