SIMPLE AND EFFICIENT—The Bell Solar Battery is made of thin, specially treated strips of silicon, an ingredient of common sand. Needs no fuel other than light. Should theoretically last indefinitely, since it has no moving parts and nothing is consumed.

New Bell Solar Battery Converts Sun's Rays Into Electricity

Bell Telephone Laboratories demonstrate new device for using power from the sun

Great and kindly is the sun. Each day it bathes the earth in light, bringing life to everything on earth.

Scientists have long reached for the secret of the sun. For they have known that it sends us nearly as much energy daily as is contained in all known reserves of coal, oil and uranium.

If this energy could be put to use there would be enough to turn every wheel and light every lamp that mankind would ever need.

Now the dream of the ages is closer to realization. For out of the Bell Telephone Laboratories has come the Bell Solar Battery—a device to convert energy from the sun directly and efficiently into usable amounts of electricity.

Though much development remains to be done, this new battery gives a glimpse of future progress in many fields. Its use with transistors (also invented at Bell Laboratories) offers far-reaching opportunities for improvements and economies in telephone service.

A small Bell Solar Battery has shown that it can send voices over telephone wires and operate low-power radio transmitters. Made to cover a square yard, it can deliver enough power from the sun to light an ordinary reading lamp.

Great benefits for telephone users and for all mankind will come from this forward step in harnessing the limitless power of the sun.

To and From

OREGON alumni who knew Paul J. Deutschmann '40 from campus days or from his two years as editor of OLD OREGON will miss him while he takes a year's leave to work on his doctorate at Stanford. But his friends will be glad to hear of honors which were accorded him in July at the national conference of the American Alumni Council at Biloxi, Mississippi.

Judged "top college alumni publication in the Pacific Northwest" were last year's issues of OLD OREGON, under his direction. An article in this "To and From" column, about "open spaces on the campus and in the mind," also received a third place award in the "editorial comment" category.

The Association took other honors at the AAC meeting, too. For the second straight year, its gadget-type membership renewal letters were named first in the direct mail competition. The series of five letters used this year also received mention in the Reporter of Direct Mail Advertising, a trade publication. Last year's series walked off with top awards in the "Best of Industry" contest sponsored by the Direct Mail Advertising Association of America, as well as in the American Alumni Council competition.

Both letter series were originated by Alumni Director Les Anderson '43, who represented the University at the AAC meeting this year.

IT seems we're really starting something with the story in this issue on yell kings of the past. It begins a series of six stories on the friends you'll remember as Big Men on Campus—and Big Women on Campus—from your undergraduate days. We found a speedy and generous response from many former Yell Kings we queried; our only fear is that some letters may have gone astray with wrong addresses, or that some answers may arrive too late. If they do, though, we'll use them in a special catch-up story next time.

The way it's planned now, former student body presidents will be reviewed in the October-November issue. Later we'll scan the lists of Homecoming Queens and Dad's Day Hostesses, with those young men who have been chosen King of Hearts; Betty Coeds and Joe Colleges; Junior Weekend Queens, and editors of the Emerald for years past.

ATTEMPTING to follow along in Paul Deutschmann's capably-drawn paths, we will echo his thoughts of a couple of years ago on the statement a new editor makes on how he, or she, plans to handle things. "The goal of OLD OREGON will be, as it has been, to give you an interesting report on what is happening on the campus, and what is happening to you—the alumni." We'll repeat, too, his invitation for letters and notes of news, suggestions, or ideas. In other words, "Like to hear from you sometime."—D. S.

Director, Athletic News Bureau

WHAT will Oregon's football fortunes be this fall? The answer to this very interesting question varies with the person who is doing the talking.

Football writers who make a business of studying the gridiron possibilities of the nation's leading teams each summer, for national publications, generally rate the Oregon Duck a pretty tough bird in 1954. The estimates of Webfoot strength range from an ambitious 11th in the country by one expert (Stanley Woodward) to fourth in the Pacific Coast Conference by another. The remainder put the Ducks somewhere between these two extremes.

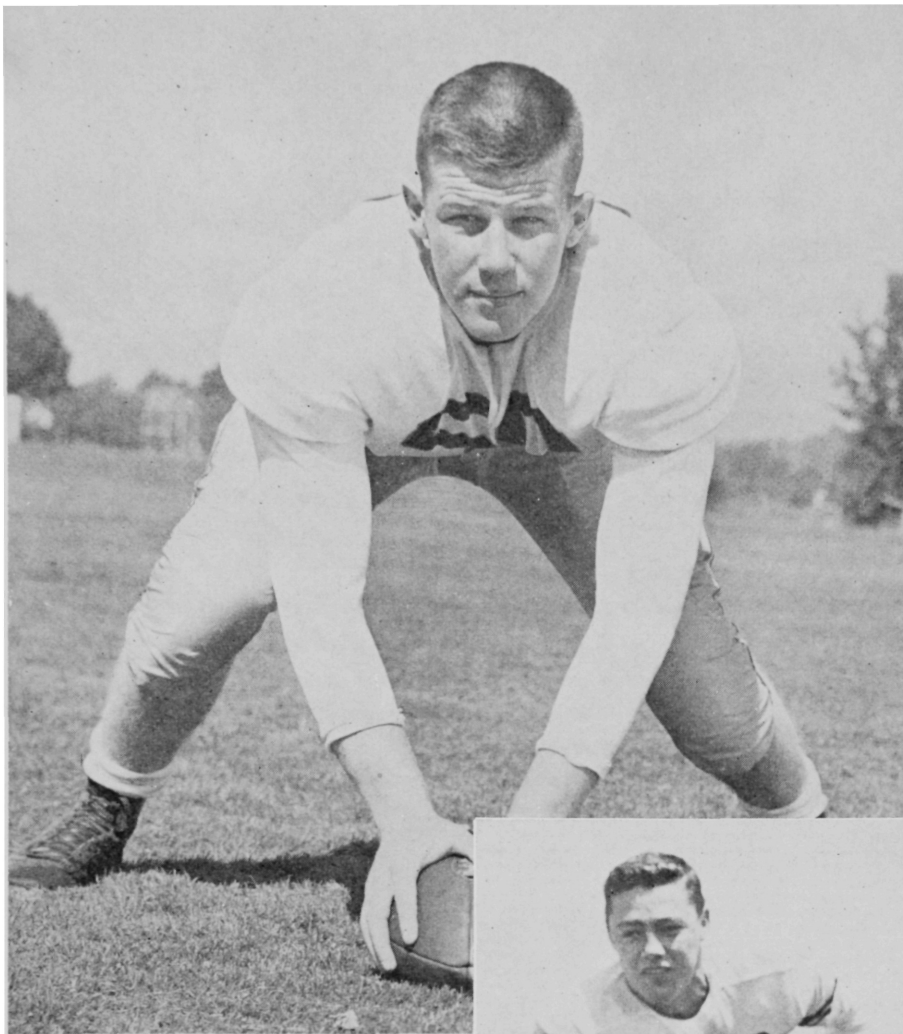

Oregon's official athletic family—coaches, players, etc.—join alumni and friends of the team in hoping for a successful season. How successful it will be is dependent on a good many factors which are, and always have been, unpredictable: Game luck, injuries, and so on.

The Ducks generally are bracketed, in the pre-season estimates of the PCC race, with California, UCLA and Southern California as major threats in the race for the championship. Handling any one, or a combination, of these three teams is a pretty fair Saturday afternoon's work without even considering the seven other opponents who will be after Oregon's grid scalp during the fall.

