OLD OREGON

in other words

by JOHN CLINTON

Well, the Hispano-Plymouth was practically leaning against the garage wall, its headlights rakishly askew, its beautiful body caked with the white dust of the Mojave, the good salt mists of Oregon, and the balsam spots of Washington. "I'm tired, John!" said the Hispano-Pl

I patted it on the radiator, scratched its headlights and went in and telephoned my favorite Union Oil Minute Man—Champ, down at Foothill and Haskel. "Come and get it, Champ," I said.

For the most certain, economical and prompt cure of after-vacation-itis in your pet motor vehicle is a Stop-Wear lubrication job . . . as served staunchly and exclusively by Union Oil Minute Men.

When they bring your buggy back you'd never recognize it. You can see the difference in how it shines, and in how neatly dressed are the tires, running boards, etc.—how the glass gleams.

You can hear the difference in the quiet-as-a-mouse way it operates—no birds or rattles. And you can feel the difference in the slick way it shifts, steers and rides.

And along with all this, they give you a written guarantee against faulty chassis lubrication good at any Union Oil station anywhere for 1000 miles. That means if a squeak develops, due to chassis lubrication they make it disappear at no cost.

So if your car looks thin and weak after the summer, call your neighborhood Minute Men at the Union Oil station. Just say "Stop-Wear . . . come and get it!"

Dear Mr. Onthank:

The term "90-day Wonders" for graduates of this school or others of its kind is a good one. Any young man who survives this military educational institution is indeed some kind of a wonder. Originally there were more than 900 of us—in my room here at this hotel were twelve men. Now, after three months of study and drill at a speed almost equal to that of modern pursuit planes, there remain only 680 or 690. It has been a rich experience and certainly an example of the maximum results that can be obtained from an educational program. Exactness and efficiency are two words which characterize the program.

My orders direct me to report to Seattle for active duty. I must wait until I arrive there to find out where I go and what I do. However, I shall have several days' leave before reporting and so hope to visit the University sometime after September 22.

While I have not been outstanding in my class I did manage to get a final standing of 3.005 or "with credit." Jim Smith of Oregon did better than I.

Very respectfully,

Ensign Homer J. E. Townsend, '43
Room 607 Tower Hall
111 East Pearson Street
Chicago, Illinois

Phoenix, Ariz.,
Sept. 17, 1941.

Dear Lyle:

At long last here it comes—a letter with perhaps a check inclosed . . . I enjoy the magazine very much and have always been just the least bit sorry that I couldn't find room to work on it for it was always quite a chore for me to be torn away from the campus. But when I see the kind of a job that Roy, then you, are doing with the magazine I can appreciate how futile any attempts of mine would have been.

Upon graduating in 1940 I returned to Parker dam where my father was at the time chief engineer for the Bureau of Reclamation. After lolling around for several months I went to work for one of the construction companies, the Chicago Bridge and Iron company. Through the next eight months I developed into an X-ray technician, operating a $10,000 machine used in making radiographs of something like a mile and a half of welding necessary in the fabrication of four steel penstocks, 22 feet in diameter. It was quite an amazing and interesting job, although I did get rather dirty at times. There is nothing like the feeling of being part of a huge construction program.

In May of this year, Mother and I moved back to Phoenix and on June 7 I became as—

How Webfoots Harried a 'T' Party By BRUCE HAMBY

Underdogs by a 1 to 3 betting margin, Oregon's fighting footballers gave Stanford fans many a dark moment before finally going down to a 19 to 15 defeat at the hands of the Rose Bowl champs. It was "Oliver Twist" versus "T Formation" and the Webfoots matched Shaughnessy's famous scoring machine point for point throughout most of the game. Even as the final whistle cut short the game they were on their way to what might have been the winning score. Here OLD OREGON sports editor, Bruce Hamby, gives a first hand impression of the game with some comments on the future of Webfoot football.—Ed.

Few times in history has a University of Oregon football team come out on the short end of a football score, yet won so much acclaim as in the super-thrilling 19 to 15 opener against Stanford at Palo Alto.

It was the closest squeak the 1941 Rose Bowl champions have yet survived and, naturally, to the winner goes the palm.

But those Oregon followers who witnessed the game, played under a scorching sun, will not soon forget the courage and ability of the Webfoots. Twice Oregon came from behind to lead the vaunted Cardinals and at the final gun the heat-worn Ducks were pounding for a winning touchdown.

It was one of those cases where the loser shed no lustre in losing, San Francisco gridiron critics were unanimous in predicting that "Oregon will win plenty of games before the season is over."

A nutshell review of the game, for the benefit of those who haven't already heard:

Stanford scored first early in the first quarter from the one-yard line, after a series of passes and a brilliant 16-yard run by All-American Frankie Albert.

Within three minutes the spirited Oregonians took over the lead. A beautiful 34-yard pass from Southpaw Curtis Mecham found Tom Roblin in the clear and the chunky receiver trotted over the goal line untouched. Jim Newquist kicked the extra point and Oregon led, 7 to 6.

It took the champions nearly 15 minutes to regain their composure and get back in the ball game—and then it was a penalty to the Oregon one-yard line that assured the touchdown. Albert bucked over, missed the conversion and the Cards led, 12 to 7.

On the first play of the second half Stanford's Pete Kmetovic broke loose for a 63-yard gain, only to fumble when tackled and Oregon recovered on its 22-yard line. From there, the Ducks opened a 78-yard march climaxed by a touchdown pass from Roblin to End Tony Crish. The Ducks missed their conversion but still were in front by a 13 to 12 margin.

The winning touchdown came later in this third period, following a weak Oregon punt which went out of bounds on the 19-yard line.

Only a scant few inches kept the Ducks from still winning the game. Backed up near their own goal, the Cards tried one of their vaunted "T" formation sweeps, only to have Albert throw a wild lateral pass to Halfback Buck Fawcett. The Stanford half and Merrit Kufferman, giant Oregon sophomore tackle, staged a desperate race for the ball, which rolled over the goal line, and the Card got there first—making it a two-point safety instead of an Oregon touchdown.

That wound up the wild and woolly scoring, but when the final gun sounded Oregon was on the Stanford 40-yard line, desperately marching for a touchdown.

Oregon's stars were many, but the defensive work of Dick Ashcom, Floyd Rhea, Elliott Wilson, Duke Iverson and Jim Newquist and the brilliant passing and running of Curly Mecham stood out. Mecham was the game's leading ground gainer with 119 yards, including one 34-yard run just before the gun that almost went all the way.

Unless injuries cut too deeply into the small squad, the Webfoots should be very much in contention the remainder of the season. Tex Oliver's charges exhibited a sturdy, well-coached line and a deceptive running and passing attack that will improve with experience.

They're Doctors Now

Nine University alums were among applicants to receive licenses to practice medicine and surgery within the state of Oregon as the result of recent state board medical examinations held at the University of Oregon Medical school. A license to practice surgery and medicine, based upon reciprocity with several states, also was issued to another Oregon alum.

Receiving licenses were—Woodson Bennett, M.D. '40; Harold Evan Davis, B.A. '36, M.D. '40; Robert Louis Day, M.D. '40; Jack W. Grondahl, M.D. '40; Forrest Eugene Rieke, M.D. '39; Paul E. Ruuska, M.D. '40; David Krause Taylor, M.D. '40; Margaret Christine Nilsson, M.D. '40, and Noel Burdett Rawls, M.D. '40.

Granted a license through reciprocity with other states was Rudolph M. Crommelin Jr., '33.

Bartlett Is Bond Man

Kenny Bartlett, '20, star tackle on Oregon's Rose Bowl champs of 1916 (see story on page 3) is in San Francisco, where he is in the investment business, according to a recent letter from Robert Morton Jr., '18.

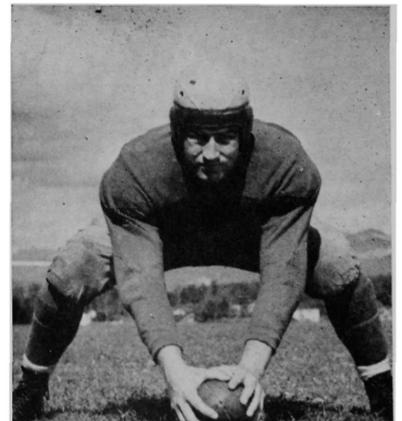

An excellent student as well as a great athlete, Ken mixed the two and won honors in both. He played the entire game against Pennsylvania in 1916 and although forced to leave school by war, returned in 1920 to play the entire game against Harvard in the Rose Bowl. The same year he was on the U. S. track team at the Olympic games in Antwerp, Belgium, as a discus thrower.

A member of Beta Theta Pi, he married Elizabeth Wiggins of Portland, a Gamma Phi at the University of Washington. Scholaristically able, he graduated with high honors.

GRACE MOORE HERE

Grace Moore, singing star of opera, radio, motion pictures, and the concert stage, will open the annual "Greater Artist" series sponsored by the University of Oregon on Friday evening, October 10.