Speaking of opponents, Oregon's schedule again is divided half and half between road and home games. The Ducks open against Idaho Sept. 18 at Moscow; play Stanford in a night game at Portland on

August-September 1954

Sept. 25, then go to Hayward Field for an intersectional tussle with Utah on Oct. 2. The gridmen will travel to Berkeley, California, on Oct. 9 before making their second Multnomah Stadium appearance against Southern California on Oct. 16. They'll face San Jose at Eugene on Oct. 23, then go to Washington State on Oct. 30 and to Los Angeles for the UCLA game on Nov. 6. The Webfoot team will be back in Eugene for the Homecoming Game with Washington State on Nov. 13, and will close their scheduled season in Corvallis with the annual Oregon State game, Nov. 20.

One of the highlights of the schedule is the Southern California game on Oct. 16. Not only will it mark the continuation of a fine football rivalry, but it has been selected by the NCAA for the national TV "Game of the Week" series. This is the second straight year Oregon has been so honored—the Ducks played Nebraska at Lincoln last fall—and it is the first time a Northern Division school has (1) been selected two years in a row and (2) been chosen to present a home game. The Ducks remain the only northern team to appear on the series.

Returning to the original point, how will Oregon fare this fall? The man who is best qualified to offer an opinion, Coach Len Casanova, has some very definite ideas on the subject.

"We should be stronger than a year ago," Coach Casanova says, "and while we have some serious problems to solve, our outlook is better than it has been in any of my previous three seasons at Oregon."

"The line, tackle to tackle," the Webfoot coach continues, "is one of our basic strengths. We have all of our regulars back in these positions with the exception of Ken Sweitzer at left guard, and we have added enough sophomores and transfers to adequately replace the others who have graduated in these positions."

Turning to the backfield, Coach Casanova rates it good, but not as deep in reserve strength as the middle line. "We have one of the country's finest football players in George Shaw; there are a number of veterans back in the halfback and fullback spots, and we hope the sophomores will contribute considerably to our backfield positions," he adds.

"Our problems start with the ends and the fullback positions," Coach Casanova says, "and continue with a lack of experienced depth at some other positions. We hope to solve the end situation partially by shifting Harold Reeve, who has done a wonderful job at tackle, for a try as a wingman, and have hopes that Lettermen Larry Rose and Dean Van Leuven, along with sophomore Jasper McGee, can give us the punch and blocking we need at fullback."

"We hope we can produce a more consistent attack this fall," the Duck boss concludes, "and at the same time maintain the fine defense we had last year. If we do, it could be an enjoyable season for the players, the Oregon fans and certainly the coaching staff."

Each fall a number of familiar names are missing from the lineup and there are those who appear in varsity competition for the first time. Oregon lost some fine competitors through graduation and other reasons; Coach Casanova is highly hopeful that the sophomores will do an adequate job of replacing them.

The losses included Capt. Emery Barnes, John Reed, Len Berrie, Tom Elliott and Ben Johnson at end; Chuck Laird at tackle; Doyle Higdon, Don Hedgepeth, George Mutschler and Sweitzer at guard; Barney Holland at quarterback; Ted Anderson and Farrell Albright at halfback, and Cece Hodges at fullback.

The majority completed their collegiate competition, but a tragic dynamite explosion cost Higdon, the fine junior from Cottage Grove who doubled as a javelin thrower for the track team, his life in mid-August. The other unscheduled losses were Albright, who earned a place in the dental school a year ahead of schedule, and Reed and Mutschler, who both decided to accept jobs and will not return for their remaining competition.

The backbone of the returning squad will be made up of 18 lettermen, three of whom earned their letters in seasons prior to 1953. Shaw, Jack Patera, Hal Reeve and Captain Ron Pheister, all Oregon prep products, will be playing their fourth varsity seasons.

Harry Johnson and Lon Stiner, the second unit tackles a year ago; Dave Lowe, Pheister's replacement; and Chuck Greenley and Jerry Nelson of the second club, complete the list of 1953 lettermen who will be on hand.

Lloyd Powell, halfback, and Don Holt, quarterback, both lettered in 1952, and Leroy Campbell, the 1951 offensive right end, is back after two years in service to complete the total of 18 lettermen.

There are two transfers at guard positions: Dick Yecny of Fresno JC and Jim Potter of Menlo JC demonstrated in spring practice they may help considerably this fall.

Sophomore Phil McHugh of Portland's Central Catholic High has made a successful shift from fullback to end, and has been joined by Steve Danchock of Roseburg and Bill Moore of The Dalles. Rookie tackles include Charlie Austin of Bend and Jim Laughton of Portland.

The top guards are Don Jacobs of Medford, Reanous Cochran of Coos Bay and Gerald Dixon of Willowa. New center is Spike Hillstrom, one-time Coos Bay fullback.

The new backs are one of the real bright spots, with Tom Crabtree of Coos Bay, the Dick Smith scholarship winner, and Hank Loumena of Millbrae, Calif., at halfback, and McGee at fullback. Eugene's Wally Russell of the 1951 squad, just back from the service, and Johnny Keller of Portland, a 1952 Duckling, will be sophomore quarterbacks this fall.

A position-by-position breakdown of the squad as it prepares for the opener with Idaho follows:

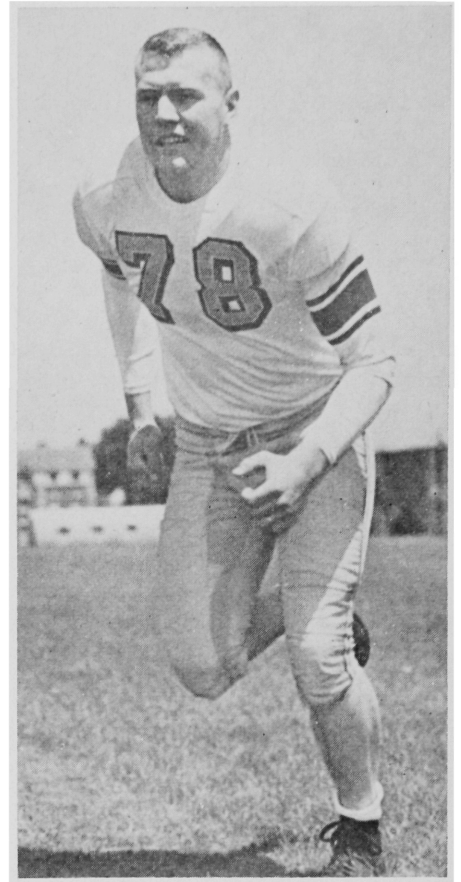

ENDS: Mobley, a regular, and Greenley are the only 1953 lettermen, with Campbell back for his first season of non-platoon football. The success of Reeve, switched from tackle, could be the key at this position. McHugh is a top prospect and the other wingmen will be Ted Overton, who did not play last year; Moore, Danchock and Nick Marculis and Gene Carpenter, both up from the Ducklings.

TACKLES: Tucker, Johnson and Stiner are all top-flight veterans and Lowe moves over from center. Austin is regarded as an outstanding prospect and Laughton joins him in moving up from the frosh.

GUARDS: Patera is one of the PCC's best. Potter has made a strong bid for a first team position and there will be ample competition from Yecny and Nelson, who was out of eight games with injuries last season. Jacobs, Cochran and Dixon all come up from the Ducklings.