Miss Moore is one of five outstanding attractions brought to the campus by the educational activities board. Also signed for the 1941-42 series are Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, on December 1; Josef Hofmann, pianist, January 7; Sir Thomas Beecham conducting the Seattle Symphony, February 23, and Nino Martini, tenor, on April 8.

Forty-One Years a Teacher

By BOB FRAZIER, '44

"And gladly wolde he lerne, and gladly teche"
—Canterbury Tales

History records the names of great chemists who make important discoveries by spending every available hour tucked away in some laboratory, but the men inspire these chemists to start such work are seldom mentioned. Dean Orin F. Stafford was just such a man and for 40 years sent scientific minded students of the University on the way to important places in the scientific and medical world. "A great chemist, a great teacher and benefactor," says Emerald News Editor Bob Frazier, '44.—Ed.

When Dean Orin F. Stafford died September 17 at his Eugene home, science lost a great chemist, the University lost a great teacher and benefactor, and all who knew him lost a great friend. At memorial services, held in Gerlinger hall on the campus Sunday, September 21, scores of townspeople, faculty members, students and former students honored the man who had come to the University as a chemistry instructor in 1900 and had lived to see his University grow until, 41 years later, it was recognized as one of the leading educational institutions on the coast. This host of friends realized, as Dean Stafford perhaps never did, that the man whom they were honoring had played a large part in bringing the University to the high place it holds today.

Dean Stafford's work with chemistry brought fame to himself and to his University, but, as was his way, he always made sure that his colleagues and his University received credit for his work.

When he first came to Oregon from the east he was impressed with the huge quantities of sawdust and other wood products that he saw going to waste. He undertook to do something about it. Research, from 1918 to 1922, culminated in the Stafford process for the production of wood alcohol and high grade charcoal.

Probably his best known research dealt with "heavy water." After chemists in the U. S. bureau of standards had publicly lamented the scarcity of this vital research tool, Dean Stafford, realizing the adaptability of McKenzie river water to the isolation, engineered the electrolyzing of 5000 gallons of water down to 50 gallons of "heavy water" which were sent east for the bureau chemists.

At the time of his death he was engaged in government experiments for national defense purposes. The nature of these experiments cannot be revealed, but it is known that he had just completed the first unit of this work when he died.

But Orin F. Stafford was more than a great chemist. He was a great teacher. He had that ability, so rare in many great scientists, that enabled him to put the most intricate principles of chemistry in words that the unlearned could understand.

Oregon is full of practicing doctors and nurses who declare they would not be practicing today, had it not been for the friendship and counsel of Dean Stafford.

Only two months before his death he was retired from active duty by the state board of higher education. To date no successor has been named, but a committee is now handling his administrative duties.

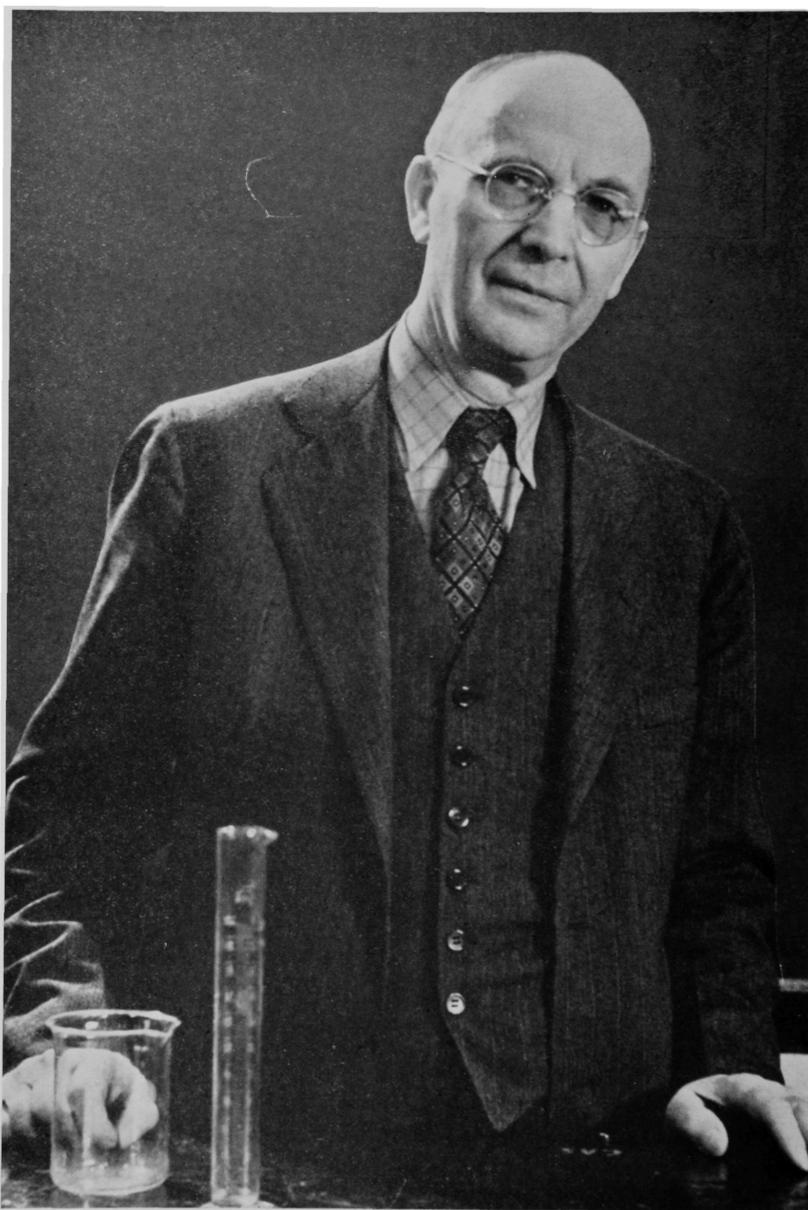

A graduate of Kansas university in 1900, Dean Stafford was born in Hillsboro, Ohio, February 7, 1873, the son of Eli and Sarah Kurtz Stafford. In 1885 he moved to Kansas with his family.

Dean Stafford was the son-in-law of the late great John Straub, who served the University for more than 50 years as dean of men and head of the Greek department. He married Dean Straub's daughter Mary Elizabeth, '01, M.A. '02, in 1903.

He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, and the American Chemical society, and was a fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

His widow, one daughter, Mrs. Miriam Stafford Hamilton '33, and two sons, Howard '31, M.A. '35, and John Stafford survive.

MANY CLASSES KNEW HIM—Dean Orin F. Stafford of the lower division and service departments and head of the chemistry department, whose 41 years of service to the University was ended by death last month.

1916 'Greats' Now Business Men

By RAY SCHRICK, '43

Everyone likes to recall great honors or works and so it is that Oregon alums most frequently talk about the 1916 football "Wonder Team" which swept through the best on the coast and then went on to defeat Pennsylvania, best in the East, in the Rose Bowl. In so doing the team made newspaper headlines and football history. What made this great team? What are members doing now? Old Oregon Assistant Editor Ray Schrick answers these questions in a double-barreled interview with members of the "Wonder Team."

Twenty-four long years ago war destroyed the greatest football team in University of Oregon history. It destroyed a team which might have been the greatest in the history of the American gridiron game.

Thirteen men, the team of '16, blocked, ran, passed, and tackled their way to the Rose Bowl. They defeated the University of Pennsylvania eleven, best in the east of that year, and a team that included two to three All-American players in the line-up. Undeclared for the season, and tied only once, these men made University of Oregon gridiron headlines. And perhaps the most startling climax to the entire story is the fact that this winning team was composed almost entirely of sophomore and junior talent.

One year later, the United States was at war. Gone was football and with it the greatest combination which ever trotted across an Oregon football field. That same year, Hugo Bezdek, famed coach of the "champs," moved east to Pennsylvania State. The complete group never played what would have been their senior year under University colors.

Today, those former players are business men. Their football days are over, and they live a more "quiet" life. A new war is about to start before them, but they will play a different part. They see a hopeful Oregon team of 1941 open a new season, a possibly great eleven, but not the one of those 24 long years ago.

Baz Williams, '19, pushed aside office work at his bakery the other day to reminisce for a few minutes on the days of '16. He was the so-called "all around" player of the squad. To put it in his words, "I played every line position except center on the team. If Center Jake Risley was hurt, Johnny Beckett would move into his spot, and I would go in at tackle; if fullback Hollis Huntington needed a breather, a guard might be moved into the backfield, whereupon I moved into the vacated role."

Anse Cornell, '16, now University graduate manager, who "moved out" just in time to make way for the Rose Bowl champs, remembered well the boys of the team. He remembered Jake Risley, '18, center, now a highway engineer; he recalled that Bart Spellman, '17, left guard, and former Oregon and Washington line coach, is now engaged in real estate and investment; he pointed out that Bill Snyder, '18, regular right guard, is now deceased, one of two members of the squad not alive today. The other man, George Cook, '19, substitute lineman, was killed in France.