CENTER: Pheister was all-coast last season and rates with the nation's best. Art Weber, a non-letterman last season, and Hillstrom will form the reserve strength.

QUARTERBACK: Shaw was the only unanimous all-PCC choice last year. Russell and Keller, along with Holt, will battle it out for the job of spelling the brilliant Oregon all-America candidate.

Moved to end . . . Hal Reeve

HALFBACKS: James and Gaffney operated as regulars last season and both were outstanding on both offense and defense. Both, however, will get stiff competition from Crabtree. Powell, Loumena and a pair of non-lettermen from 1953, John Woyat and Dick Pavlat.

FULLBACK: Van Leuven and Rose are the veterans with McGee scheduled to make a strong bid for the starting job. This is one of the key positions in the Ducks' drive for a successful season.

Lettermen's Lounge Progresses

For Oregon lettermen—past, present and future—the “promised land” drew nearer this month in the planning of Athletic Director Leo Harris.

In a letter to former Webfoot athletes, Harris announced that a lettermen's lounge and trophy room are included in the blueprints for revamping of McArthur Court, which now is under way.

Construction will be started when offices housing the athletic business and ticket offices can be relocated. The new lounge will be built into the business offices and may be ready for use late in the 1954-55 school year, Harris said.

The lounge will be for both alumni and current Webfoot lettermen. Tentative plans call for the installation of a radio and TV set, a small kitchenette, and a movie screen for showing Oregon sports films.

In addition to the social features of the proposed addition, there will be hundreds of pictures of past Oregon teams and individual players, and many trophies won by Webfoot teams in various sports.

Harris has asked all lettermen to help the athletic staff in choosing a name for the new lounge. The principal point of discussion is whether the room should be named in honor of a former Oregon coach or player, as were Hayward and Howe Fields, or simply “Lettermen's Lounge.”

This Year's Statement of Finances Shows Oregon's

Athletics Still in the Black

By Don Tacheron '55

Oregon's athletic department is still operating firmly in the black.

Leo Harris, Webfoot athletic director, has released an estimated financial statement which shows a profit of $69,437.25 for the past fiscal year.

This is the fourth report the athletic department has given through OLD OREGON to make its financial condition available to alumni.

"I'm glad to say we were able to operate at a profit again last year," Harris said, "and hope we will be able to continue in the same manner. We have built up sufficient reserves to be able to pay about $285,000 for the improvements to McArthur Court—2,000 extra balcony seats—and feel quite proud we could do this with money earned by the department."

The Pacific Coast Conference was again the major provider on the profit side of the ledger. The Oregon share of PCC revenues was $79,699.39 with the profit figure of $78,947.48, an increase of about $30,000 over 1952-53.

This item includes the Oregon-Nebraska nationally televised grid game, radio and TV rights from other football games, from basketball and from the Rose Bowl, and a share of gate receipts from the Rose Bowl.

Football and basketball also showed a profit on gate receipts, with the gridders taking in $9,853.41 more than they spent on a total figure of $151,488.86. Basketball drew $48,773.20 in ticket money with a profit of $7,078.70 for the year.

Another major source of income is a general heading which includes program revenues and concession profits. After activities of the Rally Squad and expenses of running concessions and printing programs had been deducted, there was still $8,031.86 left on hand.

A slight drop in enrollment during the past year was reflected in a reduced income from fees, with a lower balance of $5,535.37 in this category. Last year, the balance after administrative expenses of the department had been deducted was more than $13,000.

Special events, such as the appearance of the Globetrotters, again contributed a profit: $4,339.33 to the overall balance.

Baseball and track, never big "gate" attractions, took losses of more than $13,000 despite championship teams. The other four sports—swimming, golf, tennis and wrestling—are non-revenue activities and were operated at a loss of $6,450.03.

The steady program of improvement in Duck athletic facilities, outstanding for the past seven years, continued in 1953-54 with the building of the second section of the new baseball bleachers at a cost of $8,841.95.

The full statement is shown in tabular form on this page. Oregon is one of the few schools in the country which makes public an athletic department financial statement at the close of each fiscal year.

Before the Kickoff

Pre-Game Parties Again Planned in Portland

The popular Friday night pre-game parties sponsored by the Portland Alumni Association will again be held at the Rose Bowl of the Multnomah Hotel this fall. Two Portland football games provide the backdrop for the parties, one on September 24 prior to the Stanford game and another on October 16 before the nationally-televised Oregon-Southern California tussle.

Chairman for both parties will be William R. Bradshaw '43, assistant trust officer at the United States National Bank of Portland. Bradshaw will be assisted by President Julian R. (Bob) Smith '30 and the board of directors for the Portland alumni group.

A custom begun in 1952 will be renewed again this year, with alumni from both Oregon and Stanford convening together for the pre-game affair. More than 600 attended the joint gathering two years ago.

The parties are open to all alumni, their guests, and friends of the University. Announcements will be mailed with football tickets, and further details will appear in the Portland papers. The parties have drawn more than 800 on several occasions, and never has attendance fallen below the 500 mark.

A short program with appearances by President O. Meredith Wilson and Football Coach Len Casanova will be featured at the Oregon-Stanford get-together. Music by an orchestra will accompany dancing and the singing of Oregon songs.

"With the interest in Oregon's fine team this year and the tradition of these parties, we expect an unusually large turnout this year," predicted Bradshaw. "Alumni in the Portland vicinity will find these parties the best way to renew campus acquaintances and participate in the spirited backing of our football team."

Basketball Trip

Oregon's basketball team is currently in the midst of a pioneering tour of the Far East, playing 21 games under the sponsorship of seven basketball associations.

It is certainly the longest trip ever taken by a Webfoot athletic team and probably would rank as the most exciting. Before the Ducks return to Eugene they will have played in Japan, Formosa, Thailand, Hong Kong, Singapore, Korea and the Philippine Islands.

Originally the squad was to have made a trip through South America this summer, but the plans were cancelled when sponsoring parties found it impossible to arrange necessary guarantees in several of the countries.

Then the idea of the Far Eastern trip was suggested by Northwest Airlines. Within one month Athletic Director Leo Harris and Coach Bill Borchert were able to make all the arrangements concerning passports, schedule and financial plans, and reassemble the team. Nine players, Coach Borchert and J. Orville Lindstrom, University business manager, began the tour August 6.

The players are Jerry Ross, Max Anderson and Capt. Ken Wegner of Portland; Howard Page and Barney Holland of Coos Bay; Bob Hawes of Bend, Ray Bell of Klamath Falls, Gary McManus of Baker and Kent Dorwin of Oakland, California. Ed Halberg could not make the trip because of business commitments.

The Webfoots played their opener of the tour on August 9 at Seoul, Korea, after flying from Eugene by way of Seattle; Vancouver, B.C., and Tokyo. The full schedule includes the following dates: August 9-10-11, Seoul, Korea; August 14-15, Taipei, Formosa; August 16-17-18, Manila; August 20, Hong Kong; August 21 and 23, Bangkok, Thailand; August 24-25-

27-28, Singapore; August 29, Hong Kong; August 30-31, Manila; September 2-4-5, Tokyo, with one game at either Kobe or Osaka. The team returns home on September 8.

Advance notice was sent to Oregon alumni in the Far East and many are expected to greet the team in their particular areas and to attend the games.

A photo report on the completed trip will be made in the next issue of OLD OREGON.