Other line players have moved to varying occupations in the world. Left Tackle

Kenny Bartlett, '20, is in the investment business in San Francisco; All-American, the only one ever so honored at Oregon, Johnny Beckett, '17, is now a Lieutenant-Colonel in the United States Marines. One of two wing-men, Brick Mitchell, '19, was for a time Frosh coach at University of California and is now in union work. His partner on opposite end of the line, Lloyd Tegart, '19, is an M.D. in Portland.

Two brothers occupied backfield spots on the squad. Shy Huntington, shrewd quarterback, and now in the fuel business in Eugene provided spark to the Webfoot attack. His brother, Hollis Huntington, '17, played fullback. He is now in the haberdashery business. Halfbacks John Parsons, '15, and Monty Monteith, '18, rounded out the "all-star" line-up. Parsons today is in the creamery business. Monteith is an osteopath.

What made that team of '16 the greatest thing of its time? Williams couldn't exactly answer that question:

"I don't know what made that team great," he said. "It was probably the spirit. Those men felt that they were just as good as any man that walked on a football field in those days. They didn't feel that they were any better, but only that they were just as good. Not only did they believe this, they coached it, they practiced it, they preached it, and in the end they proved it."

They didn't have any long retinue of signals and complicated formations, those of '16. Six or seven plays formed the basis of attack. In emergency these could be deviated to suit pressure of the moment. The team was well-balanced, Mr. Williams declared; all players were near the same size and rather dark-complexioned.

It would be an interesting sight to see this aggregation step onto the field against a squad of today. And at that, they could probably give a creditable showing of themselves. Williams would not say that the game of the past was any tougher, nor would he say it was any "easier."

"It couldn't be much tougher either way," he declared. "The game has opened up somewhat, but when it comes right down to it, a man can only run, charge, and block so hard and so fast. It's still the man that can give out and take the most that comes out on top."

Several new members have been added to the faculty this fall. Among them are several former students, three of whom are Max R. McKinney, '34, M.A. '39, Henry E. Kuchera, M.S. '40, and Miss Frances M. Harland, '35. Mr. McKinney is an instructor in education and supervisor of social living at the University high school. Mr. Kuchera is also an instructor in education and supervisor of physical education at University high school. Miss Harland is an instructor in Romance languages.

News of the Classes With ROSELIND GRAY, '35

Oregon's First Football Teams Recalled by C. E. WAGNER

Oregon's football history dates back to 1893, according to OLD OREGON Historian C. E. Wagner, '01, when a group of students attended a football game in Portland and decided to organize a team at the University. Although they set about the task in 1893 the first game was not played until March 24, 1894, which has caused considerable controversy as to which was the first team. Active in making early Oregon gridiron history was the author of this article, C. E. Wagner, who played on several of the early teams—Ed.

Dr. Clarence Keen, member of Oregon's first football team tells us that a number of students attended a Multnomah football game in Portland late in the season of 1893. This led to a determination on their part to organize a team at the University. They were not willing to wait until football season of 1894, but began in earnest immediately after the holidays.

The first game was played in an open field on the University campus, March 24, 1894, with Albany college. Oregon won by a score of 44 to 2. Richard H. Syring, '28, staff writer of the Oregon Journal, had an interesting story on this game in that paper a few years ago. L. T. Harris, '93, had an illustrated article on this game in April 1923 OLD OREGON.

The first game having ended so successfully in the spring of 1894, practically the same team played the next fall. A picture of the 1894 fall team was published in February, 1924 OLD OREGON. In this issue the editor asked for an explanation as to why the difference between this 1894 team and the first one. The difference is: there were in reality two teams, yet each an 1894 one. According to my records O.A.C. beat U.O. in the fall of 1894 by score of 16 to 0.

The University's second football team, that of 1895, was pictured in November 1923 OLD OREGON. According to my records this team beat O.A.C. 42 to 0. We have no pictures of either the '96 or '97 teams for the reason none was taken to my knowledge. An effort was made to get a picture of the '96 team at the end of the season, but a few members refused to pose for a picture unless they were paid to do so. Not being able to get all of the real team, no picture was taken. We are able to reproduce, however, a picture of the 1896 squad.

In my opinion this was the greatest assemblage of football talent ever gathered at any Northwest school in the 19th century. However, they did not develop a strong team. They lacked two essential qualities, proper coaching and training, and team work. There was too much individual playing.