Lowell Honored

Ronald J. Lowell '54 of Klamath Falls will be presented with the Thomas Arkle Clark honor award at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity congress at Atlanta, Ga., this month. The award marks him as the ATO undergraduate of the year.

A pre-med major, Lowell maintained an almost straight "A" average. He wears the keys of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Eta Sigma. In his junior year he was awarded the Koyl Cup.

Lowell held Standard Oil scholarships for four years; in his junior year, he was chosen outstanding student in the state of Oregon, and represented his state at the 57th Congress of American Industry in New York. He won the Van De Velde prize given each year to the outstanding student in Spanish at Oregon, and the $1,000 MacKenzie scholarship for his last year of pre-med work. He holds a scholarship to the University of Oregon Medical School in Portland, where he will begin work for an M.D. degree this fall.

Lowell played Varsity tennis for three years and captained the team in his senior year. He was a member of the Order of the O. Druids, Friars and Asklepiads. He was president of ATO and won the Emerald trophy as "outstanding athlete."

Discovers Artifacts

Dr. L. S. Cressman, head of the Department of Anthropology, and five young archeologists working under his direction have uncovered a variety of early Indian artifacts on a site five miles east of The Dalles.

The site, one of the most interesting and challenging he has yet seen, Dr. Cressman said, covers a long period in the early history of Indian tribes, including not only those living along the Columbia River but others from a wide area who came as traders. Already discovered articles include arrowheads, sinkers for fishing use and many bones.

This was the third consecutive year of work in an area which later will be inundated by the pool created by The Dalles dam, now under construction. Dr. Cressman has said that the earliest life in the area, as recorded at the site, may have existed as long as 10,000 years ago.

Remember Them?—

Yell Kings of the Past

Rooting for the team is an activity that's been indulged in by generations of Oregon students; the yell kings of undergraduate days are likely to be among the most vividly remembered acquaintances of Oregon graduates. With this story on several yell kings of the past, OLD OREGON begins a series of stories on the "Wheels" of yesteryear. These, then, are some of the men who spent part of their rooting days on the short end of a megaphone represented by Tom Gaines '56, right.

ROBERT H. WARNER '29, is general manager of Station KMON in Great Falls, Montana. He's been in radio for the past nine years, after "a fairly long stint" in newspaper advertising. He notes that his family—including five boys and one girl—enjoy Montana, although "there is an occasional longing, on my part at least, for the timbered slopes of the West Coast, and even the rain that was an integral part of every Eugene-staged homecoming."

Robert H. Warner '29

The late twenties were rather lean years in the fortunes of Oregon athletic endeavors, '28 Yell King Bob Warner recalls, but "there was always the Oregon fight." He especially remembers a riot after an Oregon-OAC game in Eugene, and still has a letter from the then president of the University, Arnold Bennett Hall, commenting upon the efforts which the cheering staff exerted in putting down the riot.

"OAC had just returned from New York, where they had acquired a national reputation, the habit of wearing derbies—and the idea of the visitors' tearing down the goalposts of the other team.

"The OAC cheerleaders and I had agreed that the victors would serenade the losers; nothing was said about the goalposts and so as we held our rooters in the stands to be serenaded and the Oregon fans watched the Aggies winding their way to the goalposts, there were ominous rumblings.

"Finally hosts of Oregon men started spilling out of the stands to protect their goalposts. I'd manage, with the help of Harold Kelley and another friend, to stop one group of war-bent rooters to find that another score had leaked out from another place. Finally our entire section was on the field and it seemed there were a dozen whole-hearted fights going at once.

"Never a tall person, I was at a distinct handicap in trying to edge my way through the spectators at each fight. Finally a law student took me on his shoulders and we made our way around the field until I could persuade our rooters to return to the stands and the OAC leaders could get their group to go on with the serenade.

"Obviously I was not very popular in any quarter and I was glad when the serenade was finally accepted and we all left the stands."

Warner also remembers his rally squad's job as building up enthusiasm beforehand, then "preserving that enthusiasm for the game itself in the hope some of it might spill over on such athletes as Jens Terguson, Bob Mautz, John Kitzmiller, Swede Westergren, Jerry Gunther, Gord Ridings, Swede Okerberg, Ted Gillenwater and Hobby Hobson." He particularly remembers the difficulties of leading yells in the student-packed Armory of pre-Igloo days: "About two feet of space for each yell leader."

TOM HAZZARD JR. '48, is now president of T. H. Hazzard Inc., the "family contracting firm." He has been president of the Southern Duck Club and vice president of the area Alumni Association. He and his wife, the former Barbara Jean Eagleson '48, live at 14151 Chandler Boulevard, Van Nuys, California, with their two sons, Tom III and Donald, and small daughter Carol Ann.

Hazzard served as frosh cheerleader and assistant cheerleader under Earle Russell in 1941 and 1942 before spending "the next several years of my career" in the Air Force. But he was back at Oregon in 1946, and claims "many fond and amusing memories" of the days that followed, when he was yell king in 1947. "The psychologists might have considered us neurotic veterans, but we didn't realize it. We were having a wonderful time"

On one memorable invasion of Seattle, he recalls, "The Huskies kidnapped our rally girls, clobbered me, stole our Oregon banner and beat our team." He remembers a very wet afternoon in Corvallis, with the rooting section, relatively dry under the covered stands, chanting, "Take off that raincoat" at him. ("It wasn't enough that I was standing up to my knees in mud!" he adds.) And once, while visiting the Washington State cheering section in Pullman, "I stepped up to the mike and called them 'Huskies' by mistake. Fortunately it was snowing heavily that day, and I escaped."

His rally activities were not forgotten,

LAURENCE E. (SQUEAK) PARKS '30, did five years' active duty as a Reserve Army officer with the Civilian Conservation Corps in Oregon forests after graduation. After two years with the Oregon Unemployment Compensation Commission, he went on active duty with the Army. After more than six years of war service, in the South Pacific, Australia and New Guinea, he was discharged in 1948 as a colonel. He's now chief of the educational benefits section for the Seattle office of the Veterans Administration.

Parks was married in 1945 to Mabel Ringwall '41; they live at 7353 NE 16th Avenue in Seattle, with their two children, Larry Jr., 8, and Cynthia Ann, 6.

"During these 24 years since college, I have met literally hundreds of Oregon people all over the world who remember me as 'Squeak' from my days of yell leading at school," the '29 yell king says.

"I never miss the Oregon games up here, of course, and usually get to come back to Eugene for a Homecoming once in a while, or to see a football game.

"I have always considered my experience as a yell leader at Oregon as important as any other single factor of my college days I recommend yell leading, rally com-

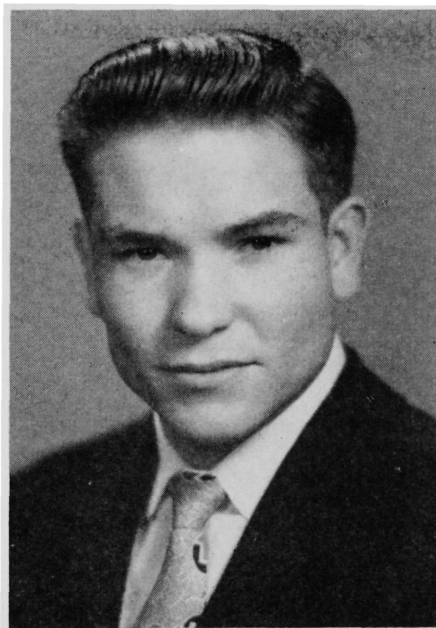

Tom Hazzard Jr. '48 and his wife, the former Barbara Eagleson '48, with Tom III and Donald.

Hazzard remembers, when he was "performing as one of Bill Hayward's less talented distance men." It seems that "When I passed the bleachers—usually all by myself about a half a lap behind—I was saluted with locomotives, split sixes and spell outs."

Another high point of Hazzard's college days was a trip with Al Pietschman to Bill

Hayward's home on the McKenzie, to record his speech to the team for "Win for Bill" day. "Just before the game, Jim Aiken had us play the recording to the team. It had a tremendous effect, and Bill got his win.

"He died a few days later. His pallbearers were the same athletes who had given him his last winning game."

mittee work and such, to those students who are seeking an extracurricular activity on the campus, as well worth the time and effort, and productive of results useful in life after school is over."

JOHNNY BACKLUND '50, is in the management training program at the J. C. Penney Company in Eugene. He recalls a highlight of the year 1947-48 when he was yell king: "The rally squad and band went down for the Stanford game; the band serenaded their rooting section, and we led them in a yell and even put on a jitterbug act. Oregon won the game."

Backlund also remembers the Homecoming game that year with OSC—to counteract the black and orange leaflets on "Beat Oregon," the squad came up with a yell described by Sportswriter Don McLeod in the Oregonian: "There was the usual good-natured ribbing between the rival rooters and the smartest chant of the matinee boomed from the Oregon bleachers. Spurred by their yell king, the Duck students started out with a vocal salute to the visitors shouting 'Black and orange, Black and orange, Black and orange,' then ended the cheer with a low throated 'B—O.'"

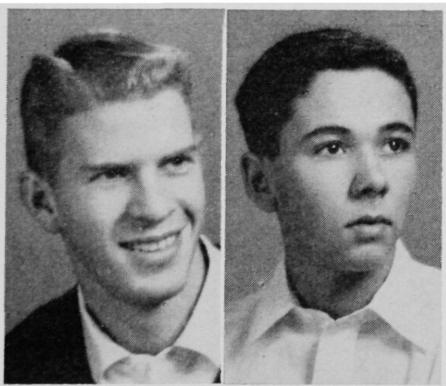

Like other yell kings, Backlund has vivid memories of the rally squad with which he worked: Bill O'Hearn and Jack Countryman, yell dukes, and Donna Stageburg and Shirley McCarton, rally girls, all from Eugene; and rally girls Sylvia Branden, The Dalles; Annie Bennett, Coos Bay; and Jane Daggett and Katie Yashan, both of Portland.

Jim Crismon '52

JIM CRISMON '52, yell king in 1950, has been working on the advertising staff of the Klamath Falls Herald and News since returning from the service in January 1952. He sells and writes display advertising. A member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Elks lodge, he has written and published the Elks monthly paper for the last year.

"When you mentioned 'Old yell leaders' as your story subject, you weren't far from wrong. Just giving thought to the old contortions on Hayward Field and in the Igloo makes the old bones ache. Wouldn't mind giving it the old college try just once more, I keep telling myself, but my body says no."

Lenz

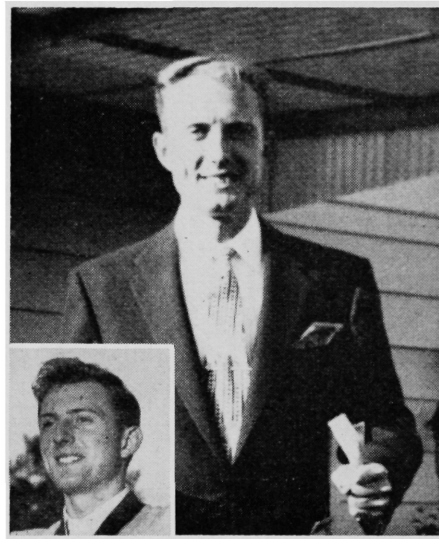

Hettick

DAVE LENZ '54, Bill Hettick '56, and Tom Gaines '56, all served as yell kings for 1953-54. Dick Janik '56, and Earle Culbertson '56 were the other two members of the new five-king squad.

RON SYMONS '52, has been working as a "money lender"—or mortgage loan representative—for Travelers Insurance Company since getting out of the Navy in March, and says his business major and real estate minor work at Oregon are coming in handy.

"Looking back to 1950-51 and yell king days always brings to mind Oregon spirit at football and basketball games, as well as the rallies and parades which preceded most of them. Aside from the excitement, the fun and 'rah-rah' spirit, there was the business of timing and selection of yells to give maximum inspiration to the players. Many times a player would later remark—as did Monte Brethour—that though he would not always hear a yell during a play, he was aware of positive inspiration from the yell.

"Dr. Paul S. Dull commented that year on yells as 'ancient atonal festivities.' Evidently people have been yelling for a long time—at or with someone."

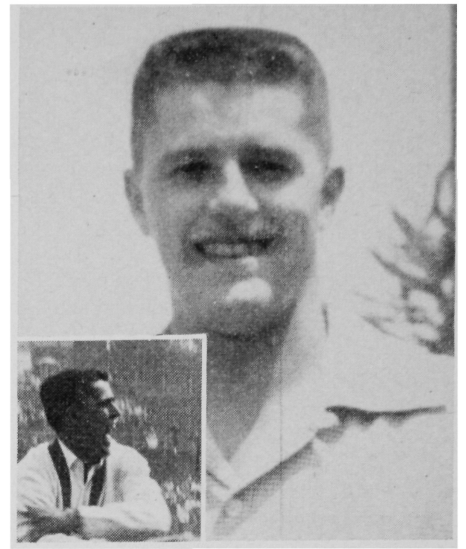

Ron Symons '52

Lenz worked for Safeway Stores in Oregon City after graduating in June. He reported to Lackland AFB in San Antonio, Texas, August 19 and is scheduled for ten months of flight training in Harlingen, Texas.

The people he met and the activities of the rally team are vivid recollections of yell king days, Lenz recalls. "Such people as Ray Hawk and Cy Ellingson, the yell teams and student body officers of other northwestern colleges and universities" stand out, he says, and "the members of our rally team were the finest people I have ever had the pleasure of working with."

Gaines worked for two Portland frozen food companies this summer. "I'll always remember every game and rally I yelled; each has a special significance," he says. He thinks that work and co-operation will mean a winning season for the Ducks this

Cy Newman '52

CY NEWMAN '52, is a solicitor for the Guardsman Insurance Agency in Pasadena. He, his wife, the former LaNelle Gay '52, and their two-year-old son Gay live at 310 Ruby, Balboa Island, California.

His most vivid remembrance of the year he was yell king is Oregon's game with California at Berkeley, when Cal was rated one of the best in the country. "We took the whole rally squad down in private cars and saw what was almost the biggest upset in football. Oregon just wouldn't take any note of how big the Cal Bear was and commenced to match them, touchdown for touchdown. If I remember right, the final score was 28-26 in their favor, as we muffed two conversions."

"I remember asking one of their lettermen on the sidelines, 'When are you going to put in your first string?' He smiled and very quietly said that they had their first string in now, and had had for the entire game."

year, and envisions "Oregon winning in the Rose Bowl come New Year's Day."

Hettick made a cruise through Canada this summer with friends, getting in some deep sea fishing and diving. Of yell king days, he says, "It is always great to watch an audience try to transfer its stamina to a weary football team—just by yelling."