To illustrate the point, at the beginning of season I was center and remained such until I cut my hand on the machine shop band saw. Then A. P. Gilleland was persuaded to take my place. When my hand had sufficiently healed I joined the second team. In the first game with O.A.C. I was told to play right tackle in the second half.

Because signals had been changed I did not know them (the huddle system was then unknown) and as a result I could not run interference and did not know when to make a hole in the line for a play through tackle. All I could do was to keep my opponent from breaking through and try to stop the O.A.C. plays when they came through my side of the line. In spite of this I played the full half.

With proper coaching and real team work this team could have licked any team in the country. John Edmunson was one of our greatest guards, Ferd Herbold, a great tackle, Russell Coleman, one of our best ends, "Monk" Eastland and Oscar Stewart, great tackles, and Clarence Bishop a great halfback. This was Dick Smith's first year in football, in fact he never saw a football until he came to Oregon. He made fun of the first one he saw, but even with only his first year's experience he was a star equalled by few.

Two games were played with O.A.C. in '96. The first one was a practice game and was played on Kincaid field at Eugene. I have forgotten the score, but U.O. won by less than a touchdown. The second game was played in Corvallis and again U.O. won. The official score is given as 8 to 4, but I remember it as 10 to 4.

Late in the season U.O. was beaten by

A member of the early teams himself, Wagner has followed the ups and downs of Webfoot football probably as close as any other fan. EARLY OREGON FOOTBALLERS—Among the pictures in the files of C. E. Wagner, '01, is this one of the entire 1896 football squad which, he says, has never been published. Identified by numbers are—(1) Carl T. Travis, (2) "Monk" Eastland, (3) Oscar Stewart, (4) A. L. Gilleland, (5) Edward E. McClanahan, (6) Dick Smith, (7) John M. Edmunson, (8) Fred D. Herbold, (9) Russel J. Coleman, (10) J. F. Frick, coach, (11) Lee M. Travis, manager, (12) Clarence M. Bishop, (13) Charles L. Templeton, (14) Pat McArthur, (15) Lincoln L. Farrington, (16) Leon R. Edmunson, (17) John H. Davidson, (18) Clarence Howell, (19) Maholn Day, (20) J. O. Van Winkle, (21) Fred Templeton, (22) Kenneth H. McPherson, (23) Fred Ziegler, (24) Roy G. Case, (25) Waldo Adams, (26) Bob Watkins, (27) Oscar Gorrell, (28) Guy Hammaker, (29) Howard Bellinger, (30) Howard Davis, (31) Frank E. Ankeny, (32) D. V. Kuykendall, (33), (34) W. L. Whittlesey, (35) C. E. Wagner, (36) Miss Bohright and (37) Professor Luella Clay Carson. Clyde T. Bonney, end, is not in the picture.

Multnomah on a frozen field in Portland. I have no record of the score. The team lined up as follows:

- Center—A. P. Gilleland
- Guards—John Edmunson and Dick Smith
- Tackles—Fred Herbold, "Monk" Eastland and Oscar Stewart
- Ends—Russel Coleman and Clyde Bonney
- Quarter—Ed McClanahan
- Halfbacks—Fred Templeton and Clarence Bishop
- Fullback—John Davidson
- Coach—J. F. Frick
- Manager—Lee Travis

Very few members of this great squad returned to school in 1897. Nothing was done about a football team until O.A.C. began to inquire about the game to be played with them as per agreement. Joe Smith of Multnomah Amateur Athletic club was hired to coach. Alfred Cleveland was selected as manager and Dick Smith appointed captain.

After a short season of training the game was played on Kincaid field. O.A.C. had a strong team and won. The score recorded was 26 to 0, but I clearly remember that both sides scored. A diary which I kept gives the score as "28 to 6 or 8."

The 1897 team was as follows:

- Center—A. P. Gilleland
- Guards—Fred Wilson and Michael Barry
- Tackles—Dick Smith and Ralph Brown
- Ends—Fred Ziegler and Oscar Gorrell
- Quarter—R. S. Bryson
- Halfbacks—D. V. Kuykendall and Roy Knox
- Fullback—Ed McClanahan.

The fifth team, that of 1898, was the school's first well coached squad. Members

Remember the Twenty-Ninth NOVEMBER, HOMECOMING

Somehow despite the years and despite the miles which intervene the call of Homecoming rings insistently in the ears of Oregon grads and back they come by the hundreds to greet and be greeted, to recall old times, to note changes in the University, and to watch "just another" game of Web-foot football.