UO Exhibit Wins

An exhibit prepared by Mrs. Josephine Moore, manager of the University news bureau, won a first place award at the annual meeting of the American College Public Relations Association in New York City in June. On the subject of student recruitment, the exhibit presented pictorially the steps the University takes in introducing prospective students to life at Oregon.

Jones, Anderson Named

Dr. William C. Jones' appointment as University public relations officer was announced in June by President O. Meredith Wilson. Officially, his title will be Dean of Administration, the same office he held in the University when he resigned last summer to become executive director of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education. His new area of responsibility will include nonacademic and nonbusiness activities of the University: public relations, student affairs, and instructional services.

Under Dr. Jones' direct supervision will come such offices as alumni records, convocations and lectures, editor's office, news bureau, museum of art, museum of natural history, Student Union operation, special University programs including promotional activities in support of development funds, and the director of public services.

Former head of the political science department at Oregon, Dr. Jones served as president of Whittier College from 1944 to 1951.

Appointment of Lester E. Anderson '43 as director of public services and alumni secretary was announced simultaneously with Dr. Jones' return. Anderson, who has been director of the Alumni Association since 1946, has been administrative assistant in the president's office for the past year.

Appointed to France

Kathleen Evans '54 has received a French government appointment as assistant at the College de Cognac for 1954-55. A Portland native, she received her master of arts degree from the University in June.

Miss Evans will give instruction in the English language and American literature at the French institution. She also plans to do graduate study at the University of Bordeaux. Scheduled to sail for France in September, she will join the college staff in October. The new appointee received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Hawaii in 1950 and also has studied at Lewis and Clark College.

Ellingson Appointed

Alfred L. Ellingson '48, counselor of men at the University for the past three years, has been named director of the Erb Memorial Union. An Army instructor in Europe during World War II, he also taught in Springfield schools before returning to the Office of Student Affairs on the campus. He is married to the former Charlene Thurston '49; they have one daughter.

Ellingson succeeds Richard C. Williams '41, who resigned from the position last February effective in August. Recently appointed personnel manager of the new Bon Marche in Eugene, Williams had held the Union directorship since November 1948 and before that had been associated with the University in several capacities since 1941. He and his wife, the former Marjorie Kellogg '44, have five sons and a daughter.

J School Plans

Journalism alumni will hold a "family reunion" of their own in Eugene on Saturday, October 9, to mark the formal opening of Eric W. Allen Hall.

Indications are that several hundred persons will be back for the building tours and luncheon. All former "Shacrats" on the J school's mailing list will receive luncheon reservation forms in early September. Others may make reservation direct with the J school office.

Allen Hall, the newest and most modern journalism education building in the nation, gives the J school a real showplace in which to operate. One unique feature is the Eric Allen Memorial seminar room, for which special furnishings were bought from contributions made by 300 J school alumni and friends.

Summer Roll Up

Summer session enrollment for the University increased 18 per cent this summer, as of July 28, according to Dean Paul B. Jacobson, director of the session. Enrollment was 1,830, as compared with a 1953 total of 1,545. The totals included only students enrolled for credit.

Rudolph Heads Sales

Robert E. Rudolph '43 has been named sales manager of radio station KEX in Portland. He has been on the sales staff since the station was bought by Westinghouse in 1945.

Rudolph attended the University of Portland, and has also been employed by station KGW and by the Oregonian.

Lloyd E. Webster '29 is co-author of "Health for Effective Living," published recently by McGraw-Hill. He is director of health education for the Los Angeles County Schools and was formerly professor and acting dean at the School of Public Health, University of California.

Vester, Thompson to Head Association

Ray E. Vester '21 of Portland, recently elected president of the University of Oregon Alumni Association, assumed his duties on July 1. The new vice president is Orval N. Thompson '35 of Albany. Each will serve for a term of one year.

An active participant in Association affairs for many years, Vester served as vice president in 1953-54. He was chairman of the Portland Alumni Institute in 1952 and a member of the alumni committee which studied the deferred living plan.

As an undergraduate, he majored in economics and served as business manager of the Emerald during his senior year. He is a member of Sigma Chi and of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism honorary. He is married to the former Marion E. Weiss '23 and is the father of a daughter and son, the latter a 1954 graduate of Amherst who will enter the University this fall for a master's degree in business administration.

Following his graduation Vester entered the banking field and was associated with a number of prominent financial institutions in the Pacific Northwest. He is presently head of the Mutual Loan Company of Portland. A leader in Portland community affairs, he is a past president of the Multnomah County chapter of the American Red Cross, and has been active in the United Fund, City Club, and Chamber of Commerce.

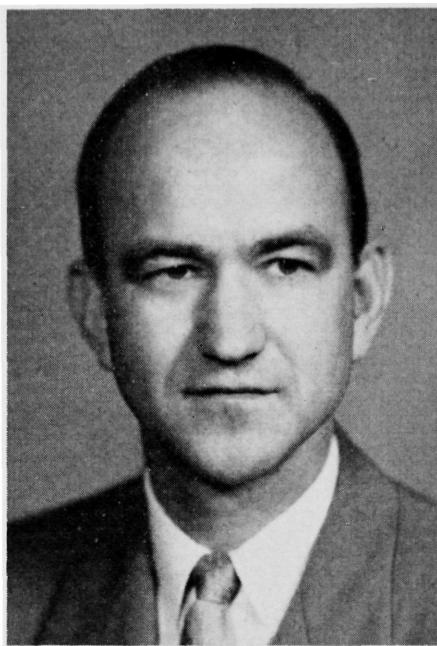

Thompson has been a member of the Association's executive committee since 1947 and has held numerous committee assignments. A graduate of the University of Oregon law school in 1937, he practices law in Albany and is a former member of the Oregon State Senate. As an undergraduate he was president of Omega hall, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and editor of the Oregon Law Review. He is married to the former Barbara B. Webb '36.

Bluemle Appointed

Paul Bluemle '53, executive secretary of the national headquarters of the Young Christian Students in Chicago, has been appointed director of public relations at Villa Madonna College in Covington, Ky. He also will teach journalism, be faculty moderator for the school newspaper and yearbook, and serve as a member of the faculty publications committee.

Bluemle, a graduate magna cum laude in economics from Xavier University in Cincinnati, was a graduate assistant at Oregon before receiving his master's degree in journalism. His master's thesis on the political effects of newspaper editorials won the T. Neil Taylor award in 1952.

While in military service, Bluemle was

Joins Insurance Firm

Woodson T. "Woody" Slater '41, formerly sports director and salesman with radio station KUGN in Eugene, is now a special agent with the New York Life Insurance Company. Probably best known locally for his "Old Trader" radio show, Slater has had 15 years experience in the radio and advertising business. He attended the University of Oregon from 1937 through 1941, and later was graduated from Stanford.

Chandler Retires

Ben R. Chandler '13, vice president of the Coos Bay branch and a director of the First National Bank of Portland, retired from active service with the bank August 1. He will continue as a director.

Chandler's banking career began in 1913, when he started at the First National Bank of Marshfield as a messenger and file clerk. He is a past president of the Oregon Alumni Association and has been a member of the State Highway Commission since 1946 and its chairman for the past four years.

Appointments Made

Appointments to the Executive Committee and the county directors group were announced recently by Ray E. Vester '21, University of Oregon Alumni Association president.

Named to three-year terms on the Executive Committee were A. T. Goodwin '47 of Eugene and Robert W. Thomas '36 of Bend. Goodwin is an attorney in the Eugene law firm of Darling, Vonderheit and Goodwin and served as chairman of the alumni committee to study the deferred living plan in 1953 and 1954. Thomas is in the automobile business in Bend, and will continue to serve as county director for Deschutes county. For two years he has headed the Bend Alumni Scholarship program, the first of its kind ever undertaken, which has made more than $1500 in scholarships available to Bend high school graduates.

R. Robert Smith '40, Portland insurance executive, was appointed county director of Multnomah County. Glen C. Macy '45, McMinnville mortician, will serve as county director for Yamhill county. Heading up alumni activities in Wasco County will be Donald G. Lewis '43 of The Dalles, where he is in the insurance business. New director for Washington county is Walter V. McKinney '51, managing editor of the Hillsboro Argus.

Reappointed to county director positions were L. E. Dick '40, Heppner, for Morrow county; Collis P. Moore '25, Moro, for Sherman county; George H. Corey '38, Pendleton, immediate past president of the Association in Umatilla; Ross E. Hearing '47 of LaGrande for Union county; Asa Eggleston '22, Enterprise, for Willowa, and Jack P. Steiwer '49, Fossil, for Wheeler county. Each will serve for a term of three years.

Football Films

Movies of all University of Oregon football games will again be available to Oregon alumni groups this fall. The circuit will comprise some fifteen cities, each of which will see the movies within ten days following each game.

Plans for the circuit are now being made, and alumni are asked to consult their local newspapers for the exact time and place of each showing. Mail announcements will also be sent to alumni areas where the films will be shown, and a complete schedule will run in the next issue of OLD OREGON.

The best plays of the 1954 football season with building and activity scenes, will make up the second release of "Oregon Football Highlights," to be completed in December. Last year's Highlights were shown to more than 150 alumni organizations and civic groups.

Wayne D. Overholser '34 and Mrs. Lucia Wilkins Moore '11 show his plaque after the dinner at which each won honors for the writing of Western novels.

Western Novels Win

For their Western novels, two Oregon alumni, Wayne D. Overholser '34 and Mrs. Lucia Wilkins Moore '11, recently were awarded the two highest honors of the Western Writers of America in competition with books published during the past year.

Each received a silver spur, mounted on a plaque in the shape of the initials of the national organization, from Norman Fox, famous Western writer, at the WWA convention banquet at the Shirley Savoy hotel in Denver, Colorado, in May.

Mrs. Moore, wife of Col. Harvard C. Moore, BA '09, MD '13, won the "best Western historical novel" competition with her "The Wheel and the Hearth." This was her first novel. Previously the native Eugene resident had co-authored with her sisters, Nina W. McCornack '05 and Gladys W. McCready '18, "The Story of Eugene." She also has a book of poetry, "Old Fashioneds," to her credit.

Mrs. Moore was also honored for "The Wheel and the Hearth" at the April awards breakfast of the National League of American Pen Women. Now "in New York" is a sequel, tentatively titled "Chimneys in the Valley." This is a story of the early settlement of the Eugene valley area. She's now working on a personal experience book about her 32 years "in the Army" while traveling with her husband, who's now retired. While at the University, she was a charter member of Chi Omega on campus.

Overholser's "Law Man," written under his pen name of Lee Leighton, won him the award for "best Western novel." After his graduation with a B.S. degree in history, he sold more than 180 stories and novelettes before his first full-length book, "Buckaroo's Code," was published in 1947. "West of the Rimrock," his second novel, followed in 1949. He formerly taught in schools at Tillamook and Bend, but now lists his profession as "writer of Western fiction" and his address in Boulder, Colorado. His wife, Evalett, was a student at Oregon in 1933.

Half-Century Club president for the coming year will be William G. Beattie '01. Also chosen by Club members were Leila Straub Stafford '01, secretary, and Dr. Charles Templeton '99, vice president, at the annual meeting in June.

Outgoing officers are John C. Higgins '97, president, and Susie B. Holt '01, secretary.

The Half-Century Club is composed of graduates who were members of classes fifty or more years ago. At this year's dinner meeting, the Class of 1904 was taken into the group officially.

'96 One of Verna Sharp Millican's principal interests is her garden. She lives on Route 2, Box 235A, in Springfield.

Virgil Johnson is manager of Huntress Farm Gardens, Meredith, New Hampshire. He specializes in growing iris, Oriental poppies and hemerocallis. He reports that he still plans to write about his early days at Oregon.

Dr. Charles McClure is practicing his profession at 665 Olympic National Building, Seattle 4, Washington. He is active in church affairs.

Frances Hemenway Brumfield lives at the Garden Apartments, San Mateo Drive, San Mateo, California. She participates in club and civic activities and enjoys traveling.

Charles (Wint) Wintermeier has been doing income tax work in his law business. He and Mrs. Wintermeier made visits recently to all shut-in members of the class of '96.

Louise Yoran Whitton is living at 1549 Mill St., Eugene.

Maude Wilkins Condon, after an illness, is living in a convalescent home in Seattle.

Anna Roberts Stephenson, who reported the above activities of each member of the class of '96, says that she keeps busy writing to classmates, reading and listening to radio news programs. She is making her home at 728 South Davis St., McMinnville.

'01 W. G. Beattie gave the commencement address at Sheldon Jackson Junior College in Sitka, Alaska, in June. He was superintendent of that school when it was an elementary institution from 1905 to 1911. In 1909, the first graduating class of eighth graders numbered 3, while his recent address was given before three junior college graduates and twenty-six high school graduates. Mr. Beattie made the trip to and from Alaska by plane.

'09 Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Bond (Elsie Davis '08) spent three months traveling in Europe last spring. They were in Spain, the South of France, Rome, Athens, Corinth, Cairo, Damascus, Beirut, and Palestine. They spent several days in Jerusalem, visiting Tiberius, the Sea of Galilee, Nazareth, Haifa, and Cyprus before returning to Rome.

Ormond R. Bean has been elected for another four-year term starting Jan. 1, 1955, as a Portland city commissioner. He and his wife, the former Eva Allen '10, live at 8100 S. W. 2nd St., Portland.

'10 C. L. Eaton is general manager for Duvelle Perfumes, a Portland firm.

'11 Mrs. George McNeill (Naomi Williamson '11) and her husband are planning to return to Oregon after 34 years in Rochester, New York. They have a son, Kenneth, who is an engineer with General Motors Corporation, and a daughter, Mrs. Johanna Henningsen.

13 The Milwaukie Republican Club had Ralph H. Cake as speaker in April. Cake, an active Republican, was one of President Eisenhower's personal campaign managers. He was Oregon's Republican national committeeman in 1940-52 and served as executive member on the national committee.

Dr. W. K. Livingston attended meetings of the American Board of Surgery and the American Surgical Association in Cleveland during the first two weeks of May.

Karl W. Onthank, Director of Graduate Placement for the University, was saluted in The Palm of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity in May as one of two top "Chapter Advisers: The Unsung Heroes." The story was written by Bob Southwell '55.

16 Recently in Salem, George C. Hugins of Coos Bay was elected chairman of the State Board of Education.

18 Now vice president in charge of the savings department of the Equitable Savings and Loan Association, effective July 1, will be Harold H. Cake, it was announced recently by Ralph H. Cake '13, Equitable president.