This year the University is making plans for one of the largest Homecomings in history. Feature attraction, of course, will be the Oregon-Oregon State football game which is expected to be a sellout. Another noisy edition of the "Saw and Hammer Festival" also will feature the weekend.

Some of the best plans will be made in the week before the event; much of the hard work will be done those last few nights, but it is positive that the University student body has been making plans and working for a long time toward the great event.

Homecoming weekend this year will be November 28 to 30, with the aforementioned Oregon State game on the 29th. Only a little over a month until grads will be trekking the Oregon trail to Eugene.

Oregon Alum Recalls Early Football Battles had real team work in their plays. It was during the Spanish-American war. A picture of the team was published in June 1924 OLD OREGON. Stars were Dick Smith, Clarence Bishop, and Fred Wilson.

The '98 team played four games that I know of and I think at least one other. With exception of Multnomah game the season was successful. Portland university, then Methodist, in those days had some good football teams, but its 1898 team was not the equal of a high school squad. For some reason newspapers rated Portland high and expected them to beat U.O.

In the game at Eugene, U.O. made the fatal mistake of running up a high score, 98 to 0 as I recall. When Multnomah heads heard of this they became scared and sent all over the country for star players. U.O. expected to win, but took an awful beating. I do not recall the score, but the team was so disheartened that it disbanded, quit training and told O.A.C. it could be champion of the state without a game.

O.A.C. wouldn't have it that way and sent a delegation to Eugene to persuade Oregon to play as scheduled. The team reluctantly consented and beat O.A.C. 38 to 0 at Corvallis.

(Note: I have used the terms U.O. and O.A.C. in this article because the college did not become O.S.C. until many years later and the term Oregon was not officially used until 1899—C. E. Wagner.)

NEWS OF THE CLASSES 1940

A son, Glenn G., was born August 10 to Dr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Morley, M.D. '40. The Morleys, who have formerly been living in Tacoma, are now living at 835 N.E. 79th St., Portland.

An early summer wedding was that of Miss Florence Parker and Fred R. Carlson, '40. Mr. Carlson formerly taught at Pendleton but is now associated in business with his father in the firm of Carlson, Hatton & Hay, auto parts dealers in Eugene.

Miss Pauline Harris, '40, became the bride of Derald K. Harbert, '40, at a ceremony performed in Portland, June 15. The couple are making their home in Eugene at 1420 E. 20th. Mrs. Harbert is a stenographer for the General Grocery Co. Mr. Harbert will attend the University this fall.

A teacher in the North Bend high school this year is Miss Mary E. Hughes, '40.

George Bennett McGill, Jr., '40, has recently returned to Eugene from Seattle and is now operating his own wholesale lumber company, under the name of McGill & Mooney. Mr. McGill's home address is 973 Hilyard, Eugene.

The marriage of Miss Loretta Smith to Frank J. Anderson, '40, was solemnized August 25. The couple are making their home at Pleasant Hill where Mr. Anderson is coaching in the high school.

FIRST FOOTBALL TEAM—The football in the arms of the man in the second row identifies this team as having been engaged in the gridiron sport in the year 1893-94. To call this team Oregon's first probably will raise a storm of controversy, but the inscription 1893-4 marks the team as the first in University history. (See article by C. E. Wagner on page 6.)

sociated with the Lincoln National Life Insurance company. It is a wonderful outfit to work for and a truly vital business to be in. Perhaps it is a far cry from journalism, but I'll get around to that later when I have enough experiences to write about . . .

Everyone down here feels that Oregon is going to be the team to beat this year and I personally am just about ready to make my reservations to the Rose Bowl game, although I do hope to see them play sooner when they meet Stanford on September 27.

Pardon my rambling, but I thought it was about time some one up there other than Hasselrooth, the tin bender, heard a little something about Koppen. So now you've heard, so I guess I will have to inclose my check.

Cordially yours,

JOHN C. KOPPEN, '40.

(Editor's note: Koppen, a member of Sigma Nu, social, and Sigma Delta Chi, professional, fraternities, was the Journalism school's "humorist" for several years. He was the originator of the idea which sent Sigma Delta Chi pledges, himself included, through downtown crowds clad only in long old-fashioned "undies" at the celebration welcoming home Oregon's national champion basketball team.)

Oregana Again Tops

It would be somewhat of a calamity around the University if either of the two student publications didn't rate an "All-American" score in competition with publications of the nation's leading colleges. Both the Emerald and Oregana have consistently rated with the top publications in their field in contests judged by national experts.