Lucien P. Arant, publisher of the Baker Democrat-Herald, has been named president of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association.

22 Following a distinguished career in the fields of geology and paleontology and an equally distinguished career in the U.S. Army, from which he retired with the rank of colonel, Hubert Gregory Schenck has served for three years as the chief of the Mutual Security Mission to China. As a token of appreciation for his service to the Chinese people and government, the President of the Republic of China has conferred by mandate the Decoration of Ching Hsing (Auspicious Star) upon Mr. Schenck. He is now serving as professor of geology at Stanford University, where his address is Box 1528, Stanford University, Calif.

Wilton G. Smith, co-ordinator of Hyster used truck merchandising in Portland, has been named New York export representative.

23 New York University law professor and practicing attorney, who is well known to University of Oregon alumni as official Oregon greeter in Manhattan, is John MacGregor. He represented the University at presidential inauguration ceremonies at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, New York, on May 15.

Dr. Charles Howard, professor of law at the University of Oregon, was recently elected first vice president of the newly-formed Central Lane Council of Churches.

Mrs. Alice Tomkins Fee is now living in San Francisco. Her husband, Judge James Alger Fee, has been appointed by President Eisenhower to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, with headquarters there. They will also be in Los Angeles, Seattle and Portland at times, as the circuit comprises the Western states, Guam, Hawaii and Alaska.

Albert Melville Capps, Bonneville Dam chief of operations, was appointed dam project engineer recently. He has been with the Corps of Engineers there since 1937, when he began work as a powerhouse switchboard operator.

24 Don Zimmerman, an officer in the Air Force, is stationed in Japan for a fourth year.

Oregon's first lady, Mrs. Paul Patterson, was guest speaker at a banquet of American Association of University Women members and guests April 20 in the Civic Room of the Umpqua Hotel. She was the former Georgia S. Benson.

25 A recently elected board member of Portland Life Underwriters is Joseph T. Ellis.

New board members of Portland Life Underwriters have elected Gordon E. Wilson, Connecticut Mutual, as secretary-treasurer.

Charles E. Snell, former merchandise manager of home furnishing at Meier and Frank Company, is returning to the store in an executive capacity. He left the firm in 1951 to become general manager, director and vice president of the W. and J. Sloane company store in San Francisco. He has been employed by department stores in Oakland, Kansas City and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hesden Metcalf of 2561 Alder St., Eugene, announce the arrival of a daughter, born July 17. They also have two sons, Hesden Jr. and Roland.

26 Part owner of the Medford Insurance agency is Dorothy M. Peirce of Medford.

The million-dollar roundtable of the National Association of Life Underwriters has named James G. Harding of Portland to life and qualifying membership. He is with the L. J. Evans agency of Northwest Mutual Life.

Miss Mary Josephine Shelly recently was appointed director of public relations for the national Girl Scout organization. Miss Shelly, formerly on the executive staff of the WAVES, director of the WAF, and since 1938 assistant to the president of Bennington College in Bennington, Vt., joined the Girl Scout national staff July 12. A native of Grand Rapids, Mich., she received her master's degree at Columbia University.

27 On the staff at Reedsport Union High School next fall will be Otis J. White, who for the past 14 years was superintendent of the Detroit, Oregon, high school. He has had 27 years' teaching experience in mathematics, science, photography and woodworking. He has served as a teacher or administrator at several schools, including Colton, Goshen, Sheridan and Grande Ronde.

28 Glenn Radabaugh now owns and operates Acme Printing Co. in Sacramento, Calif., and has just completed a new building.

Pacific Pumping Company has assigned Burt Nelson as representative to the Portland industrial area.

Frank B. Reid was installed recently as a circuit judge in the Second Judicial District, Eugene. He succeeds Judge G. F. Skipworth, who has retired after 40 years of service. Mr. Reid and his wife, the former Vera Snow '32, live at 2990 Friendly St.

Harry E. Dutton Jr. is leaving the Visalia Times-Delta, where he has been news editor, to take a night editing job on the Walla Walla Union-Bulletin beginning in late August.

Death Claims Former President

Dr. Clarence V. Boyer

Dr. Clarence Valentine Boyer, president of the University of Oregon through some of the most stormy years of the school's history, died July 31 in Sacred Heart Hospital, Eugene, after a long illness. He was 74.

Dr. Boyer joined the Oregon faculty in 1926 as a professor of English and head of that department. Later he served as head of the language and literature group and dean of the College of Arts and Letters. In 1934 he became sixth president of the University and resigned in 1938 because of ill health. He remained dean of the college during his presidency and continued in that capacity until 1942. He continued to teach English, but went on a part-time basis in 1945. Full retirement followed in 1947.

Dr. Boyer, an attorney, practiced law for four years early in the century. He was a graduate of Princeton University and the University of Pittsburgh law school, and had also studied at Oxford, the American Academy at Athens and the American Academy in Rome. He received his master's and doctor's degrees from Princeton. He taught English at the University of Illinois from 1911 until 1926.

When in 1934 Dean Boyer became president of the University, he did so reluctantly.

killed in an explosion Aug. 13 while clearing a logging road.

A guard for the football team, he also threw the javelin for the varsity track team and was a member of Druids honorary. He would have been a junior at the University, where he had been taking business courses preparatory to enrolling in law school.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Higdon.

Primarily a scholar rather than an administrator, he ran the school's affairs from his desk in Villard Hall. Students still called him "Dean Boyer."

But the University's problems consumed all his time. He was president for four depression years, and also guided the University through its last big pre-war building program.

An enthusiastic sportsman, he was fond of guns, hunting dogs, and horses. He had lived for many years in a large brick house on East 22nd near Potter Street.

He is survived by a brother, Dr. Samuel Boyer of Duluth, Minn., and a sister, Mrs. Frederick Eaton, Orlando, Fla.

Physicist Dies

Dr. Albert E. Caswell, retired head of the University physics department, died June 18 at a Eugene hospital. He was 70 years old.

Born in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Dr. Caswell received his scholastic degrees from Stanford University. After teaching at Stanford for three years, he went to Purdue in 1911. He came to Oregon in 1913 as an instructor in physics. He was affiliated with the University continuously thereafter, except for two years at Oregon State College, 1932-34, and the war years, when he was on leave of absence for research. He became department head in 1934. In 1949, after retiring, he did radiation research for the Air Force.

Dr. Caswell was active in church work. In 1948 he was named chairman of the committee on the Bible in schools for the Oregon Council of Churches; he was a director of the council in 1949. His other civic activities included membership in the Round Table and the Kiwanis Club.

The first president of the state chapter of Sigma Xi, Dr. Caswell also was a member of many professional organizations.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Miriam Chaffee '40; three sons, John Caswell '34, Dwight Caswell '43 and Randall Caswell '45, and 11 grandchildren.

Dr. H. R. Taylor Passes

Dr. Howard R. Taylor, member of the University faculty since 1925 and long-time head of the Department of Psychology, died July 18 in Eugene.

Born in Franklin, Nebraska, he had long been active both in University affairs and in community life in Eugene. He had been for many years a member of the Eugene Water and Electric Board.

Dr. Taylor received his baccalaureate degree at Pacific University in Oregon and his master's and doctor's degrees from Stanford University. He came to the University of Oregon as an assistant professor and was made a full professor in 1930. In 1934 he was made department head. He resigned as head of the department in June, 1953, in order to devote full time to academic work.

He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Frances Jean.