Latest award goes to the Oregana which maintained its "All-American" standard and was classed as one of the five best in the country. This was the third consecutive year that the yearbook has been on top and its fifth "All-American" in six years.

Editor of last year's Oregana was Wilbur Bishop, '42, who also is serving in the executive post of the 1941-42 book. The publication was managed by Richard C. Williams, '41, now educational activities manager for the University.

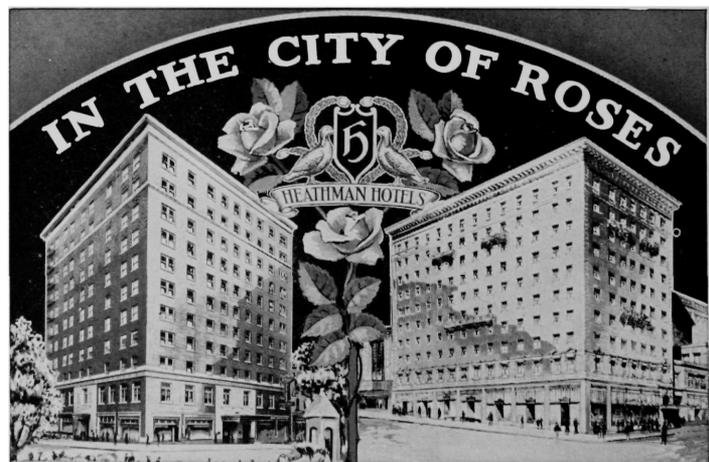

Enrollment Dips

Late registration figures for the University indicate a dip in the normal upward trend of enrollment with around 3155 registering the first three days as compared with 3361 in the same period last year.

This, according to officials, figures to be about a 5 or 6 per cent decrease with the possibility that late registrants may bring the total up somewhat.

A break down of the figures showed a decided drop in the number of men students, but an increase in the number of women students.

Not all Protection Wardens wear tin hats!

Green-grocers and bookkeepers by day . . . helmeted heroes at night . . . the men of Britain's Air Raid Precaution Service have made a magnificent contribution to their country's defense.

HERE in America, busy men with plain felt hats in place of tin ones provide protection day and night for countless homes.

They're not digging wounded children out of debris—but they are sending thousands of healthy children through school and college.

They're not snuffing out incendiaries on neighboring roofs—but they are helping the families under those roofs to carry on, after death has struck without a warning siren.

Who are they? They are the trained and experienced life insurance men and women of America, who are helping countless families to set up defenses that are certain in uncertain times.

From coast to coast, New England Mutual's group of Career Underwriters is eminently qualified to render intelligent counsel on personal insurance problems.

Representing the first mutual life insurance company chartered in this country, they are equipped with a variety of unusually liberal contracts that may be written to suit your particular needs.

A friendly consultation may be had without obligation on your part.

THE FIRST MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY CHARTERED IN AMERICA—1885

Call on these men for careful counsel on family defense

Below is a list of "protection wardens" from your own college.

They have chosen life insurance as a career because it means personal independence, and carries with it the satisfaction of rendering constructive service—freeing families from fear—selling investments that no buyer ever regrets.

They have chosen New England Mutual as a company because it is old in years but young in spirit. Because it's the first mutual life insurance company chartered in America, with modern policy contracts which are noted for their flexibility.

If you're not near enough to any of these fellow-alumni for a personal conference, look in the telephone directory for the New England Mutual office in your city. You will find carefully trained, experienced men, largely with college backgrounds, who will be glad to talk to you, whether or not you are in the market for insurance.

Because many of our capable younger fieldmen have gone into the nation's service, our organization has a number of opportunities available in various parts of the country.

If you are between 25 and 35, married, preferably with some sales experience, or if you know some one who fits these specifications and who may not be happy in his present work, why not write to our Director of Agencies, Wm. Eugene Hays (Stanford '26), for further information?

Address your letter to 87 Milk St., Boston, Mass. There will be no obligation involved.

1941 looks at 1916

THINGS have changed a lot in 25 years and yet there is much that is the same.

In 1916 it was Preparedness; in 1941, National Defense. But now the scale is bigger, the pace faster. There was pressure on the telephone business then. The pressure is infinitely greater now. New training camps; new aviation fields; new munitions plants—all need telephones. Every one is moving faster and when a Nation hurries it does it by telephone. The Bell System spent 94 millions on new construction in 1916. It is spending more than 420 millions in 1941.

The entire Bell System organization is giving “first call” to defense. We believe you would want it that way.
